WAR "VETS" HAD A BIG DAY HERE

Thinning Ranks of the G. A. R. Attract the Attention of Thouands.

AN IMPRESSIVE EVENT

Street Demonstration Followed by Reform Hall Meeting—Rev. Edward S. Ralston Makes Masterly Address.

Bent, gray-haired and grizzled, but hailed by those Americans who have red-blood flowing through their veins, as the nation's heroes, veterans of the Civil War participated in their annual Memorial Day observance in an elaborate manner over the week-end, the usual demonstration being lengthened to two days because of the fact that May 30 fell on Sunday. Opening the celebrities with divine services in the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning, the "vets" commemorated the event in a manner that set a precedent. The program was impressive and appropriate from start to finish, patriotism being the keynote. The red, white and blue ruled supreme, and friends, relatives and admirers of the aged musket bearers paid their respects with bared heads along yesterday morning's line of march. The fast thinning lines of the G. A. R., the decrease being even more notable this year than it has in the past, passed through the streets in full regalia; their public parade being more demonstrative than ever this year, a feature probably due to the strife now underway in a foreign land.

Sunday morning the comrades assembled at Reform Hall and marched to the Park Avenue Baptist church, where an eloquent sermon was delivered by the Rev. Birney S. Hudson, his subject being particularly pertinent to the nature of the observance. Following the morning devotional services a recess until 7 o'clock Sunday night ensued, when they marched in a body to the Trinity Reformed church and heard a second excellent discourse made by the Rev. John Y. Broek. The "vets" appeared in dark clothing, and wore uniform hats and gloves and carried canes. In many instances the members of the Woman's Relief Corps of the G. A. R.

CITY'S INDIGENTS HAD MONEY TO SATISFY FINES

Residents living in the vicinity of Third and Richmond streets, last night witnessed a scene that had the earmarks of an international warfare. A heated argument led to blows between Balma Perrelli, of 225 Watson avenue; Joseph Farrelli, 325 Watson avenue, and Charles Parent, of Long Island City, and the subsequent arrest of the trio by Patrolman Martin Welsh. In the city police court, this morning, the two first mentioned paid $8 fines and Parent had to liquidate $15 in order to gain his liberty.

During the course of the fistic encounter a plate glass window in the store of Sylvester Sharkey at that corner was smashed and after they had paid their fines the combatants had to contribute to a collection amounting to $36 to satisfy the grocer for his loss. Finger-nails appeared to be the best weapon advanced by the men, each of whom showed evidences of having been through a battle when arraigned.

Two of the men are among the foreigners who have been professing "hard luck" during the winter months in Plainfield and their families have been kept by the city. All of the men, however, "flashed" bankrolls that "would choke a horse" on the court attendants this morning, and paid their fines without a moment's delay.

OPEN-AIR MOVIES ATTRACT.

Big crowds of movie devotees attended the opening of the Plainfield Airdome at East Front street and Watchung avenue, Saturday night. The facilities for such a show place at this corner are of the best and the pictures thrown on the screen for the initial program were feature numbers that attracted considerable favorable comment. Films of the best calibre are being exhibited and the success of the open-air idea appears to be a foregone conclusion.

R. W. FULLER WEDS MISS MORTIMER

Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson Officiates at Home of Bride's Brother.

Miss Marion Mortimer, sister of Francis R. Mortimer, of 1029 Prospect avenue, and Ray Webster Fuller, also of this city, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, in the presence of a number of guests. The ceremony was performed under a bower of palms and lilies by Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which the bride is a member.

The bride and groom, who were unattended, entered the parlor as the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Herbert Harold, accompanied by Arthur Mosher, violinist. The bride wore a traveling suit of gray, with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

After the reception and supper, which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller left for a trip through New York State and the Middle West.

The house was beautifully decorated, the parlor being in green and white, and the dining-room in green and pink.

Upon their return, the couple will reside for the present at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, of 1020 Arlington avenue.

WORSHIPPERS RENEW BAPTISMAL VOWS

Impressive Services Close the Mission at St. Joseph's Church.

Deeply impressive was the closing service of the mission at St. Joseph's church, Sunday night. Following the sermon the large congregation stood up and with upstretched arms solemnly renewed their baptismal vows.

"He that persevereth unto the end, shall be saved," was the topic of Father John's discourse and in a touching manner the speaker urged the congregation to continue their determination to avoid evil. "Perseverance was the trying to do one's duty all the time," said the speaker, and all the resolutions made during the week by each person he asked to be lived up to, for if the devil lost a soul during the mission he would double his efforts to regain it. Father John compared the work of the devil to a commander who sends his spies out for information as to the weak spots in the enemy's fortifications and then he deals the final blow; so the devil tempts the human soul in its weak spots and thus gradually gains that soul.

Vigilance and prayer were the two requisites necessary to persevere unto the end. In the first place, a careful watch that the person does not go into the occasion of sin again, for if he does, it goes without saying that that person will sin again. Father John entreated his listeners to prayer and prompted them to give at least five minutes of the day to God.

As a result of the week of the mission an inquirer's class has been formed with Father Hart in charge. In this class those of non-Catholic faith are given an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the Catholic faith.

"KISSED AND MADE UP," BUT TRUCE DIDN'T LAST AN HOUR

Because he persisted in administering a beating to his wife and "clean-house" in general, Alexander Zoll was scathingly reprimanded and sentenced to pay a fine of $20, when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court, this morning. At the same time he was told to stay away from the family home at 437 West Third street.

Zoll was arrested by Patrolman Thomas Flatley, yesterday morning, and when he pleaded for another chance both Judge DeMeza and his wife were inclined to take him at his word. As a consequence he was allowed to go on a suspended sentence and the couple "kissed and made up" before leaving the courtroom arm in arm. Upon arriving home again, however, Zoll's temper got the better of him again and he proceeded to finish his assault on Mrs. Zoll. He was arrested and remained in jail until sentence was pronounced this morning.

LOCAL KNIGHTS TOOK TWO HOLIDAY AUTO EXCURSIONS

Two delegations from Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, made visits to other councils yesterday, one section going to New York and assisting the Amsterdam Council in exemplifying the third degree of the order, and a second body making a trip to Newark and taking part in an elaborate ceremony opening the new clubhouse in that city.

The trips were both made by automobile and the Plainfielders were the guests of the home Knights at a reception in each instance following the regular observance. In New York a large number were admitted into the mysteries of knightdom and in Newark hundreds of interested spectators witnessed the opening of the handsome new structure.

DIPLOMAS FOR EIGHT GRADUATES

Commencement Exercises to Be Held at Hartridge School on Friday.

DR. GUTHRIE TO SPEAK

Spring Meeting of Alumnae Association to Be Held at Oakwood—Mrs. Hartridge Announces Plans for Next Year.

The commencement exercises of the Hartridge School will be held on Friday, when the school will close a most successful year.

Dr. W. Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's church in the Bouwerie, will deliver the commencement address, and Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie will make the opening prayer and will pronounce the benediction. The members of the graduatng class on whom Miss Hartridge will confer diplomas are Miss Augusta Burke, daughter of Charles C. Burke; the Misses Lillian and Mary Fiske, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Fiske; Miss Bessie Jewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jewett, and Miss Margaret Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller, all of this city; Miss Winifred Campbell, of Montclair; Miss Marjorie Dobbins, of Pasadena, and Miss Helen Horner, of Minneapolis. Miss Burke, Miss Dobbins, Miss Jewett and Miss Miller are going to college; Miss Campbell and the Misses Fiske are planning to study music, and Miss Horner has not yet made her plans.

In the afternoon the Alumnae Association will hold its annual spring meeting at Oakwood, where refreshments will be served on the lawn, and in the evening the annual dance in honor of the senior class will be given in the school auditorium. A number of out-of-town guests will be present for the festivities.

As about fifty per cent. of the graduates usually enter college, twenty girls will take their prelimaries or their finals when the college entrance board examinations are given here in June. The school holds the certificate to those of the women's colleges that admit on certificate, but Miss Hartridge believes in entrance by examination, as developing poise and self-confidence. The school annual, which is now at the publisher's, shows an interesting list of honors won by former pupils

A number of plans have been already made for the coming year. The use of Montessori materials in the kindergarten room has proved an even greater success than it proved last term. One of the children has of his own volition begun to read; another has been interested in writing numbers up to twelve hundred and in making combinations and equations on the blackboard. All have had success with their garden and have raised radishes and beets as well as flowers. Miss Burt will remain in charge of this department and is planning to have all the children wear special suits, so that classes may be held out-of-doors even on the coldest days. The school bus will call for little people in Netherwood if desired.

Miss Helen Thornton Simpson, of Philadelphia, who has had five years of successful experience in first grade work in private schools in Ardmore and Haverford, and who is most attractive personally with a bright, sunny disposition, will succeed Miss Tompkins. Miss Louise A. Hedges, of Cornwall-on-Hudson, will take charge of the third grade. Miss Hedges is a young woman of charm and refinement who comes to the school with a personal letter of recommendations from Dr. Lyman Abbott. Her work also has been entirely in private schools, where she has held responsible positions for the past six years.

No boys will be received above the third grade, and the fourth and fifth grade girls will sit in the same room, under the care of Mrs. Strong, with special teachers, as usual, for the fifth grade. Miss Mapelsden will be in charge of the sixth and seventh grade room. Miss Evelyn Wells is planning to work for the Kentucky children in the Pine Mountain School, in which many Plainfielders are interested, and Miss Emily Rose, of Allegheny College, will take her place. Miss Mary B. Wells, of the history and economics department is planning special work in the afternoons for those girls who wish to return for study hours. Miss Mary A. Wells, of the French department, will continue her classes here, and the school is fortunate also to retain Miss Robinson for art, Miss Williamson for piano work, Mrs. Peckham for singing and Miss Spear for physical training.

STIRRING DISCOURSE TO G. A. R. VETERANS

Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson Reviews Wars That Have Made History.

"Colors That Do Not Run," was the subject of a rousing patriotic sermon by Rev. Birney S. Hudson, before the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps, at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday morning. The service opened with the Bible school marching into the church to the accompaniment of the "Star Spangled Banner;" the elementary department presenting a very pleasing spectacle with the sixty or more boys and girls, including the smallest tots, waving small American flags as they marched to their seats. Then followed the pastor's five-minute talk to the children, taking for his subject on this occasion, "Our Flag," and in a most interesting way told them how and when it was made and some of the great things the Stars and Stripes stand for.

To see the G. A. R. veterans assembled upon an occasion never fails to arouse interest, and particularly when they are listening to the recital of incidents of the great conflict in which they took an active part. Dr. Hudson made the service one of intense interest to these soldiers, particularly in his graphic description of the battle of Chickamauga. He touched upon all the wars that have made history for this land of ours from the days of the revolution down to the conflict now raging throughout Europe, and brought his discourse to a close with the cry, "Not peace at any price, but righteousness at any price; this may include peace—would to God it may be so! Peace if we may, but war if we must, in order that the cause of righteousness may triumph." Mrs. Grace Robinson added very much to the impressiveness of the whole service by her splendid singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

"The Meaning of Our Flag" was the pastor's topic for the evening. The red stripes, he said, might be said to stand for the blood that has been shed upon the field of battle as the price of the liberty and freedom of our great nation; the white represents the purity of the country's principles, and in the blue we see the canopy of Heaven, the overshadowing Providence. Master Irving Manley delighted the congregation with his remarkable voice in solos beautifully rendered in connection with the anthen by the choir.

SIX GAMBLERS ARRESTED; THEY PAY $125 IN FINES

Six gamblers were arrested in a Cottage place house by Captain John J. Flynn and Sergeant Maurice Higgins, Sunday night, and when arraigned in the police court this morning, they were sentenced to pay fines aggregating a sum of $125 by Judge DeMeza. Frank Pollock, Joe Lemon, Tony Braum, Matthew Salvia and Tony DeVaco paid $20 fines, and Patsy Fustico, the keeper, paid $25 to get his liberty.

The house in question has been under police surveillance for some time past and when the two coppers swooped down on a quiet game Sunday night, they succeeded in rounding up the whole crowd.

Advocacy of compulsory military service of two months during every year for persons up to twenty-five years of age was the keynote of a speech delivered by former Congressman Charles N. Fowler at the exercises. Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of this city, was a guest at the affair and was called upon to make an impromptu address. His remarks were enthusiastically received and were of a forceful nature. Three thousand persons marched in the street demonstration.

It was announced that bids for the alterations on the Somerset street school will be received soon. It is the intention of the Board to employ a school nurse next year at a salary of $350. Miss Daisy Brouard, who is now taking Miss Eva Dvorken's place, Miss Gladys Russell and Miss Edna Hendrix have been engaged as teachers for next year. The Board adjourned to June 21.

WILSON SOON TO ANSWER GERMANY

President Refused to Discuss Matter With Visitors at White House Today.

ITALIANS ADVANCING

Are Now Within Fifteen Miles of Trent—Zeppelin Raiders Reach Outskirts of London but Do Comparatively Little Damage.

Washington, June 1.—Both the negotiations with Germany and the situation with regard to Mexico came up for consideration before the Cabinet today. President Wilson, before the Cabinet met, told visitors he would not discuss the German matter. He said he had given no consideration yet to a reply to Berlin in answer to its note of yesterday, but would talk the matter over with his advisors. He made it clear, however, that the answer would not be delayed many days.

It is likely the President is awaiting the visit of Count Von Bernstorff at noon tomorrow. The German ambassador asked for the White House interview, but has maintained a complete silence as to the errand on which he is going to the executive office.

The President declared that the report of his special representative, Duval West, who looked into conditions in Mexico, was all that could be expected. The President would not divulge the substance of Mr. West's report, but it is understood to have been to the effect that under present conditions no prospect of peace was in sight.

Italy has issued strict regulations concerning shipping in the straits of Messina, Ambassador Page cabled from Rome today. The straits are now heavily mined and vessels must not enter after dark; must keep three miles off shore at all times and will not be permitted to move forward unless ordered to do so by signal. The shores of the straits are equipped now with huge samephones, it was said, which by signal will direct the course of each vessel that seeks to navigate the waters.

Rome, June 1.—The following statement was issued at the War Office today:

"The advance of our troops continues. Mt. Zugna, four miles north of Ala, dominating Roverette, has been occupied by us. Artillery duels upon the plateau continue with intensity. The fire of the Austrian fort of Belvedere is diminishing. Our infantry are entrenching upon the ground in the Sugana Valley. Our front is now only six miles from Borgo Di Val Sugana, which os only 15 miles east of Trent. Both sides of the Sugana Valley are in our hands."

Paris, June 1.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"In the region to north of Arras some violent combats were fought during the night. To the east of the Aix-Noulette-Souchez road we penetrated into a group of trenches where there occurred a hand to hand battle in which we had the advantage. On the plateau east of Notre Dame De Lorette we captured a German earthworks.

"A very violent combat is developing around the sugar factory at Souchez. We have taken 60 prisoners.

"In the Vorges, near La Fontenelle, north of St. Die, during the night of May 30-31, a German attack, led by two companies, was repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy."

London, June 1.—The official press bureau issued the following announcement early this morning:

"Zeppelins are reported to have been seen near Ramsgate (on the Kentish coast, sixty-seven miles east-southeast of London) and Brentwood (seventeen miles east-northeast of London), and in certain outlying districts of London. Many fires are reported, but these cannot be absolutely connected with the airship visits.

"Further particulars will be issued as soon as they can be collected and collated."

Prior to giving out the above communication the official press bureau issued a notice reminding the newspapers that in the interest of public safety no statement whatever should be published dealing with places in the neighborhood of London reached by air craft or the course supposed to be taken by them. It was added that an Admiralty communication would give all the information which might properly be published.

The success of British submarines in penetrating the narrows and entering the Sea or Marmora has stopped the transportation of Turkish troops by water to the Gallipoli Peninsula. The submarines have attacked a number of Turkish vessels and JEFFERSON'S HOME.

Monticello, With Its View of the University of Virginia.

A mansion on Monticello ("little mountain," pronounced "Montechello"), was Jefferson's boyhood dream. He worked at it all his life with an artist's creative zeal.

The road from Charlottesville is winding, hilly and rough. Rows of big stepping stones cross it, lifting pedestrians out of the red mud, but jolting heedless drivers.

Visitors may stay in the grounds twenty minutes, but must bring no luncheons. Jefferson's guests stayed weeks and ate him into poverty.

From the servants' quarters a long sunken way runs under the house to the ice house and other storage beyond. The flat roof of this walk, two feet above ground, is a dry promenade. Over the icehouse is an outlook platform. Icehouse and servants' quarters are half underground, with windows only on the far side. Jefferson looked out over them east toward Washington, west toward the University of Virginia, whose beginnings he watched with his telescope when he could no longer walk.

Students enjoy the most beautiful and inspiring scholastic shades in the new world. Jefferson's university is artistic perfection, reverently preserved. Toward the town the curved walls he designed to save brick and labor for a poor institution still stand. The length of each wave line curve is twenty feet. Its width, forty inches, gives the stability of a three foot wall to one only four inches thick. The effect is pleasing.

Jefferson was a better architect than Washington, and perhaps his equal in landscape gardening and estate planning.

On Jefferson's gravestone at Monticello no mention of the presidency is made, but his authorship of the Declaration and the Virginia statute of religious liberty is recited and that he was the "Father of the University of Virginia."—New York World.

BAHAMA ISLAND SHELLS.

Pearly Treasures of Many Varieties Line the Beaches.

The shores of the Bahama islands are each day strewn with multitudes of beautiful seashells, more than fifty varieties of which have a commercial value in the United States and Europe.

Among these are rice shells, so tiny in size as to make one marvel how a sufficient number could be picked up to fill a barrel; gold shells, mud shells, cockles, bleeding tooth; pretty decorative sun shells, eardrop shells, which are exported to Odessa, Russia, to be used as ear pendants; Panama or tent shells, which resemble miniature encampments and sell at $90 a barrel; black snails, which take a high polish; conchs—king, queen, ivory, pinklip and trochus or Turk's cap, locally termed "whelks." These are but a few of the assortment kept in stock at the leading warehouses at Nassau.

The queen conch, which is especially adapted for cameo carving on account of having a layer of brown with a white top and the pinklip conch, which has layers of white and pink, are much sought for. Only the lips of these two varieties are exported, the demand coming from New York and from Torre del Greco, near Naples, Italy.

Ordinary conchs sell at 1 cent; pinklip, whole shells, from 5 cents to 25 cents, and queens at 30 cents United States currency in Nassau. The whelk or Turk's cap is particularly valuable, as it has a portion resembling the best mother-of-pearl, from which pearl studs, for instance, could be made.

It is estimated that a million shells of this variety could be obtained annually in this colony. These shells sell for 1½ cents each. Labor is cheap, colored women receiving from 25 to 30 cents, ordinary laboring men 60 cents and white engineers $1.50 a day.—Indianapolis News.

CAPTAIN REGUR DIES AT RIPE OLD AGE

Patriotic Citizen Who Recruited Co. I, Third Regt., Passes Away in Iowa.

Captain Leonard Hallett Regur, who lived for many years on a farm on the Valley road, at Watchung, and who recruited Co. I, Third Regiment, in this city at the outbreak of the Civil War, died last week at the home of his son, William H. Regur, of Keosauqua, Iowa. He was in his ninety-fifth year and previous to residing at Keosauqua lived at Delevan, Ill., to which place he removed from this city shortly after the close of the war. Burial was made at Delevan where he had many relatives.

Captain Regur was one of the most patriotic Northerners in this section and when Lincoln made his first call for troops started the movement in Plainfield that brought about Co. I. Practically every man in it was a Plainfielder, but so far as known there are only two survivors here today, Preston B. Goodfellow, of this city, and Robert Walpole, of Scotch Plains. Captain Regur fought with distinction throughout the conflict and has always been an energetic G. A. R. member. Although he had been away from Plainfield for many years he kept in touch with Winfield Scott Post and the news of his death was received by the old veterans yesterday with keen regret. It was imparted to them at the Memorial Day gathering by Adjutant H. Craig Smith, who received the information from Captain Regur's grandson at Delevan.

The surviving relatives include one daughter and five sons, one of the latter being Winfield S. Regur, of Summit.

DREAMS THAT COME TRUE.

And Those That Don't and the Workings of the Sleep Mind.

Of course, some dreams come true. The most hardheaded business man will have to admit it. But the proportion of them? That's where people differ.

Few people, if any, sleep without dreaming, and even on the basis of only one dream a night this would mean over seventeen thousand dreams for each person fifty years old. Yet few of us can recall even seventeen occasions in which a coming event has been forecasted in a dream. The prophecy that comes true is remembered because the actual occurrence brings to memory the concepts in the dream, the others are forgotten.

Since our dreams are woven from the fabric of our lives, and our lives, after all, run along in fairly narrow grooves, it would be astounding if some of them did not juggle our impressions in such wise as to seem to forecast something new. The mathematical doctrine of chances alone suffices to justify the dreams that strike right. After all, one in a thousand isn't so many.

The dreams that give right answers to problems, too, are evidences not only of prophecy, but also of the existence of a sleep mind which works differently from the waking mind.

The sleep mind, which works by intuition, gains, as well as loses, by its freedom from the shackles of logic and reason. Conclusions based on reason are often utterly unsound, because we do not know all the reasons, whereas an intuitive conclusion, which is the outcome of emotion, may be inherently right.

Wherefore when a serious question awaits decision it is not a sign of indeterminateness, but an evidence of wisdom, to say, "I want to sleep on that."

Quite unconsciously we do this sometimes, believing the answer to be merely a ruse to gain time. Truly our intent is to take a change of venue, to have the point settled by the sleep mind, which is free from the shackles of prejudice and custom.—New York American.

SHE WAS A TRUE WIFE.

The Story of a Crisis and the Way It Was Happily Handled.

A woman has just told us of what she did the night her young husband found himself bankrupt. His factory was closed, he had lost all he owned—plus a good deal more—and, as he looked at it, life was about at an end. He reflected that he had taken his wife from a happy and charming home and that he had brought disgrace and poverty on her. It occurred to him that a well placed bullet might be the best all round solution of his difficulties.

His wife, at home, made a poignant surmise as to what he was thinking. Suddenly it occurred to her that here was a chance for team work—an opportunity to show what being a wife really meant. She prepared a delicious little dinner, she made her home as inviting as she could, and she arrayed herself in her most becoming dress.

Her husband returned, not to a disheveled and sobbing woman, to a neglected house and a drama of disaster, but to a home where everything spoke of resolution, of continuity, of expectation. The fire on his hearth, his simple, well cooked dinner, the courageous eyes of his attractive wife, restored him to a true sense of values. He was able, amid all his confusion of purpose and torment of realization, to see his failure as only a retrievable episode in his life.

He is now a successful manufacturer, his debts are paid and he has a happy home with a son and a daughter in it. He was saved from being a suicide by the fact that a woman was sportsmanlike at the right moment.—Collier's Weekly.

Had Learned One Lesson.

At one school the pupils were requested to bring 5 cents each for the piano. Donations were slow in coming and the teacher was obliged to remind the class frequently before the total was collected.

A few days later, at the physiology lesson, the teacher asked, "What are the five sensos?"

To which an earnest foreigner replied, "Five centses is for de piano."—New York Tribune.

A Pertinent Query.

She was leaving the city for home, and by way of making her departure pleasant for those who had served her, gave a nickel to a chambermaid, saying, "Mary, you take a nice long car ride."

The maid replied, "Yes, ma'am; thank you, ma'am, but how will I get back?"—Argonaut.

A Timely Question.

FIND BODY OF AGED MAN HANGING FROM TREE LIMB

Autoists passing along a road three miles east of Pluckemin this morning, discovered the body of an aged man hanging to a tree near the thoroughfare, which was later identified as that of Ralph Davenport, aged sixty-nine, formerly of Dunellen, but more recently of Pluckemin. The remains were cut down and removed to the home of his son, Georve Davenport, at the latter place. He is survived by a wife living in Dunellen and another son, Ira, living in New York city.

Every indication points to a case of suicide. The spot where the corpse was found is alongside of a road frequented by many autoists and it is likely that the act was committed sometime last night or early this morning.

ASSESSMENT ON KENNEY PROPERTY IS AFFIRMED

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the firm of Reed & Hetfield, who represented the city in the tax appeal case of David T. Kenney against Plainfield, before the County Tax Board, which matter was afterward taken up before the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, received word today from the State Board informing him that the assessment had been affirmed.

The assessment in question was levied on Mr. Kenney's property on North avenue, adjoining property of the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company. It was assessed at $21 a front foot, and at the time the appeal was taken Mr. Kenney said that it was not worth more than $15. Mr. Kenney was requested to file a brief with the County Board, which he did, and Mr. Hetfield made the reply.

GERMANY'S ANSWER.

That the German government has no intention or desire to retain the friendship of the American government and people, and does not care what action the United States takes is evidently the opinion of our people, if the editorial expressions of newspapers all over the land can be taken as representative of public sentiment. The reply to President Wilson's note on the Lusitania incident, made public at the same time that it is shown that the Nebraskan was pursued by a submarine for hours before being torpedoed, indicates clearly that there will be no reparation whatsoever for the hundred or more Americans slain on the Lusitania, and that Germany intends to continue her attack on unarmed passenger carrying vessels, and even upon American vessels when they feel like attacking them.

Evasions, statements about the Lusitania which the evidence of every survivor proves to be untrue, a mixture of quibbles, and no suggestions that the policy will be changed in the future leaves it necessary for President Wilson to send another and stronger protest. It has even been suggested that diplomatic relations be broken off with the German government, not with any idea that we declare war, but merely because the country has placed herself beyond the pale of civilization by her attitude toward non-combatants and her complete disregard of all international law. The suggestion that the matter be submitted to the Hague tribunal, when Germany has ignored practically every agreement which was made at that place prior to the war is ridiculous especially when we consider the "scrap of paper" incident.

One German paper, the New Yorker Herold, says that the note "shows conclusively that Germany is most anxious to live at peace with America." Upon what that statement is based, unless it is the sarcastic wording of the document, it has been hard for the great newspapers from one end of the country to the other to understand. The American people are in no mood for the dropping of the matter in view of the equivocal and unsatisfactory paper made public yesterday, and President Wilson will have hearty support in case he demands an immediate and more satisfactory statement from the "Imperial German Government."

When you hear a fond mamma calling "Willie, you come home at once," nowadays, it does not necessarily mean that she does not want the young hopeful playing with the neighbors' children. More than likely one of the other youngsters has the whooping cough, or has a brother or sister with it, and Willie's mother is not taking any chances. Plainfield is by no means more afflicted by this trouble than other places, for all over this section of New Jersey there seems to be an epidemic of the "whoops," and a good many people are deliberately encouraging their children to catch it and have the trouble over with. But there are times when it is best not to have it around, and for the protection of other children, much more stringent health regulations should be adopted. In Newark the matter of making it a disease to be reported to the Board of Health is being seriously considered, and it has been proposed that every person afflicted be compelled to wear a yellow band on the arm. This plan may seem like a ridiculous one, and yet our people would be astonished at the number of these bands were that rule enforced in Plainfield. We have an overworked Board of Health, now, and it is getting along under very small expense, considering the size of the city. In spite of that, however, the prevention of the spread of whooping cough should be taken up seriously, if action to that end has not already begun.

On top of all the other demands that have been made upon the American people, because of the war and the general business depression, along come two more requests for help for the suffering of other nations. The President has appealed for funds for the Red Cross to be used in Mexico, and that organization is appealing direct for money to be used in its work with the Italian army. Truly America is helping the world, and yet we seem to be able to answer all appeals. If by any chance we should get into the war, which every right thinking person hopes will not be the case, the suffering in other countries is going to be magnified a thousand fold because of the shutting off of aid from this country.

The suffragists, according to their press agent, have sent out an automobile "MANNED" by a Miss Eva Ward. Without casting any reflections on the young woman, aren't they just a bit ahead of the times in the choice of the word? We didn't think that the most ardent suffragists wished to change their sex.

Either the American authorities who inspected the Lusitania before she left on her last voyage, or the German authorities, have lied about her being an armed ship.

After giving us the splendid weather for the holiday yesterday, almost anyone can forgive the weather gods for the rest of the month of May.

MISSED BULLSEYE BUT HIT INSPECTOR GOLDSON SMALLEY

While at work in Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, Goldson W. Smalley, one of the inspectors in the joint sewer trench construction, was hit in the leg by a stray bullet, which it was learned afterwards, was intended for a target in a nearby backyard. The shrpshooter missed his mark, but luckily for Mr. Smalley the bullet came a sufficient distance to spend its force and little damage was done.

Believing an attack had been made on his life, Mr. Smalley notified a Dunellen marshal and an investigation ensued. When the true conditions were unearthed, however, the affair was apparently dropped, for nothing was done to apprehend the shooter who had come within an ace of executing a fellow townsman.

ZEPPELIN ATTACKS KILL FOUR MEN

Austrian Aeroplanes Raid the East Coast of Italy and Drop Bombs.

London, June 1.—The Zeppelins which visited London last night dropped bombs which killed four civilians and fatally wounded another, according to an official statement given out by the press bureau late this afternoon. The statement says: Enemy aircraft dropped 90 incendiary bombs on various London localities adjacent to each other. No public buildings were injured although several fires were caused. Four civilians were killed and another so seriously wounded that his life is despaired.

Paris, June 1.—The following official statement was issued today: The combate at the Dardanelles have for several days been reduced to fights of small extent. All ended in gains for the allies. On western slope of the Ravine of Rerevahore, a group of volunteers belonging to a regiment of colonials took by storm on the night of Friday, a fort the enemy had constructed at the left of his line. Two counter attacks were repulsed and the enemy suffered heavy losses. The British have gained a brilliant success by repulsing a violent attack.

Rome, Italy, June 1.—Austrian aeroplanes raided the east coast of Italy again today. Bombs were dropped at Bari and Brindisi on the Adriatic coast. At Bari a boy was killed and two houses destroyed. At Brindisi several persons were injured.

Constantinople, June 1.—The enemy on Monday attacked our right wing near Ara Burnu. He was repulsed with 100 killed. More dead were observed in the valley. The enemy also attempted by a surprise attack to recapture the central trenches lost by him on Sunday. He was repulsed everywhere, losing many killed, arms and ammunition. Artillery and rfle was exchanged on the front near Sedd Ul Bahr.

HOME ECONOMIC COMMITTEE PLANS A GARDEN CONTEST

The home economic committee of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association have arranged a home garden contest for the summer months. About 250 boys and girls have signed for the work. They are to raise flowers and vegetables. The women of the association will visit their gardens during the summer and soon after school opens in September a fruit and flower show will be arranged and attractive prizes for certain exhibits will be awarded. These young farmers are urged to keep an account of the money they spend for seeds and plants, of the number of hours of work that they put on their garden.

To encourage them in this line of work the women are trying to arrange for a Saturday morning school market where they can bring the vegetables and flowers for sale. They will be held in the school yard of the Somerset School. To help the boys and girls start right the committee has arranged for a lecture on home and school gardens in the High School assembly room Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The committee has been most fortunate in securing the service of Dr. E. L. Johnson, county superintendent of Union county, for this lecture. Dr. Johnson is an authority in this work. The parents of children as well as anyone interested in the improvement and beautifying of the borough of North Plainfield are urged not to let this opportunity go by, to hear a man who so thoroughly understands benefits to be derived from this work.

PLAY NETTED $149.

The recent presentation of a "Regiment of Two" by the Probasco Bible class in the High School auditorium netted $149. This is to be used entirely for charitable purposes. The class voted to donate $25 each to the following: Children's Home, Y. M. C. A., Boys' Work and the Anti-Saloon League. The balance will be held for future needs. The boys are doing a good work and are always ready and willing to render assistance wherever they can.

The preparatory service at Warren chapel will begin at 8 o'clock on Wednesday night and celebration of Lord's Supper will take place at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The executive committee of the Men's Club, of Grace church, will hold a meeting in the parish house tonight at 8 o'clock. Several matters of importance will be considered at that time.

The monument and foundation cost $2,825, or $4,625 all told. The individual members of the lodge are paying by subscription for the monument. The monument has been pronounced by those who have seen it the finest in the United States. It is of pink granite and a life size Elk rests on it.

CHINA'S FIRST LOCOMOTIVE.

Wily Old Li Hung Chang's Rebuke That Was Linked With a Wink.

There is a curious story concerning the first locomotive ever seen in China. Li Hung Chang was given permission to construct a railway from the sea to his mines upon the condition that steam power should not be used, and for several months the cars were hauled by mules.

Then Mr. Kinder and some of the foreign machinists secretly constructed a locomotive out of such material as they could find in China. It was a rude affair, and it was never able to make more than five or six miles an hour, but it was a great advantage over the mule teams, for it could haul seven or eight cars of coal at that speed, where it took four mules to haul one.

But when the mandarins at Pekin learned that foreign devils were using a fire eating monster on the railway they immediately made a tremendous fuss about it and called Li Hung Chang to account for violating his concession.

The old gentleman took it very coolly and pretended not to know anything about it, but he afterward restored himself in favor by issuing an order rebuking Mr. Kinder and his associates for their presumption and forbidding them to introduce any more new fangled foreign notions into China. Shortly after he secretly patted them on the back and raised their pay.

The excitement quieted down and was soon forgotten. Then Mr. Kinder got up steam in his clumsy old engine again and was allowed to run it without interference. Later a couple of regularly made locomotives were imported from Europe and have since been hauling the coal trains on that road.

WOMEN VOTERS TO HELP IN NEW JERSEY

Miss Martin of Nevada the Leader.

The suffragists of New Jersey have powerful allies in a contingent of women voters which is coming into the state. Miss Anne H. Martin, who last year led to victory the women of her own state, Nevada, has been instrumental in forming the Women Voters' Campaign Alliance, composed of women who promise to help in the east and the south until all their sisters are enfranchised.

Miss Martin offered the assistance of the alliance to Mrs. F. Feickert, the president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, and the First Congressional District, consisting of Gloucester, Camden and Salem counties, is selected as the special field of work for the women voters. The alliance is sending Mrs. Laura Gregg Cannon, well known for her work among women's trade unions as well as for her suffrage work, to organize this field. Later Miss Martin is coming to New Jersey for four months of hard campaigning.

Miss Martin, who is president of the Nevada Women's Civic League, is among the most popular suffrage leaders of the country. Famed for her outdoor activities she is the picture of health and good humor and is an unremitting worker for the advancement of women.

"Time and time again," says Miss Martin, "the women of the east have come to the assistance of the western states with workers and literature while we were struggling for enfranchisement. Now that we are enfranchised citizens we do not mean to sit with folded hands while in the more conservative east women carry on the hard struggle. In the far west we recognize the importance of winning New Jersey in order to give a lead to Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New York, which go to the vote only two weeks later."

Commenting on the invasion of the women voters, Mrs. Feickert said: "It will be hard for the most confirmed pessimist to meet these women face to face and still predict dire disaster when women vote. The logic of accomplished facts will face them.

"Moreover, we hear a great deal from the antis about the western women not caring for the vote after they get it. Could there be any better evidence of their Belief in equal suffrage than this action on the part of western women voters to help in the enfranchisement of their eastern sisters?"

Miss Jane Addams is honorary chairman of the alliance. The executive committee is composed of women from the suffrage states, and it includes Mrs. Lucy Johnston, wife of the chief justice of the Kansas superior court; Senator Helen Ring Robinson of Colorado, Senator Frances W. Munds of Arizona and Dean Mary Stewart of the State University of Montana.

MAKING HISTORY.

A New Jersey Author's Viewpoint.

Jesse Lynch Williams of Princeton, the well known author, who is a vice president of the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage, puts a striking question to the voters of the state.

"Gentlemen," he asks, "how will you explain your vote on woman suffrage in 1915 to your daughters?

"Some of us have colonial ancestors of whom we do not boast. They were

JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS.

Tories. And we all know old gentlemen who take pains to tell how it happened that they simply couldn't get into the civil war. But I am sorry for the present members of the voting sex who ten years from now will have to explain to their daughters why they did not vote for a certain amendment on Oct. 19, 1915.

"Quite irrespective of one's belief or disbelief in the cause, which advanced thinkers like Lincoln believed in years before most of us were born, the astonishing rapidity with which this notion of giving votes to women has swept across the world of late years is interesting.

"A decade ago," he adds, "it was possible to think woman suffrage outrageous or funny. Today most of the serious papers which help to mold public opinion are coming forward offering editorial support, and large numbers of special suffrage editions are appearing.

"Most of the humorous magazines, like most of the serious ones, have come around in an able and interesting way. Puck and Judge, for example, are entirely too humorous to be anti."

Catholic Suffragists Organize.

Newark.—A new suffrage organization has been called into existence by some of the leading Catholics of Newark, who have formed a Catholic committee of the Women's Political Union. Father McKeever is the active director of the committee, and Mrs. Howard R. Garis is the chairman.

The committee is arranging to hold meetings throughout the city and is opening with a meeting in the parish room of St. John's, Mulberry street, at which Comptroller William A. Prendergast of New York city has promised to speak.

In the Same Class.

Nathan Straus, Jr., owner and editor of Puck, says that "there is only one thing funnier than the man who does not think women have brains enough to vote and that is the woman who agrees with him. One hundred years from now the men who opposed the introduction of the printing press and trial by jury and votes for women will all be regarded with the same mixture of amusement, pity and contempt."

Squelched Him.

Rastus—So you' wife am one of dem suffragettes? Why don't yo' show her de evil ob sech pernicious doctrine by telling her her place am beside de fire side?

Sambo—Huh! She dun shoot back by sayin' dat if it wasn't fob her takin' in washin' dere wouldn't be any fireside.—Puck.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

It costs real money to be a golfer. Jerome Travers, one of the leading American golfers, estimates that a golfer pays $182.50 a year for his fun. About $232,190,000 is the total cost of the game in America for one season. Travers estimates that there are 1,300 golf clubs in this country, with a membership of 350,000. He estimates that the average membership is 250, with hundreds of clubs with a still larger membership. According to Mr. Travers this is the way it hits Mr. Golfer. Initiation, $50; dues, $50; balls, $20, clubs, $17.50; car fare, $20, caddies, $25. Travers estimates that the average professional earns about $1,200 a year, which seems reasonable. This gives a total of $390,000. He says caddies earn about $60,000 a week, or a total of $3,000,000 a year. He places the value of golf real estate at $100,000,000, and says that $50,000,000 more is spent each year for laborers and caddies. He says that fully 300,000 men and boys are employed by the golf clubs.

"P. H. S. Gets County Title From Rahway," says headline in exchange. Despite the fact that the Plainfield schoolboys slipped one across on Rahway the other afternoon, we are having the time of our lives to convince ourselves just where P. H. S. gets the right to claim any championship laurels. There's not a team in the country we'd like to see beaten better than Rahway, for the athletes from this burg have been "hogging" everything that comes their way for so long that "everybody's hoping for a change."

Aside from the prestige the Plainfielders are entitled to for catching Rahway asleep at the switch nothing further will come of the victory, for in another contest the rival clan would without doubt wallop the Queen Cityites so hard that this ninth inning triumph would be wiped off the map. The fact that Rahway's pitcher went bad; that Rahway didn't send a relief man to the mound; that P. H. S. made seven errors against the loser's six; and that the P. H. S. pitcher had one of the biggest days of his life, must be taken into consideration. In our minds it's little more than mere folly to attempt to snatch a passing grasp at a county honor that has been annexed in a contest similar to Tuesday's.

Indications point to a great reunion of Union county and Central New Jersey field and track talent of the younger generation at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, when Jack Fritts stages his monster athletic festival. It will be without a doubt the greatest demonstration of its kind ever held here.

FIRST BAPTIST NINE DROPPED TWO GAMES

Saurer and Clinton Avenue Aggregation Best Front Street Ballists.

The First Baptist baseball team had a disastrous holiday, losing both games played. In the morning the Saurer team, with George Miller pitching, took a 11 to 1 verdict, and in the afternoon the strong Clinton Avenue A. C. defeated the Baptists 9 to 1. In each of the games the church team made three errors, while their opponents played errorless ball.

IMPORTED GOLFERS DEFEATED IN MATCH

O'Loughlin and Hobens Give a Fine Exhibition of Game at Country Club.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the home professional, and "Jack" Hobens gave a fine exhibition of golf at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, when they defeated Louis Tellier and Wilfred Reid, in a 36 holes match for a purse of $250 offered by members of the club. The play began at 10 o'clock in the morning and at the end of the first 18 holes Tellier and Reid had their opponents 2 up.

In the second round in the afternoon O'Loughlin and Hobens played by far the better golf. The players were followed by a gallery of nearly 400 enthusiastic golfers. On the 24th hole O'Loughlin and Hobens were four down, but they then won three out of the next four holes, lost one and won the next two squaring the match, and O'Loughlin gave the crowd a thrill when he won the 18th hole in 2, giving him and his partner the match 1 up. The winning pair took 60 per cent. of the purse and 40 per cent. went to the defeated players.

O'Loughlin's afternoon card which was the best was as follows:

5 4 5 3 5 5 5 4 3—39
3 5 3 5 5 3 3 4 2—33

SPIRITED TENNIS ON COUNTRY CLUB COURTS

Handicap Features Proves to Be One of the Best Ever Staged.

At the Plainfield Country Club yesterday the men's doubles handicap, which was started Saturday, was finished, and the men's singles handicap was worked down to the final round.

In the men's doubles handicap the finalists were Harold Brown and H. E. Haws, who received a handicap of plus 15 3-6, and H. T. Eaton and C. A. King, who were at the plus 16 1-6 mark. The former pair won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

In the Decoration Day singles handicap, 16 players were drawn. A. D. Beers, the club champion, who was placed at minus 15, won his first match by default and then succumbed to T. M. Day, 3rd, who was on the scratch mark, in three close sets, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6. Harry T. Eaton overcame the handicap which had been imposed upon him, minus ½ of 15, from Day at 6-1, 6-4.

In the other half of the draw Edward Stevenson, handicapped at plus ½ 15, won from Arthur Lovell and C. A. King, both in straight sets, and will play Eaton in the final round on Saturday afternoon.

Record Gales.

There have been terrific gales in various places all over the world. In many instances it is, of course, impossible to obtain any exact record of the velocity of the wind, but the highest ever recorded was reported from Cape Mendocino, Cal., in January, 1880, when the anemometer registered 141 miles an hour.

At Cape Lookout, on the Atlantic coast, there is no telling what the record force of the wind might have been had not the anemometer blown away after registering 138 miles an hour. This fearful hurricane hit the middle Atlantic coast on Aug. 17, 1879.

In June, 1881, a wind of 112 miles was recorded on top of Pike's Peak, Colorado.—Chicago Herald.

Magazines on Warships.

If there is one danger that sailors dread more than any other it is an explosion in the powder magazine. To prevent such an occurrence a device for flooding that compartment in the least possible time is fitted to most big battleships. A pipe below the surface connects the magazine with the sea. This pipe is closed by two taps, which are connected with the deck. In case of danger it is only the work of a minute to open the taps, let the sea rush in through the pipes and flood the magazine. The water is afterward drained off by means of a gutter.—London Mail.

Nor So Often.

With hungry people the table is not of so much consequence as the spread.

A very fat man who had just retired from the grocery business was one day thus mischievously greeted by a friend: "I say, old man, you are falling since you retired! You have got so thin I scarcely knew you!" "Perhaps so," replied the grocer. "I certainly don't weigh so much as I did when I was in the grocery trade!"—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Slaves to Success.

Rebellion and stubbornness—how they hinder and hinder and spoil our work! If a girl is going to master music she must first become its slave, surrendering her whole being to the principles and the ideals of music. If a boy is to master a trade or a profession he must give himself up to it. If a man is to be a great leader of the people he must surrender himself to the welfare of the people.—Christian Herald.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Beware of the saloons and tobacco-shops. The brewer, the distiller, the saloon-keeper, and tobacco-seller want your money. Why should you give them your money and make them rich, and enable them to live in splendid houses, and to dress in broadcloth, silk, and fine linen, while you and your family are kept poor, and needy, and suffering for the actual necessaries of life in a vast multitude of cases?

Why should you part with your money, and receive, in return, from the saloon-keeper and tobacco-seller, nothing but some of the most deadly poisons known, such as beer, fermented wine, whiskey, brandy, and tobacco; poisons which are depraving and destroying more of the human family than all the other poisons put together? Yes, as the Hon. Mr. Gladstone truly declared in regard to intoxicating drinks, "more than war, pestilence, and famine combined."

Look at the sad and fearful effects which have resulted all around you from the use of the above poisons, the drunkenness, crime, and insanity; the disease of the brain, lungs, heart, stomach, kidneys, and even of the toe-joints, which result from the use of intoxicating drinks. Look at the men staggering in our streets, or drunk on our sidewalks, steps, and alleys; do you wish to follow in their footsteps to poverty and ruin? If not, let beer, wine, and whiskey alone. The average duration of adult human lives is shortened about one-third by their use.

The boy who spends his money for beer, wine, whiskey, or tobacco, saddles upon himself an appetite which can never be fully gratified without most seriously endangering his life, and is quite sure, if he lives until he is fifty or sixty years of age, to spend a sum of money which would give him a comfortable home. Many a householder and farmer has slowly but surely spent his money for the above poisons until his property has had to be sold to pay his debts—a sad day for him and his family. Boys and young men, do you want to follow in the footsteps of such? If you do not, keep away from saloons, and let intoxicating drinks and tobacco alone,—"touch not, taste not, handle not."

It is very easy to get into the habit of using such poisons, but it is very difficult to get out, for they enslave mind and body, and not a few have been driven to despair by the lash of suffering which follows an attempt to regain freedom. Boys and young men, strive toward a noble manhood; do not becomes slaves; let intoxicating drinks and tobacco alone; such poisons are not necessary, they will do you no good. You will enjoy much better health, and, as a rule, will live much longer without than with them, as has been abundantly demonstrated by statistics.

THE CIVIL WAR AND PRESENT WAR

Rev. J. Y. Broek Gives Interesting Talk to Veterans at Trinity Church.

AN HISTORICAL REVIEW

Preacher Declares That European Conflict is Unrighteous Because There is No Cause for it—Wants Nation That Will Bow to Bible.

"The Civil War and the Present War," was the subject of Rev. J. Y. Broek's discourse to the veterans of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, Sunday evening, taking his text from Joshua 4:6: "What means these stone?" In part he said:

"The first Decoration Day of which we have any record was observed in Charleston, South Carolina, May 1, 1865. Two years later, Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued an order naming May 30, 1868, as the day for that service. From that time to the present, this day has been recognized as sacred to the memory of those who died for the Union.

"Its object is not to instill in our hearts the glories of war, but rather to bring to mind the soldiers' graves the homes made desolate, the ensigns that were tattered and torn, the ranks that were thinned, that we might magnify and laud the true moral worth of the American sons of our Republic who vent forth that the Union might be preserved, and that right might not be trampled under foot.

"The Civil War was a just war, for it had a just cause. Ever since the final victory of the Civil War, the world has been a freer world and the principle of liberty was proclaimed as never before. Today we have no North, no South, no East, no West, but one Union, indivisible, now and forever. I believe it is treason in the highest sense of the word to keep alive the fires of natred in the hearts of patriotic and loyal citizens.

"The European war is unrighteous for there is no just cause for this war. It arose from petty national jealousies. It is simply murder on a large scale. I am not laying any particular blame against any nation. Every nation engaged in that war has black and lurid spots upon the pages of its history. The skirts of none of them are clean. Sometimes I believe it is a divine chastisement for their own sins.

"Is Christianity dead? Is this to be the product of nineteen centuries of Christianity? The war in Europe was brought on by un-Christian ideas, by un-Christian policies, by un-Christian practices. Europe has been filled with greed, selfishness and ill-will. Had the nations of Europe men like the kind-hearted, level headed Abraham Lincoln to govern them, instead of their Kings and Emperors, there would have been no war.

"America has never been a war-like nation. Thank God we have never glorified in our navy and never must the time come when that will be our pride. We must not be a nation of soldiers, but a nation of loyal citizens.

"We must defend the Monroe Doctrine. But if the strength of our Monroe Doctrine depends solely upon the strength of our army and navy and not upon the strength of international justice and co-operation, then we had better drop the Monroe Doctrine. To adequately protect our enormous coast line would require the making of a larger navy than that of England and a larger army than that of Germny. To maintain such a navy would require an enormous tax, equal to the tax of militarism. The true defenses of nations are not dynamite or battleships, but justice and co-operation.

"Give me a nation that will bow before the teachings of the Bible and that nation will exist as long as time."

Children's Day.

GETS ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Chancellor Walker has granted a final decree of absolute divorce to William H. Stites, of this city, from his wife, Martha J. Stites. The decree was granted on the ground of desertion. Robert Newton Crane was counsel for Mr. Stites. Mrs. Stites' maiden name was Martha Jelig and she resided in the borough before her marriage.

BIG DAY FOR VETS

Assembly yesterday morning was called promptly at 7 o'clock at the post headquarters. Here the soldiers formed a line of march and followed the Dutch Arms' Band to West Front street and Central avenue, where a special trolley car was boarded for Scotch Plains. In that village the veterans formed a second line of march in which they were joined by the firemen and children, and headed by Marshal Philip Jahn marched to the Baptist cemetery, where services were held and graves decorated. Captain William Hand was the special marshal of the day.

The parade from Reform Hall through the city streets started at 10 o'clock, and they marched through West Second street to Park avenue, to Front street, to Watchung avenue, to Chatham street, to the Presbyterian cemetery, where services were held. The delegation then headed for Evergreen cemetery and back to the headquarters.

At 2 o'clock the annual Memorial Day exercises in Reform Hall were conducted, the Rev. Edward F. Ralston delivering the sermon. He said in part:

We honor in memory today not merely men, even though they fought and died in war, but men who fought and died to uphold principles, the overthrow of which meant the destruction of our country. As in ancient Rome, the wreath of oak was given to him who by sacrifice saved the Republic, so today we twine the wreath of civic virtue, and with it honor the graves of those who died and crown you who fought to save the Nation. It is not a day for the glorifying of or incitement to war.

Rather, this, the most solemn of all the Memorial Days since the Civil War, should be the time for deep and serious thought, and of a rekindling in the hearts of all the people of the spirit of sacrifice which brought into being our Nation, maintained its freedom among the peoples of the earth and saved it from dissolution. We do not want war. War, as you saw it fifty years ago, was hell. Modern war with its disregard of all the faith that binds together the nations, its violation of all international law, and its disregard of all the obligations of humanity, is worse than hell. No brush of painter nor pen of writer, though touched by divine fire, can ever limn or record the unspeakable horrors of this war.

All the genius of invention and the developed science of the century have become the servants of the unleashed passions of the nations. We do not want war. And we believe that it is possible for all differences between the nations to be adjusted by peaceful solution. But we are confronted with facts, not with hopes or theories. Peace ought to be, but war is. Even before us, separated by the oceans from the dreadful scenes of battle, arises the possibility of war. This is unthinkable, yet it is true. We cannot escape it by shutting our eyes to the facts and denying them.

The possibility is before us. We pray God that He may so guide our wise President that we may be kept in peace. But this Memorial Day should teach our people that there are worse things for a nation than war, even a modern war. Better a nation in ruins for human rights and liberty's sake, than a nation at peace and prosperous but dishonored and in slavery. The body may be fed and the chains may be gilded, but it is the body of a slave and the gold does not deaden the clanking of the fetters. The little republics of ancient Greece, in their weakness fighting for liberty at Thermopylae and Marathon and Salamis, were glorious. Bought by the gold of Philip of Macedon, they were at peace but thenceforth without power among the peoples of the earth.

For the securing and maintaining of liberty and human rights we as a nation have fought all save one of the wars in our history. Our fathers have proved on many a battle-field, and our mothers by many a sacrifice that they believed the ideals of America worth all the cost. It is for us to keep alive this belief of our fathers, that a man's life is worthless unless he lives and is willing to die for great ideals; and that a nation is a weakling, however great and rich, unless it is willing to make the supreme sacrifice for high principles.

Behind the facts of the present situation is one of these great principles. It is not merely a question of reparation for a few ships and of lives taken. For a century nearly, by diplomacy and in war, we contended for and secured the right of peaceful American citizens to go where they would upon the seas of the world. For the freedom of the seas we fought the pirate nations of the Barbary Coast, who had established a "war zone." For it we fought England in 1912. And in the Civil War we proved our own loyalty to that for which we had fought, by the surrender of Mason and Slidell, the Confederate commissioners, taken from an English ship in the open seas. There is involved in the present issue all this which we have maintained throughout the past. It involves the very independence of our nation. If we permit any foreign power to dictate the interpretation of our laws, and to restrict and endanger the lives and liberties of our citizens engaged in peaceful traverse of the world, then we are no longer a nation, free and independent, but a subject province, a mere appanage of a foreign power.

God give us peace, but God keep alive among us the spirit of our fathers that peace may be with honor, and that this nation may be preserved in its liberty and independence to uphold forever among the nations of the earth the rights of man.

Past Department Commander William C. Smith was chairman of the meeting and many of the members of the Woman's Relief Corps were in attendance. In the evening the "vets" went to Roselle, where they attended exercises in the High School at that place.

"RUS" BEATTY DEFEATED IN COLLEGE COMPETITION

Philadelphia, June 1.—Cornell's track and field team won the fortieth annual games of Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America here Saturday afternoon, scoring 45½ out of a possible 195 points.

The caliber of the competing athletes representing the twenty-odd institutions of the association was shown by the fact that two new records were established and a third equalled. Wesley M. Oler, of Yale, cleared 6 feet 4½ inches in the running high jump after a great leaping duel with Alva W. Richards, of Cornell, the winner of the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912. Oler's defeat displaced the association record of 6 feet 3¼ inches made by Moffit, of Pennsylvania, eight years ago and the collegiate record of 6 feet 4 inches made by W. B. Page, of Pennsylvania, in 1886. Richards, in winning second place with 6 feet 3½ inches, also surpassed Moffit's record.

Russell Lawrence Beatty's defeat in the shotput event was one of the big surprises of the afternoon. L. A. Whitney, of Dartmouth, captured the honor with a heave of 47 feet 4⅞ inches. Beatty was nearly a foot behind.

The all important interscholastic diamond title, between Plainfield and North Plainfield High School teams, is booked to be played at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A victory for Plainfield means the title and the Collier trophy, while a win for the borough team will necessitate a third and deciding game. Both teams will be practicing hard all week for this game, which is expected to be the best of the series.

"MARTY" O'LOUGHLIN IN NATIONAL TOURNEY

With Andy Conway, of Westfield, He Will Start in Big Baltusrol Fixture.

Success attained by "Marty" O'Loughlin, the Plainfield Country Club's professional in the match Saturday afternoon, when, teamed with Jack Hobens, of Englewood, he defeated Louis Tellier, of Canoe Brook, and Wilfred Reid, of Seaview, 1 up, has caused a big boom in his stock and rating as a "pro" golfer and many are watching with interest for the result of the national open championship at Baltusrol next month. O'Loughlin and Andy Conway, the Westfield Golf Club's "pro" player, will enter the big event and the Plainfielder has high hopes of "bringing home the bacon." Conway lives here but goes to Westfield daily. It will be the first time that he has ever played for the United States title, but O'Loughlin has played in the big event twice. He was eleventh at Chicago in 1904 and also played at Philadelphia in 1910.

The fact that the open will take place on a course so near gives the two Plainfielders an excellent opportunity to practice over the course. Conway has been going over the links a couple of times a week for several weeks, and O'Loughlin will begin playing at Baltusrol next week. For the two weeks preceding the tournament, which will be held in the middle of June, both professionals will play over the Short Hills links three of four times a week.

Conway was urged to enter the tourney by the Westfield Club members, who expect great things of their "pro." Andy, who has never played in a championship event, is more modest in his hopes of what he will do in his first time out, but declares he will go over and play the best he can.

Conway holds the record of his own course, a 67 for 18 holes and 31 for 9, and also holds the record for the Park Golf Club links with a 75, made three years ago. He has not been in competition since he played in the invitation at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, nine years ago.

"Marty" O'Loughlin is a veteran of many tournaments. He has played in the National twice, in the Metropolitan four times, in the Eastern twice, in the New Jersey and in several other big events, almost always finishing near the top.

LOCAL HORSE WINS.

"Review Bells," driven by Tom Brantingham, of Park avenue, came in third in the free-for-all, trot and pace competition for a purse of $200 at the Flemington Fair Association races held at that place Saturday afternoon. The track was fast and good times were returned by all entrants. The free-for-all was in 2:15¼ and Brantingham's steed turned the trick in 2:18. He took third place in all four heats.

N. P. H. S. VS. RUTGERS.

Manager Elmer French, of the North Plainfield High School tennis team, has arranged a match with the Rutgers College tennis team, to be played in New Brunswick on Wednesday, June 9.

COLUMBIANS TO ORGANIZE A STRONG BASEBALL NINE

Joseph Green, one of the assistant managers of the Holy Cross football team during the past season, has been selected to pilot the Knights of Columbus baseball nine during the coming summer and is now scouting around for formidable opponents to place on his list. The Knights have been contemplating the organization of a ball scuad for some time past and present conditions are favorable to the immediate formation of a fighting array.

Green is well known as a game booker and has been instructed to "go the limit" in bringing teams of the A-1 class to Plainfield. Practice will be called in the near future and a captain selected. Included in the membership of the organization are many first-class ballists, many of whom have made their mark in semi-pro pastiming.

QUITS BASEBALL TO SELL JITNEY ICE CREAM CONES

Baseball fans know that Dunellen is unrepresented this year on the baseball diamond, but few are aware of the reason for this condition. George, alias "Doc" Voehl, the dean of semi-professional baseball promoters in this section of Central New Jersey, has announced his permanent retirement from the National pastime after losing pretty nearly a thousand simoleans in the wilds of Dunellen, trying to give the good fans in the town where they call legs, "limbs," a good representation.

"Say, 'Doc,' aren't you going to run a ball team this year?" yelled a scribe at Voehl over the back fence yesterday.

"Nothing doing," yelled "Doc," "the last venture broke me.

"Well, what are you going to do to satisfy the hunger of these fans around here?" he was asked.

"I'm going into the ice cream business. Ice cream cones two for a jitney," said Voehl.

"But we thought that baseball broke you."

"Well, I sneaked enough out of the melee to buy four or five quarts of ice cream and by figuring in the Federal League style I'll be able to get a start in business with this stock."

Voehl will be remembered as the dean of baseball promoters in this section of the State. He took in so many shekels at the turnstiles during the old Plainfield-Dunellen combats that he had to hire special watchmen to look after his pile over the weekends; hence his dejection when the receipts took a sudden drop last year. Coming down to fine points we would say that he has become discouraged and if the "Feds" should happen to hand him a contract to sell tickets at an Indianapolis gate he would without a doubt grab it.

LEAL RACQUET WIELDERS ELIMINATE BORO TEAM

North Plainfield let slip her last chance for a running in the city championship tennis tournament, when Leal's School took away a 4-1 victory from the Park Club courts last Saturday morning. The individual playing was the closest that has been witnessed in the tournament, each of the three singles and the doubles match being forced to play three sets to decide their points winners.

The first court choice was Dunning (N. P. H. S.) against Lyon (Leal's), and the borough man sprung a surprise when he whipped Lyon 8-6, 0-6, 6-2. Garrigues (Leal's) defeated Chandler (North Plainfield), 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Captain Stewart (Leal's) won his match with Force (North Plainfield), 6-2, 4-6, 8-6. This left the score 2-1 in Leal's favor, and placed the winning team of the match in the hands of the two doubles teams, Chandler and Tomkinson for the High School, Stewart and Lyon for Leal's. Each team took a set 6-2, and with the score of the third set 5-4, thirty-love against them, Leal's pulled up and won 8-6.

ALL-STARS WON.

The Saurer baseball team lost to the Newark Stars on Parker Field Saturday afternoon by one run, the score being 6 to 5. The game was well played throughout and the locals hit the opposing pitcher hard at times. Garretson was responsible for a triple and a double while Bergen connected for a two-bagger.

The Saurer team scored three runs in the initial session but two in the second and one in the fourth by the Newarkers tied the count. The score by innings follows:

Newark	0 2 0 1 0 2 1 0 0—6

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL THROWS ANOTHER DISHEARTENING BOMB IN LEAL SCHOOL CAMP

The city interscholastic title was practically put on ice yesterday morning at Parker Field, when the Plainfield High School baseball team won a close and exciting game from Leal School representatives by a score of 7 to 6. Over 300 fans witnessed the two teams exchange runs from inning to inning. A rally in the ninth by the private school boys made the rooters think of their dinner which had been long waiting for them for the score was tied and clocks put the hour at one.

Although the losers failed to get the necessary points to win the game, they certainly put up the best brand of baseball. They played hard all the while and made but one error to Plainfield's six. Voorhees, for Leal, allowed only six hits and fanned ten men. Credit must also be given to Captain "Peanut" Stewart, who pulled some sensational catches and made one-half of his teams tallies.

Brick, the High School twirler, was also in good form, but his teammates lacked the necessary "pep" to support him and consequently lost the game. He also came in on strikeout honors, getting nine.

The winning run was made by Brick, who gathered a hit and got to third on Dunham's sacrifice, and tallied on a liner from 'Cut" Kyle's bat to Stewart.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL BESTS FOURTEEN RIVALS IN MONSTER TRACK MEETING

Before a crowd of over a thousand spectators, the Plainfield High School's track team cleaned up in the Central New Jersey Interscholastic athletic meet, yesterday afternoon, at Parker Field. The local athletes scored thirty-seven points over their nearest competitor, St. Benedicts, of Newark, who tallied twenty-four and one-third counters. The meet was handled by the officials in a way that made it interesting for every one. The field events were run off at the same time that the runs were going on. Every school entered in the match fourteen in all, made at least some kind of a showing, but the real competition came between the local High School and the Newark private school. Up to the last two events, St. Benedict's athletes were ahead in points, but the Plainfield youths copped every number in the running broad jump and then put the meet on ice by winning a first place in the pole vault.

A great deal of credit must be given to Jack Fritts, the Ninth street boys' track coach, for the hard work that he has done in promoting this meet. The work of his youngsters also reflected with credit on his coaching.

The features of the meet were the running of William Daniels and the work of Ralph Runyon in the high jump and pole vault. The former mentioned ran the quarter mile in the fast time of fifty-three seconds, which is only five seconds behind the intercollegiate record. He also led the way in the half mile from the start and would no doubt have finished in better time had he some one to pace him. Runyon, who has been doing sensational work in all the scholastic meets held lately, did not jump until every competitor in the pole vault had missed at the ten-foot mark. He then set up a record for High School by clearing the bar at eleven feet nine inches. He also cleared the bar over four inches higher than any other competitor in the running high jump with a leap of five feet five inches.

The junior 100-yard dash and the mile run were the two most hotly contested events of the afternoon. So close was the finish of the finals that the whole race had to be run over again in order that the judges might decide the winner. In the mile run eight of the contestants came in almost at a dead finish so that it was difficult to tell the winner. William Shorter, of Orange, finished first in the exceedingly good time of four minutes and fifty seconds.

Among the other local lads who made a place in some of the events was the old High School veteran, Bill Peacock, who landed first in the hundred-yard dash. "Shorty" Chamberlain came within ten inches of the record in the twelve-pound shotput set by Paul Collier some years ago and Ralph Green landed third place in the running broad jump.

With the showing that the local school made in this meet, it seems only probable that a track team will now be supported by the athletic association of the school. Up to the present time any of the athletes who wished to enter meets would have to pay their own expenses, but now that they have shown themselves to be of credit to the school, they will no doubt be recognized as a regular athletic factor. Only four of the Plainfield entries yesterday were seniors.

The results:

100-yard dash (junior)—Tisher, St. Benedict's, first; Herron, Cranford, second; Murphy, Phillipsburg, third; Clark, Westfield, fourth. Time, 11 1-5 seconds.

100-yard dash (senior)—Peacock, Plainfield, first; Gray, West Orange, second; Desch, St. Benedict's, third; Schweitzer, Rahway, fourth. Time, 10 3-5 seconds.

Half mile run—Daniels, Plainfield, first; McGoughran, West Orange, second; Shorter, Orange, third; Clark, Orange, fourth. Time 2:10.

THE MASTER MIND

Novelized by Marvin Dana, author of "Within the Law," from the successful play by Daniel D. Carter

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

"You leave me no choice," he said simply. "You have won. I shall retire from public life."

"Today, you remember."

"I remember—today."

Lucene started up.

"No, no!" she breathed wildly. She went swiftly to her husband and placed her two hands on his shoulders and looked down into his face with her eyes twin flames of dusky azure, burning through a mist of tears. "Oh, my dear, you can't—you can't! No, I say, you shan't! I can't let you do this dreadful thing—no, no! Oh, let me go instead—you must! I can't spoil your life like this, dear. Let me go—let me go!"

Wainwright ordered the three crooks and the detective to leave the room.

In Wainwright's eyes shone unutterable love for the beautiful woman whose heart was so torn by anguish brought upon her through love of him. At least he must strive to comfort her, to assuage her grief, since her love remained to him. As for this other thing, it was, after all, by comparison, a little thing. Yet, even as he thought so, it was with difficulty that he checked the groan that rose to his lips. It is no light thing to tear out by the roots the honorable ambition of a strong man's lifetime.

The husband's voice was colorless.

"What would be the use?" he said sadly. "As to your leaving me, why, wherever you might go I should follow." The wife buried her face in her hands and shook with sobbing.

"There, there!" he cried soothingly, distraught by her agony. He stood up and drew her into his arms, caressing her hair with exquisite tenderness in the gentle touch of his fingers. "Hush, hush, darling! Don't you know, Lucene, that I have you, and so nothing—nothing else—matters?"

The scene failed somehow to give its evil genius the bliss he had thought to find in it. This lovers' rapture made a mock of his vengeance. Yet, even as he asserted this to himself, Andrew knew in his soul that he lied; that the venom of his punishment was even stronger than he had guessed to poison the well of his enemy's hopes and its virulence would increase, not lessen. Nevertheless there was disappointment to him here in the hour of triumph. He had gained all for which he had striven—yes, all! And something more—the misery of Lucene!

In a fury of rage against his own weakness Andrew thrust the thought of Lucene from him. His voice broke gratingly.

"Your resignation in writing, Mr. Wainwright, if you please."

Wainwright spoke listlessly.

"I will write it in my study at once and bring it to you here. Come with me, Lucene."

Abruptly, violently, the wife tore herself from his arms. As he rested motionless, amazed, she darted to Andrew, clutched his wrist in her two hands, when he would have recoiled involuntarily before this onslaught of the woman he had wronged. Her voice came softly, haltingly, painfully weighted with the burden of love's tragedy. The violet eyes, humid, tender, infinitely pathetic in their pleading, met his ere he could turn his gaze aside and held him in their spell.

"Oh, Andrew," she cried, "I have trusted you—I have loved you! Because of that I have tried to think how you could do this terrible thing to me."

"Must we go into that now?" the man demanded roughly as she paused. He felt his strength slipping from him. He felt his wrath leaping high, wrath against himself, against fate—not against her.

"Yes, we must," she said bravely. "For I may never speak to you again. I have tried to think what it could be. And now—now I know! I understand at last. It was because you loved your brother so much—because you loved him so that nothing else mattered at all. Isn't that it, Andrew?"

"Yes, that is it," he answered huskily.

"But don't you see—don't you see?" she questioned, with the fierceness of one bereaved. "You've hated the man I love. And because you think he sacrificed your brother whom you loved now you will sacrifice me in the same way. Don't you see, Andrew?" Her eyes probed the farthest recesses of his soul. They tortured him with their poignant reproach. Yet he could not turn from them so great was the strength of her weakness.

But, though he understood too well, he still struggled impotently against her, against a self he thought dead.

"No, no!" he stammered. "No, I"—

Lucene went on:

"You can't ruin his life, Andrew, without ruining mine too. You can't—you can't!" Her voice's music rose throbbing. "Don't you care what becomes of me, Andrew? Do you know you are turning my love into hate? You don't want that. Oh, you don't! I know you don't, Andrew. You are not going to tell me now that hate, not love, is to rule your life and mine. Oh, surely, Andrew, you are not going to send me through the rest of my life hating you as you have hated him—not that! No, Andrew, you can't—I tell you, you can't!"

Slowly, at last, the lids drooped over Andrew's eyes. He turned his head a little, with a movement of lassitude. Then the lids were lifted again, and he looked full into the eyes of Wainwright, and his own were inscrutable. In his voice sounded a note of futile remonstrance against destiny.

"I've hated you for years," he said quietly, "as you know very well. You are aware also that my hatred of you has been my ruling passion since its beginning. In that time, all my days, yes, every waking hour, have been devoted to the task of accomplishing your ruin. This in the instant of my triumph. I hold you here in the hollow of my hand, with the power and the will to crush you. Well, sir, I—open my hand—and let you go."

An imperious gesture restrained the exclamation that rose to Wainwright's lips.

"The explanation of this inconsistency is very simple. It lies in the fact that I am a fool—the greatest fool in all this world of fools. So, because I am such a fool, you are safe from me, Mr. Wainwright—now, and always. I wish you good morning." He moved toward the door.

But the wife, radiant in an instant, would not have it so.

"Andrew!" she cried. "Oh, thank God!—not only for our happiness, but for your sake, too, since love has conquered hate, at last!"

The Master Mind spoke heavily.

"I only know," he said confusedly, "that the most unlikely thing in all the world has happened. I mean that in the hour of victory my triumph has turned to ashes in my mouth. I only know that, since I cannot crush my enemy alone, I cannot crush him at all. No other could, I think, but you, Lucene—you've beaten me."

Lucene spoke very gently.

"Then I was right all this time. You did love me, and you do still?"

Andrew shook his head doubtfully.

"I only know," he said, "that I cannot do you harm."

Lucene made an impulsive step as if to follow him, then checked herself. This man still held in his heart hatred for the husband she loved.

"Where will you go, Andrew?"

He answered very gravely, sadly:

"I do not know—only, not back into the shadows whence I came." He paused for a little, and added, wistfully: "Be happy, Lucene, and remember sometimes, if you will, that, after all, it was I who brought you your happiness." Then he went quickly from the room, and so out of their lives. But the happiness that had been his gift abode with them always.

CHARMING CREATION.

Street Frock Which Has Many Salient Style Points.

CHIC AND SMART TOILET.

Never in one season has there been such a diversity of fashions. The frock shown in the illustration has many new and striking style points, most salient of which are the pockets. Everything this year has pockets. Belts, separate skirts, shirt waists and sports coats revel in them, and the dressier garments have adopted them also.

This gown is of blue gabardine, a fabric and color which are very popular this season. The waist is in semi-coat effect, and the sleeves are the new and very popular bell shape. A beaded belt confines the front, and the back of the bodice is rather intricately draped. The tunic is full and is finished by a hem, while the narrow underskirt, which shows all the way up the front, has a corded French hem as a finish.

TOMMY TUCKER SUIT FOR BOYS.

No. 8952.

Without a doubt, it is always a source of wonder to see how many suits a small boy can have ready for the tub when wash-day comes around. The simpler they are, however, the less easily do they soil and the more easily are they washed, so the problem becomes one of finding a combination of simplicity, durability and good looks. Ladies' Home oJurnal Pattern No. 8952, does this very nicely in its new Tommy Tucker suit, consisting of a jacket, to be made in either of two front outlines with full-length sleeves. Sizes 2 to 10 years. Size 6 requires 2⅜ yards 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force and Company.

Hats and Parasols Match.

Throughout the past winter we became accustomed to the sets consisting of matching toque, muff and collar—of fur, chiffon, velvet and satin. Now we shall see matching hats and parasols to use with thin frocks. They are very pretty, and often figured chiffon is employed in their making—over silk for the parasol, over straw for the hat.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Kiddies' Battle on the Seashore.

And They Had a Glorious Battle.

"I WILL tell you about how four kiddies had a battle on the seashore," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn, beginning the evening story.

"Of course it was not a real battle, but just a make believe one. And the kiddies pretended that they were real armies. It is so easy for kiddies to pretend and quite all right too.

"Well, this was one of the prettiest seashores you ever saw. It ran for miles and miles, just golden sand that it was such fun to play in, and behind the level stretch of sand upon which you could walk rose the dunes, which is to say the little hills of sand that you will find at the seashore.

"The green ocean, all billowing waves, came up to the beach, and then by and by it would go away again. And it would come back and then go away and then come back and so on. They call this process the tides.

"The ocean looked pretty to those kiddies, with its waves that were crested with white caps that were downy and fleecy like the nightcaps that grandpa used to wear. And the children had such fun playing by the seashore.

"They were four little boys about Jack's age. And the first day they were taken to the beach they put on their bathing suits and had a nice time paddling in the water quite close to the shore, where the waves would come up and break over their bare legs, and they fairly yelled with delight.

"Then when they got tired paddling they wanted to find something else to do, so they hit upon the idea of having a war. So one little boy said to the rest: 'Let's as all be armies. Ted and I will be two of the armies, and George and Davie will be the other two, and we four will do battle against each other. And we've got to build a couple of forts out of this sand, and we shall have a glorious war.'

"The other three boys hailed this suggestion with delight, and they all got busy and built those two forts out of the sand. It took a lot of sand to build those forts, to be sure, but you see there was a lot more sand where that came from, so they dug down in and they dug down in, and presently they had a couple of great big forts all built.

"And two of the armies hid behind one of the forts, and the other two got behind the other, and they had a glorious battle, all make believe. And they pretended to have a cannonade, and by and by the armies sent out scouts, and they were captured and rescued, and everybody had fun.

"The boys hated to come away, and the next day they came back eager to enter their forts. But there weren't any forts. The tide had washed them away. So the boys had to build the forts over again."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

It is much easier to handle and care for a mop which is made with a couple of large sponges put into the mop handle than the ordinary mop rag, which is heavy. The sponges are very easily wrung out and they take up dust and dirt readily. They may be used to wipe up hardwood floors. To brighten Axminster rugs dampen them in ammonia water and go over rug lightly.

Hair Curler—Mix one dram gum arabic and two ounces rosewater. This will curl the hair (short ends, too). If hair has been darkened by curling, add one-half ounce peroxide to lotion. Dampen hair with lotion, then wrap in curl papers before retiring. This will made hair glossy and curly, as every woman desires. You can get ingredients at any drug store, and it is very inexpensive.

RHUBARB DISHES

Baked Rhubarb—Cut two pounds rhubarb into inch pieces. Place in baking dish, sprinkling with one cup sugar and handful of raisins. Add half cup water. Bake three-fourths hour.

Stewed Rhubarb—Wash and cut into inch pieces tender stalks of rhubarb, put into stew pan with a little sugar, cook with enough water to keep from burning. Serve hot or cold. Good with plain cornstarch pudding or rice.

Rhubarb and Tapioca—Cook half cup tapioca in two cups water and one-fourth teaspoon salt until tapioca is clear. Cut one pound rhubarb in pieces, lay in baking dish, grate rind of a lemon over rhubarb and sprinkle with half cup sugar. Place tapioca over rhubarb, sprinkle with a little sugar and dot with one tablespoon butter. Bake half hour. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Rhubarb Mold—Dissolve one heaping tablespoon gelatin in half cup orange juice, add one quart stewed rhubarb. Beat quickly and turn into wet mold. Serve in orange shells or with whipped cream and chopped nuts.

Rhubarb Dessert—Stew one pound rhubarb in enough water to keep from burning. Sweeten to taste and rub through sieve. Add one and one-half cups milk and a little sweet cream; mix and serve in little punch glasses.

SOME PIES

Pecan Pie—Cook in double boiler one cup of milk and one cup sugar. Thicken with one tablespoon flour and yolk of two eggs. Add juice of one lemon and half cup chopped pecan meats. Bake a crust as for lemon pie; when done fill with the nut custard, frost with the whites of eggs and brown slightly.

Orange Pie—Bake an ordinary shell. Filling: One pint boiling water to which add three-fourths cup sugar, juice of one orange, two tablespoons flour, yolk of one egg. Mix with lukewarm water. Stir into boiling water, let boil until well thickened, fill into shell. Frost with white of egg; set in oven to dry frosting.

Cheese Pie—Line deep pie tin with crust. Take one egg, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, three-fourths cup sugar; stir well together. Last, add one pint milk and fill in crust. Bake same as a custard pie.

THE TABLE

Cracker Pies — One cup rolled crackers, three cups sugar, three eggs, four tablespoons boiled cider, three teacups cold water, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon allspice, one-half teaspoon cloves, one cup of chopped raisins.

Banana Pie—One who retains the "sweet tooth" of his childhood will find this to his liking. Make a banana pie with a lower crust only; bake the crust first, then fill it with sliced bananas and powdered sugar; the fruit will soften sufficiently in a few moments. Cover the top with whipped cream and eat at once.

Boiled Salad Dressing—One teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons sugar, one-half tablespoon flour, one tablespoon melted butter, three-fourths cup milk, one-fourth cup vinegar, yolks of two eggs. Mix dry ingredients, add yolks slightly beaten, butter, milk and vinegar very slowly. Stir while cooking.

Simple Dessert—Cut equal quantities stewed prunes and walnuts into thirds. Do not chop, as that would soil appearance. Serve in sherbet glass with whipped cream.

Two tablespoons cream (top of milk will do); mix in enough confectioners' sugar as will hold two tablespoons of melted butter. Beat well. Flavor.

HE WHO EXPERIMENTS.

A man can try a new hatter, or another brand of cigar, as an experiment, because even if the experiment be a failure, the loss is small. But in insuring his property, involving either all, or at least a considerable part of his resources, no owner can afford to place his insurance in the hands of any agent or broker.

And it is the OWNERS who realize this fact who insure here.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Nell, this medicine chest is in awful shape. Why don't you clean it out?" Dick's tone was irritated and Nell's head went up defiantly. "I didn't say a word when you were doing the work alone, but now that you have a maid there is no excuse for such a condition. Two women should be able to take care of a baby and keep a house in some decent shape."

"You seem to forget that the doctor said I was to forget I had a house; that he wanted me as far as possible to be utterly care free and spend all the time I could out of doors, that I might get back my strength. You are willing I should obey his orders, if you are not inconvenienced, but if it comes to having a disordered medicine chest or bureau drawer, health must wait."

Dick had dropped his lather brush and was staring at Nell's angry face in amazement.

"I didn't mean that you should do it, dear," he began apologetically. "Have the maid do the work."

"Yes, I suppose you think I have but to wind her up and set her going, and the house will be in perfect order. Little you know about it or you would realize that it takes more nervous force to get work out of a maid than it does to do it yourself."

"I thought you were quite satisfied with her," interrupted Dick.

"I am satisfied that I can leave the baby with her, and know that he will be well taken care of. She is good in many ways, but she is sullen and if I ask her to do an extra thing she begins to sulk. Getting work out of a maid is no easy task, I assure you, and I do not want to offend her, for I wish her to stay while Olive is here; her visit would be dull indeed if I had to be tied down with the baby every minute. As the doctor wants me diverted and in the open air, I am trying to combine the prescription with entertaining Olive. That's why I flared up so about your criticism," said Nell, a little shamefacedly.

"Let the old house go hang, dear," he said, lathering his face fiercely. "Being a 'mere man,' I did not understand these things."

"The disorder has been worrying me; that's why I resent having it worry you, I suppose," said Nell, laughing. "But, really, I must realize that an orderly house is very unimportant compared to rested nerves. This flareup proves that. I am not going to tire myself with housework. I'll let Mary get all done she can and leave the rest. You'll have to stand it someway," and she pinched his lathered ear.

"You know you are the dearest thing in life to me, and anything that will help make you your old lively self again will be welcomed, if it's a diet of bread and water to save work."

"A woman has not the slightest excuse to stay nervous when her husband is so considerate," said Nell gratefully.

ONE CENT A WORD

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — SCOOP ALWAYS DISAPPOINTS THE BOSS — BY "HOP"

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

In the throng at the Astor theatre last night watching "The Eternal City" unroll its throbbing story on the screen there sat a man, who was easily recognized as a prominent lecturer on travel of a former day. He sat in amazement as the drama moved through a series of historic scenes such as he had been wont to throw on his screen in still life photograph. From the time the story leaped from Soho, London, to Rome, the old man's attention was engrossed in the panoramas of historic scenes. It is doubtful if he caught more than half of the action. At least, he said not a word about it.

"Wonderful," was his exclamation. "What wouldn't I have given for two season's with pictures like those.

"I wouldn't need any play. All I'd want would be those scenes. I could make the biggest travelogue in the world with them. Why Burton Holmes himself"—

Here he choked on his rapid-fire utterance. It was only when he was well out on the street that he was able to untangle his thoughts.

"I know every one of those scenes. I have shown parts of them hundreds of times, but my, what a chance to show them alive, so to speak. Do you know, the man who took that picture has plucked the very heart out of Rome—and only for background, too."

Little by little the reason: for the exclamations came out. It seemed that the first Roman picture, that of the Piazza of St. Peter's on the occasion of a Papal Jubilee procession, had made a tremendous impression. This had been the site of Nero's circus and the Egyptian obelisk in the very centre of that circle survives from that day. Another picture of a great mass meeting in the Coliseum showed the old-time circus Maximus; not as it once was in a glory of white marble, but as it has stood since it became a supply quarry for scores of churches. Built by 60,000 Jewish prisoners it had been the scene of the deaths of many Christians. Then came a scene enacted in the ancient Forum with the hero standing near the Temple of Saturn erected about 500 B. C. with the arch of Septimus Severnus in the background. The Gate of Giovania and a bit of the Appiam Way, also made the film rich in travelogue.

Graphic is the only word for the acting of Pauline Frederick. In every phase of the romantic character she was both gripping and charming. It is by all odds the finest work Miss Frederick has done. She proves herself, with her beauty and plastic quality, to be a picture actress of exceptional appeal. Equally effective in his own way is Thomas Holding, as David, first and last of all because his face has the light of the idealist. An impressive picture of the Pope is achieved by Fuller Mollish. Hall Caine's various characters naturally lend themselves to pictorial treatment and the work of the cast put the production on an unusually high dramatic plan. The picture will be shown again this afternoon and tonight.

'ANTIS' PLANNING ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Sherman B. Joost Re-elected President of Ass'n Opposed to Suffrage.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Membership of Nearly 1,400 in Local Branch—Public Meetings and Entertainments Discussed—List of Officers for the Coming Year.

Officers were elected and encouraging reports were received at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage held at the Public Library this morning. There was a large attendance of members and all were much gratified with the reports of progress not only in this city but from all parts of the State. Expression of confidence in the defeat of the suffrage amendment next fall was unanimous.

It was reported that the local branch now has about 1,400 members, 80 per cent. of which it was said are wage-earners. This was considered especially encouraging for it was reported that no particular effort to increase the membership had been made, efforts being devoted to a campaign among the men. Plans for a more active campaign from now on were discussed and these will include public meetings and entertainments. Hereafter the local branch will meet every Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the library. The standing committees for the year are the same. These officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Sherman B. Joost; first vice-president, Miss Florence Tweedy; second vice-president, Mrs. John Constable Moore; Mrs. Pierre Mali, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, Mrs. William Wallace Coriell, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart, Mrs. Herman Schwed, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard, Miss Laura E. Osgood, Mrs. John H. Jewett, Mrs. Catherine D. Lawrence, Mrs. Orton G. Dale, Miss Jessie Munger; Mrs. Rufus Delafield; treasurer and recording secretary, Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt; corresponding, Mrs. C. L. Sykes.

An interesting letter was read from Mrs. Edmund Yarde Breese, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Trenton, who is State president of the Anti-Suffrage Association, telling of an Anti-Suffrage ball held in Trenton, Saturday night. The affair was attended by three thousand people and Mrs. Breese said that the affair was a great success. Extracts from an article appearing in a recent issue of the Newark Evening News was read showing that the Federation of Liquor Interests of the State will not work against suffrage, contrary to reports.

The members arranged to attend an Anti-Suffrage meeting in Elizabeth, June 10, at which Miss Lucy Price and John A. Matthews will be the speakers, and others will attend an Anti-Suffrage card party to be held at Morristown on June 8.

ASKED FOR POSTPONEMENT IN TRIAL OF BOY AUTOIST

Owing to the fact that Captain John J. Flynn and Sergeant Maurice Higgins have been summoned as witnesses in a case to be tried in the Union County Courts at Elizabeth, tomorrow, efforts are being made to have the hearing of the State against Arthur Moore, the eighteen-year-old Plainfield taxicab chauffeur, postponed for one week. Justice of the Peace Rene von Minden has the matter under consideration, the original date having been set for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Borough Hall at Dunellen.

Moore is charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and is at present out under bail. Grace Philmore is being held under bonds as a material witness. Moore's license has been revoked.

"ARMY" ON THE JOB AT 51ST BIRTHDAY

Mr. Mulford Celebrates Occasion at Stand Where Business was Started in 1869.

The old saying, "Cheap at any price," was changed yesterday by Armstrong Mulford, the veteran real estate agent, to "Young at any age." Mr. Armstrong was receiving congratulations, the occasion being his natal day, he having reached the age of fifty-one at that time. Mr. Mulford is a native of this city, and has made his home here throughout his entire life time.

Mr. Mulford is one of Plainfield's oldest real estate men, in point of years of service. He succeeded his father at his North avenue place of business, where it was established by the parent, Edward C. Mulford, forty-six years ago in 1869. The three-story building at 168 North avenue, where Mr. Mulford now conducts his business on the first floor, was built more than a century ago, and is today owned by the son. There is probably no better known expert in the city on real estate valuations than Mr. Mulford, having served during the term of former Mayor Percy H. Stewart on the commission for the revision of value of property. With Mr. Mulford on this commission were such men as DeWitt C. Ivins, John G. McLaughlin, Thomas H. Hughes and Frank C. Hubbard.

Popular in the local fraternal world, Mr. Mulford is a member of several lodges, among which are Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M.; Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, and Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. Elks. "Army" is also interested in sports of various kinds, especially so in regards to bowling, habitually visiting the alleys of the Elks Club house on Watchung avenue, where he is a member of one of the teams that holds forth at that place. His birthday yesterday was spent in a quiet manner about his office, caring for the routine matters of the day, but was remembered by a large number of friends who dropped in to pay their respect and offer congratulations.

MAN'S CURIOSITY GAVE FIREMEN NEEDLESS RUN

Apparently unaware of the fact that "Curiosity once killed a cat," George Brown, colored, of Jerseyland Park, twisted the handle on the old-fashioned fire alarm signal box No. 12, in front of the Lyric Theatre, last night, and brought the entire fire fighting force from the center portion of the town to the scene in record time. Brown was later arrested and will be arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court tomorrow morning, when efforts will be made to determine whether his act was the result of a queer sense of humor or ignorance.

Theories advanced by some who stood by when the culprit turned the signal crank indicate that he probably thought that the fire box was some kind of an up-to-date slot macine. He made a careful examination of the box several minutes before completing the stunt and was apparently looking for a slot to deposit a coin in.

Sudden realization of what he had done caused him to take to his heels and he made a record sprint through Exchange alley. The advance guard of firemen failed to see anyone stationed at the box when they arrived and an investigation revealed the fact that a false alarm had been sounded.

WHY "BILL" MERNAGH SMILES.

Patrolman William Mernagh, of the local police force, has been wearing one of those broad smiles since yesterday morning that is described as "the kind that won't come off." He refused to give any explanation himself, but the mystery was cleared when it was learned that a ten and a half pound baby girl arrived at his home in the Endress building yesterday morning.

GOING ABROAD.

Among the cabin passengers on the steamer United States, sailing tomorrow for Stockholm, will be Mrs. Caroline Lindstrom and daughter, Inga, who are going to Sweden to visit relatives. Passage was secured through the Estil Steamship Agency, of Park avenue.

DR. ZELIE OFFICIATES

Reception Follows Wedding—Couple Will Reside in This City Upon Return From a Trip—Bride Receives Many Gifts.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized, last night, when Miss Gladys Evelyn Chase, daughter of Mrs. H. T. B. Chase, of Putnam avenue, became the bride of Franklin Clyde Doane, son of Freeholder and Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, of East Seventh street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and was witnessed by sixty relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. The house was a veritable flower garden throughout, palms, white and pink peonies and snowballs being used in profusion in the decorations.

Miss Chase wore a charming creation of white satin and old lace and a veil. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and sweet peas. The bride was attended by Miss Mildred Brownlee, of this city, as maid of honor. The latter wore a pale green gown and carried white peonies. Mr. Doane had for his best man Edward Titus, of New York city, who was a classmate of the groom at Williams College.

James Brownlee, brother of the maid of honor, and Benjamin Doane, cousin of the groom, preceded the entrance of the bridal party into the

New York, June 2.—An appraisal of the estate left by Henrietta Martinot, a sister of Virginia Zerega, of 926 Park avenue, Plainfield, the report of which was filed in the surrogate's court today, shows that when she died on December 23, 1911, she left an estate both in New York and New Jersey valued at $53,061.49. Most of the New Jersey property is at Westwood, and the estate also includes large bequests from relatives.

The will executed December 18, 1911, makes the following bequests: Annie Ottignon, of Westwood, $10,000; Kate Humphrey, of Westwood, $500; Rev. J. T. Delahunty, also of Westwood, $500. The rest of the estate in equal shares is divided between two sisters, Virginia Zerega, of Plainfield, and Louise Gallagher, of Asbury Park. Howard Thayer Kingsbury, of New York, is the executor.

COMMUTERS SHOULD PLAN TO MEET EARLIER TRAINS

Owing to the fact that the Federal War Department has decided to commence its dredging operations along the west shore of the North River, opposite the Jersey City ferry slips of the Central Railroad, some time this week, the schedule of ferry service from Jersey City to New York will necessarily be somewhat disarranged. In view of this inavoidable condition it would be well for local commuters to arrange to travel on earlier trains for the time being, or to so plan their time for arrival as to allow for several minutes' delay in reaching New York.

The Central Railroad officials have made efforts to have the War Department do this work at times when it would least interfere with service, but the request has been futile. Everything possible, however, is being done by the railroad officials in their preliminary work to reduce the delays to a minimum.

WOMAN'S CHARGES DENIED BY FINKLE

Local Dentist on Trial Today in County Courts for Serious Offense.

Having previously denied his culpability to allegations of a serious nature made against him by Mary Grant, a mulatto woman, Dr. Israel Finkle, a Plainfield dentist, was arraigned before Judge James C. Connolly on a Union County Grand Jury indictment, in Elizabeth, this morning. William Newcorn appeared as counsel for the defense and Union County Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein conducted the State's case.

Up to the time court adjourned for the noon hour Judge Connolly had heard the testimony of the complaining witness, Police Sergeant Maurice Higgins, Mrs. Ellen Finkle, the accused man's wife, and the defendant. The Grant woman, who hails from St. Thomas, West Indies, alleges that Finkle attempted an assault upon her after she had had a tooth extracted at his office. He makes a general denial to the charge and is substantiated in his claim of innocence by his wife who testified that she was in the next room at the time.

Sergeant Higgins told of having been sent to the office to investigate and said that Dr. Finkle haled him with a "more trouble" salutation, the inference being notoriety the dentist received when a report was circulated concerning him several weeks previous, the allegations on that occasion being of a similar nature to the one for which he is now being tried. He made a public denial of the charges at the time.

FATHER WRITES OF CHILDREN'S RESCUE

John Williams Tells in Letter How Two of His Family Escaped Death.

An echo of the Lusitania disaster with a local touch came to this city yesterday in the form of a letter to Mrs. Cornelia C. Terwilliger, of 726 West Third street. It was sent from England by John Williams, a former Plainfielder, whose wife and six children were aboard the ill-fated ship when she sank off the Irish coast on May 7. This is the first that has been heard direct from the family and the missive brought the welcome news that two children, as the newspapers stated, had been saved out of the seven.

In his letter, Mr. Williams stated that he had gone from England to Queenstown within a few hours after hearing of the sinking, but it was not until a week later that he located his oldest child, Edward, eleven years old, and his oldest daughter, Edith, aged nine, at Cork. They were sent to the latter place by the authorities in accordance with a plan to separate the survivors from the gruesome scenes about the morgues at Queenstown and cities directly near Fastnet, from off which the ship went down. Mr. Williams visited all the improvised mortuaries, but failed to find any trace of his wife or the other four children. Edward and Edith said a man had put them in a boat and in the confusion they did not know what had become of their parent or sisters and brothers. One of the other children was an infant three months old. Mr. Williams concluded in his epistle that he had returned to England but had no definite location as yet, owing to the fact that factory workmen are being hurried from one place to another as they are needed by the army and naval officials.

The Williams family, just previous to leaving for England lived on Berckman street, but for a number of years resided on West Third street between Lee and Stebbins place. Mr. Williams was employed at the Potter Press Works for a time and also worked for C. W. Holland as a groom. He sailed for England several months previous to the time his family left. The two survivors, Edward and Edith, attended the Washington School for several years and while living on Berckman street were pupils at the Bryant School.

RECREATION NOTE.

The colored girls' gymnasium class under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee will hold a basketball game and dance for the benefit of the recreation work at the Plainfield High School tomorrow night. The girls will play the recreation team from New Brunswick. This class has been most enthusiastic in its work during the year.

The man or woman who have not the habit of "trying again" very often fail as want advertisers, wholly for that reason.

ENUMERATORS AT WORK

Plainfield Territory Will Probably Be Covered Inside of Ten Days—P. J. Reville in Charge Here—Expect Local Increase.

Many Plainfielders were caught unawares in their wash-day and "after-the-holiday" attire yesterday, when the local corps of State census enumerators started on their rounds and incidently many bashful representatives of the fair-sex failed to have answers in readiness for the cross-fire of twenty-three questions hurled at each individual by the name-getters. The law requires that the work shall be done on or before July 1 and as a consequence the men have no time to "dilly-dally" with reluctant maids who would try their right age to withhold by fluent converse on the weather and various other topics of backfence gossip. P. J. Reville is directing the Plainfield campaign and his charges expect to cleanup their respective territories within two weeks.

The data being sought relates generally to the place of residence, name, personal description, nativity, citizenship, occupation or profession, education and ownership of home. Three additional queries have been added this year at the instance of Commissioner Calvin N. Kendall, of the Department of Public Instruction, these being designed to supply data needed by the educational authorities. They

The league candidates were W. H. Barry, of Gillette; William Chattfield, of Millington, and Edward Swenson, of Stirling.

"TAPS" SOUNDED FOR WALLACE CORIELL

Veteran Laid to Rest By Comrades With Full Military Honors.

With the full military honors befitting his splendid record as a soldier in the Civil War, the body of William Wallace Coriell, whose death occurred Friday night, after a long illness, was laid in its last resting place, yesterday afternoon, by his comrades of the G. A. R. "Taps" were sounded in Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue, after an impressive Grand Army service at the late home on Lincoln place, the borough. Past Department Commander William C. Smith was master of ceremonies, while Chaplain Nathan Pennington delivered the eulogy.

Rev. C. C. Cain, former pastor of Grace M. E. church, which Mr. Coriell attended, was also present and beside reading scripture offered prayer. The obsequies were attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends that included in all forty veterans, a number of whom had enlisted with Mr. Coriell in Co. B, 6th N. J. Regiment. It was his last wish that he be "buried by the boys," and the old soldiers, practically all of whom are past the three score and ten mark, turned out to honor his memory. The entire delegation acted as an honorary escort, walking beside the hearse from the house to the cemetery. One of those who was included in the delegation was Bennett Brittin, who will be 102 years old this month.

At the grave side, Past Department Commander Smith and Chaplain Pennington again conducted the Grand Army ritual, while a squad of eight men from Company K, in charge of Corporal Albert Tranchand, fired the last volley over the casket. The bugle call of "Taps," indicating that all that was earthly of a patriotic citizen and brave soldier had gone to the great beyond, was sounded by Whitney Frazee. The comrades who acted as pall bearers were J. Worth Coddington, Edward Willis, Firman Gise, Alexander Sargeant, William N. Pangborn and James M. Lewis.

Many handsome floral tributes were banked about the casket as it rested at the Lincoln place residence, and among these were set pieces from Winfield Scott Post, and the Masonic order, Mr. Coriell having been a member of these two organizations.

Following the business session a social time was enjoyed, which consisted of musical selections and playing games. Refreshments were served during the evening.

VON BERNSTOFF AND PRES. CONFER

But Neither Makes Statement After Twenty Minute Talk.

STRUGGLE IN FRANCE

French Taking "Labyrinth" From Germans Section by Section—Conflicting Statements Given as to Successes on Eastern Front.

Washington, June 2.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, had a twenty-minute conference with the President at noon today. The envoy emerged smiling, but refused flatly to comment on the nature of his visit or its results. The White House was equally reticent, although it was intimated that a statement might be issued later. Ambassador Cellere, the Italian envoy, arrived at the White House by appointment but ahead of time and the representatives of the warring powers narrowly missed meeting. The Italian was hurried into an empty waiting room in time to avoid an embarrassing situation just as Count Von Bernstorff left.

Affidavits regarding the cargo or armament of the Lusitania have not yet been received at the State Department. Secretary Bryan today made the flat statement that no one connected with the Department has received any information that the Lusitania was armed or that a large consignment of furs reported to be carried on the Lusitania was in reality cases of picric acid consigned to Liverpool to be used in the manufacture of explosives.

Later Secretary Tumulty announced that the President would not discuss the interview. This attitude was taken, it was said, because of the imminence of the Administration's reply to Berlin. It is understood, however, that the Ambassador explained that the German note would have been more responsive had he been able to communicate freely with his Government. It is also understood the envoy frankly acknowledged that the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulflight was due to a mistake in that the commander of the submarine had not recognized the American colors until after the missile of destruction had been launched.

Paris, June 2.—The terrific struggle for the German fortifications known as the labyrinth, southeast of Neuville, St. Vaast, continues by night and day. The violent fighting around these works is made the feature of the official communique issued by the War Office today on operations in northern France. On account of the intricate nature of the German labyrinth the defenses must be taken one by one. The labyrinth lies in a triangle of highways, about 5 miles north of Arras. The French took another group of houses and Neuville and captured 450 more Germans.

Petrograd, June 2.—The following official communique has been given out by the War Office:

"In the Shavli region there is no change. West of Kurdowiany fighting continues on the Traviany-Galiski front. Monday we captured the latter village at the point of the bayonet.

"On the left bank of the Vistula during the night of May 30-31, the enemy developed a very active artillery fire over the whole front north of the Pilica. About 4 o'clock in the morning, under cover of the smoke, and with extensive use of poisonous gases, the enemy attacked our positions. The attacks were characterized by extraordinary intensity. So vast was the quantity of poisonous fumes released that the effect was

MRS. SUSAN LOCKHURST DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. Susan Lockhurst died at the home of her youngest daughter, Mrs. J. N. Hedley, on Washington avenue, yesterday, following a brief illness with bronchial pneumonia. Mrs. Lockhurst had a fall a week ago and on Friday she was taken ill and obliged to take to her bed. She was not well before the fall, however, in fact her health had been gradually failing since the sudden death of a son, Edward Lockhurst, at Denver, Cola.

Mrs. Lockhurst, whose maiden name was Miss Susan Cook, was born in England 82 years ago, and had been in this country since she was three years old. Her husband, who was a carpenter at Woodbridge, died 37 years ago. For a number of years the deceased had been living among her children on Staten Island and here. At the time of her death she was a member of St. Mark's M. E. church, of Pleasant Plains, S. I.

Mrs. Lockhurst is survived by three daughters and one son, Mrs. F. A. Leggett, of Pleasant Plains, S. I., Mrs. Isaac J. Stites, of Dunellen avenue; Mrs. J. N. Hedley and W. P. Lockhurst, of Perth Amboy. She is also survived by a granddaughter, Mrs. Aaron Stites, wife of a brother of Isaac J. Stites. It is a rare incident indeed that two brothers should marry into the same family by one marrying the daughter and the other the granddaughter.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, at the home of Mrs. I. J. Stites, at 115 Dunellen avenue. The Rev. D. W. C. Ramsay, pastor of the Methodis. Episcopal church, will preach the sermon. Interment will be at Woodbridge.

MERCY COMMITTEE TO MEET AT ISELIN

Will Be Guest of Mrs. Charles D. Freeman at Her Country Home.

The Mercy Committee of New Jersey will be the guest of Mrs. Charles D. Freeman tomorrow at 3 o'clock, at her beautiful country place at Iselin. A society woman from New York and a distinguished military-sanitarian will address the committee on "War Conditions."

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, president of "The Up Town Branch of the Red Cross Society," will tell about the splendid work that is going on in New York social circles, the generous support it is getting and the incessant demands made by the war sufferers from all Europe.

Dr. Seaman, one of the best authorities on military sanitation, is said to have on his visiting list more ambassadors and military celebrities than any man outside of the diplomatic circle. His books on sanitary law are standard in European, Asiatic and African war offices. He is the author of many pamphlets for military and geographical societies abroad and has just finished a history of "The Republic of China."

Traveler, collector of oriental arts, man of the world, Dr. Seaman will not be the least attraction at the June meeting of the Mercy Committee. "Middlesex Farm," the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, covers a thousand acres, in one of the most picturesque and sanitary sections of beautiful New Jersey. The pergola that is drawn across the terraces to the wood lands, has been the envy, admiration and despair of innumerable landscape architects at home and abroad. It was planned from Roman motifs, built of reinforced cement and with the ivy drapery give the suggestion of a lost garden art.

If the weather should be inclement the big house will accommodate sumptuously a regiment of Daughters of Mercy. Easy access to the Middlesex Farm by automobile is Oak Tree past the schoolhouse to Iselin. By rail, Pennsylvania Railroad, changing at Elizabeth. All friends of "The Mercy Committee" will be welcome.

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No. 1, Plainfield, says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me almost immediate relief and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally, when a cold settles on my kidneys and they act as a preventive of any serious trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wahl had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

WILSON CALLS ON MEXICANS TO BEHAVE

But Does Not Say What He Will Do If They Decide Not To.

Washington, June 2—In a ringing declaration that admitted of no question, President Wilson today called on the leaders in the Mexican revolution to get together and adopt some means of ending the intolerable conditions that have existed in the Republic for so many years. He declared the situation was such that the people of the United States cannot stand indifferently by and do nothing to save their neighbor. The statement, however, did not outline the policy of this Government if the warning was not heeded.

DECISION RESERVED IN SUIT AGAINST RAILROAD

Following a trial in the Plainfield District Court, this morning, Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., reserved decision in the case of Grace Ensminger against the Lehigh Valley Railroad to recover $500 damages alleged to have been caused in the handling of wearing apparel and a violin transferred in a trunk from Jersey City to South Plainfield.

V. W. Nash, Jr., represented the plaintiff and former Prosecutor Swift appeared for the railroad company. Several witnesses were examined in an effort to determine the manner in which the damage was done and the actual amount of loss.

Mr. Manley will address the convention on the Boy Scouts and salesmanship. He is the first boy to ever speak at the convention. The delegates will be the guests of the publishers at the Adelphia Hotel and the business sessions will be held at that hotel. The Plainfield News Company, Mr. Olmsted and Edward A. Laing has taken the local agency for all the Hearst publications.

ENDRESS CASE AGAINST CITY ON SUPREME COURT CALENDAR

Trenton, June 2—Included in the calendar of 197 cases listed for argument during the June term of the New Jersey Supreme Court which opened at the State House yesterday, is the suit of Fred Endress against the city of Plainfield on certiorari. Former Mayor G. W. V. Moyl represents the plaintiff and Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed, of the law firm of Reed and Hetfield, represent the city.

The Endress litigation resulted from an assessment placed on property owned by him on Madison avenue, Plainfield, when the city decided to widen that thoroughfare from West Front street to the Central Railroad bridge and appointed a commission to assess properties affected. According to Mr. Endress, the valuation placed on his property was unfair and he is taking this means of blocking the improvement until a more satisfactory settlement is made.

DEAD MAN'S NAME DRAWN.

Eight jurors, drawn for June duty in the Union County Courts were dismissed by Judge James C. Connolly, yesterday, following the filing of satisfactory excuses. Six others failed to impress the court, and they will have to serve. One name was erased as the man is dead.

MISS LAURA C. SMITH.

A WOMAN MAYOR.

First of Her Sex to Hold Such an Office In Illinois.

On May 1 the first woman mayor in Illinois assumed the duties of her office. Her name is Mrs. A. R. Canfield. She has reached the mature age of seventy-four and was elected mayor of Warren, Ill., in the later part of April.

MRS. A. R. CANFIELD.

Warren has a population of 1,500, and the salary paid to the mayor is not munificent, only $12 per annum.

Mrs. Canfield has long been an advocate of women's rights, and she declares that the long ambition of her life has been realized by witnessing in her particular instance the triumph of the suffrage cause. She was born in New York state in 1840 and claims to be a direct descendant of John Quincy Adams.

Dialect.

Miss Ritta—Aren't you fond of dialect poetry, Mr. Drestbeeph? Mr. Drestbeeph (of the Chicago Browning society)—Well, James Whitcomb Riley and Eugene Field do very well, but I came across some poems by a fellow named Chaucer the other day, and he carries it too far.—Life.

LIFE IN A SUBMARINE.

How the Crew Gets Air Fit to Breathe While Under Water.

The commander of a submarine observes what is going on at the surface by means of the periscope, but when that is submerged he sees nothing. And if he moves his vessel while using the periscope he leaves a white flake on the water, which exposes him to the enemy.

However, the periscope is sometimes of a length—about seventeen feet—to give partial safety, as when only the tip shows the boat is unlikely to be damaged by an enemy's fire, although if the periscope chances to be shot away it might cause a fatal leak. Also the submarines can be rammed.

The diving rudders are mounted in pairs, one on either side, fore and aft, with an ordinary vertical rudder at the stern for lateral steering. Each motor set drives a reversible propeller. The accommodation for the navigating officers is in the conning tower, while the quarters of the crew of ten men are in the bow, as is also the galley.

Special arrangements have been made to secure an adequate ventilation of the interiors of the boats. During surface operations the air is drawn in from outside. When traveling submerged the heated atmosphere of the engine and the exhaled air of the crew are drawn off through ventilators which pass it through various filtering, oxygenating and cooling devices, after which it is returned to the interior and is fit to be breathed again.—Exchange.

TELEPATHY.

That, Like Other Mental Operations, Cannot Be Explained.

"Marie Corelli has attributed telepathy to electricity. Is there any scientific truth in the matter, or is it but a theory?" writes a correspondent, and we answer:

Entirely theory. None knows how telepathy originates because nothing is known of the nature of mind—that is, no law of the mind has been discovered. Everything is theory until the law is discovered and then proved beyond all possibility of doubt. Every possibility of doubt or error of any kind, however minute, must be annihilated before anything is published as a law in any scientific book.

The mass of obscure things, such as telepathy, mind reading, action of mind on mind (as in hypnotism), action of mind on matter without physical contact, influence, suggestion, personal magnetism, automatic writing, drawing, painting, reading closed books, causing sound to be heard, conversations in space between invisible personalities, warnings, sending of messages from dying persons to their friends, rescues from danger by mind influences, transmission of drawings and pictures to minds of others by mind processes—all these and perhaps as many as 100 more most remarkable mental things are now occurring constantly in some part of the world.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Teeth of the Ancients.

The silence of the classics certainly seems to indicate that the Greeks and Romans suffered very little from their teeth. Words for toothache and for tooth extracting instruments can, indeed, be found in the Greek and Latin dictionaries, but the authors quoted for them are generally late and always uninteresting. We can hardly believe that if toothache had been common in Athens Aristophanes would have made no jokes about it. But a classical scholar may pretty safely be defied to cite a single Greek or Latin passage about it. Even Lucretius, when he gets on the subject of teeth in a passage where a reference to toothache might be expected, merely refers to the jar given to the teeth by very cold water or by biting a stone in one's bread.—London Chronicle.

Reciprocity.

"Dear Harold," with sadness she wrote to her former fiance, "as you are probably aware, I am to be married to Mr. Anthony the coming month. I shall therefore appreciate it if you will burn all the little notes I sent you, assuring you of reciprocity in regard to those you sent me."

She immediately received this reply: "Dear Dorothy—I shall certainly comply with your request at once. And, incidentally, as your new fiance holds a few notes of mine I shall deem it a great favor if you will induce him to burn them with the rest."—National Food Magazine.

Education.

Education is not merely the writing of facts on the mind as one writes on a blank slate. It resembles rather the placing of fresh color on canvas on which earlier colors are not dry. The new colors mix with the old. So the living mind mixes new information with what is already in it, and judges the new in the light of the old.

Inappropriate Garb.

"How are you coming along with your new magazine, the Society Girl?"

"All right. But the mailing proposition bothers me."

"How's that?"

"I don't like to send her out in a wrapper."—Louisville Courier Journal.

A Good Actor.

Patience—So she married an actor?

Patrice—Oh, yes!

"Was he a good actor?"

"Oh, yes; he acted as if he loved her."—Yonkers Statesman.

HALF THE WORLD AT WAR.

Since Italy went to war over half the world's population is directly and indirectly involved in the fighting. Figures compiled by expert statisticians show the entire known population of the world as 1,721,426,000 and that of the countries engaged in hostilities as 976,296,000.

The composite strength of the allies is given as 817,216,000, and that of the combined Teutons is placed at 159,080,000.

How the various belligerent countries who are giving their manhood to the war populate the sphere is shown as follows:

Allies—British empire, 422,000,000; France and colonies, 94,000,000; Russian empire, 171,000,000; Italy and colonies, 36,800,000; Belgium and Kongo, 23,000,000; Japan, 67,000,000; Serbia, 2,900,000; Montenegro, 516,000; total, 817,216,000.

Teutons—German empire, 78,000,000; Austria-Hungary, 49,500,000; Turkey, 31,580,000; total, 159,080,000.

The actual number of men called to the colors is put at about 21,000,000, but only the military authorities of the belligerents know exactly. The number of people affected is of course many times greater. It is stupendous almost beyond the comprehension.

The appointment of County Superintendent John Enright, of Monmouth county, to the position of assistant State commissioner of education is, as the Asbury Park Press says, a just recognition of one of New Jersey's foremost educators. Mr. Enright is to fill the commissionership made vacant by the death of J. Brognard Betts, of Plainfield, who had almost exclusive control of the legislative and pseudo-judicial affairs of the State department of public instruction, and was one of the most valuable public servants the State ever had. Commissioner-elect Enright is particularly fitted to successfully administrate this phase of the department's work. He will bring to his new and broader field of duty a mind long familiar with the larger educational problems and competent as well, to deal with the strictly technical tasks of the New Jersey school system.

"Backbone," the lively little publication of our local Jewish residents, gives some mighty sound advice to its readers in the May issue, when it tells them to become American citizens just as soon as the law permits. To make the work easier the Young Men's Hebrew Association has undertaken the establishment of a naturalization bureau and classes, where the fundamental principles underlying our form of government will be taught. "We should all be full-fledged citizens of this great Republic, giving voice and vote to all questions of local, State and national interest," says "Backbone." If all the foreign born peoples in the country were as diligent in urging citizenship, the hyphenated American would soon be a thing of the past. And everyone knows we have had more than we want of them during the last few months.

If you want to live to a ripe old age get out in the garden, walk five or ten miles a day, push the baby carriage, do any old thing so long as you exercise. Go to bed physically tired out every day. That is the advice of the United States Health Department in one of its latest bulletins, and it is mighty good advice. If you don't believe it ask the man who does some of these things.

William N. Runyon was toasted as the next speaker of the House of Assembly at the dinner given at Atlantic City by the present Speaker, Mr. Godfrey. Certainly he is entitled to the place next year, and he would be able to fill the bill with a great deal more ability than any of the men that have held down the job since Frank B. Joss was in the chair.

Prof. Roland G. Usher, the man with the remarkable ideas about Germany, says that if the United States goes to war with the Kaiser, it will mean a victory for the latter against the Allies. Mighty peculiar reasoning. Certainly the aid of this country for Germany's opponents could not weaken them.

That verdict finding the deputies in the Roosevelt strike shooting case guilty of manslaughter is another tribute to the effectiveness of Jersey justice. Over in New York State it would probably take six or eight weeks to try the case.

The baseball pools have put in appearance again this year, and they are supplying the temptation for the young men that horse racing formerly furnished. The police all over the country seem powerless to stop them.

Probably they will meet with some reverses, but up to the present time the Italian army has had a sort of triumphal procession in its invasion of Austria.

T. R. having now effectively disposed of Mr. Barnes, a waiting nation wonders what he will do next. He cannot be kept out of the newspapers.

With the private schools finishing their work this week, the pupils in the public institutions are casting longing eyes at the calendars.

No gentle reader, the Nebraskan that was torpedoed is not occupying the Secretary of State's office at Washington. No such luck.

'Tis a wonderful record the New York Giants are making, holding on to last place.

TO PRESENT GREEK PLAYS IN PRINCETON STADIUM

Granville Barker and Lillan McCarthy, following their season at "Wallack's Theatre" in New York, have undertaken to present Greek plays in five of the universities of this country. Four of these productions have already been made and have been attended with success far beyond all expectations. The fifth university to be visited is Princeton and on the afternoon of June 11 and the morning of June 12, Mr. Barker and Miss McCarthy will present the last of their Greek plays in the Palmer Stadium.

These two Greek plays were favorites two thousand years ago and as produced by Mr. Barker they will be found to be possessed of freshness and appeal of a modern play. While preserving the tradition of the period in which the plays were written, color and charm have been brought into the costumes of these plays.

The first play, "Iphigenia in Tauris," will be given Friday, June 11, at 4:30 p. m. This is a play of romantic wistfulness, it is not a tragedy in the strict sense of the word, it is full of the spirit of intrigue, it ends happily, it has a slight element of humor.

"The Trojan Women" will be given Saturday, June 12, at 10:30 a. m. This has been called the greatest war play of the world and coming at this time it is peculiarly appropriate and fitting.

A stage has been constructed after the Greek model and will be set up at one end of the Palmer Stadium. The actors selected by Mr. Barker have for the most part been under his training during their season in New York. The cast will include: Lillah McCarthy, Edith Wynne Matthison, Gladys Hanson, Crystal Herne, Florence Gerald, Ian Maclaren, Lionel Braham, Leonard Willey.

FIRST JEWISH GOVERNOR MAKING GOOD IN IDAHO

Moses Alexander, governor of Idaho—the first Jewish governor in the United States. "Honest Mose" they call him, is already hard at work at the job of putting his State on the same sound basis that his own private business rests on. He came to this country without friends and parents at the age of fourteen. Following is an extract from an article in the June American Magazine:

"Moses Alexander was born in Germany, and when only fourteen years of age took ship from that country to the land of promise. He was slight and frail of stature, lonely and without parents, but if you could have seen him then, undoubtedly you would have noted the same luster of eye and determined set of jaw which are so characteristic of his personality today. In New York, where the boy Moses landed, he heard ringing on every corner the advice: 'Go West, young man.'

"Moses Alexander went West, arrived at Chillicothe, Missouri, and secured a job in a clothing store at ten dollars per month and board. But even at that wage he proceeded to distinguish himself by saving money, applying thrift, zeal and untold energy to every hour of his long hours of daily work. He proved to be very affable to the public, won a place in the hearts of the people and before many years was a member of the firm for which he had started to work. It was at Chillicothe that Mr. Alexander had his first taste of political life, having served as a member of the Council and as Mayor of that city.

"In '91 he again heard the siren call: 'Go West.' He moved to Idaho and embarked in the clothing business in a little shack store on the main street of Boise. From this very modest undertaking he has developed a retail business which links itself into a chain of stores from one side of the State to the other and even into Oregon. And yet, even while building up this extensive business outside of Boise he has had sufficient time twice to hear the political call. For two terms as Mayor he gave Boise such a thorough cleaning-up and such a sweeping and dusting that the machinery when he got through with it resembled very much a hydro-electric plant in operation. He went on record for his efficiency and his keen ability in applying business methods to city government.

"And that is what the people of Idaho expect him to do for the State; they have confidence that he is the man who can straighten out the wabbly, clumsy, unwieldly gait of the Gem State, and adjust her governmental feet to the unaccustomed 'straight and narrow path' of honesty. For twenty-three years the people of Boise and the cities of Idaho which are linked into his chain of stores have been testing him by the clink of coin, and have never found him 'squeezing the eagle.' His business and public life have been builded on honesty, integrity, clearness of purpose, and courage of convicition."

parlor. They were followed by the bride and groom, the maid of honor, the best man and Mrs. Chase, who gave the bride away. The bride's mother wore a lavender gown of crepe de chine and lace. The ceremony was performed before a bower of white peonies and palms. Anton Gloeckner, of Elizabeth, played the wedding march as the party entered the parlor.

Following the wedding, the young couple were showered with congratulations and best wishes. A reception and supper followed. Mr. and Mrs. Doane left on a bridal trip to Cape May and on their return will reside on Putnam avenue. Mrs. Doane was the recipient of numerous handsome and useful gifts.

Both bride and groom are well known here, being prominent in various social functions of the younger set throughout the city and borough. Mrs. Doane attended the Plainfield High School and later entered Dana Hall for a finishing course. Mr. Doane is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and Williams College. He was a member of the 1914 class at Williams. During his stay at the local High School, Mr. Doane was prominent in various school activities and entered into athletics as well as dramatics. He was a member of the football, basketball and baseball teams. Mr. Doane is engaged in the paper business in New York at present.

HAS PUBLIC WEDDING.

Philadelphia, June 2.—A church romance which has been watched with interest by the parishioners of the Evangelical Lutheran church of the Resurrection, this city, will culminate today in a public wedding. Rev. D L. Sultzbach, pastor of the church, will wed Miss Marion D. Rawilngs, one of the teachers in his Sunday-school. The pastors of other churches will officiate, and there are no special invitations issued.

are whether a child is in school, the name of the school attended and whether it is public, parochial or private.

The personal description includes answers to questions as to racial color, sex, time of birth and age at last birthday, and whether married, single, widowed or divorced. Under the head of nativity each person will be asked to give his place of birth and that of his father and mother. The information sought as to education is limited to ability to read and write and to speak English. Householders are asked whether their home is owned or rented, whether free of encumbrance or mortgaged, and whether a house or a farm.

In New Jersey's 500 municipalities 2,200 men are taking the census and out of the returns supplied by the enumerators in the various towns the State census will be tabulated. It is anticipated that the count will show a population for the State in excess of 3,000,000. The last State census, in 1905, showed a population of 2,144,134, and the Federal census of 1910 indicated that the total had advanced to 2,537,167. The tremendous growth of New Jersey is shown by the fact that 100 years ago the population was only 245,562. With the promulgation every community affected will take its new classification on the basis of population. Salaries fixed on the basis of population and laws affecting the different classes of towns and cities will then take effect on a new scale.

The numerators will receive two cents for each name tabulated, while $3 a day is the pay allowed to the interpreters. Each supervisor receives one cent for every name recorded in the municipality under him.

The cost of the census will be something over three cents a name, allowing for the interpreters, thus making the total in the State about $100,000. Of this the State will pay only the general expenses in the Secretary of State's office. The specific cost for supervisors, enumerators, interpreters and incidentals is assessed against the several counties.

All other culture were negative.

There was the usual dairy inspection work and samples of milk and cream were analyzed. Several applications for renewals of barber shop permits were received. Applications for milk permits and one for ice and one for garbage were also received. All were referred to the health officer with power.

The report of the registrar of vital statistics showed 45 births, 4 stillbirths, 13 marriages and 20 deaths during the month. The number of inspections made was as follows:

SPECIAL CLASSES TO HOLD FIRST EXHIBIT AND SALE

The first exhibition and sale of the work done by the children of the special classes of the Whittier, Irving and Stillman Schools, will be held in the auditorium on Friday afternoon and evening. The exhibit will be open from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and after 7 o'clock in the evening. There will be a large and varied display of articles. The object of the sale is two-fold, to give the people of Plainfield an idea of the courses of the special classes and also to make money in an endeavor to have a self-supporting organization in the future. The children of the special classes, of which there are seventy-five, receive instruction in all branches of study, but they are those who can work better with their hands than with their minds. This special course is given in an endeavor to help the children decide on a trade for the future.

The work is under the personal supervision of Miss Nora B. Koons. The children have made fine porch chairs, baskets of reed and woodwork articles that are useful. The work is entirely practical. Rugs woven by the students will also be on sale and it is hoped that larger articles can be undertaken next year. It is the plan to hold an exhibit and sale every year and the proceeds will be used to purchase material and in other ways for the classes use.

In addition to the hand work, cake and candy made by the children will also be sold with ice cream. It is hoped that the public will attend the exhibit and see the work of the special classes.

The couple were unattended and only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony. The bride was gowned in an attractive traveling suit. After a short wedding trip the couple will return to this city, where they will make their home for the present.

Mrs. Neal is well known locally, having resided here at different times, while Mr. Neal is prominent in the younger set in the city and borough.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

In order to give the patrons of Proctor's Theatre the most distinct and absolutely the most life-like pictures in the city, Manager H. S. Sanderson has added to the playhouse's equipment what is known to the trade as a "gold screen." It is one of the lates discoveries in the motion picture world to bring out every detail as projected by the lens, but as yet it has not gotten into popular use because of the almost prohibitive cost. The screen, which is manufactured by the Minusa Cine Products Company, of St. Louis, is constructed of gold fibre cloth, demonstrations having proved that this material brings out the lineaments as nothing else does, at the same time giving a softened effect to the light, thus making it better for the eyes. The change from the old fashioned screen has been very noticeable and hundreds of favorables comments have been made to the house staff.

Professor Ernest Fleming's symphony orchestra continues to be a pleasing feature at Proctor's, the high-class musical programs rendered every afternoon and evening being a delight for old and young. The repertoire is changed daily but always includes popular as well as standard compositions. The solo numbers by the numerous artists in the orchestra are an added novelty.

The headline photo-play offering at the theatre for this afternoon and evening is the Paramount four-part feature, "The Country Mouse," a charming story of life in the rural districts. It is augmented by several special one, two and three reel films, giving a variety of comedy, drama and travel. For tomorrow the management takes pleasure in announcing the appearance of Miss May Irwin in her most famous comedy success, "Mrs. Black Is Back." The picture is in four parts and teems with that wholesome humor that has made jolly May Irwin's name a familiar house word throughout North America. The comical situations follow each other so closely the spectators have barely time enough to recover from one gale of laughter before they are in the vortex of another. Beside "Mrs. Black Is Back," tomorrow's program will include one of Charles Chaplin's latest comedies, "Those Dove Pangs," affording two reels of continuous merriment.

SENTENCE POSTMASTER.

LEAL-ALUMNI CONTEST LAST OF THE SEASON

The Leal School baseball team will close its season next Saturday afternoon, when the annual game with the Alumni will be played on Crescent Oval at 3:30 o'clock. This game was scheduled to take place two weeks ago, but rain prevented its being played. A good string of old-timers are in line for positions and they will endeavor to repeat last year's performance, when the private school aggregation was nosed out by a single tally.

Lester Glenney, who did the twirling last year, will probably start again in this year's game, but he will find it harder work as the Leal crew is much stronger than last year. Voorhees will pitch for Leal.

ROD AND REEL

One man caught seven blackfish and six sea bass yesterday at Sheepshead Bay. The latter ran small.

The weakfish are beginning to take hold. Three of them were caught on the Long Branch pier early Sunday morning, and another one weighing two and a half pounds was taken on Saturday. A croaker has also been picked up at the pier. We may now look for some good reports from Raritan Bay and nearer points.

Word from Pensylvania says that the Susquenanna is getting clear and that excellent striped bass fishing is expected the latter part of the week. The water must be lower and clearer, in order to get the best results by trolling. The net fishermen say they are so big and so numerous that they are tearing the shad nets.

Two anglers were out from Freeport yesterday and brought over a big mess of blackfish. They also had a few sea bass and one big ling.

SPORTING NOTES

Boston's claims to both pennants in the major leagues, which were strong some time ago, appear to be weakening.

Dan O'Leary, the veteran walker, will head the bunch of hikers on the 200-mile heel-and-toe contest which starts Friday at Chicago.

Mickey Sheridan and Kid Alberts, the Canadian welterweight, are matched for a ten-round bout at Grand Rapids for tomorrow night.

The Exposition track, where horsemen will open their meet on Saturday, is said to be very fast. Some big purses are being hung up.

Little Dick Rudolph is the mainstay of the Boston Braves during their slump. Johnny Evers' return is hailed in the Hub.

Jim Coffey, who is hailed in New York as the serious rival of Jess Willard, was formerly an $18 per week motorman.

The San Francisco to Honolulu yacht race, scheduled for June 12, has been called off.

N. P. H. S. TENNIS.

The North Plainfield High School tennis team is scheduled to go to Cranford, tomorrow afternoon, and play the Cranford School team. Tomkinson, Chandler, Dunning and Force will form the local team.

DILTS AT HIS BEST.

Osear Dilts' performance for the North Plainfield High School baseball team over the week-end and holiday was creditable, the shortstop and relief pitcher of the borough team having an average of .800 at the bat in two games. Besides this he relieved Stahl in the games both Saturday and Monday and pitched good ball. Saturday he made three safeties out of five trips to the plate against the Alumni aggregation and on Decoration Day hit safely five times in as many trips.

The High School has received the Hi OHi, the annual publication of Oberlin College.

JACK NICOL WOULD A REAL GOLFER BE

Congressman Capstick's Secretary Learning the Pastime at Park Golf Club.

Increased avoirdupois taken on since he entered the political arena as secretary to Congressman John H. Capstick, has lead John E. Nicol to take to the golf links to glean the exercise necessary to keep him in fettle for the bigger issues that he will be called upon to face when the political pot starts boiling. "Nic," as he is familiarly known in these parts, was seen trudging over the Park Golf Club's greens in the borough, yesterday afternoon, assaulting a lively little white sphere with brassie and niblock. While he admits having no designs on the laurels of Travers or Ouimet, the new devotee intends to master the fine points of the pastime so that he will be able to give a good account of himself on the links at the National Capitol. He will spend this week in conditioning and will be open to meet all comers in a fortnight.

What is probably the primary reason for Nicol's choice of recreation lies in the fact that he is the proud claimant of Scotch lineage and that his ancestors have been given credit for being the originators of the "ancient and honorable game." "Nic," at one time, played baseball and basketball and when asked why he had forsaken these sports for the driving and putting art he replied:

"Golf as an all-around exercise has it on them all. In covering a course one or twice a day you get all the exercise you need and at the same time do not subject yourself to the strains caused by excessive indulgence in basketball and baseball. Yesterday was my first time out and during my first round I could fairly feel the fat rolling off. Yes, I'll stick to it. It was real labor the first day, but my pride in my Fatherland demands that I subject myself to the hardships that come to every beginner."

N. P. H. S. TENNIS TEAM DEFEATED P. H. S. 3 TO 2

North Plainfield High School racquet wielders took three singles matches and lost a doubles match with the Plainfield High School, on the Park Club courts, yesterday afternoon, winning by a score of 3 to 2. This was the second meeting of these teams and the boroughites still have another chance for the Collier trophy. The deciding match between the teams will be played Monday on the Park Club courts.

The results of yesterday's play follow: Singles—Dunning (N. P. H. S.) defeated Parvin (P. H. S.), 9-7 and 6-4; Tomkinson (N. P. H. S.) defeated Blanchard (P. H. S.), 3-6, 6-3 and 7-5; Chandler (N. P. H. S.) defeated Eggie (P. H. S.), 6-2 and 6-4. Doubles—Ball and Parvin (P. H. S.) defeated Tomkinson and Dunning (N. P. H. S.), 6-4 and 7-5.

MRS. STOCKTON FOURTH.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, of this city, finished fourth in the opening round of the championship tourney for the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association title which was played yesterday over the course of the Merion Cricket Club. She returned a card of 94 for the first eighteen holes, going out in 46 and doing the last nine in 48. Seventy-two golfers started in the tournament.

SELF DEFENSE PLEA BY SLAYER OF M'FARLAND

Newark, June 2—That the killing of Floyd McFarland, the famous bicycle rider, at the Newark Velodrome on April 17, was an accident, and that the screwdriver which penetrated McFarland's brain was used in self-defense during a row, will be the defense of David Lautinberg, who faces trial tomorrow on a manslaughter charge in causing the death of McFarland.

Lautinberg lives in Brooklyn, and held a confectionery franchise in the Velodrome, of which McFarland was manager. The accused man was indicted, but allowed bail in $2,500. His trial will be before Judge Osborne.

The injury from which McFarland died was a fracture of the skull from a screwdriver wielded by Lautinberg. From statements made to the police by the accused man, and the witnesses of the fight, the two men were engaged in an argument over the placing of advertising signs over Lautinberg's candy booth, when McFarland struck the candy man. Lautinberg swung his left hand, which grasped a steel screwdriver and struck the manager on the side of the head. The sharp point pierced the skull and entered his brain. He died a few hours later without regaining con-

YOUR CAR KNOWS THE DIFFERENCE

FILL your tank with Standard Motor Gasoline, and you notice the difference instantly in the "feel" of your engine.

Standard Motor Gasoline is so much better than "just gas" that it is worth while to be particular about what goes into your tank. Cylinder carbon frequently is caused by the use of an inferior fuel.

Standard Motor Gasoline vaporizes readily and burns cleanly. It is a straight-distilled product, not a mixture—the same for every drop in your tank.

You can get Standard Motor Gasoline wherever you can take a car. It is absolutely uniform — the same now as next week, and it is cheaper to buy because there are more miles in a gallon.

Use Polarine Oil, the Standard Oil for all motors. Friction free, carbon free. For sale wherever you see the "Standard Motor Gasoline Service Station" sign.

sciousness.

According to County Physician McKenzie, who examined McFarland, that part of the dead man's skull just back of the ear was abnormally thin, and had the blow been delivered an inch away it would not have been fatal.

McFarland was known to sporting men in all parts of the country. As a bicycle rider he was one of the champions in his day. He was only 39 when the fatal affair occurred.

DECLAMATION CONTEST TO BE HELD IN HIGH SCHOOL

Adelbert Whitford and Randolph Stelle have been selected to represent the Plainfield High School in a prize-speaking contest to be conducted in the High School Auditorium next Friday night, and it is anticipated that a large number of those interested in the institution's activities will be present. In the early part of May, twelve High School pupils were named to take part in an extemporaneous theme writing contest open to Union county schools and the leading competitors in this event were chosen as aspirants for the declamation title.

The material used in the theme writing affair will be used as subject matter for the orations, the competitors having been given two hours on the previous occasion to write on their choice of three propositions.

MRS. HORACE P. CRAIG DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. S. Emma Craig, wife of Rev. Horace P. Craig, died this morning at her home at Clinton avenue, near Third street, following a long illness. She was in her seventy-fifth year and moved to the borough from Churchville, Pa., four years ago, at which time her husband retired from the active ministry. The family resided at Duer street and Lincoln place until Mr. Craig purchased the present home on Clinton avenue last fall.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Craig is survived by one son, who resides in Maine. She was a woman of pleasing personality and though living here only a short time had made many friends. When her health permitted she attended Trinity Reformed church. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

KEEPING IT DARK.

New Jersey Women's Canvass.

"Gentlemen, ought you to refuse to discuss your vote on woman suffrage with the ladies?

"Women of all opinions look to you as their only representatives to discuss with them a question which so vitally affects them. Are you not the only representatives women have?

"Very few men are so unfair as not to see that we have a right to discuss this question with them," said a suffragist the other day. "When a man refuses to say what his opinions are he usually gives himself away in the course of a few minutes' conversation. I must admit, however, that occasionally I am surprised.

"A short time ago I was calling on the principal minister of a small New Jersey town, who made the extraordinary statement that until the members of his church were agreed upon the subject it was his duty not to express an opinion on it.

"'I should, however,' he added, 'be glad to help you by giving you any other information about the town that I can.'

"'Can you tell me if Mrs. W. is in sympathy with us?' I asked.

"'Mrs. W. is one of the most highly respected women in the neighborhood and certainly one of the most intelligent. She is sure to be with you,' was the unexpected reply." E. W.

The Straight Issue.

Lincoln once said that this republic was founded on the rule of "root, hog or die," and women are no less amenable to that principle than are men. The amiable theory that it is man's function to provide and woman's function to be sheltered is a living lie, as millions of women wage earners can testify. Sometimes man provides and sometimes he doesn't. The woman who is sheltered today may be working in a factory tomorrow to support herself and her children. Hunger knows no sex. Want knows no sex. Necessity knows no sex. Law knows no sex. Property knows no sex. Only the ballot box knows sex.

But the ballot box once knew rank. It once knew land and primogeniture. It once knew income and money and family. All those paraphernalia of privilege have been swept away, and the disability of sex will follow. In the steady sweep of democracy the time will come when the present opposition to woman suffrage will seem as shortsighted and senseless as the former opposition to manhood suffrage now seems.

Democracies always move forward. That is their law of self preservation. If they stand still or retrograde they are lost.—New York World.

NEIGHBOR, DO YOU KNOW

That for twenty years the farmers of California tried in vain to pass the Torrens land law which would make impossible the extortions of title guarantee companies and would provide for registration and speedy transfer of land? Do you know that last fall, three years after the enfranchisement of women, this law was adopted with a majority of over 100,000, largely by the help of voting women? This was an important measure for California farmers, and no people realized it more than the women. Do you think there is any one who appreciates your work more than the women who make butter and gather eggs? Don't you think it is about time that the woman who has been your partner on the farm becomes your partner at the polls?

Kansas' First Woman Elected Legislature Made a Good Record.

A widowed mothers' pension bill, a bill to appoint a wage commission and the creation of a child hygiene bureau were the three achievements of the first legislature that Kansas women voters helped elect. These three were distinctly woman supported measures. They were indorsed by the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the State Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Good Citizenship League and the Kansas branch of the National Congress of Mothers. Miss Brissette, state factory inspector, spoke for the wage commission bill on the floor of the house and before the senate committee.

What Is He?

Lives there a man who would say to his mother, his wife or his sister, "You are too ignorant to vote," and then go to the polls and there associate and vote the same ticket with men that he would be ashamed to take home and introduce to his family?—L. G. Stewart.

Unarmed.

An anti-suffrage editor says, "I consider women more powerful unarmed."

Every burglar would prefer to find the woman of the house unarmed when he enters to rob, and every enemy of society wants to keep women away from the ballot box.

Heard on the Trolley.

First Man—Say, when women get the vote d'ye suppose they'll go to war?

Second Man—No; don't suppose they will, but I think we know where war'll go.

Half and Half.

The equal suffrage area of the United States is now 1,738,040 square miles, or 49 per cent, nearly one-half of the total area of the United States.

Woman's World

It Is Women's Business to Look After Europe's Civilization.

MISS JANE ADDAMS.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, who is now giving so much of her time to promoting the work of the woman's peace party, was interviewed recently in regard to our responsibility in the present war.

"This war," said Miss Addams, "seems to me to be the most primitive war imaginable. It is as though the nations of the world had gone completely around the cycle of wars for freedom, for religion and all such causes and were now come back to the most primitive of all wars—the war for self defense.

"Each nation in the present struggle claims to be fighting for self defense. Each one shows a sort of tribal patriotism; it must defend its own tribe, its own property. And that is by far the lowest kind of patriotism. It harks back to the days when there were no courts of justice; when men settled difficulties by physical force; when tribes were separate units, each continually on the watch to defend itself from aggression or injury on the part of others.

"In those primeval days there was a distinct tribal appeal to women. They were not merely to stay at home and be protected; it was their business to bear children. The edicts of Europe's warring rulers today and the hosts of 'war brides' hark back to those early centuries when the chief duty of man was to fight and die and that of women to replace the dead.

"Now by this primitive warfare the work of long, long years is being destroyed. In France, for instance, the women were just beginning to get some improvements in the laws which concerned them, coguardianship of children, for one thing. The whole social fabric is distorted, the long years of struggle and sacrifice to attain a better civilization, to unite men and women and children, are gone for naught. It is our business to see that all the civilization of Europe shall not be destroyed.

"It's difficult to say what the reconstruction will be," continued Miss Addams. "We can none of us prophesy that. But I'm inclined to think that it will be in many ways not unlike the reconstruction which followed the Napoleonic wars in France. Just traveling about there casually one is surprised at the many and varied things that women do, what an important part they play in industry and petty commerce, how they run hotels and keep shops and often act as cashiers for their husbands.

"Women will be in relatively the same position when this war is over, I believe, in political life. After all that they are doing now it will be possible for them to go into public affairs, semipolitical affairs at least."

CHIC MILITARY EFFECTS.

Smart New Belts Are Extremely Warlike In Their Appearance.

Military to an extreme degree are the smart new belts of the season, being built in cartridge effect or with

Points for Mothers

Regarding Environment.

A study of sound educational principles shows that the greatest perils as well as the greatest opportunities present themselves largely during A B C age and that therefore a careful study must be made of all requirements when providing a child's environment.

Specialists point out that at the start every child is greatly handicapped. Therefore he should be so nourished that every part of him works with a minimum amount of friction. We must rid ourselves of the idea that the youngest child requires the teacher of the least ability and skill. This is a viciously harmful idea. If children are wisely directed in the beginning there will be less cause for complaint afterward, less cause for men like Herbert Spencer to condemn the method upon which the advancement of the community rests.

Seguin tells us that we must educate the study of the senses, train the faculty of speech, the art of receiving, storing and expressing impressions, which is the natural gift of infants, and then we shall not need books to fill up the emptiness of our teaching until the child is at least seven years old.

If the education of the senses is neglected all after education partakes of a haziness, an insufficiency, which it is impossible to cure. Here, then, is a chain of reasoning that mothers and teachers of the very young child cannot escape. Examine the Montessori plan or Hillyer's or any one of the methods based upon the fundamental principles advanced by Froebel. Seguin—indeed by educators that reach back to the beginning of all things—and you will find in every instance that the greatest reliance is placed upon the sense training accompanying these methods. These students of education grasped the underlying principles and then worked out their own methods for action.

Night Terrors Are Serious.

Night terrors are due to fault in the nervous system which makes it easily excited by any slight irritation, even though that irritation be in some remote part of the body. The child awakens suddenly with violent screaming and gives abundant evidence of great fear. This may be repeated night after night or at less frequent intervals. Night terrors usually attack children between the ages of three and eight years, and in nearly every instance the attack comes on within two or three hours after the child has retired.

The face of the child shows the extreme terror which he is in. His eyes are widely opened and generally fixed upon one object. Sometimes a clew is given to what frightened the child by his crying out the name of the thing or person. During the attack the child will cling to others for protection. This period of extreme terror lasts usually only a few minutes, but it may be prolonged to nearly half an hour. Following this is a period during which the child recognizes persons and his surroundings, but for a considerable time he remains in a state of mild fear and dreads to be left alone.

Night terrors should never be allowed to continue untreated. They are indications that there is a serious fault in the nervous system, and this should receive the most careful and thorough consideration.

American Toys.

To take the place of the lead soldier made in Germany one firm has made a steel soldier very durable and quite neutral, his breeches Magyar, his coat English, his helmet German. He is cheap, too, the little set of fifteen infantrymen and three cavalrymen costing 25 cents as against the price for the imported pewter set of soldiers of $1. The sale of the paper and wooden soldier has gone up from the rate of 3,000,000 a year before the war to 5,000,000 since.

The sales of toy shotguns have also increased. In one firm the employees have been increased from 60 to 180, and they work in day and night shifts. This firm made not only guns, but war games. Their history is interesting because it is so recent. They are an adaptation of the peaceful map game made by the firm before the war, a game of the shortest routes for parcel post or a game to be won by locating the capitals of the states or by naming rivers and harbors.

Cruelty a Trying Fault.

One of the most trying faults to combat in nervous children is cruelty. Fortunately it is not a common one. The difficulties of its early eradication are made possible by the many examples that the child sees of what is apparently deliberate cruelty carried on by adults. He cannot see why it is not wrong to trap and kill mice, to kill fowl, to use worms as bait or to catch flies. He justifies his own acts by those of others. This is what makes the problem a particularly hard one to solve, and it requires the most patient handling to set the child right. Single acts of cruelty in the child need not be a cause for alarm, but persistency in such acts or their occurrence in later childhood should attract attention to both moral and physical needs.

You need not keep "on your hands," to your present disadvantage, any real estate that is "good enough to advertise."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

EDUCATOR SAYS COMING SOON.

United States Commissioner Compares Opposition to Whisk Broom Against Mississippi.

In a notable address before the graduating class of Fairmont Seminary, one of the leading girls' schools of Washington, with students and alumnae present from almost every State, Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, predicted that equal suffrage would soon be here.

"You might as well stand on a bridge over the Mississippi and with a whisk broom try to sweep back the waters as they rush to the sea," said Dr. Claxton, 'as to attempt to stem the tide of public opinion in favor of votes for women.

"When the people of Memphis hear that the Mississippi has reached flood tide at St. Louis they know the flood will reach them. Just as the floods in rivers are caused from little rivulets and smaller streams, so is the flood of public opinion for woman's suffrage being made up in the United States. Nothing can stop it.

"It behooves the girl graduates of 1915 to consider their opportunities and obligations very seriously, for with the coming of suffrage they are going to have a great opportunity to help make laws of the future, and those laws will be only as just as public sentiment makes them. You young women will have as much to do in the creation of this public sentiment as your brothers."

Wives Win Franchise.

The Provincial Legislature of New Brunswick has extended municipal suffrage to the married women of St. John, according to a letter to The Woman's Journal from Ella B. M. Hathaway, secretary of the St. John Woman Suffrage Association. Widows and unmarried women have had a vote in municipal elections for over twenty years.

That Denver Election Slander.

Just because the women of Denver on May 18 did not vote as a solid body for Mrs. Nora Wright, who was a candidate for Commissioner of Social Welfare, the New York Times infers that "suffrage is a failure in Colorado."

The Times overlooks the real facts of the election. Here is what the vote shows: that the home rule amendment to the charter, by which the liquor interests hope to remain in Denver in spite of the State-wide constitutional prohibition voted by the people of Colorado last fall, got through by only 2,865 majority, as against a wet majority of about 10,000 in Denver last fall; that the Moffat Tunnel Commission, created two years ago to make a free gift of $5,000,000 in city bonds to build a tunnel for a private railroad, was abolished; that a proposal to abolish the children's playground at 32d and Welton streets was beaten; that the attempt of the outlawed Denver Union Water Company to regain a legal standing by abolishing the Denver Public Utilities Commission was beaten. These are the things the men and women of Denver did, in spite of an unusually heavy blizzard which kept about half of the voters at home.

The New York Times tried to bolster up its conclusion by an interview from a "special correspondent," in which they quoted Mrs. Martha J. Cranmer, a member of the Colorado Board of Pardons, as saying: "I am completely disgusted. I shall never vote again. Suffrage is a failure. The facts speak for themselves."

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver Juvenile Court, sent Dr. Anna H. Shaw the following telegram:

"Mrs. Cranmer positively denies interview. Colorado Women continue to take usual active interest in voting."

Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford, State superintendent of Public Instruction for Colorado, says "Mrs. Cranmer denies having used any of statements quoted. Interview almost entire fabrication. Personally I see no diminuation among women voters."

HAND SMOCKED MIDDY BLOUSE IS HERE.

The middy blouse in sailor style is fighting for its existence, for the hand smocked middy blouse is doing its best to supercede it. It must be acknowledged that the touches of smocking in brilliant colored threads, with the front lacing to match, add a very smart note. Ladies' Home Journal Patterns for this blouse are cut for ladies and misses in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust, measure under number No. 8953 as shown above. They can also be had for little girls in sizes 4 to 12 years, under number 8970. In size 36 it requires 3⅜ yards of 36-inch material.

There are many skirts that can go with this, but the four-piece circular skirt cut by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8293, to be made with or without suspenders and belt, is particularly appropriate. Sizes 22 to 36 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires 3⅛ yards 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the Daddy's Bedtime Story—What the Gray Road Told the Child.

Under the Shade of a Green Tree.

"I MUST tell you kiddies tonight what the gray road told the child," said daddy as Jack and Evelyn came to him for the evening story.

"Oh, daddy, roads can't talk, can they?" asked Evelyn.

"This one did," laughed daddy.

"This little girl had been allowed out to play by her mother, and she wandered down the gray road that lay by the house and then stretched for miles and miles. It was a very pretty road, very smooth, and it wound around and around on the slope of a hill and through lovely green woods.

"The little girl loved this road. She had been born in a little white house which stood by the side of it, the house in which her grandparents had lived long before she was born.

"She used to walk along and sometimes wonder what it was like before there really was any road. I think you understand me, children. And about that same time she heard her daddy reading about how this land used to be. And that is how the road came to talk to her, I think.

"For one summer afternoon, when it was very warm, she walked along the road, and it was very quiet and drowsy. She was rather tired, so she lay down under the shade of a green tree and looked up at the leaves trembling in the breeze and at the blue sky shining through the branches, and then it grew very dim.

"And then what do you think? Why, the first thing you know the road was talking to her. And this is what it said:

"'Yes, you are right, little maiden. I was not always a road. What do you suppose I was in the first place?

"'Well, you could never guess, so I will tell you. I was a slim, winding little forest path that wound up this hill through the green woods. I was quite attractive, too, as paths go, and I was trodden hard and smooth by many feet. They were the moccasined feet of Indians, braves and squaws and papooses as soon as they got big enough to walk. They used to walk up me and down me, and I was glad because that was what I was for. Their wigwams used to dot the hillside. But that was very long ago.

"'Time passed, and the white settlers came to this hillside. It wasn't long before the Indians retired to another hill. Then the settlers decided they wanted a road and that it must follow the line of this path. So they cut down many trees and widened the path and made a road.

"'And in time other white men made a good road, which is myself.'

"Then the little girl woke up. She had been sleeping and had dreamed."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Of course you had a good time at the dance. No one could help it who was such a belle, but we were more or less separated, so tell me about it." The friends were sitting in the cozy living room the day after the dance at the Scotts' country home.

"I met some fine people who have just come on from Newport. One of them has been on a long cruise in his own yacht this summer. I am going horseback riding with him tomorrow," answered Olive after a pause. "You know the house party lasts a whole week longer.

"You met young Frazee, of course?"

"Yes, he was polite, but he is all absorbed in a New York girl who belongs to his set at home." Olive was busy watching her embroidery.

"What did you think of Burk, the bookkeeper?"

"Nell, this is like the shorter catechism. He asked to call, and I said he might, and to save time I'll add that I liked the doctor, too. He was the life of the crowd when he was with us, but he devoted most of his time to his sister. Now are you satisfied?" And Olive merrily reached over and stuck her embroidery needle into Nell's knee.

"We all like him," said Nell, drawing back with a knowing look. "His sister is a very pleasant woman. You know he wanted her to meet everybody. I had quite a visit with her."

"How could you visit at a dance?" asked Olive in surprise.

"I sat out one dance with her. Dick saw I was tired and proposed it."

"You didn't dance with Dick all the time, I hope."

"No, I was spared any such awful fate by my borrowed plumage, in which I looked quite stunning. My program was filled early. I thoroughly enjoyed it all.

"I met a Mrs. Montague."

"She is a sister of the young man who is to take me riding," interrupted Olive.

"Indeed! She is coming over to see the baby. Her little boy is four years old. I should like to have the Montagues and the brother——"

"Mr. Joplin," put in Olive.

"Here for dinner," continued Nell.

"I hope you can." Olive was enthusiastic. "They are worth while people."

"People with yachts usually are," chaffed Nell.

"Nell, I didn't mean the money. I meant the people were worth while. Of course money would not be a drawback. No one is foolish enough to pretend that it would.

"I am glad I put in my riding skirt," she continued. "I reflected that in the wild and woolly west I might find a horse to ride."

"You would never be happy unless you had money, would you, Olive?" said Nell soberly.

"My dear, do you think me so much less a woman than you? You are happy, married to a poor man, because he is a manly fellow who commands your respect and love. I am not a fortune hunter, my dear. If I loved a man I could do anything for him. The trouble seems to be that I can find no one I can love. I must be hard-hearted. I find too much fault with people. I like a man at first, then on better acquaintance he gets on my nerves."

"The right one will come some day," said Nell, happily. "If one is really married in spirit it's the happiest life for a woman. Everyone admits that."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

For Chickens—Instead of burning bones for chickens, try baking them in a good hot oven, then crushing.

Clothespin Bag — A convenient clothespin bag is made from a square bag just wide enough to have a clothes hanger sewed to the top. A slit is made down the middle to within four inches of each end, so that the pins may be put in and taken out easily. The advantage of this bag is that it can be hooked on the line and slid along as the clothes are hung up.

To Clean Lace—To wash or clean fine linen or cotton lace, make a suds with warm water and some good white soap, add a few drops ammonia or a little powdered borax. Put lace in this, let stand half hour, then spat with the hand until dirt is all removed. Be very careful not to rub, as it destroys the texture. If very much soiled, use two quarts water. When clean, rinse twice, and in the last water put a little clear boiled starch—about a tablespoonful to two quarts water. Then squeeze dry. Cover a round glass bottle with clean white cloth and over this wind the lace, using small pins to keep points or scallops in position, set away and when thoroughly dry unwind, taking out the pins carefully. If these instructions have been carefully followed, the lace will look as good as new.

THE TABLE

A Fish Dish—Take as many suckers or carp as you like. Take off skin, then fins, tail, and remove the large spinal bone. Cut in convenient pieces and pack in jar firmly. Pour over this hot vinegar with a teaspoonful of salt in it to a half gallon of fish. Make a paste of flour and water and spread over top a quarter inch thick. Bake slowly about four hours, according to size of jar. This is for a half gallon. Will keep indefinitely in a cool, dry place. Serve cold with lemon juice or thin slices of lemon. This is as nice as salmon, as the vinegar dissolves all the small bones.

Carrot Pickle—Peel and boil carrots in slightly salted water, drain; when cold, slice, pour over well-spiced vinegar, let stand a few days. The slices may be cut in fancy shapes for a dainty garnish or served with sliced pickled beets; makes an attractive dish.

Leftover Ice Cream—Did you ever have ice cream left and didn't know what to do with it and just hated to throw it away? This is what you can do with it: Take one tablespoon butter, one egg, two tablespoons sugar; beat together, add one cup melted ice cream, one teaspoon baking powder, enough flour to make a nice batter, and you have a nice cake with little trouble.

SUBSTITUTE FOR WHITE BREAD

Graham Cakes—One cup sugar, one good tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoonful salt, one egg, one cup buttermilk or sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one-half cup water, flour to make a soft batter; roll out with the graham flour to one-half inch thick and cut with cookie cutter and bake in moderate oven.

TO REMOVE SMOKE MARKS

Where gas is used for lighting purposes it usually leaves unsightly black marks on ceiling above chandelier. To remove this make a thick paste of starch and water, and with a clean flannel spread it over the marks and allow it to dry. Brush off with a soft brush.

PREVENTS CURTAINS FROM FADING

How to do up lace or net curtains and have them the same color as when new: When the starch has boiled and is still hot or boiling put yellow ocher in and stir it all through until you have the shade you want your curtains. Five cents worth of ocher in the powder will be sufficient for a large number of curtains.

TO PRESERVE FLOWERS

Dip the flowers in melted paraffin, withdrawing them quickly. The liquid should only be hot enough to maintain its fluidity, and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stem and moved about for an instant to get rid of the air bubbles. Fresh flowers, free from moisture make excellent specimens.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — SOUNDS LIKE IT WAS A LITTLE EARLY TO SWIM — BY "HOP"

TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF CAPTAIN REGUR

Tri-County Times, of Delevan, Ill., Tells of Eventful Life of Former Plainfielder.

Captain Leonard Hallett Regur, a well-known veteran of the Civil War, whose death in Iowa was reported in the Daily Press yesterday, formerly lived on the Valley road near the present home of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, and had many friends in this section. A brief illness preceded his demise. Following the funeral service at Keosauqua, Iowa, where Captain Regur died, the burial took place in the family plot at Delavan, Ill. The funeral party was met at the station by a throng of relatives, old-time friends and neighbors and the comrades of Delavan Post, G. A. R..

The Tri-County Times of Delavan, has the following to say about Captain Regus which will be of interest to many Plainfielders:

"Capt. Regus was born in New York city, June 17, 1820, and at his death was aged almost 95 years. His youth and young manhood was lived in that city, where he was in business for a number of years. His ancestors had a part in the early settlement of the colony. The Halletts came to New York in 1632 and bought what is known as Hallett's Cove to this day. The Regurs came from France to New York some time in the eighteenth century. By memory and tradition the family is familiar with the growth and development of New York from the early days.

"During the time of Capt. Regur's residence there, seventy years ago, he was a member of the New York volunteer fire department being foreman of one of the divisions. The doings of the volunteer fire department of New York are matters of history, and he had his share in many thrilling experiences in the early days.

"In middle age he moved to the city of Plainfield, New Jersey. He was a resident there at the time of the Civil War. He assisted in the organization of the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and served throughout the war as captain of Co. I. In 1866 he came West with his family and settled on a farm northeast of Delavan. There he lived for twenty-five years. In 1891 he moved to Iowa where until his death he made his home with his son, William H., near Keosauqua. He was twice married, first to Sarah E. Dusenberry, of New York city, April 28, 1840. She died in 1847. They were parents of two sons, L. A. Regur and Joseph G. Regur, and one daughter, who died in infancy.

"In 1849 he was united in marriage with Margaret Lockwood, of New York city, who died in August, 1886. They were the parents of three sons, Winfield S., William H. and G. W. The funeral here Saturday was attended by Winfield S. Regur, of Summit, N. J.; William H. Regur and sons, William and Jas. L., and G. W. Regur, of Keosauqua; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Giles, of Peoria, Joseph G. Regur, of Keosauqua, also survives his father.

"Capt. Regus is well remembered by Delavan people, especially by his war comrades and his contemporaries of a quarter of a century ago. His life was a stirring and eventful one, in its youth full of the storm and stress of the tumultuous early days of New York, in middle age charged with the serious business of war and in his advanced years blessed by a sweet and placid old age, rich in the affection and esteem of his fellowmen."

HE WHO EXPERIMENTS.

A man can try a new hatter, or another brand of cigar, as an experiment, because even if the experiment be a failure, the loss is small. But in insuring his property, involving either all, or at least a considerable part of his resources, no owner can afford to place his insurance in the hands of any agent or broker.

And it is the OWNERS who realize this fact who insure here.

METHODISTS PLAN GREAT CAMPAIGN

Forward Movement in Charge of Bishop Henderson Now Underway.

WILL BE WORLD WIDE

Object is to Gain 250,000 New Members, 500,000 in Time Legion and 1,000 Young People Engaged in Special Christian Work.

The Methodist Forward Movement under the direction of the General Conference Commission on Evangelism of which Bishop T. S. Henderson is president and Rev. J. O. Randall is the corresponding secretary, is now well underway. The campaign which is to be practically world-wide, will be conducted from May 1, 1915, to May 1, 1916, and will touch every section.

Rev. F. J. Hubach, of this city, the district superintendent for the Elizabeth district, is in charge of the work in this section. The goal for this campaign is 250,000 new Methodist members, 500,000 Methodists in the Time Legion and 1,000 Methodist young people in special Christian service as a life work.

The program includes under the leadership of bishops in their areas, of district superintendents in their districts, pastors and quarterly conferences in local churches to secure 1,000 centers in Methodism to adopt an all-the-year-round evangelistic plan. The epochal days and seasons as outlined are as follows:

Children's Day, June 13; summer gatherings, to present in summer institutes and assemblies the entire program of the movement; Win-my-Chum Week, November 7-14, to join with the Epworth League in a definite endeavor to win hosts of Methodist young people; Go to Prayer Meeting Week, November 15-19; Watch Night, December 31, to review the spiritual achievement of 1915, to pray for a revival.

Go to Church Sunday, January 2, 1916, set apart as Methodist Go-to-Church Sunday for the Methodist world; Week of Prayer, January 3-9; Day of Prayer for Colleges, February 10; Life Work Sunday, February 13, to summon Methodist parents to dedicate their children to Christ.

Special Easter campaign, to have protracted meetings, under ordinary conditions to be not less than thirty days long. Passion Week, all Methodism to observe Palm Sunday; Holy Communion Thursday night; Good Friday, to gather Methodists hosts in every country, city and hamlet at the foot of Christ. Easter Day, to add to Methodism the final section of the 250,000 secured during the previous twelve months.

The committee in charge has issued a complete and detailed program which will be of help to every member of the denomination who intends to take part in this forward movement. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First church; Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of the Monroe Avenue church, and Rev. C. S. Gillespie, of Grace church, with their congregations, will unite with Rev. Mr. Hubach in carrying on the campaign in this city and the borough.

NORTH PLAINFIELD THIRTY YEARS OLD

No Civic Demonstration Will Mark Birthday Anniversary Tomorrow.

SHORT BORO HISTORY

Mayors That Have Preceded Robert Clark, Jr.—Growth of Municipality Marked—Council Meeting Tomorrow Night.

So far as known at the present time the only event of special note to mark the thirtieth anniversary of the adoption of a borough form of government in North Plainfield tomorrow, will be the June meeting of the Council, scheduled for tomorrow night. In fact, few citizens are aware of the fact that the borough will celebrate a birthday and as a result the day will probably be passed in much the same style as any other of the year's 365 twenty-four hour periods are passed in the sister-municipality across the brook. The first meeting of the Borough Council was held in the chambers now occupied by Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., over the police station, but tomorrow night the Council will meet in the Council rooms over the fire headquarters, in which the sessions have been held for a number of years.

John H. VanWinkle, a Democrat, was the first mayor, being chosen at the first election of officers July 17, 1885. Thus, the first Council had a Democrat at its head and the one today is ruled by a Republican majority, Mayor Clarke and five of the six councilmen being G. O. P. constituents, with Frank Mobus as the lone representative of the Democratic faction. In the first Borough Council were David R. Weaver, Fred M. Slater, James K. Arnold, John A. Thickstun, Peter Brown and William H. Ludlow. W. E. Mattison was the first borough clerk, his successor today being Charles M. Dolliver. J. H. Jackson was the borough's first legal representative and Isaac P. Runyon holds that honor today at a salary of $500 per year, somewhat larger than his oldest predecessor enjoyed.

Mayor VanWinkle served from 1885 to 1887 and he was followed by Dr. Justus H. Cooley, now president of the North Plainfield Board of Education, and a Republican, who continued in the office for the following two years. Dr. Cooley afterwards assumed the office of tax assessor, one that he still holds. Charles Place, holding office from 1890 to 1892, followed Mayor Cooley, and he was succeeded by William L. Saunders, who, since his retirement from office in 1894, has been one of the most active citizens in North Plainfield. Next came Henry E. Needham, from 1894 to 1895; Benjamin Hegeman, Jr., from 1895 to 1897; Colonel John F. Wilson, from 1897 to 1899.

Newton B. Smalley assumed office in 1899 and served until 1907, the longest regime of any mayor. Samuel Townsend followed him and served until 1910, when Robert Clark, Jr., the present incumbent, was elected.

When the election was held to set off the borough from North Plainfield 407 votes were cast and the proposition was carried by a ballot of 248 to 219. Although the Council early removed its headquarters from over the police station it did not come directly to the present chambers, having met for sometime over Newton Spencer's store at 76 Somerset street, moving into the present place in 1902. The growth of the municipality has been a marked one and its tax duplicates have grown from $50,000 to an amount over $125,000. The borough now owns the property on which the police and fire buildings are located. George F. Brown, the collector and treasurer, is the oldest official, having been in office for sixteen years.

The officers at the present time are: Borough clerk, Charles M. Dolliver; borough recorder, Fred W. Hand; borough physician, Dr. J. H. Buchanan; overseer of the poor, Fred Becker; members of the Board of Health, James Love, Cormack McDonough and Health Office Oliff; fire chief, Walter Chandler; police chief, George Weiss; street commissioner, William Uhrhahn; borough counsel, Isaac P. Runyon. The police department has eighteen men and the fire department has nineteen.

Chicago, June 3—Negotiations designed to avert a strike of 14,000 street car employes were reported today. Officials of the companies asked representatives of the unions to meet with them in an attempt to bring about a settlement of the wage dispute. Mayor Thompson also laid plans looking to an amicable adjustment. The men had voted to strike to enforce the demands for a wage increase.

NEW BIG ENGINE HELD AT DUNELLEN

130 Mile An Hour Locomotive Compelled to Halt on Its Maiden Trip.

Scores of Dunellen citizens and many others from this city visited the Dunellen roundhouse this morning to get a close view of a new type of locomotive which was compelled to put in at the railroad yards there as a result of overheating. The mammoth engine is one of a number placed in the passenger service by the P. and R. Company and was making its first run from Philadelphia to Jersey City. Owing to its newness, several of the vital bearings ate up lubricants faster than they could be fed, causing trouble. A drill engine was pressed into commission and took the train into Jersey City with only a slight delay.

The new locomotive, which was in charge of Engineer William J. Meade, has a total weight of 115 tons and can generate a speed of 130 miles an hour. It hit close to 100 miles several times on the stretch between Trenton and Bound Brook. The driving wheels of which there are two pair, stand seven feet high and are placed well forward, so far, in fact, that the driving rods can break with out crashing through the cab. The latter is a feature not possessed by old style engines and the danger of a sudden death dealing blow to the engineer and a possible bad wreck is removed. The fire box is unusually large, measuring nine by twelve feet.

The locomotive is numbered 110 and is to be followed on this division by several others of a similar design. They are being built in the P. and R. shops at Reading.

Following the business meeting the gathering enjoyed a social hour with refreshments and took the visiting guests on a sight-seeing trip around the historical location. The next meeting of the chapter will probably be held on October 5, no meetings being held during the summer months.

Society Plans Series of Affairs to Raise Money for College Course.

The first of the series of social affairs which St. Mary's Holy Name Society will conduct in order to raise funds to defray the cost of a scholarship at St. Peter's College, Jersey City, for any boy in St. Mary's parish, will be held in St. Mary's School Hall Thursday night, June 10. It will be in the form of a prize euchre and a number of very handsome awards have already been donated for the occasion. Timothy J. Meaney is chairman of the committee of arrangements and is working hard to make the affair one of the most successful of the season. The program includes dancing at the conclusion of play and there will also be informal entertainment features.

The scholarship prize will be given to some boy of St. Mary's parish after a competitive examination, in which any boy of the parish may participate who has passed the grammar school course. It is the intention of the society to not only pay the tuition of the successful candidate, but also pay his carfare to and from Jersey City and to provide the necessary books.

VILLAGES ARE TAKEN

Germans Launch Terrific Attack in the Glare of Star Bombs—Przemysl Bombarded With Guns up to 16-inch Calibre.

Paris, June 3.—The great battle between the French and Germans north of Arras has grown into the mightiest conflicts of the war, so far as sustained intensity is concerned. An official communique issued by the French War Office today states that violent infantry actions raged throughout last night around Notre Dame De Lorette and Neuville St. Vaast.

The Germans launched terrific counter attacks against the French beneath the glare of star bombs, which lighted the sky with a crimson flame. Despite the fury of the German assaults the French lines held. In intervals of the infantry attacks the artillery sprayed the trenches with bursting shrapnel.

In the area of hostilities around the labyrinth, the complicated defenses of the Germans southeast of Neuville St. Vaast the French have increased the number of prisoners to 800.

An artillry duel developed all along the line from Neuve Chappelle, where British guns took part, down to Arras.

Petrograd, June 3.—The following statement was issued today:

"In the region of Shavli we successfully repulsed several attacks of the enemy and captured a redoubt east of Travliany. In Galicia on the front between the Vistula and Przemysl stubborn fighting developed. We gained a somewhat important success on the lower San, taking several villages.

"Przemysl has been bombarded with guns ranging up to 16-inch calibre. The enemy delivered principal attacks against the northern front. Although repulsed in these attacks the enemy took several of our guns. We bombarded the enemy until the men were up to the very muzzles of our cannon and then having expended all our artillery ammunition we had to give up the pieces."

ENJOYED AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO WHITE FERRY, PA.

Contractor and Mrs. C. D. Nonemaker, of Front street, motored to White's Ferry, Pa., Saturday and remained there over the week-end and holiday as the guest of Harry Nonemaker, who is superintending the construction of a large Catholic Industrial School.

Harry Nonemaker formerly resided here and he will be remembered by many as "Nony," who by his clever fielding, speed on the bases and heavy batting, saved and won many a game for Dunellen on the baseball diamond. In addition "Nony" was one of the best all-around players that ever wore a Dunellen uniform and it was a sad day in the annals of Dunellen baseball history when on one Fourth of July several years ago he broke a finger while substituting behind the bat. The finger received poor surgical attention and when the splints were removed it was found to be in such condition that it could not be bent. That ended his baseball career and shortly afterward he married and moved away from the borough.

SLOW WORK ON SEWERS.

Two extremes in sewer work have been encountered this week. On Prospect avenue the sewer digger has been making very slow time owing to the presence of rock at the depth of five feet. This rock is being dynamited in order to get the required cut, which averages between 7 and 8 feet. The other extreme is quick sand. It is being encountered by hand diggers in the Equator tract. As far as progress is concerned this has been a very unsatisfactory week thus far for the sewer contractor.

There will be about fifteen graduates at School No. 1 this year when that institution closes for the summer on June 24, and the members of the class are already making active preparations for the exercises, which will probably be held n the Baptist church as the school auditorium will not be available. It will be the first time in seven years they have been held outside the school.

SWIM OR LOSE DIPLOMA.

Princeton, June 3—Splashing around in the gymnasium tank at Princeton University a group of seniors are making a last effort to learn to swim. Their diplomas are at stake, and the impending calamity of forfeiting their sheepskins has given them an impetus to try to remove the lead from their heels. Swimming is a hard task for some men who have always dreaded the water. While their classmates cheer them on, they are floundering about, buoyed up by hope more than knowledge of the use of their arms and legs. The regulation, no swim no diploma, will be strictly enforced this year, the test being to swim 200 yards and show the mastery of the back stroke and one other recognized stroke.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Count Leo Tolstoi wrote many famous books, but of them all his favorite was Anna Karenina, which will be the feature photo-play offering at Proctor's Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. He frequently declared that he had put the work of ten years into this wonderful novel, which enjoys a world wide fame. As the book is picturized for William Fox, president of the Fox Film Corporation, it forms an even more powerful arraignment of modern society than did the original work. With Betty Nansen, the famed tragedienne, in the title role, and the standard of excellence of the William Fox productions even surpassed, it actually outdoes anything yet seen upon the screen.

Tolstoi will be ever remembered as the implacable enemy of hypocrisy and sham. He sternly set his face against the opinion of the world, and wrote with a pen dipped in acid, of conditions as he knew they existed. Criticism raged about him, but it never ruffled him for a moment. He still held inflexibly to his creed that a great writer must pen the truth unflinchingly, regardless of the consequences. In a sense, Tolstoi was a martyr to his beliefs, for his books were ordered burned by the Czar of Russia, and he, himself was for a time in danger of Siberia.

Beside "Anna Karenina," Proctor's program tomorrow will offer the current episode of "The Exploits of Elaine," and several two reel comedies and dramas of more than passing excellence. The Proctor symphony orchestra of eight pieces continues to be highly popular and has come to be one of the best things the city has in the amusement line. The musical programs are changed at every performance.

The new track is acknowledged to be one of the finest courses in America. The grandstand seats 35,000, and is at the western end of the Exposition grounds. The first meet closes on June 19, and the fall meet is scheduled from October 30 to November 13.

SALARIES FIXED BY BORO COUNCIL

Pay of Overseer of Poor, Assessor and Recorder is Passed Upon.

EFFECTIVE ON JULY 1

Decide to Install a Police Alarm System With Its Control Centered Near Martine and North Avenues Discuss Drainage Question.

Three ordinances fixing the salary of the overseer of the poor, the assessor and recorder at $25, $100 and $25, respectively, were adopted by the Fanwood Borough Council at the June meeting held last night. They become effective in each case on July 1, and the one relating to the assessor supercedes the one of 1912. A junk dealers' ordinance covering the operations of peddlers, etc., was introduced and passed to second reading. It will be adopted at the next meeting and become effective on September 1.

Following lengthy discussions and a thorough investigation as to its probable usefulness, the Council instructed the proper committee to enter into negotiations with the authorities regarding the installation of a police alarm system, with its control centered as near as possible to the corner of Martine and North avenues. It is intended to extend the usefulness of the police by notifying them of any danger.

The telephone "central" will have the power to light a green bulb set atop a telephone box upon being asked to do so by any resident needing the services of the police. The light will serve to attract the attention of the officer and "central" will tell him where he is wanted. The approximate cost will be $70 annually and after a one-year trial it is hoped that by the installation of one or more similar devices at other points in the borough to eliminate the necessity of enlarging the police force.

A communication was received from the committee appointed by the Union County Board of Freeholders to investigate drainage conditions in the western end of Fanwood, stating that it was beyond the power of the Board to remedy the matter and nothing could be done unless those property owners effected sought redress in a civil suit against those responsible for prevailing conditions. The letter will be sent to the property owners, and the Common Council of Plainfield will be asked through a communication from the Borough Council if matters cannot be helped by the co-operation of the two bodies in approaching the responsible parties living in Plainfield. Watson road will be macadamized by the street committee during the coming month, and in keeping with a recently adopted ordinance, blanks have been printed, which will have to be filled out and presented to the committee before any digging is done on a public highway. It was decided to install running water in the Borough Hall, the proper committee taking charge of the matter.

With a view of determining the available money on hand to cover expenses until October, the collector presented the following data: Cash on hand, $2,368.23; delinquent taxes, $422.52; liquor license, $248.75. Bills amounting to $340.55 were audited and ordered paid.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"The Eternal City" set a high standard but "The Eagle's Nest," which opened a two-day engagement at the U. S. Astor Theatre, yesterday afternoon, and "Ghosts," to be shown Friday, will prove just as thrilling to lovers of exciting photo-play. "The Eagle's Nest" is the second release of the Lubin Company under the recently organized combination of the V. L. S. E., the four oldest and largest manufacturers of motion pictures. It possesses an array of thrilling episodes and powerful climaxes which grip the interest of the spectator throughout.

"Ghosts" is another gripping photo-play with numerous scenes of supreme excitement. Nothing approaching it in psychological, dramatic effect has ever been produced in motion pictures. The reputation built by his appealing work in "The Birth of a Nation" will be enlarged by the superior performance Henry Walthall gives in "Ghosts," which is an adaptation of Ibsen's unforgettable drama.

Saturday, "The Lonesome Heart," will be the dramatic feature at the Astor Theatre. Each day the usual accompaniment of high-grade dramas and comedies will be shown in support of the feature films.

THE PRICE OF ICE.

Former Mayor Moy's letter to the Press, calling the attention of local ice dealers to the "Seven Sisters" law forbidding combinations to fix prices has not as yet been answered by any of the dealers, and the price of both the natural and manufactured product remains the same from everyone handling the commodity in the city. It was only a day or two ago that announcement was made that the wholesale price had also been increased in Newark and Jersey City from $2 to $3 a ton, "because of the increase in freight rates," and it is significant that all wholesalers have made the same increase to the retailers in those municipalities.

When we were all shivering in the zero temperature last December, the news reports from Watchung, Pocono, Sussex county and Hudson river districts told about the unprecedented harvest of ice for so early in the season, and now we are told that "because of the mild weather that prevailed last winter much less natural ice was formed, and many of the houses were not filled."

The Trenton Times recalls the stories that were told a few years ago about the artificial ice companies in Connecticut buying up control of all the lakes and ponds in order to destroy competition. It is not so long ago that here in Plainfield competition in the ice business resulted in the people getting better prices, but that competition was conveniently removed, and since then there has been a remarkable similarity in rates. These facts make skepticism as to the cause of the rise in price justifiable. The truth of the matter probably is, as the Times suggests, that the hot weather is about due, the dealers need the money and intend to get it, possibly to offset the loss on coal during the mild winter.

It seems to be always the case that when either ice or coal is badly needed the price goes up through one excuse or another. Coal has been lower for a couple of months than it will be until April next year, and ice was cheap when there was little demand for it.

Suppose the newspapers, when the times are hard as is the case just now, should raise the price to the consumer, in order to make up some of the loss because of the dropping off in advertising. What a howl there would be! And yet they are fully as much justified in asking an increase now as are the ice men in asking for more money for that article. There are thousands of business men throughout the country who are not making money now, and yet they realize that others are in the same fix, and are consequently taking less profit, instead of bleeding the public who patronize them year in and year out.

Mayor Calkins, in talking to a prominent anti-suffragist the other day, asked when they were going to seek permission to hold street meetings, as has been done by those who favor the vote. He was told that they would not adopt that method of appealing for support. A few years ago the general public looked upon a woman who used this method of appeal as a crank or a freak, and standing in automobiles or on soap boxes to harangue a crowd was generally believed to be the prerogative of a few men politicians and religious cranks. This has all been done away with by the daring and sturdy courage of the suffragists, and the woman who today posts herself on a street corner and addresses a crowd receives respectful attention. The zeal for the cause displayed by the women has overcome what embarrassment there might have been a few years ago, and after listening to some of the fair orators a lot of people have wondered why the method was not adopted sooner.

Score another one for Billy Sunday: Sheriff Radcliffe, of Passaic county, says that the jail population there has steadily decreased since the evangelist began work in the city, and that crime has dropped off. Pretty good sign that he was needed in the silk city.

Herman Ridder seems to be having a busy time explaining that he is not responsible for a manufacturing plant in Brooklyn in which he is heavily interested, in so far as the manufacture of shrapnel for the Allies is concerned.

After hearing Adjutant W. Craig Smith describe the things he had to do on Memorial Day, we are inclined to believe that it was a holiday for everybody but the veterans.

Perhaps the conviction of nine deputies in the Roosevelt shooting case will result in a few less thugs seeking jobs as "private detectives" in strike cases.

MRS. ELIZABETH CUTTRISS LAID TO REST IN EVERGREEN

DIAMOND HILL SCHOOL AGAIN ORDERED CLOSED

Closed for a year, then reopened for two years under special agreement with the State Department of Education, the Diamond Hill School at New Providence was ordered closed again last night by the New Providence Township Board of Education. This time the school is closed for one year. The action was taken on the request of Dr. A. L. Johnson, Union county superintendent of schools.

The largest enrollment in the building at any time this year was twenty, and this has since been reduced to sixteen. Of the sixteen pupils, eight are from New Providence township.

Citizens were divided on the proposition to close the school for a year.

The Board passed a resolution inviting the State normal schools to send practice teachers to the Columbia School, Berkeley Heights, in which to apply the principles of teaching they learn in the normal schools.

The building committee was authorized to fireproof the entrance from the basement of the Columbia School and the main hall.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR RIFLE SCHOOL

Camp of Intruction to Be Held at Sea Girt June 28-30.

Trenton, June 3—Orders have been issued by Acting Governor Edge, as acting commander-in-chief of the National Guard, for the rifle camp of instruction and school of musketry on the State camp grounds at Sea Girt. The school to improve the accuracy of the shooting of the guardsmen will be held from June 28 to 30, inclusive. It will be conducted under the authorization of the Secretary of War, and will be under the direction of General Burd W. Spencer, of Passaic, inspector-general of rifle practice.

The instruction will be open to all members of the National Guard of the State who desire to participate, and it is expected that several hundred will avail themselves of the opportunity to improve this branch of their soldiery. As a part of the school, regular military problems will be worked out, requiring study and practice on the part of the officers in order to execute them properly. Movements of attack and defense will be included, and all will bring into action the shooting qualities of the guardsmen. In this way they will receive much practical training.

Although there will be no regular encampment at Sea Girt this summer, the target practice on the rifle range will be continued as in former summers. Each company in the State Guard will be given a day on the range. This rifle practice will continue from July 9 to September 8.

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED BY THE CENSUS ENUMERATORS

Three days' canvassing by the corps of census enumerators in this city has produced encouraging results and from present indications it is anticipated that the work will be concluded before the middle of the month. The completed lists are required by the State on or before July 1. As the individual sheets of one hundred names each are completed by the enumerators they are turned over to Supervisor P. J. Reville and he is personally taking charge of the tabulation part of the work.

Several unlooked for difficulties have been encountered by some of the men and in some cases stringent measures have had to be resorted to in order to compel certain classes of people to give up the necessary information. Those persons who are not familiar with State laws and have failed to read the newspapers have proven themselves the most trying to the enumerators. Some believe the census-takers are getting the names of men eligible to be drafted by the United States in case of war, others think that a new kind of tax is going to be levied, while still women harbor the opinion that they are going to lose their positions through age limit, creed or nationality.

Twenty-three questions are required of each person and those enumerators tabulating names among the foreign element are provided with interpreters. In some instances it has been necessary to threaten the people with arrest in order to get the necessary information.

SHIFT CONSUL-GENERAL.

Atlanta, Ga., June 3—Dr. Eric Zoepffel-Quellenstein, German consul-general of the Southern States, has been transferred to the Northwest as consul-general of that section of the United States, with headquarters at Seattle. The consul-general attaches no special significance to the shift. He has been here for fifteen years.

ELECTROCUTE VIRIGINIA NEGRO.

Richmond, Va., June 3.—Tom Coles, a negro, sentenced to death for an attack on a white girl, will be electrocuted here tomorrow. He was shot three times by the posse which captured him at Buffalo Springs. He reached here May 1 under heavy military guard to prevent any attempt at lynching.

NEW MARKET FAMILY IS MADE HOMELESS BY FIRE

Thomas Groves and family, of New Market, who had rented a dwelling just outside of Keansburg, were made homeless yesterday, through a fire that destroyed the house. The family were approaching the place yesterday with their household goods when they were startled to see flames burst through the roof. The fire had gained such headway that all efforts to save the property proved futile and the structure was reduced to ashes in a short time.

The family, fortunately, was able to secure another house temporarily until other arrangements can be made. It is the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin.

ROYAL COUNCIL, O. U. A. M., HAS A BEEFSTEAK DINNER

Members of Royal Council, No. 77 O. U. A. M., together with guests from Millstone and New Brunswick enjoyed a beefsteak dinner in the council rooms on Park avenue, last night. The gathering was in honor of a visitation from State Councilor DeHart, of Millstone. The latter made an excellent speech during the dinner and other addresses were made by members of the council and visiting delegations. The affair was arranged by the Good and Welfare committee, of which Guy Thomas is chairman, while Erwin Y. Neighbour prepared and served the juicy steaks. The menu was first class in every respect and the efficient caterer was warmly complimented.

Previous to the dinner, the council held a business session during which officers to be elected at the next meeting were nominated. Councilor Alfred Thorn was in the chair throughout the evening.

ROPE WHICH ENDED LIFE CARRIED FOR THREE YEARS

It became known that for three years Ralph Davenport carried around in a pocket of his clothing the rope that was around his neck when he was found dead Monday night, hanging from a tree in the woods belonging to Tunis Melick at Pluckemin. Davenport, who was 74 years old, and had been lame for a number of years, is believed to have committed suicide because he feared he would be a burden to his relatives. His daughter-in-law, Mrs George Davenport, with whom he lived, said he had often expressed that fear in fits of melancholy. When Davenport left home last Friday, it was believed that he had gone to Dunellen, where his wife was caring for a sick friend. The body was found by laborers.

The funeral was held yesterday from the late home, Rev. Charles E Hoyt, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial was in the Pluckemin Presbyterian cemetery.

Mr. Davenport was a native of New York, but his family removed to Pluckemin when he was two years old. His father was Ralph Davenport, who was an assemblyman for a number of years. The victim served as township committeeman. Two sons survive, beside his wife. The former are George Davenport, with whom he lived, and Ira Davenport, who is believed to be in Phillipsburg.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

DR. FINKLE GUILTY ACCORDING TO JURY

Five Hours Deliberation Results in Conviction of Local Dentist.

After a deliberation of five hours the jury in the case of the State against Dr. Israel Finkle, a local dentist, returned a verdict of guilty last night. He was convicted on an indictment of a serious nature and will probably be sentenced tomorrow by Judge James C. Connolly. Union County Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein carried the State's case and William Newcorn, of this city, represented Finkle.

Despite the fact that Finkle and his wife made a general denial of the allegations lodged against him by Mary Grant, of the British West Indies, the testimony offered by Sergeant Maurice Higgins, who made the arrest and investigation, and the complaining witness, was of a convincing nature and apparently carried much weight with the jury.

Finkle's apprehension followed an occurrence in his East Front street office in the latter part of April when the mulatto woman visited him to have a tooth extracted. After the tooth was out, she said, Dr. Finkle forced her back into the chair, calling to her that she would spatter blood on her white dress. He then, according to her testimony, attempted to assault her, tearing her dress. She testified that she rushed from the office and encountered a patrolman.

Dr. Finkle, testifying in his own behalf, denied any such occurrence except Mrs. Grant coming to his office. His wife also testified that she was in the next room vulcanizng a plate and would have heard a rumpus if anything had happened such as charged.

REHEARSING FOR ANNUAL WATCHUNG INDIAN LEGEND

As a forerunner of the annual two-day observance to be held in Watchung June 11 and 12, an army of characters has started rehearsng William de LaR. Anderson's dramatization in pantomime of the Indian Legend, which will be presented in nature's amphitheatre on the mountainside. With Mr. Anderson playing the principal role, that of "One Feather," the only change in the cast of characters that has so successfully staged the affair on prevous occasions, will be the substitution of Clarence Schmidt for E. T. Canning as "Blue Wolf," the sub chief. Arrangements have again been made for the elaborate scenic and lighting effects and a dance will follow the performances each night in the Watchung firehouse.

The open-air production is a novel one from curtain to curtain, the latter effect being produced by the turning on and off of the lights.

CASE POSTPONED.

As a result of application made by the prosecution to have the case of the State against Arthur Moore, the eighteen-year-old local taxicab chauffeur, for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, postponed, it was adjourned for one week from today, when called in the Borough Hall at Dunellen, this morning. The reason given was the fact that several important witnesses had to appear in another case at Elizabeth today.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

LEACH CROSS GETS VERDICT IN BOUT WITH AD WOLGAST

Leach Cross, the clever New York lightweight, scored a win on points over Ad Wolgast, the former titleholder, in the main ten-round setto at the St. Nicholas A. C., New York, last night. It was one of the liveliest battles staged in Gotham for some time. Cross played a sort of "watchful and waiting" policy, permittng the former lightweight champion to tire himself out during the early rounds, while he raved himself for the end.

Cross' strategy served him well, for, when the last four rounds came around, Wolgast, weary because of his strenuous efforts to knock the clever New York dentist out, was unable to cope with Leach, who appeared to have lots of reserve strength.

LOCAL STARS ARE PRIMED FOR BIG N. Y. A. C. MEETING

Jack Fritts and Ralph Runyon are putting on the finishing training touches for the New York A. C. games, which are scheduled to be held in New York city, Saturday afternoon. The local athletes will compete under the colors of the Pastime A. C., and Runyon will take part in two events, the pole vault and running broad jump. Fritts is practicing hard with the javelin and expects to make a good showing in this event.

The N. Y. A. C. games draw one of the best fields of athletes of any of the meets and the competition will undoubtedly be close. Runyon has cleared the bar at 11 feet, 9 inches, and will have to show his best among New York's best athletes.

ROD AND REEL

Here is a tip for those who like to go offshore trolling for bonito: There seems to be great numbers of them feeding off Belmar, and no doubt they can be located off Seabright with menhaden or by jiggling. The pound nets are trapping quite a few of them.

Weakfish weighing four pounds were caught from the fishing piers along the Jersey shore Monday night. One fisherman caught three while fishing for whiting, and he didn't know what he had until someone told him.

A 200-pound sturgeon was caught in a pound net off Morgan Station last week. It was the largest of its kind ever taken in those waters. One steak an inch thick would make a meal for a healthy family of ten, and the bones and skin would make enough fertilizer to cover a two-acre lot.

The weakfish have decided to take bait in Barnegat Bay. They must be around in large numbers, as the boat owners are getting ready for parties.

Most of the surf anglers are out along the shores these days. Large numbers have tried from Belmar to Deal, but have had poor luck. A small striped bass was taken off Asbury Park by a West Orange man.

Blackfish and flounders, and occasionally ling and whiting, are being caught from the Rockaway pier. One fisherman was out and caught over six blackfish and half a dozen sea flounders. He says all of the fishermen are making good catches.

Plenty of eels are being taken in the sound off Sewaren. One angler landed twenty-seven that weighed ten and a half pounds.

BASEBALL CHALLENGE.

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE A BASEBALL LEAGUE

Six Teams Will Probably Form Circuit to Fight for City Championship.

Local baseball fans who have been aching for a league in which there will be some good competition, will undoubtedly be glad to know that there is such an organization in the process of formation and a meeting to make definite plans will be held in the offices of the Daily Press on Saturday night. At present there are six teams ready to enter a league for the championship of the city and at the meeting Saturday night officers will be elected, rules adopted and a schedule drawn.

The teams that have already signified their intention of joining and who will have representatives present at the meeting, are Netherwood A. C., T. A. B. S., Hope Chapel, Monroe A. C., First Baptist and Saurer. These teams are about the only organized teams of this city outside of the Park Avenue Baptist, Highlanders and Moose.

All of the teams have home fields, which would make three good games for Plainfield fans to count on every week.

RANDOLPH A MAINSTAY IN COUNTY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Cliff Randolph, of the Perth Amboy Baseball Club, will be one of three pitchers to work in the three-cornered baseball league for the championship of Perth Amboy, which will be started next Sunday. Randolph will probably work in the opening game against the Saints.

He is the first choice of the pitching squad, while Applegate and Neider will also twirl. The league promises to be a success and will run throughout the summer, games being played every Sunday with the exception of three. On these days the Pacers have games scheduled with the Chicago "Feds," Cincinnati Nationals and the Ironsides of Newark.

WORLD PITCHING MARK FOR URBAN FABER

A world pitching record was claimed recently for Urban Faber of the Chicago Americans as a result of his performance in defeating the Washington club 4 to 1 in Chicago. According to baseball experts, Faber pitched only sixty-seven balls during the nine innings, five less than the record established by Christy Mathewson of the New York Nationals several years ago. Frank A. Saffell, who operates an electric scoreboard in Washington, telegraphed that the board recorded all strikes and balls and that his record showing that Faber pitched fifty strikes and seventeen balls was correct. In the record Saffell counted as strikes any ball that was hit by the batter.

In the third and fifth innings Faber retired six men on six pitched balls, each batter hitting the first ball for an out.

INTEREST RIFE IN LEAGUE FOR TENNIS AGGREGATIONS

Representatives of the tennis clubs of Flemington, Lambertville, Doylestown, Frenchtown and the Middlebrook Country Club, of Bound Brook, met at Lambertville Monday and organized a tri-county tennis league. The officers elected were Charles D. McCracken, of Lambertville, president, and W. Chester Wells, Jr., of the Middlebrook Country Club, secretary.

The schedule will open Saturday, June 28, with Lambertville playing at Flemington and Bound Brook at Doylestown. The organization winning the largest number of matches will be awarded a handsome trophy at the completion of the season. The first and second player winning the largest number of his own matches in the singles will receive a cup. The players receiving the first and second honors in the doubles will also be presented with cups. Five players constitute a team and the matches will consist of three singles and two doubles.

The Flemington team will also play games with tennis clubs not members of the league, during the summer, and would be glad to communicate with managers.

"WILL" GLENNEY TO PITCH.

The final game of the season for the Leal School baseball team will be played on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Voorhees and Will T. Glenney will be the opposing slabmen.

Hans Lobert and His Everlasting Smile Keep Up Hopes of Giants

IN this picture Hans Lobert, former Phillie and now third sacker of the New York Giants, is shown wearing a smile. The picture is an excellent likeness, but it is not an exceptional one. Hans is always smiling. His cheery disposition, coupled with the fact that he always plays the game for all it is worth, has endeared him to the hearts of the fans and fannies of New York, and they smile with him. He tried for years to get with McGraw, and now that he has achieved his ambition he is as happy as a schoolboy; also he is playing better ball than he ever did in his career; hence his "everlasting" smile.

AN ARMLESS GOLFER.

Buffalo Boy Also Skates, Plays Good Billiards and Writes.

In all probability the unique competitor in sports is Thomas McAuliffe, a Buffalo youth, who, despite the misfortune of being armless, is nevertheless regarded as a golfer of no mean ability. While the armless youth, who is only twenty-two years of age, has an enviable reputation as an exponent of the links game, at which he specializes, he is quite adept at handling the cue in his peculiar way and plays an admirable game of pool or billiards.

In addition to these accomplishments McAuliffe is also a speed skater of conceded ability in Buffalo, notwithstanding the fact that he is deprived of the added momentum the average skater derives from the rhythmic swinging of his arms in perfect harmony with alternate positions on the skates.

McAuliffe tells of his ambition to go through college and how, despite his handicap, he hopes to accomplish this valuable education by hard work.

McAuliffe is probably the only armless golfer in the world. He has labored hard to overcome the difficulties resultant to his mishap and acquired proficiency in golf, and his efforts in this direction at last appear to have been rewarded.

He acquired the knack of writing with a pencil when the pencil, which he held in his mouth, slipped and was caught between his cheek and shoulder. He immediately tried to write with the pencil in that position, but during the first few weeks of his attempts his efforts could not be deciphered or read. He continued to practice diligently, however, and finally perfected his intricate way of writing, until now he is able to write rapidly and so plainly that it can be read by anybody.

His method of playing golf is similar to that employed in writing. He holds the club between his cheek and shoulder, and with the stick in this position has gone around the links of the Buffalo Country club in 108 strokes, a truly remarkable feat, considering the fact that eighteen is bogey there. The Buffalo club's course is one of the best bunkered and trapped in the country.

With the combined swing and jerk of the body and shoulder he is able to give the ball an effective stroke.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

TO PLAY IN JAPAN.

Chicago University Ball Team to Take Five Month Trip to Orient.

The University of Chicago baseball club will make a five months' trip to Japan this summer, playing games with the Japanese universities, it was announced recently.

The players will leave Chicago early in August and will play a number of games en route to the coast.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Preparations are being made for a musicale to be given Saturday evening, June 12, by the entire school. The Glee Club will also render a few selections led by its instructor, Miss Lottie A. Engstrand. The main feature will be a comic opera, "Penelope," or "The Milkman's Bride," given by five students under the direction of Charles L. Lewis.

The pictures which were taken of the student body last week are now on sale by William Peacock and William Wheelan. The picture measures five feet in length and contains every person in the school.

The seniors began their final examinations this morning. After they have finished the last one on next Tuesday, they are expected to return to school only on Wednesday. The following days will be spent in preparation for the class day and commencement exercises.

The senior class of Westfield High School has sent an invitation to the senior class of this school to attend a dance to be given in Westfield Friday evening, June 11.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The final rehearsal for the pageant to be presented tomorrow night at the association will be held this evening, and all participants are urged to be present. A nominal fee is charged for admission. Everyone is invited to come and see the presentation.

The regular baseball practice will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Belmont avenue field. More girls are urged to come out.

Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

72 YEARS OLD; BUT A STELLAR ATHLETE

Recorder David C. Campbell, of Dunellen, Not Yet Ready to Be Shelved.

Although he has celebrated the seventy-second anniversary of his natal day, Recorder David C. Campbell, of Dunellen, is beyond doubt one of that municipality's finest specimens of physical perfectness and despite his age steadfastly refuses to relinquish his claim to being Dunellen's all-around athletic champion, having won that title in 1864. He was recognized a half century ago as one of Central New Jersey's best all-aorund performers and can still shine with the best of them on field and track.

"I walk eight miles every day in my life and intend to take part of my daily exercise right now by hiking it back to Dunellen," said the recorder to a Daily Pres reporter in the office of this newspaper, this morning.

"Don't you think it's too near dinner time to hazard missing a meal by walking three miles to your home?" suggested a listener who spied the hands of the clock flirting with the twelve mark and located an empty feeling in the mid-section of his anatomy.

"Don't worry about that, youngster," retorted Campbell, "I can make it in less than an our and then I'll be ready to eat the house out."

Campbell, who taught for thirty-five years in the schools in the rural districts around Jersey, is a favorite with the kiddies and counts among his hundreds of acquaintances many of the younger set and others who have gron up under his tuition.

His claim to athletic supremacy brought forth a murmur of surprise from his audience and one of the more venturesome asked him if he thought he could engage in a high jumping and shot putting competition.

"Tell you wha: I'll do, young fellow," he answered. "I'll just take you back to Dunellen with me and put it all over you in an all-around contest. I can jump the back fence with a pair of weights tied to my feet. I can throw a boulder as far as the best of you youngsters, and I'll wear you out in a road running contest. If you don't believe it come on along with me and I'll show you."

No one accepted his challenge.

"Yes, I smoke once in a while. You might as well smoke here as hereafter. But I don't miss my smoke like I miss my exercise. Who do I think will win the National League pennant? Well, I'll tell you, they don't play baseball like they did when I was a boy, and although I take an interest in Matty's doings on the mound and Ty Cobb's bat-splitting efforts, I have no particular favorite. From Dunellen they all look alike to me."

Besides indulging in his daily program of recreation Recorder Campbell pastimes two or three times each week with a stray drunk or vagrant who has fallen victim to the activity of Dunellen's coppers. The recorder is a staunch advocate of a "square deal."

Some of Campbell's morning jaunts take him into the nearby woods and he happens to be acquainted with about every snake that pokes his head out of cover during the spring months. This morning he was loaded down with snake yarns and related a number of thrilling escapes he has had from being bitten by copperheads, rattlers and other varieties.

He is at present spending some of his idle moments in compiling a history of bookkeeping to be sketched on stereopticon slides. It is Mr Campbell's belief that the future will see the introduction of picture instruction in all schools and he intends to contribute his part toward bringing this innovation about.

DISTURBANCES IN TOKIO.

London, June 3—Advices received here today from Tokio reported disturbances there as a result of an anti-government mass meeting. A resolution introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday by the opposition expressing lack of confidence in the present administration was rejected today by a vote of 133 to 232.

REHEARSING PLAYLETS.

The members of the casts of the two sketches, "Wanted, A Male Cook" and "Aunt Sally Goes to California," which are to be presented by the Young People's Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church, in Debele Hall, Thursday, June 17, are holding frequent rehearsals. Both playlets are full of comedy.

EXCAVATION COMPLETED.

The excavation of the cellar of the new postoffice was completed yesterday afternoon and the work of laying the foundation walls will be started the first of the week. The contractor, Charles Gilpin, of Philadelphia has until August 1, 1916, to complete the bulding.

RECOVERED FEES.

In the Plainfield District Court yesterday morning Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., awarded a judgment of $75 to Victor DeAloia, a Newark lawyer, who was suing Ralph Dellibro, a local Italian, for services.

WILL INSIST LUSITANIA WAS AN UNARMED BOAT

Washington, June 3—Regardless of the number of guns carried by the Lusitania, the American Government will insist that the ship was an unarmed vessel. This was made plain today by a high official of the State Department who, with others, is investigating the charges made in affidavits that the Lusitania was an armed vessel of the British navy. It is inconceivable that a passenger carrying ship should be regarded as a war vessel. This is the attitude taken by the State Department. From an unofficial but reliable source, it was learned that the persons making the affidavits charging that the Cunarder was offensively armed are employed by the German consulate in New York, which fact, if officially confirmed, will weaken the charge.

It is probable that the answer to Germany's note will be delayed for a few days by reason of the investigation.

SORCERERS IN PAPUA.

Easy to Start In the Business There and Terrify the Natives.

It is no very hard matter to set up as a sorcerer in Papua. One says, "I am a sorcerer," and the thing is accomplished. One may be a greater sorcerer or a lesser sorcerer, to be sure, but one is a sorcerer of some degree of evil merit at least from the hour that one says, "I am a sorcerer." Thereafter the measure of success a practitioner may win depends upon his skill in advertising and the ingenuity of his magical methods. What is new and mysterious is everywhere mightily impressive, and in Papua, as elsewhere, what a man noisily reiterates about himself comes eventually to be accepted as at least an approach to the truth concerning him.

A certain Tai-imi, for example, having settled in a village of the Gira river, said, "I am a sorcerer," and he was forthwith a sorcerer. He said, "I have an invisible snake with which to work my will," and his fame began. They said, "Where is the snake?" And he replied: "Have I not said that the snake is invisible? How can I show you an invisible snake?" And his fame grew. And he added, "Beware of me, if you please, for I am very easily offended, and my invisible snakes obey me."

Finding now that he was inspiring terror indeed, Tai-imi created an establishment to forward his consequence. Three menials were taken in to wait upon his wants at home, and two qualified assistants were engaged to attend his dignity abroad. To the qualified assistants, in enhancement of his own importance, Tai-imi gave invisible snakes. "They too are sorcerers," said he, "and have invisible snakes," and added, with the large, easy air of every great professional: "But the invisible snakes of my assistants, of course, are small and rather stupid snakes. My snake is the snake to beware of."

Ingenious Tai-imi might have lived long in plenty had he not grown so intolerably extortionate in the matter of pigs that the administration got wind of his ways and confounded his success.

It was shown upon trial that Tai-imi had founded his enormously lucrative practice upon nothing better than a bald assertion.

"I am a sorcerer," said he, "with an invisible snake."—Norman Duncan in Harper's Magazine.

Small Caliber Martinets.

All public institutions, I here assert, should have as their employees only people who are courteous, pleasant and kind. One of the greatest hardships of poverty is to be obliged to face the autocratic martinets who seem to guard the doorways of all such organizations. There is something detestable and offensive in the frozen, impatient and often insulting manner of the women and men who occupy little positions of authority like this, and before whom poor working girls—and I suppose men—must always go.—From "Me, a Book of Remembrances," in Century Magazine.

Rainbow Trout.

The rainbow trout is bluish above, silvery or golden below, more or less spotted with black on the body and fins and with an orange or red lateral band. It is doubtless for this varicoloring that it receives its name. It is more hardy than the English trout and accommodates itself to almost stagnant waters and has thus proved a success in many ponds which were regarded as fit for coarse fish only. In many places, however, it has caused disappointment by going down to the sea and never returning.—Philadelphia Press.

Meaning of Cemetery.

It is not correct to say that "cemetery" means the "city of the dead." The word is from the Greek "koimeterion," meaning sleeping place, not the place of the dead. There is nothing in the etymology of the word to warrant us in thinking that it was originally intended to convey the idea that the departed were really dead any more than there is in the old Hebrew term for cemetery, "bethaim," the house of the living.—Exchange.

A Chariot of 1711.

Something over a couple of centuries ago the principle of the taxicab was known. An advertisement in the London Daily Courant of Jan. 13, 1711, announces that at the sign of the Seven Stars, under the piazza of Covent Garden, a chariot was on view that would travel without horses and measure the miles as it goes. It was capable of turning and reversing and could go uphill as easily as on level ground.

GIVEN TWO WEEKS TO END HOSTILITIES

Armed Intervention in Mexico If Leaders Do Not Stop Strife.

Washington, June 3—President Wilson will give Carranza, Villa and Zapata two weeks in which to answer his proclamation calling on them to form a coalition government for the prompt restoration of peace in Mexico.

At the same time, it was learned today that the administration has decided on the three main steps leading to the ultimate pacification of Mexico.

The first is the President's proclamation, which is construed as a threat of intervention.

The second will be the placing of a strict embargo on arms in the event that the warring factions do not immediately lay down their arms.

The third would be armed intervention by the United States in the event that the first two moves fail to bring about the desired results, as outlined in the President's message forwarded to the Mexican leaders yesterday.

The President's statement, sent to Generals Carranza, Villa, Zapata and others, publicly called upon them to settle their differences quickly and establish a government which the United States can recognize.

The President warned them that failure to do so, "within a very short time," would constrain the United States "to decide what means should be employed" to save the Mexican people from further devastation of internal warfare.

Foreign diplomats here express approval of the President's course.

DISAVOWS RESPONSIBILITY.

Washington, June 3.—Annoyed by the speculative reports published on his conference with President Wilson yesterday, Count Von Bernstorff made a call on the State Department today to disavow any responsibility for them. He declared with emphasis that he had not discussed the White House interview with anyone. Secretary Bryan assured the envoy that the administration felt convinced he was not indiscreet.

VILLA CAPTURES SILAO.

Washington, June 3.—By a sudden flanking movement General Villa is reported to have captured Silao inflicting heavy losses on the Carranzistas, and taking all but two trains of provisions, together with much arms and ammunition. The State Department received the news in an official despatch today from Chihuahua. The Carranza cavalry was said to have been completely dispersed and the force now is in full retreat.

CHILDREN'S SERVICE.

The first of the Children's Day exercises to be held by local Sunday schools will occur Sunday morning at Hope chapel when the school will meet at the hour of the morning service. Special plans have been made to entertain the members of the Home Department upon this occasion, as well as those whose names appear on the Cradle Roll. The Sunday school will continue to meet in the morning throughout the summer at 9:30.

MEETING POSTPONED.

Owing to the fact that only a small number of members were present, it was necessary to postpone the meeting of the local Bar Association called for this morning until a later date. The meeting was announced for the purpose of taking action on the placing and use of the Craig A. Marsh law library which was presented to the association by Mrs. Marsh after her husband's death.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MET.

All the members of the executive committee of the Children's Home Association were reappointed at a meeting of the committee held yesterday in the Y. M. C. A., with the exception of Mrs. E. E. Parvin, who was transferred to the sick committee. Drs Thomas Blair and J. H. Buchanan were reappointed physicians for the Home.

CONTRACTOR A BANKRUPT.

SINK MERCHANT SHIPS.

London, June 3—Despatches by way of Geneva assert that two Italian torpedo boats entered the Gulf of Trieste early yesterday and sank two merchant ships and damaged an Austrian auxiliary cruiser.

Flags at Half Mast.

In speaking of flags the term "half mast" is sometimes heard, and at other times the term "half staff" is used, yet the explanation is simple. It is that a flag is properly said to be at half staff ashore and at half mast on shipboard, and rightly the terms are never interchangeable.—New York Sun.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

GEO. B. WEAN, City Clerk pro tem.
Plainfield, N. J., May 24, 1915.

AN ORDINANCE

To Regulate the Use of Sewers in the City of Plainfield and the Making of Connections Therewith.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The Committee on Sewers shall have the direction and control, subject to the orders of the Common Council, of all sewers and appurtenances in the City, and of the construction, maintenance, repair and use of the same.

Sec. 2. No person shall make any connection with any sewer or sewer connection in the City of Plainfield or open any manhole, lamphole or flushtank, or clean or repair any sewer connection, except with the written permit of the Engineer in charge of Sewers (hereinafter called the Engineer), or his authorized representative. The applicant for a permit to make house connections shall, at the time of making application, deposit with the City Treasurer or with the said Engineer (by him to be deposited with the City Treasurer), the following sums:

If the connection has already been laid to the curb line, the sum of one dollar; if the connection has not been laid to the curb line, the applicant shall deposit such additional sum as the Committee on Sewers may from time to time determine, said additional sum to be approximately the average cost of furnishing the materials and doing the work of constructing such east iron house connections from the sewers to the curb lines, said cost to be ascertained by advertising for bids for furnishing the materials and doing the work. For the sum the connection will be laid by the City Contractor from the sewer to the curb line.

Where openings are made in brick or similar permanent pavements, an additional charge of three dollars and seventy-five cents ($3.75) shall be paid for each square yard of such pavement to be replaced, which amount shall be paid at the time the permit is issued. Where openings are made in concrete pavement, the charge shall be two dollars and ten cents ($2.10) per square yard in addition to the one dollar permit fee.

Sec. 3. No more than one building shall be connected with the sewer through one connection without a special permit from the Department of Health.

Sec. 4. No trap shall be placed on any connection between the sewer and the building.

Sec. 5. No surface, underground or rain water shall be allowed to enter any sewer or house connection, and no vault or cesspool shall be connected with any sewer or house connection.

Sec. 6. No person shall permit or cause to enter or flow into any sewer or appurtenance, any hot, corrosive, suffocating inflammable or explosive liquid, gas, vapor or substance, or any substance which may injure said house connection or sewer or shall tend to form deposits or obstruct them, provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to water from ordinary hot water boilers.

Sec. 7. All stables, garages, ice cream factories, milk depots and similar establishments in which floor drains are to be connected with the city sewers, shall be provided with catch basins or sand traps to receive and retain all sand, dirt and other refuse which would tend to clog the house drain or sewer. The catch basin or sand trap shall have a cover of ample size which can be easily opened and the sand and refuse must be removed at sufficiently frequent intervals to keep the deposits below the bottom of the outlet pipe.

Where any sand traps now in use are, in the opinion of the Engineer, incapable of performing the work for which they are intended, they shall be removed and new sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the requirements of this ordinance and these specifications, within sixty days after receipt of notice from the Engineer to make such change.

Sec. 8. All garages, industrial establishments and other buildings from which gasoline or oil are liable to flow into any house connection or sewer, shall be provided with properly constructed separators of ample capacity to intercept the gasoline and oil and prevent them from entering the sewer.

Gasoline or other volatile oils shall not be permitted to drain into the house connection or sewer.

Sec. 9. All work done in making connections to sewers and all materials furnished therefor shall conform to the requirements of the specifications annexed hereto and adopted herewith and entitled "Specifications for the Construction of Drains or Connections to Sewers in the City of Plainfield, N. J."

Sec. 10. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding ten days for each offense, or both such fine and imprisonment.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF DRAINS OR CONNECTIONS TO SEWERS IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Inspection.

All work and materials shall be subject to the inspection of the Engineer or his representative, and all improper work shall be reconstructed, and all materials which do not conform to the requirements of the specifications shall be removed from the work. In no case shall any work be covered until it has been inspected and approved by the Engineer or his representative.

Location.

The proper location for the connection will be given at the time the permit is issued and no deviation from this location shall be made and no opening shall be cut into a sewer without special permission from the Engineer or his authorized representative.

Precautions.

All excavations, piles of materials and other obstacles incident to the work must be protected with barricades and lights to prevent accidents.

Excavation.

All macadam stone or other paving material removed in excavating the trenches shall be piled by itself and after the completion of the work shall be relaid and the street left in as good condition as before being disturbed. In case the stone is wasted, or if the trenches settle, the contractor shall furnish new stone and restore the surface to the proper grade at his own expense.

Excavation shall be made in open trenches and no tunneling will be allowed except by permission of the Engineer.

In case the ground in the bottom of the trench is soft or spongy, it shall be excavated to such increased depth as the Engineer may direct, and shall be refilled with gravel or other suitable material, thoroughly rammed.

House Connections.

House connections shall be constructed of four inch cast iron pipe, strong, tough and of sound, even grain, weighing not less than 12 pounds per linear foot, and coated inside and outside with hot coal tar varnish. Larger pipes shall not be used except by special permission.

In laying the iron pipe, gaskets of clean, sound oakum or jute, braided or twisted and tightly driven, shall be used to pack the joints. The best quality of pure, soft lead, suitable for caulking, shall be used, and the depth of lead shall not be less than one inch. Before running the lead, the joints shall be carefully wiped out and shall be run full at one pour. If the gasket becomes wet before time for pouring, it must be removed and a dry gasket inserted in its place. The joints shall be thoroughly calked by competent and experienced men, and when finished, the lead shall be flush with the face of the socket and the joint shall be absolutely tight.

Grade.

No connections with the sewers shall be laid with a less inclination than one-quarter of an inch to the foot except by special permit and at owner's risk.

Pipes to Be Clean.

All rubbish must be removed from the end of the pipe must be protected to prevent the intrusion of dirt.

Pipes to Be Plugged.

When the pipe is not connected to the soil pipe at once, the upper end shall be closed with a cemented or leaden plug.

Refilling.

The lower part of the trenched shall be refilled with the best of the excavated material, and no filling shall be done above the pipe until the material around it shall have been thoroughly tamped. The remaining portion of the trench shall be refilled in horizontal layers not exceeding nine inches in depth, each of which shall be well rammed. The earth must not be thrown into the trench faster than it can be distributed and properly rammed, and in filling, the number of men ramming shall not be less than the number of men filling. All extra material and rubbish must be promptly removed after the completion of the back-filling.

Sand Traps.

Sand traps shall be constructed in accordance with the plans on file in the office of the City Clerk and under the direction of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

Gasoline and Oil Separators.

Gasoline and oil separators shall be installed under the supervision and subject to the approval of the Plumbing Inspector of the Health Department.

PENROD

Copyright, 1914, by Doubleday, Page & Company

CHAPTER I.

A Boy and His Dog.

PENROD sat morosely upon the back fence and gazed with envy at Duke, his wistful dog. A bitter soul dominated the various curved and angular surfaces known by a careless world as the face of Penrod Schofield. Except in solitude, that face was almost always cryptic and emotionless, for Penrod had come into his twelfth year wearing an expression carefully trained to be inscrutable. Since the world was sure to misunderstand everything, mere defensive instinct prompted him to give it as little as possible to lay hold upon. Nothing is more impenetrable than the face of a boy who has learned this, and Penrod's was habitually as fathomless as the depth of his hatred this morning for the literary activities of Mrs. Lora Rewbush, an almost universally respected fellow citizen, a lady of charitable and poetic inclinations and one of his own mother's most intimate friends.

Mrs. Lora Rewbush had written something which she called "The Children's Pageant of the Table Round," and it was to be performed in public that very afternoon at the Women's Arts and Guild hall for the benefit of the Colored Infants' Betterment society. And if any flavor of sweetness remained in the nature of Penrod Schofield after the dismal trials of the school week just past, that problematic, infinitesimal remnant was made pungent acid by the imminence of his destiny to form a prominent feature of the spectacle and to declaim the loathsome sentiments of a character named upon the program the Child Sir Lancelot.

After each rehearsal he had plotted escape, and only ten days earlier there had been a glimmer of light. Mrs. Lora Rewbush caught a very bad cold, and it was hoped it might develop into pneumonia, but she recovered so quickly that not even a rehearsal of the Children's Pageant was postponed. Darkness closed in. Penrod had rather vaguely debated plans for a self-mutilation such as would make his appearance as the Child Sir Lancelot inexpedient on public grounds. It was a heroic and attractive thought, but the results of some extremely sketchy preliminary experiments caused him to abandon it.

There was no escape, and at last his hour was hard upon him. Therefore he brooded on the fence and gazed with envy at his wistful Duke.

The dog's name was undescriptive of his person, which was obviously the result of a singular series of mesalliances. He wore a grizzled mustache and indefinite whiskers. He was small and shabby and looked like an old postman. Penrod envied Duke because he was sure Duke would never be compelled to be a Child Sir Lancelot. He thought a dog free and unshackled to go or come as the wind listeth. Penrod forgot the life he led Duke.

There was a long soliloquy upon the fence, a plaintive monologue without words. The boy's thoughts were adjectives, but they were expressed by a running film of pictures in his mind's eye, morbidly prophetic of the hideosities before him. Finally he spoke aloud, with such spleen that Duke rose from his haunches and lifted one ear in keen anxiety.

"I might Sir Lancelot du Lake, the child,
Gentul hearted, meek and mild.
What though I'm but a littul child,
Gentul hearted, meek and— Oof!"

All of this except "oof" was a quotation from the Child Sir Lancelot, as conceived by Mrs. Lora Rewbush. Choking upon it, Penrod slid down from the fence, and with slow and thoughtful steps entered a one storied wing of the stable, consisting of a single apartment, floored with cement and used as a storeroom for broken bric-a-brac, old paint buckets, decayed garden hose, worn out carpets, dead furniture and other condemned odds and ends not yet considered hopeless enough to be given away.

In one corner stood a large box, a part of the building itself; it was eight feet high and open at the top, and it had been constructed as a sawdust magazine from which was drawn material for the horse's bed in a stall on the other side of the partition. The big box, so high and towerlike, so commodious, so suggestive, had ceased to fulfill its legitimate function, though providentially it had been at least half full of sawdust when the horse died. Two years had gone by since that passing, an interregnum in transportation during which Penrod's father was "thinking" (he explained sometimes) of an automobile. Meanwhile, the gifted and generous sawdust box had served brilliantly in war and peace; it was Penrod's stronghold.

There was a partially defaced sign upon the front wall of the box; the donjon deep had known mercantile impulses:

PENROD ScHoFIELD AND CO.
INQuIRE FOR PRIcEs.

This was a venture of the preceding vacation, and had netted at one time an accrued and owed profit of $1.38. Prospects had been brightest on the very eve of cataclysm. The storeroom was locked and guarded, but twenty-seven rabbits and Belgian hares, old and young, had perished here on a single night—through no human agency but in a foray of cats, the besiegers treacherously tunnelling up through the sawdust from the small aperture which opened into the stall beyond the partition. Commerce has its martyrs.

Penrod climbed upon a barrel, stood on tiptoe, grasped the rim of the box then, using a knothole as a stirrup threw one leg over the top, drew himself up and dropped within. Standing upon the packed sawdust, he was just tall enough to see over the top.

Duke had not followed him into the storeroom, but remained near the open doorway in a concave and pessimistic attitude. Penrod felt in a dark corner of the box and laid hands upon a simple apparatus consisting of an old bushel basket with a few yards of clothesline tied to each of its handles. He passed the ends of the lines over a big spool, which revolved upon an axle of wire suspended from a beam overhead, and, with the aid of this improvised pulley, lowered the empty basket until it came to rest in an upright position upon the floor of the storeroom at the foot of the sawdust box.

"Eleva-ter!" shouted Penrod. "Ting-ting!"

"Eleva-ter!" shouted Penrod. "Ting-ting!"

Duke, old and intelligently apprehensive, approached slowly, in a semicircular manner, deprecatingly, but with courtesy. He pawed the basket delicately, then, as if that were all his master had expected of him, uttered one bright bark, sat down and looked up triumphantly. His hyprocrisy was shallow, many a horrible quarter of an hour had taught him his duty in this matter.

"El-e-vay-ter!" shouted Penrod sternly. "You want me to come down there to you?"

Duke looked suddenly haggard. He pawed the basket feebly again and, upon another outburst from on high, prostrated himself flat. Again threatened, he gave a superb impersonation of a worm.

"You get in that el-e-vay-ter!"

Reckless with despair, Duke jumped into the basket, landing in a disheveled posture, which he did not alter until he had been drawn up and poured out upon the floor of sawdust within the box. There, shuddering, he lay in doughnut shape and presently slumbered. It was dark in the box, a condition that might have been remedied by sliding back a small wooden panel on runners, which would have let in ample light from the alley, but Penrod Schofield had more interesting means of illumination. He knelt, and from a former soap box, in a corner, took a lantern wifhout a chimney and a large oil can, the leak in the latter being so nearly imperceptible that its banishment from household use had seemed to Penrod as inexplicable as it was providential.

He shook the lantern near his ear; nothing splashed; there was no sign but a dry clinking. But there was plenty of kerosene in the can, and he filled the lantern, striking a match to illumine the operation. Then he lit the lantern and hung it upon a nail against the wall. The sawdust floor was slightly impregnated with oil, and the open flame quivered in suggestive proximity to the side of the box; however, some rather deep charrings of the plank against which the lantern hung offered evidence that the arrangement was by no means a new one and indicated at least a possibility of no fatality occurring this time.

Next Penrod turned up the surface of the sawdust in another corner of the floor and drew forth a cigar box in which were half a dozen cigarettes made of hayseed and thick brown wrapping paper, a lead pencil, an eraser and a small notebook labeled:

"English Grammar. Penrod Schofield. Room 6, Ward School Nomber Seventh."

The first page of this book was purely academic, but the study of English undefiled terminated with a slight jar at the top of the second: "Nor must an adverb be used to modif"—

Immediately followed:

"HARoLD RAMoREZ THE RoAD-AGENT OR WILD LIFE AMoNG THE ROCKY MTS."

And the subsequent entries in the book appeared to have little concern with Room 6, Ward School Nomber Seventh.

The author of "Harold Ramorez," etc., lit one of the hayseed cigarettes, seated himself comfortably, with his back against the wall and his right shoulder just under the lantern, elevated his knees to support the notebook, turned to a blank page and wrote, slowly and earnestly:

"CHAPITER THE SIXTH"

He took a knife from his pocket, and, broodingly, his eyes upon the inward embryos of vision, sharpened his pencil. After that he extended a foot and meditatively rubbed Duke's back with the side of his shoe. Creation, with Penrod, did not leap, full armed, from the brain; but finally he began to produce. He wrote very slowly at first, and then with increasing rapidity, faster and faster, gathering momentum and growing more and more fevered as he sped, till at last the true fire came, without which no lamp of real literature may be made to burn.

Mr. Wilson reched for his gun but our hero had him covred and soon said Well I guess you don't come any of that on me my freind.

Well what makes you so sure about it sneered the other bitting his lip so savageley that the blood ran You are nothing but a comon Roadagent any way and I do not propose to be bafled by such. Ramorez laughed at this and kep Mr. Wilson covred by his ottomatick.

Soon the two men were struggling together in the deathroes but soon Mr. Wilson got him bound and gaged his mouth and went away for awhile leavin our hero, it was dark and he writhd at his bonds writhing on the floor wile the rats came out of their holes and bit him and vermin got all over him from the floor of that helish spot but soon he manged to push the gag out of his mouth with the end of his toungeu and got all his bonds off

Soon Mr Wilson came back to tant him with his helpless condition flowed by his gang of detectives and they said Oh look at Ramorez sneering at his plight and tanted him with his helpless condition because Ramorez had put the bonds back sos he would look the same but could throw them off him when he wanted to Just look at him now sneered they. To hear him talk you would thought he was hot stuff and they said Look at him now, him that was going to do so much, Oh I would not like to be in his fix

Soon Harold got mad at this and jumped up with blasing eyes throwin off his bonds like they were air Ha Ha sneered he I guess you better not talk so much next time. Soon there flowed another awful struggle and slezin his ottomatick back from Mr Wilson he shot two of the detectives through the heart Bing Bing went the ottomatick and two more went to meet their Maker only two detectives left now and so he stabbed one and the scondrel went to meet his Maker for now our hero was fighting for his very life It was dark in there now for night had falen and a terrible view met the eye Blood was just all over everything and the rats were eatin the dead men.

Soon our hero manged to get his back to the wall for he was fighting for his very life now and shot Mr Wilson through the abodmen Oh said Mr Wilson

Mr Wilson stagerd back vile oaths soilin his lips for he was in pain Why you pup you sneered he I will get you yet Harold Ramorez

The remainin scondrel had an ax which he came near our heros head with but missed him and remand stuck in the wall Our heros amumition was exhaused what was he to do, the remainin scondrel would soon get his ax lose so our hero sprung forward and bit him till his teeth met in the flech for now our hero was fighting for his very life At this the remainin scondrel also cursed and swore vile oaths Oh sneered he —— you Harold Ramorez what did you bite me for Yes sneered Mr Wilson also and he has shot me in the abodmen too

Soon they were both cursin and revilin him together Why, sneered they what did you want to injure us for Why, you Harold Ramorez you have not got any sence and you think you are so much but you are no better than anybody else

Soon our hero could stand this no longer If you could learn to act like gentlmen said he I would not do any more to you now and your low vile exppresions have not got any effect on me only to injure your own self when you go to meet your Maker Oh I guess you have had enogh for one day and I think you have learned a lesson and will not soon atemp to beard Harold Ramorez again so with a tanting laugh he cooly lit a cigarrete and takin the keys of the cell from Mr Wilson poket went on out

Soon Mr Wilson and the wonded detective manged to bind up their wonds and got up off the floor —— it I will have that dasstads life now sneered they if we have to swing for it he shall not escape us again.

Chapiter seventh

A mule train of heavily laden burros laden with gold from the mines was to be seen wondering among the highest clifts and gorgs of the Rocky Mts and a tall man with a long silken mustash and a cartidge belt could be heard cursin vile oaths because he well knew this was the lair of Harold Ramorez Why you mean old mules you sneered he because the poor mules were not able to go any quicker for him I will show you Why —— it sneered he his oaths growing viler and viler I will whip you sos you will not be able to walk for a week you mean old mules you

Scarcly had the vile words left his lips when—

"Penrod!"

It was his mother's voice calling from the back porch.

Simultaneously the noon whistles began to blow far and near, and the romancer in the sawdust box, summoned prosaically from steep mountain passes above the clouds, paused with stubby pencil halfway from lip to knee. His eyes were shining, there was a rapt sweetness in his gaze. As he wrote his burden had grown lighter, thoughts of Mrs. Lora Rewbush had almost left him, and in particular as he recounted (even by the chaste dash) the annoyed expressions of Mr. Wilson, the wounded detective, and the silken moustached mule driver, he had felt mysteriously relieved concerning the Child Sir Lancelot. Altogether he looked a better and a brighter boy.

"Pen-rod!"

Of Interest to Women and the Home

And Gave It to His Little Girl.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— The Flowers And the Dew And a Gem.

"YOU children have long admired the opal ring that mamma wears," said daddy. "Now I'll tell you a little make believe story of how that lovely gem came to be made.

"Long ago, my dear Jack and Evelyn, the story is that a purple violet grew at the edge of a big dark wood. There it thrived in the sunshine and the occasional showers, and it was a very happy little violet. And because it was happy it was lovelier than ever.

"One bright summer morning, when the air was like wine and all nature was in that harmony that makes kiddies and grown people just glad to be alive, a clear drop of dew chanced to fall right on this lovely violet. Now, seen through this clear drop of dew, the delicate colors of the violet shone with more loveliness than ever.

"The inquisitive old sun, always trying to see what he can see, noticed a sparkle on the leaves of the pretty violet that he had never noticed before. So he sent one of his bright beams down there to find what there was of it. And a little bit of the beam remained, imprisoned with the purple sheen of the violet within the trembling drop of dew.

"But that wasn't all. There were still some more hues to be captured. That drop of dew was a regular shining little magnet to attract loveliness.

"There chanced to grow close to the violet a lovely red rose, a queen of the wood. She had never noticed the violet before, being haughty, as roses are apt to be. But now her curiosity was attracted by the flaming little drop of dew, and she bent over in the breeze to see what had caused this queer and beautiful thing. And what do you think? Why, the rose's color also was caught and penned in the drop of dew, together with the other hues.

"The sky above, that was as blue as the sea, looked down at the dewdrop, and its color was also caught by that greedy little bit of water that was now as full as it could hold of colors, you would have thought. The green leaves of the adjacent forest also peeped down to see what was causing this marvelous change, and the different shades of green were all caught and held, like the colors that had entered it before, by the shimmering dewdrop.

"Then what do you think happened? Why, the cold north wind, as it has a habit once in awhile of doing on a summer day, came whipping by to make the leaves and everything shiver and quiver.

"Well, the north wind saw that drop of dew and stopped to admire it. And he lingered so long admiring it that the dewdrop froze. And a man found it and called it an opal and gave it to his little girl."

A MILK TOAST.

BURGES JOHNSON.

Come, fill your glasses brimming up.
And raise them overhead!
I'll pledge a toast before I sup,
So hasten with the foaming cup;
It's nearly time for bed.

I sing not of the ruby wine,—
My years do not allow,—
Though grown-ups praise the fruitful vine.
Clink glasses to this toast of mine:
Long live the mooly cow!

DEFENSE OF AMERICAN SCHOOLBOY.

Lindsay Best, principal of the Plainfield High School, answers Dr. Dana's criticism of the American schoolboy thus: Two charges against the efficiency of our secondary school system were made by Dr. Dana, first, that the work it requires of its pupils is not intensive enough to cultivate the habit of concentration and to develop robust mental power; second, that there is not time enough devoted to secondary school work during the day and year. Mr. Best states he is willing to match the boys of the graduating class of his school against a group of pupils of the same age in the schools of any other country in initiative power in acquiring information and power in using the information acquired; also that the private schoolboy, presumably the son of well-to-do parents, might possibly devote considerably more time to book work, though even he might profit from a greater leisure at social time, to cultivate the social graces through association with others outside the school room and a little reading for pleasure, but the majority of the children in secondary schools are not children of well-to-do homes. They have work to do regular duties about the house, getting to school and back again, visiting with the family and (more than most people realize) work necessary to earn the little pocket money a boy must have and even to help support the family. All these things leave little of the two extra hours of the school day. Saturday and vacation days are for many boys the occasions of special opportunity for work Mr. Best concludes his excellent defense of the American schoolboy by stating that we need further evidence to convince us that the school day and year should be lengthened and that pupils in our secondary schools are as universally a spineless lot as he represents them to be.

THE NEW DIME NOVEL.

FRANKLIN K. MATHIEWS,
Chief Scout Librarian.

The public will, I am sure, be interested in knowing just how most of the books that sell from twenty-five to fifty cents are, not written but manufactured. There is usually one man who is as resourceful as a Balzac so far as ideas and plot for stories are concerned. He cannot, though, develop them all, so he employs a number of men who write for him. I know of one man who has a contract to furnish his publisher each year with twenty-five books manufactured in this way. Another author manufactured last year more than fifty. By such methods from year to year the popular-priced series are kept going, the manager of the writing syndicate being able to furnish the publisher upon demand any kind of a story that may be needed.

In almost all of this "mile-a-minute fiction" some inflammable tale of improbable venture is told. Boys move about in aeroplanes as easily as though on bicycles; criminals are captured by them with a facility that matches the ability of Sherlock Holmes; and when it comes to getting on in the world, the cleverness of these hustling boys is comparable only to those captains of industry and Napoleons of finance who have made millions in a minute. Insuperable difficulties and crushing circumstances are as easily overcome and conquered as in fairy tales. Indeed, no popular character of history of legend or mythological story was ever more wise, more brave, more resourceful, than some of these up-to-the-minute boy heroes are made to appear in the Sunday supplement juvenile stories.

I have just been reading a book of this type in which the captain of a new submarine craft is represented to be a boy of sixteen; "though so young, he had," so the author says, "after a stern apprenticeship, actually succeeded in making himself a world-known expert in the handling of submarine torpedo-boats." Continuing, we are told that with this brilliant young genius there are two other sixteen-year-old boys, and it is (here I quote from the book) "rumored, and nearly as often believed, that these three sea-bred young Americans know as much as anyone in the United States on the special subject of submarine boat building." In a previous volume of the series, "these three young friends secured the prize medal at Annapolis, where for a brief time they served as instructors in submarine work to the young midshipmen at the Naval Academy."

"Never mind how big a rascal he may be,
Every fellow is another entity'
There's a good man and a bad,
Both a sane man and a mad,
In 'most every human being that we see."

I will leave my readers to decide whether it was "a good man" or "a bad.", "a sane man" or "a mad," who wrote the book from which I have taken these extracts.

NO CELEBRATION OF BIRTHDAY.

London, June 3—For the first time in many years there was no general observance of His Majesty's birthday. The ceremonies that marked King George's previous anniversaries and those of the late King Edward and the late Queen Victoria were dispensed with by order of the royal household. The flying of flags was the only public display in honor of His Majesty today. It being the fiftieth birthday of His Majesty, a big celebration was to have occurred, but the unusual events of the times led to the royal ban.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

When Olive entered the house after her glorious canter over the hard roads in the invigorating air, no one was in the living room, but she heard a tremulous voice calling: "Oh, Olive."

She went to the bedroom. There was Nell by the side of the crib on which lay the baby, inert and stiff.

"Call the doctor," came from lips almost too frightened to speak. "It's a spasm."

Olive ran to the door. Young Joplin had mounted and was riding away, leading her mount by the bridle.

"Oh, Mr. Joplin," she called, running to the gate. He turned and rode up to her.

"The baby is very sick; will you stop and send the doctor? He lives in the gray house on the right. Thank you very much." She turned and ran toward the house. The teakettle was steaming on the back of the range. She set it forward, poked up the fire and reached for the baby's tub in the store room.

"Now, Nell, get his clothes off as fast as you can," she commanded; "we must put him in hot water."

Nell obeyed with trembling fingers. Olive helped with cool, capable hands until he was nearly undressed; then flew to the kitchen and poured the water into the tub and cooled it. Then she lifted the baby into the water, chafing the stiff little limbs while Nell supported his head. Gradually the rigid muscles relaxed. Olive reached for a bath towel and spreading it on her lap lifted the child into it; then carried him carefully to his crib.

The color was slowly coming to Nell's face when the doctor appeared at the door. Olive slipped away to the kitchen and to her room; when she came downstairs Nell was saying:

"I was too frightened to think. Olive knew just what to do and did it, or baby might have died."

The doctor raised his eyes and bowed as Olive entered. "Hot water is the best remedy in such cases. I will leave this medicine, but if he shows any sign of another convulsion immerse him at once. I will look in again before bedtime."

The doctor paused on his way out to say:

"It was fortunate that you were here, Miss Dunn. Mrs. Morton was too frightened to know what to do. How did you happen to be an authority on babies?"

"I have been with my sister a very when it was sick several times," she answered.

"I wonder if it pays to be married after all," mused Olive as she watched him down the path. "Nothing has the power to put the look of pitiful terror in my face that I saw in Nell's eyes as she turned them on that suffering mite of humanity. What we never have we do not miss and can't lose. I wonder if it would be possible for me to love anything as she loves him."

She went into the bedroom. Nell was lying across the bed, her eyes closed. She reached out her hand to Olive.

"Oh, thank you, dear, for helping me," she whispered. "Did your sister's baby have more than one convulsion?"

"Yes, the youngest had three in one day," answered Olive, "and you should see what a husky fellow he is now."

"Oh, I am so relieved to hear you say so."

"Don't worry, dear; we'll pull him through all right with the doctor's help," replied Olive.

Household Hints

STRAWBERRY RECIPES

Strawberry Cocktail — Slice six large strawberries in individual punch glasses, add juice of an orange and sprinkle with sugar. Just before serving add one tablespoon of cracked ice.

Strawberry Salad — Wash one quart fresh ripe strawberries, slice one and one-half oranges and two bananas. Place in glass dish. Mix juice of one lemon with tablespoon sugar and juice of one-half orange. Pour over the fruit, sprinkle with grated cocoanut; serve. Another way is to halve the berries and lay in a deep glass dish, sprinkle with powdered sugar, pour lemon juice over them. Beat whites of two eggs stiff, sweeten, place over berries, sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Strawberry Table Jelly—Clean and mash one quart strawberries; add half cup sugar, let stand one hour, strain. Whip one pint sweet cream. Dissolve two tablespoons gelatin by soaking it first in half cup cold water, then adding one cup boiling water. Add strawberry juice and beat till it begins to thicken. Then fold in whipped cream, put in a mold and set aside to chill. Garnish with whole berries.

Strawberry Snow—Whip whites of two eggs to a stiff froth and carefully beat in three tablespoons fresh crushed and sweetened strawberries. Good for children.

Rice With Strawberries—Fill small custard cups with plain boiled rice. When cold unmold, cover with sweetened strawberries; serve with plain sweet or whipped cream.

Sweet Strawberry Cake—Three eggs, one cup sugar, two cups flour, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon (heaped) baking powder. Beat butter and sugar together, add eggs well beaten, stir in flour and baking powder well sifted together. Bake in deep tin plate. This will fill three plates. With three pints of berries mix cup sugar and mash them a little. Spread fruit between layers, and cover top with white of an egg and tablespoonful of powdered sugar whipped together.

Strawberry Pudding—One-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one cup sifted flour, one-fourth cup milk, two eggs, one pint strawberries, one teaspoon vanilla, whipped cream. Mix ingredients as for cake, beating eggs unseparated. Put in deep cake pan and just before setting in oven add berries, stirring in lightly. Serve with whipped cream.

Cream Shortcake—Sift one quart fine white flour, rub into it three tablespoons cold butter, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon white sugar. Add a beaten egg to cup of sour cream, turn it into the other ingredients; dissolve one teaspoon soda in spoonful of water. Mix all together, handling as little as possible; roll lightly into two round sheets, place on pie tins and bake twenty to twenty-five minutes in quick oven. Then cover with the fruit.

THE TABLE.

Delicious, Easily Made Icing—Two cups pulverized sugar, butter size of egg; mix thoroughly, then add enough milk or cream so it can be beaten. Do not get too thin, as it will run. Beat several minutes. This will not crack when cake is cut and always is mellow and firm.

TO USE UP LEFTOVER MINCEMEAT

Mincemeat Cake—Two eggs, one tablespoon shortening (lard or butter), one cup dark brown sugar, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon baking soda, one pint mincemeat chopped fine, enough flour to make stiffer than layer cake. Bake in slow oven as fruit cake.

RHUBARB AND RAISIN PIE

Line a pie pan with crust, spead with two cups of rhubarb cut into one-quarter-inch pieces and sprinkle with one cup of sugar, add one-half cup of raisins and some ginger syrup. Sprinkle the pie with cinnamon, cover with a second crust and bake for forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

LEMON SQUEEZER

A new idea in Sheffield silver is a lemon squeezing outfit. The base is fitted with a glass, and above the glass, suspended on a framework, is a lemon squeezer arranged with perforations so that the juice will fall into the glass below. For an expenditure of $3.85, this makes a most acceptable gift.

SAFEGUARDING THE GIRLS.

"One of the surest safeguards, one that makes for instinctive self-protection, is training a girl to be dainty in her personal habits and refined in tastes, so that she is repelled by coarse laughter, by unseemly conduct and talk, by familiarities offered by men or boys not of her own immediate family. * * *

"Teach them that no one need do what she knows is not 'nice,' because others do, that the fact of her knowledge of right is her law; that being fashionable cannot in any wise make right what is really fundamentally wrong. * * *

"One good point to bring to the surface right at the beginning is that all a girl's older friends, all good people, like to protect her from harm, even from seeming to do what is unwise. Hence, conventionalities have taken form, just as have table manners, or business etiquette, and are upheld by all who know the ways of the world. * * * One may show that the chaperon custom is not meant to be a restraint, but that it leaves the girl free to have a good time and yet be free from dangers both physical and moral that can and do often arise wholly unexpectedly. She can be taught that if she never allows herself to speak to strange men or women of whose standing she cannot be sure, she cannot be entrapped as too many girls are. She may know that if she keeps within bounds in regard to being out alone in the evening or with a girl companion only, she will not offer to the suspicious any reason for mistaking her character, hence will save herself some unpleasant and dangerous experiences." THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Chicago, June 3.—Suffrage leaders from all sections of the country will meet here on Sunday next to formulate the work to be done for the adoption of a suffrage amendment during the next Congress. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Alice Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Winston Churchill, Dr. M. Cary Thomas, Miss Jean Gordon, Mrs. Desha Breckinridge and Senator Helen R. Robinson, of Colorado, are expected to attend. The suffrage leaders will discuss new problems that have arisen since the Nashville convention. It is expected they will endorse the movement for a convention of women voters in San Francisco in September. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is active in promoting this unique meeting. The spectacular feature of that event will be the pageant of suffrage, in which 400 women will take part, depicting the beginnings of the suffrage movement and the life of Susan B. Anthony.

Washington. — Detecting counterfeit money is the specialty of Miss Emma R. Graves, who recently completed fifty-one years of service in the U. S. treasury. She celebrated her 83d birthday on May 30. Miss Graves is an expert money-counter, and her long experience has made her very valuable to the government. A counterfeit bill never gets by her skilled fingers. Instinctively she can tell the spurious money so sensitive have her fingers become.

New York.—The prettiest girls from the Eastern States will gather here on Saturday and begin their trans-continental tour to the San Francisco Exposition, as the guests of the "movie" men. The group will be joined along the route by the pretty girls from other States, and as the Pullman train nears the coast, it will be a veritable "Beauty Limited" with unlimited beauty. The girls will pose for the movies, and at least one of them will be offered the chance to become a movie star. It is a big treat for the girls, arranged by the newspapers and the film men.

Wellesley, Mass.—Wellesley seniors promise to give the makers of statistics a serious set-back this year, for an unusual number will announce their engagements and run around the table at the class dinner following Commencement. Already an even dozen of the Wellesley seniors have announced they will wed, and more will plead guilty at the class dinner. The heredity investigators recently announced that only half of the Wellesley girls marry, and that the average of children is only one and a half.

Quincy, Mass.—Miss Anna J. Lang is sailing this week for Buenos Ayres, in the Argentine Republic, where she will wed Antonio Capo, an officer on the battleship Rivadavia, which was built in this city. When the battleship was launched, Miss Lang met the officer, and their correspondence has developed the plan for a wedding in the far South American city.

Evansville, Ind—Mrs. Polly Ann Weed Strodes, 70 years old, who has been married 13 times, has announced she will divorce Harrison Strodes, her present husband, who is 82, and wed her fourteenth husband. "It is easy to get a husband," she confided in a reporter. "Men love flattery. I never use love powders, but simply win them."

San Francisco. —A peace demonstration, directed by the hostesses of the various State pavilions at the Exposition, will take place tomorrow. Peace flags will be flown from all of the State buildings, and at noon peace meetings will take place, with women speakers. All of the hostesses will assemble at the California building in the evening and march to a banquet.

Washington.—Further restoration of Washington's old home at Mt. Vernon is being urged by Mrs. Thomas P. Denham, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is vice regent of the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union. Much has already been done by the women of the association, which was organized to carry out the work of restoration. When the estate was purchased by the women, the mansion was in sad need of repair and the grounds were overgrown with weeds. Today the visitor finds the grounds beautifully kept and the house kept in excellent repair inside and out.

Montclair, N. J.—The only woman who designs and builds stained glass windows is Miss Clara M. Burd, of this city. Two hundred of her designs in church windows are scattered all over the country. She works with her men in the factory and directs the cutting and leading of the glass.

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR FOR ABSOLUTE SECURITY

Do you realize that for but $5 per year you can rent a large safe deposit box in our Manganese Steel Vault in which your insurance policies, deeds, mortgages, stocks, bonds and other valuable papers as well as your jewelry may be lodged safe from both fire and thieves and to which access may be had as often as desired? The peace of mind insured by the fact that your valuables are out of danger, come what may, should be worth many times the rental cost. If your box is maintained out of town, convenience and economy dictate that it be transferred to Plainfield. We will take pleasure in showing our modern equipment and appointments.

URGES GRADUATES TO READ POETRY

Dr. W. Norman Guthrie Gives Timely Advice to Seniors of Hartridge School.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED

Commencement Exercises Held This Morning In Presence of Large Gathering of Relatives and Friends—Alumnae Dance Tonight.

Friends and relatives in large numbers attended the Hartridge School graduation exercises, which were held in the auditorium this morning. The stage, which was attractively banked with masses of carnations, roses, peonies, palms and snowballs made a beautiful setting for the eight graduates. The school pupils, followed by the graduates, the faculty, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Miss Hartridge and Dr. W. Norman Guthrie marched into the auditorium in the order named. Each graduate carried a shower bouquet of flowers.

Rev. Dr. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, opened the exercises with prayer, after which the entire audience and pupils sang a hymn. The speaker, Dr. W. Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's church, in the Bouwerie, was introduced by Dr. Zelie.

"Poetry in Life" was the commencement topic, and the speaker urged the members of the graduating class to read poetry and apply it to their lives. "In fact, they could not help but be influenced of a necessity," said the speaker. "Necessity is the mother of invention. If you read the lives of great authors and poets you will see that they were compelled of a necessity to write and sing of their imaginations. Why is so much of the literature of the world born in monkeries and nunneries? Simply because the occupants cannot go out and fight in life. They sing of it. If Milton had not failed in his life work he would never have wandered into 'Paradise Lost.' Genius needs art more than ever today, and genius and not art is the tremendous gem of our people. Until we can humbly acknowledge the fact we never will have it."

The speaker urged the young women to stack their libraries with literature of their favorite authors, even if they have not read them; by so doing they will always have something new to read. "As a cure for fret and fuss, full of vigorous ambition," said the speaker, "I recommend Spencer; to be cheery, go and get Chaucer; to be sublime, read Milton; read the works of Blaine, the Irishman who was raised in London; if you want to know of your ancestry, the Morse or the Saxon, read Morris; for will, read Byron; for sensual ambition, Marlow; the realist was Ben Johnson; if you prefer the morbid, read Coleridge; Herrick was the sentimentalist; Keats was the poor city fellow longing for the green; Wordsworth lifts morality to the sublime; while Browning will give you the courage to fight. You are not in a position to judge a people if you have not read them. How many of you have read the translations of the beautiful works of the Polish, the Norse, the Hungarian, the German, the Russian, Persian and Indian peoples? Each of you graduates has in custody the appreciation of genius, each of you can appreciate these."

Following the address, Miss Hartridge presented the following graduatees with their diplomas, and in giving them uhged the young women to do their own thinking in life and not let the other fellow do it. To be of service to mankind and ever to be a beautiful lesson to others. Miss Augusta Burke, daughter of Charles C. Burke; the Misses Lillian and Mary Fiske, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Fiske; Miss Bessie Jewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jewett, and Miss Margaret Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Doul Miller, all of this city; Miss Winifred Campbell, of Montclair; Miss Marjorie Dobbins, of Pasadena, and Miss Helen Horner, of Minneapolis. Miss Burke, Miss Dobbins, Miss Jewett and Miss Miller are going to college; Miss Campbell and the Misses Fiske ore planning to study music, and Miss Horner has not yet made her plans.

The Alumnae Association is holding its annual meeting this afternoon at Oakwood, and this evening a dance will be given in Hartridge Auditorium for the senior class.

MAY HOLD BIG REVIVAL HERE

Ministers and Church Organizations to Discuss Feasability of Idea Tonight.

PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Union Services Conducted by an Evangelist Would be Preceded by Cottage Prayer Meetings—Music Would be a Feature.

As the result of action taken at a recent meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, the members of that body, together with representatives from the Federation of Men's church clubs and Bible classes and the Y. M. C. A., will meet at the association rooms tonight to discuss the feasibilty of holding union revival services in Plainfield next fall. If the plan is adopted the revival will be conducted on a large scale, following somewhat that used with such success by "Billy" Sunday.

The special services would be preceded for several weeks with cottage prayer-meetings held throughout the city for the purpose of thoroughly arousing the interest of the people in the union meetings to follow.

Special committees would be appointed to look after all the details, and music by a large chorus choir would be one of the important features. Of course, it would be the plan to secure an outside evangelist to conduct the union meetings, but as yet those who are interested in the movement have reached no decision as to who might be engaged for the work.

Some of the ministers tried hard to secure "Billy" Sunday for one service in Plainfield during his stay in Paterson, but this was found impossible. In case the evangelist goes to New York next fall it mght be arranged to have him come to this city while the local revival is in progress, provided it is decided to hold such meetings. The local ministers are deeply impressed with the need for a religious revival here, beleving that it would not only arouse the churches, but would be of great benefit to the city as well.

KNOCKED DOWN BY BICYCLE, WOMAN SUCCUMBS TO HURTS

Westfield, June 4.—Mrs. Isabella Semple, mother of Dr. S. G. Semple, sixty-six years old, died yesterday, as the result of injuries sustained while going from her home to attend the prayer meeting in the First Baptist church, Wednesday evening, when she was knocked down by a bicycle in Elm street, as she was crossing that thoroughfare.

The accident occurred near the home of Dr. George Semple, in Elm street, where the victim lived. Her skull was fractured. The bicycle was ridden by Christopher Hobson, sixteen years old, who was arrested. The Hobson boy's grandfather, William Woodruff, gave $1,000 bail for his release. His wheel was equipped with a light and bell. It is believed that the headlight of an approaching trolley car blinded Mrs. Semple.

Hobson, in his statement to Recorder Springstead, said that he was riding his bicycle on the right-hand side of Elm street, coming into the town; that an automobile stood on the wrong side of the road; that he saw Mrs. Semple step down from the gutter and pass in front of the machine and start across the street, but when she reached the trolley tracks she turned back. Hobson said that if Mrs. Semple had kept on going across the street he would not have run her down.

FOURTH DEGREE KNIGHTS TO BE PRESENT IN BODY

Final arrangements were completed at a meeting in the Columbus Club last night for the attendance of the fourth degree members of the Knights of Columbus in a body at the 11 o'clock mass in St. Mary's church, Sunday, the observance being the feast of Corpus Christi, an event celebrated with great pomp and ceremony each year by the Catholic faith. The entire service for the observance is one song of praise in honor of the Eucharist, a blending of ancient psalmody with the poetry of the Catholic church.

The fourth degree men will be garbed in full regalia, and Grand Knight Robert McCormack will be in charge of the Knights' demonstration.

DONALD WALLACE CONVICTED.

WILSON'S REPLY AWAITS APPROVAL

President's Note to Germany Said to Be Brief and to the Point.

CABINET IN SESSION

Bernstorff's Agent, Meyer Gerhard, Secretly Sails With Important Message to the Kaiser—Will Outline Situation.

Washington, June 4.—The American Goverment's rejoinder to the recent German note concerning the sinking of the Lusitania was ready to be laid before the cabinet today. President Wilson drafted the communication himself. It is short and to the point. It asks definitely whether Germany intends to be guided in the future by the humane principles embodied in international law for the conduct of maritime warfare.

The dispatch of the note to Berlin only awaits cabinet approval. Meanwhile Meyer Gerhard, representing Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, has left for Berlin to outline to the Kaiser the true situation here as respects public opinion, and to explain the American point of view on submarine warfare.

At the office of the Scandinavian-America Line today it was learned that Meyer Gerhard, the agent sent by Ambassador von Bernstorff, sailed on the steamship United States of their line, which left Hoboken yesterday afternoon. He arrived at the pier a few minutes before sailing time and immediately went on board to his stateroom. He was accompanied by four of his friends, one of whom stood guard in front of the stateroom door until sailing time.

The sending of a personal messenger to Berlin was an outcome of the meeting between the President and Ambassador von Bernstorff and done with the President's permission. Arrangements have been made with the allies not to interfere with Mr. Gerhard on his trip to Denmark.

Mr. Gerhard's conection with the great question between the United States and Germany has been guarded with the utmost secrecy. It leaked out only when inquiries were made regarding his departure in such a hurry. Mr. Gerhard himself could not be seen.

The suggestion that Mr. Gerhard go to Berlin was made by Count von Bernstorff to the President at the White House conference on Wednesday. The Ambassador described to the President the difficulties he experienced in transmitting information to his government. He cannot use the cables, which are in the possession of the Allies. So far as wireless is concerned, conditions make it almost impossible to send anything but the briefest dispatches.

MAYOR'S PARTY WAS HALED BY PATROLMAN

City's Chief Executive and Councilmen Graves, Hylan and Hamilton in Car.

Chief Kiely has issued strict orders to all patrolmen, particularly those in the business section, to be on the lookout for autoists who have neglected to comply with the law making it compulsory to dim headlights. As yet the crusade to enforce the law has been confined merely to warnings, but Chief Kiely announced this morning that the men would start making arrests tonight.

While covering Park avenue south of the railroad tracks, last night, Patrolman Jack Fritts haled a number of taxicab drivers and chauffeurs of private cars to inquire as to why they had not regulated their lights and after the matter was adjusted he allowed all to proceed on their way.

One of the machines, a touring car containing four persons, was passing through Park avenue, near Fourth street, when noticed by the copper. He called to the driver to halt, and after warning them, happened to spy Mayor Calkins comfortably seated in the back seat. A more careful survey revealed Councilman Christie Hamilton at the wheel, and Councilmen Graves and Hylan accompanying him in the car with the Mayor. The quartet had attended a committee meeting of the Council and were on their way home.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT CONDUCTS EXERCISES

Leal School Pupils in Annual Program of Varied Numbers.

The commencement exercises of the junior department of Leal School were held at the institution on West Seventh street, this morning, and were attended by about one hundred and fifty parents and friends of the pupils. An interesting program was rendered and John Leal, principal of the school, made an address.

An operetta entitled, "Yarn of the Nancy Bell," was presented, and the parts were taken by Erwin Jones, "an old seaman;" Edward Allen, "cook;" Teddy Jewett and Wadsworth Parker, "interlocutors." The chorus consisted of the boys of the school. Teddy Jewett and Billy Tyler gave a dialogue of the quarrel scene between Brutus and Cassius, Jewett taking the part of Brutus. The scene between Dogberry and the Town Watch, in Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," was also given. Edward W. Robinson took the part of "Dogberry;" Everitt Martin waso "B rrachio;" Eastman Iremonger was "Conrad," Teddy Bartine was "Verges," and Sandford Roome and Fred Parmly were the watches.

The program was brought to a close with the singing of the school song, when the boys marched out to the playground for exercises there. The rooms were attractively decorated with flowers and flags. In the athletic contests between the red and gold teams, representing the two clubs of the school, the "reds" won everything, taking the baseball game, the baseball relay race and the jump event.

The members of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades took part in three events, the broad jump, high jump and pole vault. The winners of the three classes were: Edwin Allen, fourth; Everitt Martin, fifth, and Edward Robinson, sixth. George Bomann won the individual pole vault event.

The work that has been done by the various classes during the year was on exhibition and the parents took much interest in looking over the exhibit.

FORMER BOROUGHITE IS BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

The body of Walter Edwin Smith, a former local resident who left here about ten years ago, was brought to Plainfield this morning, for interment in Evergreen cemetery. The service was held at the grave at 1 o'clock this afternoon and was conducted by Rev. Dr. Philip Strong, of the First Baptist church. A small gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance.

Mr. Smith, who was thirty-eight years old, has been living at Hadden, Conn., where he died Wednesday, after a brief illness. While living here he made his home on Washington avenue, the borough. He is survived by a wife and four children.

BORO SCHOOLS TO HAVE A MARKET

Dr. A. L. Johnson Addresses Parent-Teacher Ass'n on Value of Gardening.

PLAN IS EXPLAINED

Prize Awarded in Spelling Contest, John Mason Being Only Pupil With a Perfect Score—Augustus VanDeventer Second.

"School and Home Gardens" was the subject of Dr. A. L. Johnson, Union county superintendent of schools, in his lecture before the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association, in the auditorium of the Somerset School, last night. The meeting was largely attended by parents and children, and the speaker told of the work that is being done in the Union county schools in gardening, in an effort to get the children more interested in the subject. The North Plainfield Association is about to start a contest for the best garden products raised by the children, and Dr. Johnson was asked to speak on this subject and give helpful hints.

In Union county this work is organized, and where the Parent-Teacher Associations have charge, the members are divided into sections and visit the gardens of the children in their territory. The same methods will probably be adopted in the borough as soon as the work is gotten well under way. Mrs. M. H. Ewart, chairman of the economic committee, is in charge of this work, and is planning to have a market every week during the summer, where the children who take interest in gardens can take their vegetables and sell them. The association will also offer prizes for the best products raised. Mrs. Ewart gave an interesting talk last night on the subject and plans.

Another interesting feature of the meeting was the awarding of the prizes to the winners of the spelling contests held under the auspices of the association. The contest ran for five months, one hundred words being given each month. There were six $5 prizes given, two in the High School and one in each of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, to the pupils having the highest percentage for the entire five hundred words.

John Mason, of the sixth grade, received special mention, as he was the only contestant who attained a perfect score throughout the entire five contests. He received the prize for his grade. In the classical department of the High School, Augustus VanDeventer, a senior, was the winner, having two words misspelled. Miss Marian Wolley was second with seven wrong, and the average for the department was 89.7 per cent. In the commercial department of the High School different words were given than in the classical, and Stanley Burner, a Freshman, was declared the winner. His record was fifty-one misspelled words out of five hundred, and the average for the department was 82.5 per cent. Miss Martha Emmons won the eighth grade money with two words wrong, and in the seventh grade the Misses Mildred Harden and Marie Walsh were tied for first honors with thirteen wrong. Miss Ethel Winn, of the fifth grade, had only one word misspelled in the total in her class. The Misses Evelyn Bacon, Louise Brown, Margaret Case, Anna Rilling and Catherine Sheelen were all tied for second with five wrong.

Mrs. W. O. Taylor, president of the association, awarded the prizes. The money for the prizes was raised by the entertainment given in February entitled the "Hall of Fame."

BOROUGH COURT.

John Gennavario, of 184 Duer street, and Leon Leonnetti, of 182 Duer street, the borough, were arraigned before Recorder Hand in borough court this morning, on a complaint sworn out by Thomas Bonafede, a storekeeper, of Greenbrook road, for keping chickens too close to the house, and not having a license. Both were ordered to have the coops moved at least twenty-five yards from the house, which is the distance required by law.

MIDDLESEX WILLS.

The will of the late Jennie F. Milliken, of Middlesex Borough, who died November 14, 1914, has been probated at New Brunswick by John S. Milliken and Bessie Mott, executors. John R. SURVIVOR'S TALE ABOUT LUSITANIA

In Letter to a Friend Here Miss Brandell Gives Thrilling Account.

PRAISES MEN HEROES

Was One of the Last to See Charles Frohman and Alfred Vanderbilt Alive—How She Was Swept to Sea and Saved.

First-hand information concerning the sinking of the Lusitania off the coast of Ireland, May 7, has been received by Mrs. May Ward, of Hotel Kensington, in the form of a thrilling letter from her friend, Miss Josephine Brandell, of New York city, one of the survivors of the marine disaster. Stirring in its detail, instructive in nature, and coming from one who has personally experienced the sensation of facing death and entombment in Davy Jones' locker, the letter is without a doubt one of the most interesting received on this side of the Atlantic, and will be cherished by the recipient.

In many points Miss Brandell's vivid description of the catastrophe coincides with that of the official reports made to newspapers and friends of Lusitania passengers in this country, particularly her words of commendation for Alfred K. Vanderbilt and Charles Frohman, the Americans who went down with the big sea monster.

The communication from Miss Brandell, who is a student of the opera, and well-known singer, follows and is self-explanatory:

"No doubt you are anxious to know how I escaped so luckily. You in America have heard all about the terrible disaster in the sinking of the Lusitania, but have not been there to witness it like I was. I could not write to you any sooner because of my conditon, my nervous system being in a state that did not warrant my writing letters. I only informed my immediate family that I was saved, although I daresay they heard it through the newspapers the next day.

"I owe my life to the bravery of a

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN LINE FOR SUMMER RECESS

An adjournment until the first Thursday in October was taken by the local Chamber of Commerce at its final meeting of the fall, winter and spring program last night, in the Babcock building. The usual summer recess was preceded by a session at which time an accumulation of routine affairs were disposed of.

During the summer the committees will meet from time to time and transact important matters that come up. The usual reports were received last night.

LIEUTENANT COOKE AMONG THOSE WOUNDED AT YPRES

Miss Mary Campbell, daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Campbell, of Rockview avenue, is in receipt of cablegrams announcing that her fiance, First Lieutenant C. E. Coke, of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, is in a very serious condition as the result of wounds received near Ypres, France, on May 25. Just where he is at the present time is not stated, but it is probable that he is being cared for at one of the base hospitals near the ing line. One cablegram was received Wednesday and the other yesterday. Up to noon today nothing further had been heard, and "no news" is being regarded as "good news."

Lieutenant Cooke has been engaged in the conflict since the first English contingent crossed the channel into France, and has been mentioned in dispatches several times for gallantry. He was seriously wounded last December and was under treatment in a hospital for nine weeks. He returned to his command in February and has since been fighting in and about Ypres. The nature of his wounds or how they came to be received was not touched upon in the brief cablegrams.

MR. HIGGINS RECOVERING.

Michael Higgins, the "safety first" chauffeur, who has been confined to his home on Grandview avenue by illness, was reported today as being much improved. He will probably be able to resume his duties tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Higgins has been suffering from two ailments, an ulcerated tooth and stomach trouble, one keeping him from talking and the other from eating.

The want ad way of tenant-finding is the accepted way—and means small expense and delay.

LIBAU CUT OFF FROM MEMEL

Germans Are Deprived of Their Base by Russian Forces' Attack.

PRZEMYSL EVACUATED

Swedish Steamer Lapland and Danish Three-Masted Sailing Ship Salvadore Are Torpedoed by German Submarines.

London, June 4.—A despatch from Petrograd says the following official statement was issued today: "We carried away from Przemysl the materials taken from the Austrians. We removed on Tuesday the last of our batteries. The following night we evacuated the fronts to north and west of the positions surrounding the city and formed a more concentrated force east. Attacks delivered by the enemy Monday between Przemysl and Dneister were repulsed."

A news agency despatch from Petrograd says: "The Russian forces operating south of Libau have cut that city off from Memel, depriving the Germans of their base. The Russians took Polan Gen on the Baltic."

The Swedish steamship Lappland has been sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea, 50 miles off Peterhead, Scotland. The crew was saved. The Lappland was of 2,238 tons.

The Danish three-mast sailing ship Salvador, bound from Copenhagen to Bristol, England, has been sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

Rome, June 4.—The following official statement was issued here today: "Along the entire front movements of troops preparatory to fighting continues favorably. We deem it expedient to call attention to the slow, though determined, offensive of our troops in the mountains on the left bank of the Isonzo River, overcoming the Austrian works. We have progressed steadily in Carnia. The Austrians are endeavoring, without success, to retake the position lost to us at Monte Nero. We are complete masters of Monte Nero."

Paris, June 4.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon: "East of Souchez sugar factory the French troops in course of their progress toward the village of Souchez stormed an isolated inn which the Germans had fortified. There we captured 50 prisoners and three machine guns. Our progress continues in the region of the labyrinth. From the remainder of the front there is nothing to report but artillery duels."

SUPREMACY HINGES ON SILAO BATTLE

Mexican Peace, It is Said, May Depend on Result of Contest.

Washington, June 4.—The final outcome of the battle at Silao between Villa and Obregon forces is awaited with great interest here. Meager official advices confirm claims of victory there for Villa.

Upon the result of this battle hinges supremacy in central Mexico and possibly the success of a final effort to bring the contending factions together to establish a new government.

Meantime the effect of President Wilson's demand on leaders of the various military factions in Mexico is awaited.

It is not definitely known here whether all the factional leaders have received the President's statement, although official advices tell of receipt by American consular representatives in Mexico of copies.

Without waiting to see how the warring factions take the President's warning, administration officials are co-operating with the American Red Cross in comprehensive plans to relieve the starving civilian population.

All relief plans in which governmental agencies are aiding are ready to be laid before the Red Cross executive committee today.

NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY.

A RUTHLESS CZAR

Peter the Great Was a Savage, but He Made His Country.

BIRTH OF MODERN RUSSIA.

It Began With a Beard Reform In Which the Monarch Himself Acted as Hair Cutter For His Nobles—Triumphs of the Giant Barbarian.

The chief nobles of Russia, summoned from all quarters of the empire on April 26, 1698, sat around a table in the czar's palace at Moscow. They were a rough looking lot with their shaggy beards and unkempt hair and with their dirt incrusted bodies swathed in gold embroidered oriental robes.

At the table's head stood a thick set young man whose ill fitting European robes sat oddly on his giant body. He was rugged of face and was the only beardless member of the conference. In one unwashed hand he wielded a pair of barber shears.

The man was Peter I., czar of all the Russias, father of modern Russia and known to time as Peter the Great. He had just returned from a tour of Europe, and the journey had taught him a lesson. It had taught him, he said to the nobles, that he ruled a barbaric and primitive realm that was about a thousand years behind the times; that Russia had slumbered while all the rest of the world had pressed forward.

He announced that he was going to pen a new era for his country; to civilize and modernize it and make it as up to date as the nations which were laughing at it. He further informed the assemblage that the reform was going to begin then and there. Modern folk, he told them, did not wear enormous shaggy beards and long robes. European dress must henceforth be worn by the Russians, and beards must go.

To show he was in earnest Peter went slowly around the table and with his own hand cut off the beard of every man there. To a seventeenth century Russian the beard was as sacred as is a pigtail to a Chinaman, and nothing but Peter's iron authority, backed by his army's loyalty, prevented a wholesale revolution. Until Peter's time it had been the custom to wear the coatsleeves at least a foot longer than the arms. These sleeves he ordered cut off to conform with European fashions. As it was, the clothes and beard reform stirred up a dozen hot little rebellions.

And thus modern Russia was born. Nor did Peter rest until he had made his formerly despised country a world power. He was a strange man, this czar, who undertook to awaken a sleeping nation to life and activity. Voltaire paints perhaps the best picture of the czar's many sided character in the words:

"He gave a polish to his people and was himself a savage. He taught them the art of war, of which he himself was ignorant. From the sight of a small boat on the river Moskwa he erected a powerful fleet, made himself an expert and active shipwright, sailor, pilot and commander. He changed the manners, customs and laws of the Russians, and he lives in their memory as the father of his country."

One change followed another. Education, mechanics, the arts, were introduced into Russia, armies of practical teachers being imported. Then came wars which won some long needed seaports for the awakened land and new territory as well.

Peter decided that Moscow was wrongly built and in a bad location for his newborn country's capital. And against an avalanche of opposition he picked out a tract of ground in the midst of a swamp for a new capital. Here with his own hands he built a wooden hut and summoned every artisan he could get hold of to help him erect a monster city, to be known, in his honor, as St. Petersburg.

He superintended the work of dredging, digging and building, doing much of the labor in person, working side by side with his underpaid day laborers. In 1703 the city was begun. In 1711 Peter laid the foundation of his own brick palace there. (And 203 years later one of his successors renamed the capital Petrograd, to get rid of the German word "burg" in its title.) In 1713 the seat of government was moved hither from Moscow.

Peter the Great died in 1725. Modern Russia is his true monument and epitaph. He found his country semi-savage, and he, a savage at heart, left it civilized and progressive. He added six mighty provinces to the empire, and he made it a leading political, commercial and naval power, respected by the very nations that had so lately derided it, hated and feared by most of them.

All through the work of one giant barbarian who had begun his miraculous task twenty-seven years earlier by acting as barber for his own nobles.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Mary's Revised Grammar.

"The sentence, 'My father had money,' is in the past tense," explained the teacher. "Now, Mary, what tense would you be speaking in if you said, 'My father has money?'"

"Oh, that would be pretense," replied Mary soberly.—Youth's Companion.

Stylish SR Reliable

VARIETY FROM $12 UP.

It would be just as difficult to reel off the hundreds of Rothberg patterns as it is to sing "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers."

The truth is, it is not necessary to itemize the countless choice in Rothberg fabrics, because we have everything, every color, weight and weave.

Rothberg's is headquarters, the home office, the parent concern, the central, focal, pivotal, first-hand authority for what's what in clothes.

And we do not care what fabric you want, what color you want, what model you want, or what price you want to pay, here is the answer to those four wants:

DEATH CAP AND FLY CAP.

The Most Deadly of All Species of Poisonous Mushrooms.

The two most feared and deadly poisonous mushrooms the world over are the death cap (Amanita phalloides) and the fly cap (Amanita muscaria). These two species in the same genus have destroyed several emperors, a pope and probably average 500 deaths annually in various parts of the world, to say nothing of innumerable mammals, birds, reptiles and insects, the latter being almost wholly destroyed by poisonous fungi.

Of the two deadly species, muscaria is most easily detected by the layman. It is a large, showy mushroom, orange yellow in color, with what looks like warts over the cap. You see them in dooryards, where evergreens are growing, sometimes thousands of them, standing up, tall and splendid in the grass. Keep your hens in the henyard and your cow in the barn while these fellows are up, with their tempting appearance.

The species Amanita phalloides can readily be avoided. Whatever the color of the cap, white or gray, the under side of it, the gills, are pure white. The cap may or may not be covered with warty protuberance. The stem terminates in a bulb, usually wholly or partially beneath the soil. If a large, deep chunk of earth is taken out around, the bulb invariably will be found setting in a cup. Handle a poisonous mushroom as freely as you like, but do not experiment with one at the table. There are other species, both in the amanita genus and that of lepiota, that closely resemble it and which may be deliciously edible. You cannot learn these differences from the books. Only an expert, with the several fresh species in hand, can teach you such differences.—New York Press.

Valparaiso at Night.

The night view of Valparaiso from the balconies of the cliff dwellers is one of the great sights of the world. The vast sickle of the shore lit for nearly 200,000 people, the scores of ocean vessels lying at anchor, the harbor lights, the glowing avenues below from which rises, mellowed, the roar of nocturnal traffic, the rippling water under the moonlight and the far horizon of the illimitable Pacific produce an effect of enchantment.—Edward Alsworth Ross' "South of Panama."

ORDINATION OF WILLIAM L. IMES

New Pastor of Bethel Chapel is Welcomed to the Ministry.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

Rev. Harry Nesbitt, Moderator of Presbytery, in Charge—Rev. Dr. C. R. Raymond Preaches the Sermon —Special Music by a Large Chorus.

William Lloyd Imes, the new pastor of Bethel chapel, was ordained to the ministry at a service held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, last night, the interesting exercises being in charge of the Presbytery of Elizabeth, with Rev. Harry Nesbitt, of Connecticut Farms, moderator, presiding. The music during the service was furnished by a large chorus choir of mixed voices.

After the organ voluntary, the choir sang an anthem, and Rev. Mr. Nesbitt pronounced the invocation, and with the congregation repeated the Lord's Prayer. Rev. Frederick L. Greene, of Hope chapel, read the Scriptures and Rev. Dr. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, offered prayer.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. C. Rexsford Raymond, of the South Congregational church, Brooklyn, in which he recalled his early days as a student in Berea College in the South, when the father of Mr. Imes was then engaged in the ministry. Dr. Raymond's discourse emphasized the message of Jesus as found in Matthew 11:27-28. He declared that in this message was revealed the Father, that Jesus was the real message and that the interpretation of this message is what all humanity needs.

The preacher said that there could be but one God, one church, one kingdom, one standard of law and righteousness, and in conclusion said that the Father is seeking sinners at all cost. He urged all to give their hearts to Him.

After Mr. Imes had answered the constitutional questions satisfactorily, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, delivered the charge to the new pastor, welcoming him to the ministry. He said that the Gospel is the solution of all problems. He urged Mr. Imes to preach Christ and His crucified, to lead men to have a better vision of Christ and to preach the whole message. He cautioned him never to be discouraged and never preach a pessimistic Gospel and to finally find the secret place of prayer from which he would receive great power.

The singing of the ordination hymn, "Come Holy Ghost Our Souls Inspire," was followed by the prayer of ordination by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church. Rev. George E. Bevans, of the Greystone Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, delivered the charge to the people, in which he said that there were three reasons why he was glad to be present. First, because Mr. Imes was a graduate of Union Seminary, from which he was graduated; second, because he was impressed with Mr. Imes ability, and third, because he is a southerner and knows the people that Mr. Imes will work among.

Mr. Bevans then spoke on the relations of pastor and people and he urged the people to pray for their pastor, to be regular in attendance at services, to be loyal to their pastor and appreciative and to be generous of their money and time in aiding the work.

The services closed with a hymn and prayer and benediction by Mr. Imes. Afterward those present remained to meet the new pastor. About two hundred members of Bethel chapel were present, occupying reserved seats.

ADMINISTRATION WILL NOT CROWD MEXICO

Washington, June 4.—There is no disposition on the part of the administration to crowd Mexico in its efforts to set its house in order, it was announced today. Officials feel that in the face of President Wilson's solemn warning, the leaders will do everything in their power to adjust matters.

MUSIC WAS A FEATURE OF STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

The strawberry and ice cream festival held at Somerset street and Fairview avenue, under the auspices of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association, was largely attended and a success, a considerable sum being realized as profit for the Recreation Hall fund. The money will be credited to the children of the Watchung School, for whom the affair was given.

During the evening there was a concert by the Dutch Arms Band, the organization offering its services without compensation. The band, under the leadership of E. D. Young, gave a popular program. Mrs. Koecklein was chairman of the affair and she was assisted by Mrs. Warren Townley, Mrs. A. J. King, Mrs. N. C. Sears, Mrs. W. O. Taylor, and the Misses Emily Pleydell, Grace Townley, Margaret Smith, Dorothy Lee and Dorothy Krewson.

SUFFRAGE ISSUE INTRODUCED AT A MEETING IN DUNELLEN

Voting as a problem for the fair sex was introduced to Dunellen women at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. George T. Schenck, prominent speakers putting the fundamentals of the campaign for the enfranchisement of women before the session in a clear and convincing style. Despite the fact that it was the first time that constituents of the suffrage cause have held forth in Middlesex county, a large atendance was present, and the meeting was an unusually interesting one.

The speakers included Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert, of Dunellen, and Mrs. Berckerti, an organizer from Camden. The meeting was in the nature of a forerunner to the one to be held in the Lincoln School, June 21. Another session will be held June 15.

Rev. E. C. Conover will be the speaker at the young people's service which will be held Sunday night at Warren chapel. The young men's choir will lead the singing.

SERVING THE PEOPLE.

Congressman John H. Capstick recently added much to the very favorable impression that he made upon the people in the campaign last fall by sending a letter to every registered voter offering to do anything that he could while in Washington to aid each individual, so far as was within his power. That the letter was appreciated was shown by the fact that some eight thousand people took the trouble to answer it, and thank the Congressman. And not a few of them made specific requests to be placed on his mailing list for various government documents. Aside from the idea of being of service to the people, Mr. Capstick has established a precedent that it might be well for other Congressmen to follow.

The Camden Post-Telegram says that of late years, owing to the increased volume of legislative business, the Congressman who gives conscientious attention to his duties has to spend nearly all his time at Washington. He finds little opportunity for that personal intercourse with his constituents which is desirable if he is to keep in close touch with their wishes and desires. And this Mr Capstick intends to do to the best of his ability.

The home newspapers are helpful in supplying him with information, but do not always correctly reflect the popular sentiment. The official action of commercial or patriotic organizations has its value, of course, as showing the class attitude toward issues which affect business or the people generally. But the unsolicited, spontaneous correspondence of the individual citizens is a barometer of public sentiment, which, if properly comprehended by a broad-minded representative of the people, is the best substitute for the personal meeting and heart-to-heart talk.

There should be no hesitancy on the part of anyone, however humble or lacking in education, as the Post-Telegram says, in communicating with their Representative. In expressing honest convictions and desires on public matters they are helping to a correct understanding of the popular attitude, enabling him to interpret and put into effect the will of his constituency by his voice and vote in the legislative hall.

According to the Philadelphia Record, the year 1816 was known throughout the United States as the year without a summer. January of that year was so mild that most people would have let their furnaces go out had they possessed any, and February was only occasionally colder. March and April coaxed the buds and flowers out, and May was a winter month, with ice and snow. By the end of May everything perishable had been stripped from the trees. June was as cold at May. Both snow and ice were common throughout the month all over the corn belt, and after having planted corn two or three times the farmers threw up their hands. Snow fell ten inches deep in Vermont. The following winter was the hardest the people of the United States have ever known. One had to have a stockade around one's smokehouse. One was almost tempted yesterday to believe that history was going to repeat itself.

Edward Casper Stokes is being boomed for the United States Senate and Walter E. Edge, president of the State Senate, is suggested as the Republican candidate for Governor. While Senator Edge has all the qualifications for the office, we suspect that it would be a mighty difficult job for a man who has been favored by the political bosses in Atlantic county, notorious as one where the laws are broken, to secure any place at the hands of the people of the whole State. It looks suspiciously like a scheme on the part of Stokes' friends to get Edge out of the race for the Senatorship, for he is said to cast longing eyes on that job, and Stokes wants it all to himself.

Have the manufacturers of Middlesex county secured control of the columns of the New Brunswick Home News? It is a remarkable fact that every newspaper in the State which commented on the verdict in the case of the thugs who shot up the Roosevelt strikers, except the Home News, commended the verdict, and praised it as another example of splendid Jersey justice. The New Brunswick paper could not find enough to say against the jury for its decision in the case. Then again, perhaps the Home News wants to let the officials of the county who did not perform their duty down easy.

City Judge William G. DeMeza will write the contributed editorial for tomorrow's Daily Press. One of the subjects dear to his heart, that of making wife-beaters, drunks and others of their kind earn money to support their families while they are serving time in jail, will be his topic.

By the way, what has happened to that anti-shingle roof ordinance?

I. C. S. CHAPTER PLANNING TO CONDUCT AN EXCURSION

LADIES' AID SOCIETY ANNUAL BIRTHDAY PARTY

The Ladies' Aid Society of Temple Baptist church held its annual birthday celebration last night, the organization having been in operation eight years. A musical program was enjoyed, which was followed by a social time, and refreshments were served.

Miss Justine Roberts, a talented elocutionist, of Brooklyn, entertained with eight numbers, and was forced to give several encores. Dyckman Winckler, of the borough, rendered a violin selection, accompanied on the piano by Herbert Harold. Miss Theresa Siry gave a trombone solo and Miss Elizabeth Utzinger entertained at the piano.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. Charles Griffin, Mrs. Edward Baker Sr., Mrs. Henry Jaeger and Mrs. Harry Bouton.

The session will be held in the Grand Avenue Reformed church. There were 200 delegates present, about half of them laymen. The Rev. Isaac W. DISCHARGED EMPLOYE STABS ROAD FOREMAN

Roselle Park, June 4.—Thomas Ryan, of Elizabeth, foreman for T. Foster Callahan, a road contractor, was at work yesterday, when an Italian about 21 years old handed him a piece of paper and asked him to direct him to the street written on it. As Ryan leaned over to read the paper the Italian thrust a stiletto into his left cheek and ran. The wound required five stitches by a physician.

Several workmen pursued the assailant, who pulled two revolvers and made his escape in the direction of Union. He is believed to be a discharged employe.

FEDERAL COURT DECISION FAVORS STEEL CORPORATION

Trenton, June 4.—The Federal Court today handed down a decision in the suit of the Government for the dissolution of the U. S. Steel Corporation in favor of the latter. It holds that the foreign trade of the corporation is not a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and that certain price fixing agreements which followed the Gary dinners, but which stopped before the bill was filed to have been unlawful. It allows the Government to move to retain jurisdiction of the bill if such price fixing practices are renewed, but suggests that such matters may now be controlled by the new Federal Trade Commission.

STATE COMMISSION PLANS WATER SYSTEM

Montclair, June 4.—The State Water Supply Commission has announced its willingness to take over, either by lease or purchase, as a step toward the development of a water supply system for Montclair, Paterson, Passaic and other North New Jersey municipalities, the pumping and filtration plants and the trunk pipes of the East Jersey Company, with the understanding that the municipalities guarantee to take a certain amount of water.

The Commission, which will operate the water plan, will pay the towns 5 per cent. interest on the bonds which will be issued to finance the project. The Commission will sell the water in bulk, the municipalities distributing and billing it to the customers. It has been shown by figures in posseession of the Commission that with the purchase of the East Jersey Company's plant, Montclair and Passaic would be obliged to pay approximately $320,000 each and Paterson $1,000,000.

Buyers Are Found by Advertising—Because They Are Opportunity-Hunters!

If you have something to sell—real estate, personal property of any sort—there's a buyer for it. You don't know who he is, or where he is. You'd be helpless in trying to locate him—but for the fact that he is trying to locate you!

For buyers are opportunity-seekers. And they have learned that the Plainfield Daily Press classified columns are 'the Happy Hunting Grounds' for opportunities. Thus, when your "ad" starts upon its quest it meets the man for whom it was written—also upon his quest. And that's how "results" follow classified advertising.

MISFIT MARRIAGES.

A Humorist's Flippant View of Matrimonial Alliances.

I would like to make a few useless remarks about married life. I not only would like to, but I am going to.

If you are a tall, sallow, nerveless, easy going man with a liliputian income, enormous feet and hands and have an Adam's apple that looks like somebody trying to poke his fist through your neck you will marry a tiny black haired woman who has all seeing, lashless eyes, a mouth like a knife cut in a dish of cornstarch pudding and a love of jewelry and ancient black and tan dogs with rotten dispositions and hairpin legs. You may say you won't but you will.

If you are a red headed gentleman you will marry a beautiful girl. I don't know why this is, but you think over the red headed men you know and see if they haven't copped peaches.

If you are a little runt addicted to morning coats and gardenias, a large, vital, auburn haired lady will get you yet. She will want all there is in life. And don't sit down calmly after you're married, with a panetela in the corner of your mouth, and imagine you are that all.

If you are a home loving man, a man who likes to loll about in an old suit, a man who gets slightly seasick by merely glancing over a passenger list of an ocean liner, then, by the gods, you will wed a female globe trotter.

If you are a jealous person it is written that you shall marry a girl who will give you every excuse to harbor that ridiculous passion. And by the same token it wouldn't matter whether she did or not—it would seem so to you.

If you put your stomach before everything else in life, physically as well as metaphorically, your wife will be the kind who made a pan of bum fudge once when she was at school, but knows and cares not that mint sauce has nothing to do with veal cutlets and that sea bass gets nervous and fidgety when you pour maple sirup on it.—J. Montgomery Flagg in American Magazine.

HOW PINS ARE MADE.

An Intricate Process Where Machinery Does All the Work.

To make a pin is an intricate process, but it is all done by machinery. A spool of brass wire running on steel posts is fed into jaws which bite off the length of the pin. A small length is left to make the head, which is formed by three rapid blows of a hammer which moves forward one-twentieth of an inch at each blow. The pin then drops to an incline in which are grooves deep enough to admit the shank, but not the head.

As the pin moves down its point comes in contact with a cylinder with a file like surface, which causes the pin to turn round so that it is sharpened on all sides. It next drops into a receptacle where a layer of pins is placed, and then a layer of finely ground tin until the pan is filled. Heat and a chemical solution coat the pins with tin.

They are then polished in a barrel revolving rapidly. They are placed in the papers by a machine, which seizes the paper and crimps it into divisions as wide as the length of the pins. The bottom of the box is made of square steel bars, which allow the shanks but not the heads of the pins to pass through.

The bars are in motion, thus shaking down the pins until a row is formed, when they are clamped in place by the bars. A fold of paper is pushed up against them and pressed into place. This is repeated until the paper is full, when another takes its place. It all sounds intricate, but being done by machinery it is rapid and cheap, else we could not have the billions of pins that we waste.—Indianapolis News.

Enough.

John Muir once said to Mr. Harriman, "I am richer than you are." "Yes," said Mr. Harriman, "but how?" Mr. Muir answered, "Because I've got enough money and you haven't." John Muir placed money in the right place, using it as a means solely to help him to become a great savant of his time. It is not the amount of money we have that counts; it is our attitude toward it that determines whether or not we are dollar idolaters.—Christian Herald.

Seeing Both Sides at Once.

Fishes and birds have an advantage over human beings in their ability to see on both sides of them. Their eyes are set not for looking straight ahead, but for looking out on each side. That is because they balance their bodies to right or to left, while we balance forward and backward. A bird can watch the tips of both wings at once. The pilot of an aeroplane has to turn his head from side to side to see his wing tips.—New York World.

The Palace of Thoughts.

To get peace, if you do want it, make for yourselves nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet knows, for none of us has been taught in early youth, what palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts—proof against all adversity.—John Ruskin.

Confident Prediction.

"So you honestly think you have the smartest boy on earth."

"Maybe he isn't yet, but he will be if he keeps on making me answer all the questions he can think up."—Washington Star.

An Impractical Suggestion.

"Why don't you tell your troubles to a policeman?"

"I don't dare," replied the gloomy person. "He'd probably arrest me."—Washington Star.

If there is some work which you can do well, and you will tell about it in a Situation Wanted ad, you'll find your opportunity.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

PLAINFIELD SUNDAY SCHOOL ASS'N ELECTS

Rev. Clarence S. Sylvester, of Somerville, Chosen President at Annual Meeting.

Delegations from Grace church, St. Stephen's and the Church of the Heavenly Rest attended the annual meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Association, which was held in St. Paul's church, Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon and last night. Rev. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook, presided at the meeting, during which routine business was transacted and the following officers for the coming year were elected:

President, Rev. Clarence S. Sylvester, of Somerville; vice president, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, of Plainfield; secretary and treasurer, Miss Otis, of Somerville. Following the business session the gathering had a lively discussion on "How to Teach the Catechism." Supper was served by the members of the Bound Brook association and the evening session began with a discussion on the twelve point Sunday-school or the twelve different fields of study entered into by a Sunday-school.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Grace church, this city, in October. Beside the Plainfield representatives, delegates were present from Gladstone, Bernardsville, Somerville, Bound Brook and Dunellen.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY HAS A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, held their annual picnic yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Andrew McDowell, of Plainfield avenue. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions there were nineteen members present and also many friends. One pleasing feature of the meeting was that all the officers of the society were present.

Rev. Frederick Hubach, district superintendent, was present. At 12:30 o'clock dinner was served, which was enjoyed by all present, and everyone brought eatables that made up a fine picnic repast. The society went into business session at 2 o'clock and the planning of the work for the ensuing year was done. A social time was enjoyed after the meeting and refreshments were served at 4 o'clock. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. McDowell for her hospitality and a vote was also given to all the members for the support of the work of the society. The birthday anniversary of Mrs. Lindabury, a member of the society, was also celebrated in connection with the picnic.

LUSITANIA SURVIVOR'S STORY

noble English gentleman, a Mr. Gorer. He was drowned, and as a result I cannot show my appreciation and gratefulness to him. I never felt so bad over anything as I did over his death. He was a friend of Alfred Vanderbilt. We had a lovely concert on board the night before the disaster. Both the man who saved me and Mr. Vanderbilt were very brave in the face of death. We were great friends during the trip, and I also made a great friend of Mrs. Crighton, a niece of Marie Dressler's. I was introduced to Alfred Vanderbilt by Mr. Gorer, my friend. Both were charming men. I made the best friends of my life and unfortunately lost them. I met Charles Frohman. I can't begin to tell you how badly I feel over the deaths of friends I made on the trip.

"Mr. Gorer took from himself his lifebelt and put it around me. Then he went back to get another one, and that was the last that I saw of him. He had ten minutes to save himself, but like others I believe he thought the big ship could not sink, and instead of jumping overboard, remained on deck until the boat went down. Now, to tell you how I managed to escape. When Mr. Gorer put his lifebelt on me I followed poor Mrs. Crighton into the second lifeboat that was lowered, but as soon as we got into it the boat turned over, and all of the occupants, including myself, were thrown into the sea. I turned over three times in the water, but came to the surface each time, owing to my lifebelt. By that time a rope had come within my reach, and I clutched at it. After being dragged around for several minutes I caught hold of an oar. In another seemingly long time I caught hold of a deck chair in the water, which was like a Godsend to me. Here I became exhausted and lost consciousness. I was afterwards told that it took an hour to revive me. I went through a horrble experience until I was saved. I'll never forget being tossed about by the waves, which every once in a while nearly drowned me. I was able to hold my breath, owing to my knowledge of deep breathing, and knew how to get rid of the water that time and again filled my lungs. It's a miracle and that will of God that I was saved. The Lusitana sank in eighteen minutes; there wasn't time to do or think of anything. We were going about sixteen knots an hour, when we could have gone between twenty-five and thirty knots an hour. We had no cruiser to meet us.

"I still suffer with my arm from the terrible bruises I received when the lifeboat overturned and I was knocked against the side of the Lusitania."

Sham Wisdom.

The Sophists were a body of teachers in ancient Athens during the fourth and fifth centuries B. C., who gave instruction in any or all of the higher branches of learning. Although they were not a philosophic sect and held no doctrines in common, the Sophists were nevertheless skeptics and maintained a belief of uncertainty of all particular knowledge and, in fact, in the impossibility of all truth. Their two leading representatives were Protagoras and Gorgias. The Sophists were charged with bringing reasoning into contempt by casting uncertainty over the most obvious truths and in consequence were ridiculed and denounced by Aristophanes, Socrates and Plato. Aristotle defined a Sophist as "a man who makes money by sham wisdom."

A Queen Made a Color Famous.

Marie Antoinette early in the summer of 1775 appeared before the king, her husband, in a lustrous dress of chestnut brown, and he remarked, laughing, "That puce color is delightfully becoming to you." Very soon all the court ladies had puce colored gowns, but the color not being universally becoming and less extravagant than light brilliant tints the fashion of puce colored toilets was adopted by the upper middle class more than by the nobility, and dyers could hardly fill their orders. The varying shades were given the most peculiar names, none of them attractive, "flea's back," "Paris mud" and "indiscreet tears" being the most euphonious.

Heading the list of baseball games for tomorrow afternoon is the second struggle of the season between the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School aggregations, and Parker F'eld is to be the scene of the boroughites' last stand for their chances of retaining the city title and winning another Collier trophy. With both teams in the pink of condition the game will undoubtedly prove the best interscholastic battle of the series, and a record-breaking crowd is expected to vist the Randolph road playground. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

With a record of three victories and no defeats in the race for the recovery of lost laurels, the red and blue team is confident of putting an end to the league Saturday, which will make a double championship year, winning both baseball and basketball titles. But the boroughites are of a different opinion, and feel that although the first game was lost in the twelfth session, they will make the series go to the third game, with as much chance to win as their rivals.

In the first game it was Stahl against Denny on the mound, but in the coming contest these two may not face each other, as Captain Smalley may send Dilts to the firing line, while "Art" Brick is liable to get the first chance of his career at the borough boys. He is at present pitching fine ball. The teams will probably line up as follows:

P. H. S.—Dunham, 3b; Kyle, lf; Peacock, c; Rosenson, ss; Apgar, 1b; Denny, cf; O'Leary, 2b; Noonan, rf; Brick or Denny, p.

N. P. H. S.—VanMater, rf; Townley, 3b; VanDeventer, cf; Hebert, lf; Dilts, ss or p; Smalley, c; Conroy, 2b; Mead, 1b; Stahl, p.

ROD AND REEL

The pickerel fishing is getting better despite the unfavorable weather conditions. Good reports continue to come in from the North Jersey lakes. One angler was up at Musconetcong the forepart of the week. The first day he got six and the second day eleven. All of them ran to a good size. He used pork bait and skittered for his fish.

A large shipment of brook trout from the State hatcheries at Hackettstown was released in the South Jersey streams this week.

There is a tremendous run of flounders in Oyster Bay.

A fourteen-pound striped bass was caught in the surf at Seaside Park recently. The fish was landed after a fifteen-minute fight.

TO HONOR FORMER "PET."

"Serry Day," in honor of "Bill" Serry, formerly a catcher on the Plainfield baseball team, will be observed at Bennett Park, Elizabeth, Saturday, July 10. The committee in charge is planning for a big time and the "movie" men will be there with the camera.

SAURER OUT OF TOWN.

The Saurer baseball team will go to Rahway tomorrow afternoon and play the representative team of that place. Last season these two teams played an interesting game, the locals winning out by a pair of runs.

Advertisable property—property of real value—may be sold "out of season" as well as "in season."

"Cliff" Randolph, of this city, has been picked by the manager of the Perth Amboy baseball team to twirl first game of the city chan.pionship series next Sunday afternoon at the Amusement Park. The Pacers will face the St. Anthony aggregation, and Randolph will be opposed by Neider. The other team in the league for the city supremacy is the Franklin, of which Tommy Mullin and Jaeger, of the city, are members.

Urbana, Ill., June 4—Five hundred college athletes of the West will meet tomorrow on the athletic field of the University of Illinois. Varsity, field and track teams are entered from Drake, Oregon State, Iowa State, Coe, Colorado, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Michigan, Michigan Aggies, Lake Forest, Notre Dame and Depauw.

HOPE-BAPTIST GAME OFF.

Because five members of the Hope Chapel baseball team will be unable to play, Manager Luthman, of the Chapel team, has postponed the game with the First Baptist aggregation, which was scheduled to be played on the Clinton avenue field tomorrow. The game will probably be arranged for some later date.

MEDALS FOR BRAVERY.

New York, June 4.—Aboard the American liner Philadelphia this morning the U. S. Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York presented medals for bravery to Captain Arthur R. LEAL NINE WILL FINISH TOMORROW

Final Game of Season to Be Played Against Alumni at Crescent Oval.

Leal School baseball players and the graduates of Leal School will meet in their annual battle on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. The oldtimers, under the captaincy of "Bill" Glenny, will have a fast combination of the old Leal stars, and the private school team will have to play their best to get the larger end of the count.

Last season the game went to the "oldtimers," and they are out to place another victory on their list. Either Glenny or "Cliff" McGee will occupy the mound against "Stretch" Voorhees. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock, and the Alumni teams will probably line up with the following players: "Cliff" McGee, '90; Fred Shaw, '93; George Schoonmaker, '95; Morris Dumont, '97; Owen Fleming, '99; "Bob" Tilney, '01; Ralph Schoonmaker, '02; Will Schoonmaker, '03; Clinton Ivins, '03; Charles Lyman, 06; Will Glenney, '06; Kenneth Browne, '08, and John Houghey, '04.

SCHOOL TENNIS TITLE WON BY LEAL TEAM

Plainfield High School Players Relinquish Claim to the Championship.

By defeating the Plainfield High School tennis team, yesterday afternoon, the Leal School aggregation copped the Interscholastic League series and the Collier trophy. By winning the doubles and one set of singles, they took the decision by the score of 3 to 2.

The entire match was exciting and exceedingly well played from the start. Several times in the second set of doubles, the score was set point, and Plainfield won out, making the score in sets 1-1. Then, by some superior playing by Stewart, Leal's was enabled to win the next game easily, 6-4.

The scores follow: Dall (P. H. S.) defeated Lyon (Leal), 6-3, 6-3; Stewart (Leal) defeated Parvin (P. H. S.), 8-6, 6-4; Blanchard (P. H. S.) defeated Garrigues (Leal), 8-6, 6-0; Dall and Parvin (P. H. S.) lost to Stewart and Lyon (Leal), 6-4, 6-8, 6-4.

BARRINGER TENNIS TEAM TAKES THE COUNT IN BORO

The North Plainfield High School tennis team defeated Barringer High School's racquet swingers yesterday, on the Park Club courts, 3 to 2. The Newark boys carried off the doubles match and lost all three singles.

JUNE BREEZES BRING BASKETBALLERS OUT

Plainfield Zephyrs Beat Brunswick Magnolias in Hard Fought Game.

The largest gathering of basketball enthusiasts that the Plainfield High School gymnasium ever held was present last night, when the Zephyr colored girls defeated the Magnolias, of New Brunswick, by the score of 12 to 10. Owing to a discrepancy over the previous arrangements by the two managers, one half was played with lines and girls' rules, while the second period was played without lines and boys' rules. In the initial period the local girls outclassed the visitors in every department of the game, caging three field goals and three fouls, while the Brunswick lassies were kept to four foul goals.

In the second half the Magnolias showed their superiority over the locals and kept the sphere continually in their territory. Clever dribbling, passing and shooting gave them six counts in this session, while the Plainfielders were kept to a solitary field goal and foul. Although honors were about even, much credit was given the Misses Helen Carey and Sarah Cruse, of Plainfield, and the Misses Rose Davis and Ruth Ivy, of the visitors, who showed a splendid knowledge of the game.

Following the court game the visitors and players adjourned to the spacious auditorium of the school, where dancing was enjoyed until a late hour, music being provided by a three-piece orchestra.

Last night's game was arranged by the local colored girls' gymnasium class of the Plainfield Recreation Committee to raise funds to add to the treasury of the committee. A large sum was realized. The local girls have not taken a prominent part in athletics prior to this season and last night's game was the first exhibition of the indoor pastime with an opposing quintet. The club boasts of a large membership and meets every Thursday night in the Plainfield High School gymnasium.

The complete score is as follows:

CONOVER AND THORN MADE CLEAN SWEEPS

Eddie Conshay won the odd game from Ferero, but later dropped a pair to Connolly.

The scores follow:

"ERNIE" STAHL OUT OF THE PLAINFIELD GAME

Ernest Stahl, star pitcher of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, will be among the missing on Parker Field, tomorrow afternoon, when the borough boys meet Plainfield High School in the most important fight of the series for the interscholastic title. Stahl has been "under the weather" all this week, suffering with boils on his right arm, and he cannot raise that member.

With his right salary wing out of commission, Stahl will not be much good on the firing line as he uses that to push the balls over the plate. Captain Smalley will probably have to send Oscar Dilts to the mound and put Johnny Dawe in at shortstop. Stahl will probably witness the battle from the bench.

YEOMEN UNION DANCE AND BASEBALL GAME ON JULY 4

At a union meeting of Watchung Homestead, No. 5,104, Bound Brook, and Queen City Homestead, No. 4,998, Plainfield, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, held in Voorhees Hall, Bound Brook, last night, arrangements were completed for the dance to be given at Wayside Park on July 4. In the afternoon a baseball game between the two homesteads will be played and Captain Irving Kunzman, of Plainfield, and Captain Norman Harney, of Bound Brook, are drilling their nines for the occasion. Various athletic games and contests will also be features of the afternoon. The committee in charge of the arrangements promises all attendants a good time.

At the business session three candidates were initiated.

M'LOUGHLIN WILL PITCH AGAINST RAHWAY TEAM

Warry McLaughlin will occupy the mound for the Saurer baseball team at Rahway, tomorrow afternoon. He will be opposed by George Olde, the Elizabeth pitcher, who defeated the local team earlier in the season. H. Alberts will play third base.

The teams will lineup as follows:

ELECTION OFFICERS REFUSED INCREASE

Freeholders Declare Salaries Are as High as in Other Countries.

Elizabeth, June 4.—No increase in the salaries of the members of the Union County Board of Election will be allowed, as the Board of Freeholders yesterday adopted the election committee's report to this effect. The committee reported that the salaries paid were as high as in other second class counties.

Folsom Adams, of New York, bid $46,381.50 on the $45,000 bridge bond issue, and was awarded the bonds as the highest bidder. The bonds bear interest at 4½ per cent.

The publishers of the county told the Board that they could no longer afford to publish the Freeholder minutes for $150, as they were too long, and asked $250. The matter was referred to the publication committee.

The Central Labor Union informed the Board that it had no objection to prisoners going to work, if they were employed on county work in county institutions.

A tentative appropriation of $5,000 was added to the $40,000 bridge account.

JERSEY EDITORS PLAN FOR OUTING

59th Annual Meeting to Be Held at Hotel Greylock, Williamstown, Mass.

J. W. Richardson, president; John W. Clift, secretary, and W. B. R. Mason, treasurer, of the New Jersey State Press Association, announce that the fifty-ninth annual meeting and outing of that body will be held at the Hotel Greylock, Williamstown, Mass., on June 25 to 28. The party will leave New York on the Hudson Day line steamer on Friday morning, June 25, arriving at Hudson, N. Y., at 3:40 o'clock, from which point a special train will convey the party to North Adams, Mass., and the last four miles of the journey to the hotel will be made by automobile, arriving by 6 o'clock.

The hotel is located in the Berkshires, and during the stay there the newspaper men expect to enjoy the scenic treats of that section, as well as the many sports and pastimes offered at the resort. At the annual banquet, which is to take place Saturday evening of the stay, Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College; Lieutenant-Governor Frank E. Howe, of Vermont, and Robert Carey, of Jersey City, will be included in the list of speakers.

The business sessions of the meeting are to be unusually interesting, and many important subjects will be discussed. The return trip will be made on Monday evening, June 28, when a special train will convey the party to Troy, N. Y., and the party will proceed thence by a Hudson River steamer to New York, arriving there early the following morning.

President Richardson has appointed as a committee to look after the social features of the outing, Fred W. Clifft, of the Summit Herald; Leslie R. Fort, Plainfield Press; John E. Clarey, Madison Eagle; A. Vance Pierson, Morristown Jerseyman, and J. Z. Demarest, Tenafly Record.

WILL ERECT FIREPROOF ROUNDHOUSE AT SAYRE

The Lehigh Valley Railroad announced today the awarding of a contract for a fireproof roundhouse, containing stalls for fifty locomotives, to be erected at Sayre, Pa. The building will be of hollow tile and cement and will be the development of the latest thought in roundhouse construction. New turntables and other accessories of the roundhouse also will be built, the total cost of which is estimated at $400,000.

The contract for the construction of the building has been awarded to the Westinghouse-Kerr Company, of New York city.

WILL ATTEND VESPERS.

Members of the Elizabeth T. A. B. Society will come by special car to Plainfield Sunday night to attend the vesper services of the Plainfield T. A. B. Society in St. Mary's church. Rt. Rev. Monsignor Charles H. Mackel, rector of St. Patrck's church, will deliver the sermon.

This Is a Gigantic Sale of Summer Blouses

An Annual Occasion—but this year it is of greater magnitude than ever before. And we do not aim to be boastful when we say that we have never presented such fine Blouses at such small prices—

$1, $2 to $10.75

Fairy-like Blouses of Organdie, Batiste and Voile

Embroidery is the keynote of their beauty. Some of it is so fine that it looks like etched motifs on thin crystal.

Panels of embroidery are the most favored; some of the blouses merely have collars or inset motifs of embroidery, and some of them are embroidered all over.

Yes, laces, too! Valenciennes, Filet, Venise and cobweb by Shadow Laces give those inimitable touches of daintiness that these modes require.

New and Special—
"The Brittany" Smock of Linen, $6.95

Ideal to wear about the garden, while playing tennis or any of the strenuous sports, for this Smock always resumes its long, graceful lines, and does not interfere with the skirt. In rose, blue or white, trimmed with clusters of hand-smocking, deep collar and cuffs of white organdie.

Extra—100 Dozen
$3 Organdie Blouses at $2

A manufacturer who heard about our Summer Sale offered us these 1,200 Blouses at a concession.

The fronts of one model are embroidered in large and effective motifs. Embroidered collars and cuffs.

Another model is inset with Venise lace; one with shadow lace—and so on.

Another Shipment of

Navy Blue is pre-eminent—scores of frocks in this favorite color of Paris! Light Gray and Dutch Blue, which are becoming more popular, are much in evidence, too. Of course, all the models are in Black, and some of them are also in White.

Frocks of Striped and Plaid Taffetas, with navy blue grounds, are also at the same moderate prices, $16.75 to $25.

The New Mid-Summer Note—
White Crepe de Chine

is introduced in the newest and most charming model that Paris has sent. It has the narrow skirt with frow ruffles, and its bodice gives the effect of a bolero, $18.50. (Illustrated.)

Washable Frocks, $5.75 to $35

Sizes 14, 16 and 18 years in every model, whether its price is the lowest or the highest. Materials—Voiles, Linens, Nets and Batistes—govern the prices.

Confirmation and Graduation Dresses, $3.75 to $10. These dainty white frocks are only in the appropriate sizes, 12 and 14 years.

AN AMIABLE BRUTE

The Black Bear Is the Happy Hooligan of the Woods.

HE IS NOT A BIT FEROCIOUS.

This Much Maligned Animal Is Just a Lazy, Playful Loafer That Avoids Men and Fights or Works Only When He Is Compelled to Do So.

The black bear is neither ferocious nor dangerous. The most fitting name I have ever heard given him is the Happy Hooligan of the Woods. He is a lazy, playful loafer and has no evil intentions; but, like a shut-in boy or a boy with a task to perform, he wants company—does not know just what to do with himself.

The black bear has more human-like traits than any other animal I know. He is a boy in disguise—will not work long at anything unless at something to produce mischief. Occasionally he finds things dull and simply does not know what to do with himself. He is happy go lucky, and taking thought of the morrow is not one of his troubles. He is afraid of the grizzly and avoids man as though he were a pestilence.

He plans no harm. In other words the black bear is just the opposite in character of what he had long been thought and is still almost universally believed to be. A million writers and spoken stories have it that he is ferocious—a wanton, cruel killer. He fights or works only when compelled to do so.

He is the most plausible bluffer I have ever seen. With hair bristling on the back, upper lip stuck forward and an onrush, with a rapid volley of champing k-woof-f-f's, he appears terrible. He pulls himself out of many a predicament and obtains many an unearned morsel in this way. Most of his bluffs are for amusement. He will go far out of his way for the purpose of running.

A black bear climbs a tree almost as readily as a cat, and he climbs a small pole or a large tree with equal ease. The grizzly does not climb trees, but the black bear, with its catlike forepaws, can simply race up a tree trunk. Much of his time, both asleep and awake, is spend in treetops. He might almost be called a perching animal.

Like most animals the black bear has a local habitation. His territory is twenty or less miles in circumference, and in this he is born, lives and dies. In springtime he descends to feed on the earliest wild gardens of the foothills.

The black bear eats everything that is edible. Though omnivorous, his food is mainly that of a vegetarian. He digs out rich willow and aspen roots in the shallow and soft places and tears up or digs out numerous plants for their roots or tubers. Often he eats grass and devours hundreds of juicy weeds. During autumn I have seen him on the edges of snow fields and glaciers consuming thousands of unfortunate grasshoppers, flies and other insects there accumulated. He is particularly fond of ants—tears ant hills and decaying logs to pieces and licks up the ants as they come storming forth to bite him. He tears hundreds of rotten logs and stumps to pieces for grubs, ants and their eggs.

He freely eats honey, the bees and their nests. He catches mice and often amuses himself and makes a most amusing and manlike spectacle by chasing and catching grasshoppers. He will devour carrion. In a fish country he searches for fish and occasionally catches live ones, but he is too restless or shiftless to be a good fisherman.

The black bear is or was found pretty well distributed over North America. His color and activities vary some what with the locality, this variation being due perhaps to a difference of climate and in the food supply.

The black bear has a well developed brain and may be classed among the alert animals of the wild. Its senses are amazingly developed. They seem to be ever on duty.

Young black bears have good tempers and are playful in captivity, but if teased or annoyed they become troublesome and even dangerous with age. If thine enemy offend thee present him with a black bear cub that has been mistreated. He is an intense, high strung animal and, if subjected to annoyances, teasing or occasional cruelty, becomes revengeful and vindictive. Sometimes he will even look for trouble and, once in a fight, has the tenacity of a bulldog.

The black bear has never been protected as a game animal. [illegible] the seasons of the year, with gun and dogs, the hunter is allowed to pursue him. It would be well for a few years to have a closed season on bears. As he is verging on extinction and as he gives to the wilds much of their spirit, there ought to be a closed season to protect this rollicking fellow of the forest.

If I were asked to select the one emblematic animal that best gives and suggests the spirit and the spell of the great outdoors I should select the black bear.—Enos A. Mils in Saturday Evening Post.

Discouragement In a Laugh.

"Don't you always feel encouraged when people laugh?" asked the man at the club of another, who had the reputation of an after dinner speaker.

"Well," was the reply, "I once proposed marriage to a girl, but it didn't encourage me when she merely laughed."—Yonkers Statesman.

A lie always has a certain amount of weight with those who wish to believe it.—Rice.

DENMARK GIVES WOMEN THE VOTE

New Constitution in Effect Tomorrow Grants Equal Suffrage.

Copenhagen, June 4.—The new Constitution of Denmark, which goes into effect tomorrow, grants equal suffrage to men and women, and ends the protracted controversy for reform. The previous Constitution, adopted in 1866, after the disastrous war with Germany and Austria, was framed by the reactionaries, who had come into power. This objectionable Constitution superseded that of 1849, which was framed as a liberal foundation of government when Denmark passed from a despotism to popular rule.

The Danes are thanking the European War outbreak for their present good fortune. The giant conflict raging near at hand caused a cessation of the internal dissensions, but it was seen by the statesmen of the day that nothing short of a compromise could effect the solidarity of Denmark. It had been feared that a constitutional reform would disrupt the country, so bitter were the factions for and against. The unusual conditions thrust upon the country by the war amalgamated the feelings of both wings of the Danish political world to a point where compromise was easy and logical. The demand for reform was too broad for the conservatives to openly resist, so that the proposal for a gradual instead of immediate change was adopted.

Under the new Constitution, which will be subscribed to by King Christian tomorrow, electors must attain their thirty-fifth year to vote for candidates to the Landsting, or upper house. The age of twenty-five is necessary to vote for candidates for the Folketing, or lower house, which corresponds to the American House of Representatives. Under the former Constitution, elective rights in the case of the lower house were granted at the thirtieth year, but as a concession to the conservatives the limit will be reduced a year at each election, which will insure a period of sixteen years for the reduction to take place.

LONG TROUSERS ARE CENTURY OLD

London Tailor Was First to Introduce Breeches Hanging to the Shoes.

Long trousers are a hundred years old this year. It was just a century ago that a London tailor, one bright spring morning, walked jauntily down Bond street, in London, clad in the odd loose breeches that hung to his toes. He was a great curiosity, and his "freak" apparel created no small stir. The wits of our day, who ply their pens vigorously on the subject of women's dress, were far outdone by the jokesmiths of a century ago, when trousers were first worn. But the valiant tailor persisted, was the butt of London town, and thereby gave to modern man the clothing for his nether limbs.

It is hard at this distance of time to realize the storm of disapproval that attended the transition from knee breeches to trousers. The jaunty tailor was assaulted by a mob and was arrested for indecency. The Duke of Wellington, fresh from his laurels at Waterloo, was later impressed with the greater convenience of the new garment, and determined to popularize long trousers. So he had a pair made, and wore them to a ball. Despite his high standing as a popular hero, he was turned away with the ultimatum, "The guests at this ball must be dressed." But slowly and surely the fashion of long trousers displaced that of breeches, stockings, shoes and buckles. The real reason was economy of time in dressing. Chauncey Depew, referring to this saving, recently said: "A century of ten minutes saved each day by countless millions invents machinery, accumulates fortunes and fills libraries."

COLLEGE UNDER HAMMER.

Indiana, Pa., June 4—Among the property to be sold by the sheriff here today are the grounds and buildings of historic Blairsville Seminary, more familiarly known in later years as Blairsville College for Women. The school was organized 65 years ago, and hundreds of women in Western Pennsylvania obtained their education there. The college lacked efficient management during its later years, and it was finally closed two years ago.

ALL-DAY MEETING.

The Missionary and Aid Society, of Warren chapel, held an all-day sewing meeting in the parlors yesterday. In the morning clothing donated for the Freedmen's box was mended and in the afternoon the box was packed. At noon a luncheon was served in the parlors. The box of clothing will be sent to Rev. Abram Kendrick, at South Boston, Virginia, for distribution.

PENROD

Copyright, 1914, by Doubleday, Page & Company

The rapt look faded slowly. He sighed, but moved not.

"Penrod! We're having lunch early just on your account, so you'll have plenty of time to be dressed for the pageant. Hurry!"

There was silence in Penrod's aerie.

"Pen-rod!"

Mrs. Schofield's voice sounded nearer, indicating a threatened approach. Penrod bestirred himself. He blew out the lantern and shouted plaintively:

"Well, ain't I coming fast's I can?"

"Do hurry," returned the voice, withdrawing, and the kitchen door could be heard to close.

Replacing his manuscript and pencil in the cigar box, he carefully buried the box in the sawdust, put the lantern and oil can back in the soap box, adjusted the elevator for the reception of Duke, and in no uncertain tone invited the devoted animal to enter.

Duke stretched himself amiably, affecting not to hear and when this pretense became so obvious that even a dog could keep it up no longer sat down in a corner, facing it, his back to his master and his head perpendicular, nose upward, supported by the convergence of the two walls. This from a dog is the last word, the comble of the immutable. Penrod commanded, stormed, tried gentleness, persuaded with honeyed words and pictured rewards. Duke's eyes looked backward; otherwise he moved not. Time elapsed. Penrod stooped to flattery, finally to insincere caresses; then, losing patience, spouted sudden threats.

"Penrod, come down from that box this instant!"

"Ma'am?"

"Are you up in that sawdust box again?" As Mrs. Schofield had just heard her son's voice issue from the box and also as she knew he was there anyhow, her question must have been put for oratorical purposes only. "Because if you are," she continued promptly, "I'm going to ask your papa not to let you play there any"—

Penrod's forehead, his eyes, the tops of his ears and most of his hair became visible to her at the top of the box. "I ain't 'playing!'" he said indignantly.

"Well, what are you doing?"

"Just coming down," he replied in a grieved but patient tone.

"Then why don't you come?"

"I got Duke here. I got to get him down, haven't I? You don't suppose I want to leave a poor dog in here to starve, do you?"

"Well, hand him down over the side to me. Let me"—

"I'll get him down all right," said Penrod. "I got him up here and I guess I can get him down."

"Well then, do it."

"I will if you'll let me alone. If you'll go on back to the house I promise to be there inside of two minutes. Honest."

After her departure Penrod expended some finalities of eloquence upon Duke, then disgustedly gathered him up in his arms, dumped him into the basket and, shouting sternly, "All in for the ground floor—step back there, madam—all ready, Jim!" lowered dog and basket to the floor of the storeroom. Duke sprang out in tumultuous relief and bestowed frantic affection upon his master as the latter slid down from the box.

CHAPTER II.

The Costume.

AFTER lunch his mother and his sister Margaret, a pretty girl of nineteen, dressed him for the sacrifice. They stood him near his mother's bedroom window and did what they would to him.

During the earlier anguishes of the process he was mute, exceeding the pathos of the stricken calf in the shambles, but a student of eyes might have perceived in his soul the premonitory symptoms of a sinister uprising. At a rehearsal (in citizens' clothes) attended by mothers and grownup sisters, Mrs. Lora Rewbush had announced that she wished the costuming to be "as medieval and artistic as possible." Otherwise, and as to details, she said, she would leave the costumes to the good taste of the children's parents. Mrs. Schofield and Margaret were no archaeologists, but they knew that their taste was as good as that of other mothers and sisters concerned, so with perfect confidence they had planned and executed a costume for Penrod, and the only misgiving they felt was connected with the tractability of the Child Sir Lancelot himself.

Stripped to his underwear, he had been made to wash himself vehemently; then they began by shrouding his legs in a pair of silk stockings, once blue, but now mostly whitish. Upon Penrod they visibly surpassed mere ampleness, but they were long, and it required only a rather loose imagination to assume that they were tights.

The upper part of his body was next concealed from view by a garment so peculiar that its description becomes difficult. In 1886 Mrs. Schofield, then unmarried, had worn at her "coming out party" a dress of vivid salmon silk which had been remodeled after her marriage to accord with various epochs of fashion until a final unskillful campaign at a dye house had left it in a condition certain to attract much attention to the wearer. Mrs. Schofield had considered giving it to Della, the cook, but had decided not to do so, because you never could tell how Della was going to take things, and cooks were scarce.

It may have been the word "medieval" (in Mrs. Lora Rewbush's rich phrase) which had inspired the idea for a last and conspicuous usefulness. At all events the bodice of that once salmon dress, somewhat modified and moderated, now took a position for its farewell appearance in society upon the back, breast and arms of the Child Sir Lancelot.

The area thus costumed ceased at the waist, leaving a Jaeger-like and unmedieval gap thence to the tops of the stockings. The inventive genius of woman triumphantly bridged it, but in a manner which imposes upon history almost insuperable delicacies of narration. Penrod's father was an old fashioned man. The twentieth century had failed to shake his faith in red flannel for cold weather, and it was while Mrs. Schofield was putting away her husband's winter underwear that she perceived how hopelessly one of the elder specimens had dwindled, and simultaneously she received the inspiration which resulted in a pair of trunks for the Child Sir Lancelot and added an earnest bit of color, as well as a genuine touch of the middle ages, to his costume. Reversed, fore to aft with the greater part of the legs cut off and strips of silver braid covering the seams, this garment, she felt, was not traceable to its original source.

When it had been placed upon Penrod the stockings were attached to it by a system of safety pins, not very perceptible at a distance. Next, after being severely warned against stooping, Penrod got his feet into the slippers he wore to dancing school—"patent leather pumps," now decorated with large pink rosettes.

"If I can't stoop," he began smoldering, "I'd like to know how'm I goin' to kneel in the pag"—

"You must manage!" This, uttered through pins, was evidently thought to be sufficient.

They fastened some ruching about his slender neck, pinned ribbons at random all over him, and then Margaret thickly powdered his hair.

"Oh, yes; that's all right," she said, replying to a question put by her mother. "They always powdered their hair in colonial times."

"It doesn't seem right to me—exactly," objected Mrs. Schofield gently. "Sir Lancelot must have been ever so long before colonial times."

"That doesn't matter," Margaret reassured her. "Nobody'll know the difference, Mrs. Lora Rewbush least of all. I don't think she knows a thing about it, though, of course, she does write splendidly and the words of the pageant are just beautiful. Stand still, Penrod!" (The author of "Harold Ramorez" had moved convulsively.) "Besides, powdered hair's always becoming. Look at him. You'd hardly know it was Penrod!"

The pride and admiration with which she pronounced this undeniable truth might have been thought tactless, but Penrod, not analytical, found his spirits somewhat elevated. No mirror was in his range of vision, and, though he had submitted to cursory measurements of his person a week earlier, he had no previous acquaintance with the costume. He began to form a not unpleasing mental picture of his appearance, something somewhere between the portraits of George Washington and a vivid memory of Miss Julia Marlowe at a matinee of "Twelfth Night."

He was additionally cheered by a sword which had been borrowed from a neighbor who was a Knight of Pythias. Finally there was a mantle, an old golf cape of Margaret's. Fluffy polka dots of white cotton had been sewed to it generously; also it was ornamented with a large cross of red flannel, suggested by the picture of a crusader in a newspaper advertisement. The mantle was fastened to Penrod's shoulder—that is, to the shoulder of Mrs. Schofield's ex-bodice—by means of large safety pins and arranged to hang down behind him, touching his heels, but obscuring nowise the glory of his facade. Then at last he was allowed to step before a mirror.

It seems as though detective stories, or more properly speaking, mystery stories, are becoming more and more popular. The problem contained in such a story appears to appeal more strongly to a large number of readers than the plots in the majority of novels. Here are a few new stories of this character which are among the most interesting of the kind:

Quincy Adams Sawyer, Detective—Pidgin
Valley of Fear ..... Doyle
The Great Secret ..... Oppenheim
The Sign at Six ..... White
The Gold Bag ..... Wells
Mystery of 31 New Inn .... Freeman
Christopher Quarles ..... Brebner
November Joe ..... Pritchard
The Innocence of Father Brown—Chesterton
The Wisdom of Father Brown—Chesterton

For the general reader, the library contains no more valuable books than a half dozen or so which deal with the problem of living our ordinary lives in the best possible way, not necessarily from the standpoint of efficiency alone, but from that of health and enjoyment. The four or five books mentioned below are among the best of these. They are not sermons, in fact at least one of them is written in the form of fiction, but they are as interesting as novels and any one of them may easily prove to be of more actual value to the reader than all the fiction in the library. Here are four or five choice ones:

The Health Master ..... Adams
How to Live On Twenty-four Hours a Day ..... Bennett
The Common Man and His Wife—Bennett
The Efficient Life ..... Gulick
Mind and Work ..... Gulick
Making Life Worth While .... Fisher

In the rush of making a living or of looking after the household duties, probably not one of us has devoted a minute in the last year, or perhaps in his life-time, in trying to realize what the world would be if there were no books. Imagine for instance, what it would be to know nothing of the way in which American independence was won; nothing of Bunker Hill; nothing of Washington or Franklin except the little, half true and half mistaken, that your fathers could remember, of what their fathers had repeated, of what their fathers had told them. Think what it would be to have nothing but shadowy traditions of the voyage of Columbus, of the coming of the Mayflower and of the planting of life in the New World from Old World stocks. Think what it would be to know no more of the origin of the American people, their lives and growth to greatness, than the Romans knew of their Latin beginnings, and to know no more of Rome herself than we might guess from the ruins she has left! Think what it would be to have the whole story of Athens and Greece drop out of our knowledge and to be unaware that Marathon was ever fought or that Socrates ever lived; to have no line from Homer, no thought from Plato, no message from Isaiah and no Sermon on the Mount, except as these might have survived through distorted legends. Can you imagine a bookless world like that and not shrink with horror from the thought of it?

Yet the man and woman who take nothing from books, are choosing to live as though mankind had received nothing from the past through the written word. How can life be worth living on such terms as that?

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Why the Summer Comes to Scandinavia.

Wanted the King to Send Her Back.

"I MUST tell you a little story about Scandinavia tonight, kiddies," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn, beginning the evening story. "It's a sort of fairy story, too, but it is rather a pretty one.

"Scandinavia, you know, is the name given to Norway and Sweden, those countries away up at the top of Europe. And a pretty legend is told about how summer came to the land.

"You know, children, that they used to live in icehouses altogether in that country, and they didn't have any summer. Of course this is just a story, but we'll make believe it's true just by applying that little ointment to our eyes which we call imagination.

"The ruler of Scandinavia was called the king of the north, and he was a big, blustering fellow, just made for the cold outdoors. He was something as Santa Claus would be like if he were tall instead of short and fat and before he had any whiskers—in other words, when Santa Claus was a lad—for this king of the north was quite young.

"Now, this king of the north made up his mind that he would be married, but he was a particular king, and none of the northern princesses pleased his fancy, though he called upon them all and drank tea with them. And, though they were beautiful, he just didn't care about them.

"But at last he went on a trip to the south of Europe, and there was a very lovely princess whom he loved at once. But her father would not give his consent to her marrying the king of the north, for he said it was so cold up there that his lovely daughter would be frozen right into an icicle.

"But the king of the north was very much in earnest, for he just would marry that princess. He told the king of the south that if he allowed him to wed his daughter he would make her happy, but if he refused he would stay in the south and freeze things stiff.

"Then the king of the south was scared, and he let his daughter marry the king of Scandinavia. But what do you think, children? When the princess of the south got up there, where all the houses were built of ice, those icehouses began to melt and leak.

"The people wanted the king to send her back, but he would not. And every day it grew hotter and hotter, and the icehouses melted all the more.

"Then the king was sorry for his people, and he agreed to send his bride home to the south, but each year she must return for a few months.

"So when the summer comes to Scandinavia and the ice begins to melt the children there all say that the queen of the south has come to visit her king of the north."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. WM. LEONARD

It was soon evident that the baby was in for a severe spell of sickness.

"I am discouraged about him; he had begun to pick up flesh and seemed so well and now——" Nell drooped in her chair.

"The thing to do is to save yourself in every way possible, so you can care for him and not be sick yourself," said the capable Olive. "Let me do all the nursing possible. I am strong as—what is an appropriate comparison for a girl? It's hardly ladylike to be as strong as I am," laughed the girl. "The day has gone by when a woman must be pale and delicate to be interesting."

The women looked up with a start; the maid had let the doctor in unnoticed. "We are going to get the roses back in Mrs. Morton's cheeks as soon as we can reduce this little chap to order," said the doctor, going up to the crib.

"He still has a high temperature. Now, Mrs. Morton, you must let your husband take care of the baby tonight. It's imperative that you get sleep to enable you to meet the crisis."

"Let me care for him tonight," begged Olive. "I have lost no sleep, and I am counted a good nurse among my home folks. The doctor will tell me what is to be done." She rose and went toward the crib.

"The directions are all written out on this tablet. I do not anticipate any change for twenty-four hours, but telephone if anything unusual occurs. You should get to sleep as soon as possible. You are utterly fused up, Mrs. Morton," he continued turning to Nell.

"I'll set the alarm for two o'clock and relieve you," said Dick.

"That will wake Nell up, and it is entirely unnecessary. I can get up tomorrow all I need to." Olive was arranging the table by the crib.

"I am sure the baby will be in good hands and I will look in again before going to bed. You will get a much-needed rest," and the doctor left the room.

Olive came into the sick room in half an hour in a soft, dark kimona, with a book in her hand.

"Good night, dear," she said to the sad-eyed, anxious mother.

"I think I shall be down in an hour or two. I would not go if there was the least thing I could do. He lies there in a stupor, so hot—so hot——" her voice broke.

"Come, Nell," urged Dick, "for his sake try to get a little strength," and he put his arm around her and half carried her up the stairs.

"I am so relieved that Mrs. Morton is asleep; she would be down to hear what I thought of the baby's condition if she were awake." The doctor was taking the baby's temperature and seeing that he was ready for the night. "I am sure you will have a quiet night."

"Do you think you can pull him through?" asked Olive anxiously. "I believe it would kill her to lose him."

"I can only hope for the best. He is a very sick baby," replied the doctor, taking his finger from his pulse. "I am glad that he has a capable nurse," he added as he took his leave.

Nell slept the sleep of utter exhaustion and was horrified to find it light when she awoke, greatly refreshed, the next morning. She needed all her strength for the wearing, anxious day ahead of her.

Household Hints..

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To keep celery do not put in water; wrap in cloth wet in cold water and place on ice.

To keep lettuce crisp, wrap in paper bag and place on ice. It will keep a week in this way.

When preparing greens, especially of the wild variety, nothing should be taken for granted, since invisible worms are very difficult to dislodge. After washing them almost leaf by leaf and through several waters, if you let them stand an hour or more in strong salt water you may be surprised to find that more worms, stupefied by the salt, have dropped to the bottom of the pan, when but for this precaution their presence would have remained undiscovered.

An excellent mucilage can be made from the gummy substance obtained from peach, cherry or plum trees. Place gum in a bottle and pour over it enough water to cover; seal tightly and let set for four or five days.

To Get Rid of Ants—Do not wait until ants are in the house to begin the war against them, but look for the root of the evil in the yard and cellar. Flood the hills with coal oil. Where this endangers grass or vines, pour in a pail of water. If persistent in this treatment the ants will leave the premises.

NEW GARDEN HOES

The old-fashioned hoe mounted on a handle has been modified into various forms. One has a blade more like a crescent; another an inverted heart shaped blade which does better work in hilling up, especially around tomatoes, etc., than the old blunt type. Be sure the handles are long enough—even if they have to be spliced—because a great deal of the fatigue of hoeing or other work with a handle tool is caused by working with a too short handle. Efficiency and right height can be applied in the garden as well as in the kitchen.

THE TABLE

Baked Chicken Custard—A fine way to use leftover chicken; a delicious dish. Cut off every scrap of meat from chicken bones and pass it through meat chopper. Measure meat and mix it with an equal amount of boiled rice; season to taste with salt and pepper and press together in a round form in the center of baking dish. Make a custard of two beaten eggs, one pint milk and two tablespoons flour moistened with a little milk or water. If you have a few cooked peas add those also. Pour custard around chicken and rice and bake until custard is set. Fine hot or cold.

Fruit Float—Two cups granulated sugar, juice of one lemon, one tablespoon butter, one quart boiling water, four tablespoons cornstarch wet with cold water. Cook until thick. When cold pour over four oranges and two bananas which have been cut into small pieces and sprinkled with sugar. Cover top with shredded cocoanut and serve cold. This will serve eight.

Beef Loaf—One pound ground pork, one pound ground beef, ten crackers, one and one-half cups cream, two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Make in two loaves. Bake one and one-half hours or until done.

Asparagus Salad—Boil a nice bunch of asparagus twenty minutes; add teaspoon salt, cook until tender (perhaps ten minutes), drain carefully so as not to break. Cool and just before serving place on ice for a few minutes, then cover with salad or mayonnaise dressing. Garnish with chopped parsley if one likes.

SIMPLE "FIRST AIDS"

Poison may be rendered harmless by immediately swallowing two gills of sweet oil. The oil will neutralize every form of vegetable or mineral poison.

Sleeplessness may be overcome by drinking a cup of hot cocoa, without sugar, just before retiring.

For burns, cover a soft cloth with a thick layer of raw white potato and apply to the burned part with the potato next to the skin.

Sick Headache—A Turkish towel wrung out of very hot water and applied to the back of the neck will often relieve sick headache in a few minutes.

To cool beds, slip a sheet of Chinese matting between the sheet and mattress. Fill a hot water bottle with ice water, which lay beneath the pillow on a hot night.

For tired, burning feet, bathe them in hot water to which a little good vinegar has been added, then rub with alcohol.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Although absolutely devoid of gruesomeness or anything to produce a depressing effect, a feature photoplay will be shown at Proctor's Theatre tomorrow, which cost the lives of eight men in its taking. The production is that of "Where Cowboy Is King," a four-part film conceived by the American Lifeograph Company, and depicts life as it exists on the prairies between the Mississippi River and the Pacific coast. The action includes such gripping sights as the taming of wild horses, ferocious steer, and the buffalo, the stage coach race, cowgirls mastering the bucking bronchos, Maverick races, Indian pony races, Indian relay races, cowboys riding, the pony express, Squaw races, roping and tying a steer in the world's record of 49 seconds, and many other feats of the most dangerous sort.

It was while these scenes were being photographed that eight participants at various times met their death. Several men were thrown from horses and trampled upon while others were killed through accidents of a varying nature. None of these are seen in the picture, however, as they were not counted upon and anything that has a tendency toward the gruesome has been taken out of the film. The facts are only related to show what must be undergone in order to produce absolute realism in presenting a proper picture of that part of the United States where the cowboy is king. The film pulsates with the spirit of the West, not the imaginary West, but the real West, which the pioneer seeker found, fought for and won.

The continuation of the serial story, "The Goddess," will be displayed tomorrow, and another Paramount series of Travel Pictures will also be shown. All mentioned are only a portion of the Proctor Saturday announcement as two reel comedies and dramas are always included. For today the patrons have "Anna Karenina," featuring Betty Nansen; the continuation of "The Exploits of Elaine" and several other pictures. Proctor's symphony orchestra offers a fine musical program at every performance, thus affording entertainment for the hearing while the eyes are feasting upon the screen.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Ghosts," based on Ibsen's gripping drama, will be the dramatic feature of the meritorious program at the U. S. Astor Theatre, this afternoon and evening. Henry Walthall, who played one of the leading roles in "The Birth of a Nation," will portray a principal character in "Ghosts." This picture, grim in its mockery of the sins of society and overpowering in its realism and fidelity to natural conditions, is a dramatic preachment that stirs the imagination and thrills the heart. With its many powerful situations and climaxes, it stands out in bold relief as one of Ibsen's greatest dramatic successes. The story of the play lends itself so admirably to the screen that had it been written primarily as a motion picture production and not as one of the stage's masterpieces, it would have been termed remarkable. The production is richly mounted and in good taste, and throughout the dignity and artistry of Mr. Walthall and his supporting cast are conspicuously evident.

"The Lonesome Heart" will be shown tomorrow. It is a film of engrossing appeal, quite up to the standard of "Ghosts" and will afford an afternoon or evening of bully entertainment. A splendid lot of comedies and dramas will also be screened today and tomorrow.

"SIEGFRIED" AT HARVARD.

Boston, June 4—Open-air opera, an ambitious and important undertaking, will be introduced to music lovers of the East in Harvard Stadium tonight. The pastoral opera "Siegfried," by Wagner, requires an outdoor setting, and the touch of a starlit night will give a shade of romance to the performance. The stage has been placed at the open end of the big horse-shoe, and it has a sounding board which will throw the music around the big bowl. Mesdames Gadski and Schumann-Heinck, and Messrs. Goritz, Sembach and Reiss are in leading roles, an orchestra of 120 pieces has been provided and 20,000 will attend the unique performance.

CLEAN MOTOR FUEL

CLEAN Motor Fuel means more miles per gallon, freedom from frequent carburetor adjustments and greater motoring pleasure. You cannot be too careful about what goes into your tank. Carbon in cylinders is often due to the use of inferior gasoline—"blends" and "mixtures."

Standard Motor Gasoline is a clean, straight-distilled product, not a mixture. It is absolutely homogeneous—every drop like every other drop. You get the same steady power-impulses whether you are running on the top or on the bottom of your tank.

Saying "Standard Motor Gasoline" to the garage man is like asking to see the pure food label on the provisions you buy for yourself. It is an easy way to make sure of getting the best motor fuel, wherever you fill your tank.

To end your friction troubles and all excessive wear, use Polarine Oil and Greases, obtainable wherever you see the "Standard Motor Gasoline Service Station" sign.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — SOME FOLKS ARE JUST NATURALLY BORN TO TROUBLE — BY "HOP"

TWELVE APPOINTED TO FOREIGN WORK

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead Attended Conference of Y. W. C. A. Secretaries.

Twelve young women, the largest number ever sent into foreign lands in one year by the Young Women's Christian Association, were appointed for work in China, Japan, India and South America as secretaries yesterday, at the annual conference of Secretaries to Foreign Countries, which was held at the home of Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

The secretaries for work in China are the Misses Jessie Knickerbocker Axell, Waverly, N. Y.; Helen Harris, Minneapolis, Minn.; Jean G. Paxton, Glasgow, Va.; Edith Orpha Sawyer, Denver; Catherine S. Vance, Corvallis, Ore., and Harriet Machin Smith, who has already spent five years in China as National Office Secretary.

Going to India are the Misses Martha Downey, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Myra Withers, Kansas City, Mo., and Lela Guitner, Westerville, Ohio, who has been engaged for two years in the work of the Young Women's Christian Association in India. Miss Ruth Emerson, of Cincinnati, and Miss Hazel P. Verry, of Pawtucket, R. I., are to go to Japan. Going to South America are the Misses Marion Louise Bliem, of San Antonio, Texas; and Irene Sheppard, of Germantown, Penn. Miss Taka Kato, of Tokyo, Japan, and Miss Caroline Y. Lee, of Canton, China, who have just graduated from the National Training School, after several years in this country, will return to their own homes to work for the Y. W. C. A. Forty young women will now be in the foreign field working for the association.

At the conference yesterday were Mrs. Robert Elliott Speer, president of the National Board; Miss Mabel Cratty, general secretary; Miss Caroline B. Dow, dean National Training School; Mrs. John R. Mott, Mrs. Augustus Baldwin Wadsworth, of Albany, and Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, of Plainfield.

The conference will continue to June 11.

South Plainfield.

Owing to the fact that a great deal of the Daily Press news in the South Plainfield column is copied and appears a few nights later in the South Plainfield column of the Courier-News, the local reporter for the Press decided that he would play a little joke on the Courier-News reporter. In last Friday night's edition of the Press it appeared that Dr. James Nelots, a very prominent physician of New York, had plans out for the erection of a bungalow on his property on the South Plainfield Heights, and he expected to have the building finished and his family moved here by the first of July. This same item appeared in the Courier in the South Plainfield column last night, and the reader will appreciate the joke by spelling Nelots backward, which is "stolen."

Mrs. William Norman and daughter, Evelyn, who have been the guests of Mrs. Norman's mother, in South River, have returned.

Miss Erna Shurig is being detained from her studies in the Plainfield Business College by illness.

Mr[illegible] and daughter, Flore[illegible] been the guests of Mr[illegible]ory, of Bound Brook, have returned home.

Mrs. William Miller, who has been visiting friends in Easton, Pa., has returned home.

Howard Norman has accepted a position in the office of the Spicer Manufacturing Company. This position was formerly filled by John Ripgee, who was promoted to a position in another branch of the shop.

Mrs. Raymond Smith, of Stanton, is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Randolph.

Miss Isabell Deleney, of Plainfield, has returned home after spending a few days with her father, Daniel Deleney.

The final examinations for the pupils in the eighth grade throughout the township will be concluded tomorrow.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Following the baseball game tomorrow afternoon on the Belmont avenue field, the girls will hold a "Bacon Bat" on the mountains, returning home about 8 o'clock. All girls are invited to come.

"Ministering the Gift," the pageant presented last Friday on the rear lawn of the Y. W. C. A., will be repeated tonight. The final rehearsal was held last night, and everything promises to be even more beautiful than the former presentation. The pageant is not restricted to women only. Gentlemen are invited to attend.

A Silver Bay vesper service will be held at the association Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. At this time Miss Laura Parker, general secretary of the Bronx Y. W. C. A., New York, will make an address on "Silver Bay." Miss Violet Jewell will render several violin solos.

You May Find a Worker Trained and Fit to do Your Work.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

Most of the real estate sold today in Plainfield will be sold as a direct result of classified advertising.

ENDORSE A PLAN FOR BIG REVIVAL

William D. Murray Named as Chairman of Committee to Present Scheme of Action.

MAY BUILD TABERNACLE

Y. M. C. A. Directors Have Found That Whisky is Being Used by High School Students at Dances, and That Fast Set is Detrimental.

Definite steps leading to the holding of a great series of evangelistic services in Plainfield were taken at a meeting held last night, at the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., at which over fifty clergymen and laymen of different Protestant denominations were present. The meeting was called by the Plainfield Ministers' Association, following a suggestion which came to them from the directors of the Y. M. C. A., and before adjournment it was definitely decided to go ahead with the work, a committee on plan and scope being authorized with William D. Murray as its chairman. President Frank Fletcher, of the Ministers' Association, was in the chair.

When the meeting was called to order, after a short prayer by Rev. Dr. John Sheriden Zelie, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson was asked by the chairman to explain the cause of the gathering. In a few words he told how the Y. M. C. A. directors had suggested the holding of the evangelistic services, and then W. D. Murray, president of that organization, spoke about the need in this city. He said that in their work for young men and boys in the city it was found that there were hundreds who could not be reached in the ordinary way by the churches, as they would not go into the regular edifices. It was thought by the Y. M. C. A. officers that if some special services, extending over a period of six weeks were held, possibly in a specially erected tabernacle, that hundreds of these people whom the churches could not reach could be brought to a religious frame of mind.

Mr. Murray said that evidence of the need of such services in this city was found in the fact that recently, after some of the dances in the High School, whiskey bottles had been discovered in the teachers' desks, and that on one or two occasions High School boys had been seen under the influence of liquor at these dances. He also said that it was a well known fact that there was a "fast set" in this city, men and women, and these people could only be reached by some extraordinary methods, such as were proposed by the services. He said that he knew of one man who would give $500 to aid the work.

Others who spoke in favor of holding the meetings were Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, Rev. Edward S. Ralston, President Robert Butler, of the local C. E. Union, Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson and others. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, said that while his church would undoubtedly be a party to such a series of meetings, that he felt that a committee should be appointed to lay out a plan, and in this he was concurred in by Howard Williams, David M. Runyon and others. Mr. Stevenson and Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson said that they had planned for revival services at their churches in the fall or winter, and that it would be hard to change their plans, but that they did not want it thought that these were being run in opposition to the proposed joint movement.

After considerable discussion a motion by Rev. Mr. Ralston was adopted that it was the sense of the meeting that such a series of revivals be held, and that was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. Then Howard Williams made a motion for the appointment of a committee, the number upon it to be determined by the chair, to suggest a plan for the meetings and report back on June 17. This was adopted, after which, at the suggestion of Dr. Anderson, the president was instructed to place W. D. Murray at the head of the committee, and also to place Mr. Butler on it. The committee will be named in a few days, after Mr. Fletcher gets a chance to see the ministers of the various churches, to secure representatives.

SALE WAS A SUCCESS.

The receipts of the strawberry festival held under the auspices of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association, Thursday night, will reach about $35. This money will go into the fund for the new recreation hall.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The meeting of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, which was to have been held last night, was postponed for one week. The officers for the coming year will be elected at that time.

LOCAL BOY AWARDED PRIZE FOR ORATION

Gold Medal Presented to Randolph Stelle in P. H. S. Last Night.

Judges in the Union County Inter-High School declamation contest held in the Plainfield High School last night, rendered a decision that carried with it first prize for Randolph Stelle, a local schoolboy. Samuel Tartalsky, of Battin High School, Elizabeth, was awarded second honers, and a tie resulted for third honors between Morris Pasko, of Battin High School, and William Mahnken, of Roselle High School. The successful competitors will receive gold, silver and bronze medals in the order named.

The wining oration was entitled, "The Merchant Marine," and the Plainfield High School contestant delivered it in a clear and eloquent style. Adelbert Whitford, the other local entrant, spoke on "The Panama Canal" and was the only competitor who did not get a place. Tartalsky spoke on "Imperishable Names;" Pasko took the same title as Stelle, and Mahnken duplicated Whitford's oration.

The meeting brought together two local boys, two from Roselle and two from Elizabeth. A large number of persons heard the discourses and the competition was keen.

MISS HICKEY THE BRIDE OF GEORGE D. PEARSON

Miss Emily Mary Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hickey, of South Second street, and George Drewry Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pearson, of Prescott place, were married last night by Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage.

Miss Mary F. Hickey, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and Stanley Pearson, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The couple will reside in this city where Mr. Pearson is employed as a machinist.

"SUFFRAGE TEA" TO BE GIVEN IN "PORCELAIN HOUSE"

Invitations are about to be issued to a "Suffrage Tea" to be held next Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. S. Carvalho, 400 West Eighth street. Members of the Suffrage League and their friends of both sexes will be asked to attend at 3:30 o'clock. They will be received in what has long been called the "Porcelain House." As a matter of fact the porcelains have been replaced by a fine collection of old masters and has become a picture gallery that art lovers are eager to visit. Adjoining the gallery is a perfect example of an Elizabethian room. The charming little garden, walled in from the street, will be a delightful setting for the tea party providing the weather man can be cajoled into producing some good yellow suffrage sunshine.

The suffragists have secured Miss Louise Connelly, of Summit, to make a speech at 4 o'clock. Her sunny humor, driving home stern facts, is counted on to make a bright afternoon for all who are fortunate enough to hear her.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASED.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild added three new names to its list last night, but because of one death this increases the list two over last week. Any donations of flowers, fruit and food suitable for the sick may be sent to the W. C. T. U. rooms, 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building, Monday afternoon from 4 to 6, and Tuesday morning 9 to 10:30. Persons living at Netherwood may send their donations to Miss Miller, 919 East Seventh street, and members of the boys' auxiliary will call for same. Anyone unable to send may telephone J. M. Harper, at 758 West Sixth street, Saturday night, and a boy will call Monday afternoon for same. Next Friday night, Rev. E. C. Conover will be the speaker.

ATTENDED NAVAL BALL.

Miss Marjorie Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, attended the grand ball of the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis, last night. This event closes the festivities of June week, which is considered the biggest and gayest times of the year at that place. Miss Burtis also attended the graduation exercises yesterday morning and has been in Annapolis all week enjoying the closing social time. Today the middies embark on the various ships.

URGENT NEED FOR WOODEN LEGS

Belgian Relief Commission Makes Appeal Through Local Committee.

BEDDING ALSO WANTED

Only One Factory Left in France Where Wooden Legs and Arms Can Be Procured Makes Demand Upon This Country Greater.

An urgent appeal for funds to furnish mattresses upon which the typhoid victims in Serbia may be made more comfortable and for money to buy wooden legs and arms, has been received by Mrs. Frederick G. Wallace, head of the local Belgian Relief Fund. The appeal comes in a letter from Nina L. Duryea, who is in charge of the work in Paris, and as it is entirely self-explanatory it is reprinted herewith, just as received by Mrs. Wallace.

Hotel Roosevelt,
Paris, France,
May 4, 1915.

My dear Mrs. Walace:

The women of Plainfield have shown such compassionate generosity in sending me help for our victims, that I venture to beg them to be kind again.

The scope of my relief work has so widened that, to be in touch with every need, my headquarters are now in Paris, at above address. The Commission for Belgian Relief has officially announced that Belgians need no more clothing. After months of war, new and unconsidered conditions claim your pity.

Near Nisch, in Servia, there is a hospital where 1,400 typhus patients lie on the plank floor, without new straw beneath fever-racked bodies. In Paris, enough money has been acquired to pay 100 war impoverished women twenty cents a day to make ticks for cotton mattresses, which will be filled at their destination; but it is impossible to buy either ticking or spools of cotton in sufficient quantity. No shop will now sell more than one spool to an individual. I beg you to gather together your friends and send ticking and numbers 30 and 50 white cotton, that these penniless women may earn, and that victims of war may be on beds, while fighting a second grim battle against Death—or send ticks all made.

Another fact, after months in hospitals, thousands of soldiers are now creeping out into sunshine, without legs and arms, piteously dangling between crutches. They sit in a brooding despair facing a future of poverty and incapacity. Wooden arms and legs are impossible to get here, as only one small factory remains unburned by Germans.

Can you collect a quarter of a dollar from each friend or send this letter to your local papers, asking them to start a subscription? Then with that money, please buy wooden stumps and arms with hook in end (for hand) and ship them to me here? The simplest will do. Help these mutilated heroes.

Anything you send will be welcome; disinfectants against not improbable pestilence; old clothes, ether and tonics. Address thus, and they will come free and quickly.

Duryea, American Relief,
Clearing House, Pier 57, North River,
N. Y.

Please be sure to put on outside of cases also your name and address and what is in case (not detail) that I may acknowledge their receipt. What you send will be forwarded without red tape with your name to those whose gratitude will be yours.

Sincerely yours,
Nina L. Duryea.

Help for any of the causes mentioned in the letter should be sent direct, but it is requested that Mrs. Wallace be notified so that a record of Plainfield's charities may be kept. Money contributions sent to the Daily Press office will be immediately placed in the right hands, and it is hoped that a large sum will come for that purpose.

WM. B. ANDERSON DIES IN 35TH YEAR

Well Known and Popular Young Man Succumbs to Long Illness.

Following a long illness through which he had been a brave and patient sufferer, William B. Anderson, a well-known and popular local young man, died last night at Bonnie Burn. His health began to fail him five years ago and since that time he had been a patient at various institutions, one of which was Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was under treatment for a year following a difficult surgical operation. The funeral will be held at the home of his uncle, Joseph Brown, of 914 West Third street, Monday afternoon at 2:30 and in Hope chapel at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Anderson was a native of Scotland where he was born thirty-five years ago. He came to Plainfield in 1907 and worked as a slater for Councilman John H. Cose. He was a member of Hope chapel and took a prominent part in several of the young men's minstrel shows. He was possesed of a beautiful tenor voice and there are many who recall his singing. He was never happier than when yeoddling one of his favorite pieces and during his stays at various hospitals he was always willing to contribute his services at any entertainment. Although living here but a few years he had made a host of friends, to all of whom news of his death is received with keen regret. His only local relative is his uncle, Joseph Brown, but he also has two sisters and a brother. The last named lives in Australia and of the sisters one is in Scotland and the other in Ireland. He was a member of Clan Mackenzie, Order of Scottish Clans, also of Hope chapel church and Sunday-school.

The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Rev Frederic L. Greene will assist. The members of the Young Men's Association and his classmates in the Sunday-school are making arrangements to attend.

MRS. GOLDSTEIN'S CHARGES DISMISSED IN BORO COURT

What bore the appearances of a neighbors' squabble was aired before Recorder Fred Hand, in the borough police court, this morning, when Mrs. L. B. Goldstein, of Duer street, preferred charges of disorderly conduct against Mrs. Andrew Judge, who lives nearby. The complaining witness alleged that Mrs. Judge had instructed her children to "beat up" the Goldstein youngsters, thereby creating a disturbance in the neighborhood and hurting the feelings as well as the reputations of the complainant's children.

Robert Newton Crane, counsel for Mrs. Judge, was able to prove to the satisfaction of the court, that the charges grew out of animosity between the two women and that the allegations were of a petty nature, warranting no consideration by the borough magistrate. The case was accordingly dismissed. William Newcorn represented Mrs. Goldstein.

PENN STATE GRADUATES.

Alfred Manley, John Keney and Sidney Karr, of this city, will be graduated from Penn State College next week. Gordon Moy, who is a junior at Penn State, will leave college to take up the study of law.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

DEATH COMES TO FORMER RESIDENT

Samuel St. John McCutchen Passes Away at His Summer Home at Belmar.

HAD MANY FRIENDS

Served Three Terms as Member of the State Board of Education—Was Lawyer by Profession and Graduate of Yale.

Samuel St. John McCutchen, for many years one of the borough's most prominent residents, died last night at his summer home at Belmar. He has been ailing for many months with a complication of troubles and his condition became serious two weeks ago.

Mr. McCutchen was sixty-six years old and was a native of New York although he had resided in this vicinity from the time that he was a young man. His father, the late William McCutchen, lived for many years at Central avenue and Sixth street. The home of the deceased for a long time was on Rockview avenue and just previously to leaving the borough to make his home in New York city or Belmar resided on Myrtle avenue

Following his graduation from Yale, where he made Skull and Bones, Mr. McCutchen took up the practice of law in New York city and had been very successful throughout his career. He was particularly interested in school matters aside from his business, and served on the North Plainfield Board. In 1896 he was appointed a member of the State Board of Education by Governor Griggs and was re-appointed by Governors Voorhees and Stokes, serving in all fifteen years. He was legislated out of office in 1911 through the Frelinghuysen bill which created the present small board. Mr. McCutchen was also fond of athletics and all the old time fans will recall his membership with the popular Plainfield Crescent team.

Besides his wife, Mr. McCutchen is survived by two sons, William and Roy McCutchen, both of whom reside at the parental home. He is also survived by one brother, Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, the borough, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Rhees, of Brooklyn. He was a member of the First Baptist church and had held the office of trustee for many years.

The funeral service will be held at the home of Charles W. McCutchen, 21 Rockview avenue, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong.

ALUMNAE GIVE A DANCE TO SENIORS

Delightful Affair Enjoyed at the Hartridge Auditorium Last Night.

The annual commencement dance of the Hartridge School in honor of the senior class was given at the school auditorium last evening and was a delightful entertainment. The members of the senior class had decorated the large hall with masses of white flowers, the classrooms on the first floor had been transformed into sitting rooms and the large piazza on the playground side of the building was hung with Japanese lanterns, making a very spacious place for a promenade.

Miss Hartridge received with the members of the senior class, Miss Margaret Mills, president; Miss Augusta Burke, Miss Bessie Jewett, Miss Mary Fiske, Miss Lillian Fiske, Miss Helen Horner, of Mineapolis; Miss Marjorie Dobbins, of Pasadena, and Miss Winifred Campbell, of Montclair. There were over two hundred and fifty guests present including a number of the alumnae.

ITALIAN FINED FOR PART IN ARGUMENT

Louis Lombardi Paid $25 for Murderous Attack on Fellow Countryman.

Charged with assaulting Salvadore Pelligren with a penknife during a melee on Cottage place last Sunday night, Salvadore and Louis Lombardi were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court, this morning, the latter Lombardi brother being sentenced to pay a fine of $25 following the hearing. The other brother was given a suspended sentence. John P. Owens represented the complaining witness and Francis J. Blatz was counsel for the Lombardi brothers.

During a fight Louis Lombardi is alleged to have taken a knife away from Pelligren and stabbed him in the hand, nearly severing one finger. Pelligren was also badly beaten about the face and body, presenting a battered appearance in court this morning.

Evidence produced at the trial indicated that both parties were to blame in the matter, but in view of the fact that a complaint had only been made against the Lombardi brothers, the judge had authority to fine only the guilty brother. The men were murderously assaulting each other when Inspector Higgins happened along in a trolley uniform, and the men were frightened away, thinking that he was a policeman. It is probable that Pelligren would have been killed had not Higgins appeared on the scene.

JURY'S DECISION RENDERED IN FAVOR OF DEFENDANT IN SUIT

Following a deliberation of eleven minutes the jury in the case of the Elk Realty Company against Jacob Vantoble to recover $200 alleged to have been due on an incompleted contract, this morning, returned a verdict in favor of Vantoble in the Plainfield District Court before Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Sr. Robert Newton Crane represented Vantoble and William Newcorn and Francis J. Blatz were counsel for the plaintiff.

According to evidence produced at the trial Vantoble withheld the amount of money agreed to be paid for a lot because the sellers had failed to live up to the terms of the contract. Vantoble admitted that he had bought a lot from the Realty Company, but said that the concern had agreed to make certain water and gas connections to the street. The jury's verdict was based primarily on the fact that evidence indicated that the Realty Company had failed to fulfill the terms agreed upon.

FIREWORKS ORDINANCE IS PASSED BY BORO COUNCIL

After several unsuccessful attempts at passage in previous years, the Borough Council, at its June meeting last night, adopted an ordinance restricting the sale of firecrackers and other explosives. The document was introduced at the May meeting by Councilman Allan Cowperthwaite and was accepted by all the councilmen except Milne and Stahl on third presentation last night.

The new law will take effect immediately, regulating the sale of explosives for the coming Independence Day. It is almost an exact duplicate of the ordinance long in vogue on this side of the brook. The restrictions over here have proven invaluable and it was with an idea to better conditions in North Plainfield that the Council again took the issue.

London, June 5.—German airships made a raid on the east and southeast coasts of England last night and early this morning, according to an official statement this noon. Bombs were dropped at various places, but little material damage was done, and the casualties so far reported are very few.

Five additional ships have been reported torpedoed by German submarines in the last twenty-four hours, making a total of nine in the last two days. Three of the nine vessels were neutral. The others were all British.

A blockade of the ports of Asia Minor was declared beginning June 2, according to an announcement by the Admiralty. French and British vessels are guarding the ports to stop all traffic to or from Turkey.

Rome, June 5.—The Austrians are reported to have evacuated Rovereto, after practically destroying the city. Rovereto is in the Adiage Valley, 15 miles south of Trent. It was officially announced several days ago that the Italians had captured heights north of Ala, from which they could dominate Rovereto with their guns.

Paris, June 5.—Fighting between the French and Germans north of Arras was again the feature of the War Office statement today. The Germans brought up fresh troops, launching the most violent counter attack around the Souchez sugar factory, but all attacks were repulsed. An advance post of Germans near Souchez was captured.

Using a gun of the same type as that with which they recently bombarded Dunkirk, the Germans have shelled Verdun, but little damage was done. The French have bombarded Metz.

Petrograd, June 5.—The following official statement was issued here today:

"In the Shavli region on Wednesday and Thursday there were only skirmishes. German balloons have dropped bombs filled with gases upon the Bzura and Rawka River fronts. In Galicia, on the left bank of the lower San and to the confluence of the Wisloka with the San, we gained further successes. Between Przemysl and the Dneister, in region of Krukience, we again backed the enemy and inflicted enormous losses."

Brest, June 5.—The French steamship Penfield, bound from Nantes, France, to Cardiff, Wales, has been sunk in the English Channel by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

MISS EDNA M'DONALD GIVEN A KITCHEN "SHOWER"

An original kitchen shower was tendered Miss Edna MacDonald, of Richmond street, last night, at the home of Miss Anna Hoagland, Jackson avenue. Fifty intimate friends gathered at the latter place and presented the bride-to-be with many useful articles in a unique manner. The rear lawn was attractively lighted up with Japanese lanterns and a gypsy fire, and the articles were tied on the branches of a cherry tree. The guest of honor untied each package from the tree and after they were carried into the house, unwrapped each. Games, dancing and singing were features of the evening and at a late hour a supper was served, the place cards being in the form of paper furniture. The table was prettily decorated with Jack roses, hearts and cupids. Following the affair the bride-to-be and her sister were sent home in a cab that was appropriately decorated with rice, confetti, etc.

Miss MacDonald, who is popular with the younger set in the city and borough, will shortly be married to Lloyd Brokaw, formerly of this city, but now of New York. Forgash landed on his shoulder, throwing it out of joint. He hastened to the office of Dr. Whitford and had it set. But on the evening of the same day he had the misfortune to thrown it out again while reaching for a box on a shelf and Dr. Whitford was summoned to place it back for the second time. EARL LATHAM AND FRANK J. DOYLE IN A COLLISION

Earl Latham, son of Mayor E. B. Latham, and John Doyle, son of Frank J. Doyle, of 415 Front street, collided while riding their bicycles on North avenue a few days ago. Both of the lads were pedaling at a swift pace. Young Latham was coming east and Doyle was going in the other direction. A wagon standing in front of the Polish grocery on the north side of North avenue between Lincoln and Madison avenues, obstructed the vision of the lads so that neither could see the other. As Doyle started to circle this wagon the collision occurred, Latham's bicycle hitting Doyle's a side blow and sending young Doyle a flying.

The roadbed was muddy and soft and Doyle was fortunately only badly "mussed up." His bicycle, however, was badly smashed. Young Latham was not even knocked off of his wheel. He was on the wrong side of the road and was responsible for the collision and he told Doyle that he would make reparation.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS HOLDING YEARLY MEETING

The first session of the yearly meeting of the New Jersey, New York city and Berlin (N. Y.) churches was held with the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, last night. Y., led the prayer and praise service, and Rev. E. D. Van Horn, of New York city, preached the sermon of the evening, in which he spoke of John the Baptist in his relation to the Master, drawing many helpful lessons from that relation.

Prof. Edward E. Whitford, of the College of the City of New York, led the conference meeting and showed how much the biographies of all are dependent one upon another. Many useful ideas were brought out in the testimonies that were given. Rev. Edwin Shaw, of Plainfield, pronounced the benediction.

CHARGE AGAINST LOUIS L. BLOCK DISMISSED

Louis L. Block, of Orange street, was arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell in the Borough Hall, this morning, on a complaint made by Mrs. Martha Furgensen, who resides at 318 North avenue, alleging that Mr. Block kicked her and called her vile names on Thursday, June 3. Mr. Block owns the flat in which Mrs. Furgensen resides, and it seems that the trouble arose over Mr. Block's attempt to dispossess the family for not paying rent.

After listening to both sides of the story the court dismissed the case. Mr. Block was represented by Judge Rene P. F. von Minden.

The regular services will be held at the Methodist church tomorrow, the Rev. Raymond E. Marshal occupying the pulpit.

The young people of the Willow Grove chapel have decided to abandon their idea of the presentation of a playlet in the chapel, and instead are now making arrangements for a strawberry festival to be held on the lawn surrounding the building on the afternoon, and probably evening, of June 16.

The forty odd women of Fanwood and Scotch Plains, who have met twice a month at the home of the Misses Kyte, on Martine avenue, since the European war started, sewing for the relief of the Belgians and others made helpless by the war, will not meet again until fall. In the ten months the Belgian Relief Society has been formed the members have packed and shipped about a dozen large cases of wearing apparel and bandages to various parts of the continent, and, in most cases, they have received interesting letters in return. Even though the war does not last until fall the women figure that the people of the various countries will not have recovered from its effects, and will continue to sew individually during the summer. Most of the women belong to the Women's League of the borough and township, and the Misses Kyte and Miss Jopling were the committee in charge of this branch of the League's endeavor.

"How the Vote Was Won," a one-act comedy farce by Cicely Hamilton and Christopher St. John, two English playrights, was presented in the hall of the Fanwood firehouse, last night, under the auspices of the local branch of the Woman's Political Union of New Jersey, of which Miss Dorothy Hoar, of Martine avenue, is president. The sketch, which was first produced in London by a professional cast, deals with suffrage in the lighter vein and from a comedy viewpoint is a great success. As acted by a cast of ten persons, including Miss Dorothy Hoar, Mrs. Samuel Thompson, Mrs. J. Hudson Thompson, Mrs. Frederick Sherwood, Miss Emily Garda, Mrs. George Reiner, Southard Outwater and Robert Meggy, all of the borough, and Mrs. Edward Pierce, of Short Hills, and Mr. Reed-Holliday, of Plainfield, it gave an amusing picture of what would happen if women refused to do any work of any kind and made men support them until they were granted the ballot. The different parts were very well played by the members of the cast, a number of whom have been in theatricals before. Reed-Holliday, a former resident, is a well known amateur actor, who has appeared in productions in England, Bermuda and this country. Miss Emily Garda was prominently identified with plays presented at the Plainfield High School during her fours years at the institution, and Robert Meggy is at present appearing in various roles in productions of the World Film Corporation. The audience overflowed into the meeting room of the fire company, so great was the number who saw the play, and the floor was thronged with couples until after midnight in the dance that followed.

DR. HUDSON TO DISCUSS "PENALTY OF THE LAW"

Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach tomorrow evening on the "Penalty of the Law." This theme was suggested by a recent address Dr. Hudson heard Warden Osborne, of Sing Sing Prison, give, and by the conversation also enjoyed with the warden.

The treatment of this topic will not only consider the purpose of punishment as applied by the State, but also the same principle which operates in a moral and spiritual government as realized in the Christian faith. Doubtless many will be interested in this discussion. Should the purpose be revenge or correction or exact penalty according to the offense. This Dr. Hudson says is a topic of vital interest to faith. In the morning Dr. Hudson will welcome more new members.

GERMAN CUCKOOS ESPIED.

Albert K. Forster, of Springfield avenue, New Providence, is credited with having espied a pair of German Cuckoos on his farm, and the theory is advanced that the birds came hither to escape the war disturbances in Europe. How they got here is not explained. They surely could not have flown across the ocean. Europeon Cuckoos are, however, not unknown, though happily not common, in this country. They were introduced here some years ago, and are occasionally seen; being easily distinguished from any of the native American varieties.

PLAINFIELD AIRDOME

Although it has been open less than a week, the Plainfield Airdome at Watchung avenue and East Front street, is already becoming the most popular moving picture centre in the city. The novelty of enjoying one's favorite screen actor or actress in up-to-date productions while sitting in the open air has appealed strongly to the populace and the crowds are becoming larger every night. The venture was an experiment at the beginning, but is now a reality fully demonstrating the fact that it has come to stay while the weather is too warm to remain indoors.

In order to give the Airdome all the popularity it deserves Manager Shannon has spared no expense in securing the very best photo-play productions handled by the New York agency. Those in a position to know will realize this fully when the following program for next week is announced; Monday and Tuesday, the Jesse L. Lasky production of "After Five," featuring Edward Abeles, the story being from the pens of William C. and Cecil B. De Mille; Wednesday and Thursday, Hobarth Bosworth, in "Buckshot John," the famous story by Charles E. Van Loan, whose short stories have been popularized throughout the country by the Saturday Evening Post; Friday and Saturday, Daniel Frohman's production of "Mistress Nell," by George Hazelton, Jr., featuring the popular favorite, Mary Pickford, in what was for many years the stellar vehicle of Henrietta Crosman.

The above mentioned pictures are features for each night's program, but other photo-plays are shown as well. The Plainfield Airdome has the exclusive contract for the first run of Paramount pictures and also shows the leading comedies and travelettes put out by the leading companies in America. Performances begin every night at 7:45, and the one admission ticket permits patrons to remain until the finish at 11 o'clock.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Preliminary announcements of the program for the coming week at Proctor's Theatre indicate that the patrons of the popular West Front street playhouse will have one of the biggest and best feature photo-play productions every day. It is probable that a series of similar pretentious engagements has not been seen here during the entire season. Beginning with Monday, when the picturization of H. K. Webster's novel, "The Butterfly," will be shown, the list will include George Kleine's presentation of "Julius Caesar," featuring Anthony Novelli, on Tuesday; the magnificent dramatic classic, "The Rose of the Rancho," by David Belasco and Richard Walton Tully on Wednesday; the great western story, "The Bargain," on Thursday; Alexandre Dumas' masterpiece, "The Clemenceau Case," on Friday, and the inspiring romance of love, politics, capital and labor entitled, "The High Hand," on Saturday.

The production of "The Butterfly" is from the novel of the same name by Henry Kitchell Webster, and features Howard Estabrook. The story relates how a hunchback, in revenge against a woman who has repulsed him, lures her-step-daughter to the stage and assists her to become a danced. The girl, whose name is Elaine, has two lovers, for one of whom, John Butler, she forms a sincere attachment. Her step-mother goes to see her dance, and the hunchback, still enraged at her, murders the woman.

The hunchback goes mad and is killed by falling from a cliff. Butler, Elaine's lover, is accused of killing him, but Elaine clears him of the charge by proving that the hunchback was the murderer of her step-mother. Elaine and Butler find that their mutual loves will make them happy in marriage.

"Julius Caesar," which is to be the feature offering on Tuesday, is a photo-play classic in six parts. The announcement that Manager Sanderson has secured it for his theatre has already created widespread interest and students of the drama, history and classics will undoubtedly attend in large numbers. The film has heretofore been shown only in the larger cities at advanced prices and the Proctor office has reason to be proud of securing it for Plainfield.

Proctor's symphony orchestra of eight pieces continues to be a drawing card for the Front street playhouse, and it is becoming more popular every day. The old saying that "music hath charms" is plainly demonstrated at the theatre every day through the appreciation shown by old and young at the conclusion of every number on the delightful program.

He is the son of a travelling preacher, and gathered his education as he went with his parents from place to place. He won many medals for oratory. He graduated from Port Gibson College last month and promptly entered the ministry.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is City Judge William G. DeMeza.

DRASTIC ACTION NEEDED.

That there is room for improvement in laws designed to punish certain classes of offenders dealt with by municipal courts has been strikingly exemplified by experiences of various magistrates. Unless this urgent revision is forthcoming in the immediate future police court judges in cities of Plainfield's size and prestige are going to become the laughing stock for those individuals who make a mock of the law. The magistrate is duty-bound by oath to deal with defendants found guilty of crime "as law and justice may provide," but it is only too true and apparent that in some cases the penalty falls far short of fitting the offense. Strange as it may seem in some instances the punishment meted out tends to increase rather than minimize crime, simply because the judge "plays fair" and takes a humane view of the issue at stake. His return nine times out of ten is abuse and insult.

One of the biggest and most troublesome problems confronting magistrates at the present time is the disposition of charges against wife-deserters and those two-legged beasts who refuse to support their families. Fourteen of the former and six of the latter variety of cases came up before me for settlement last year. Those who had called the attention of the police to the doings of these scoundrels cried "send them to jail." True, that to the average citizen appears a logical conclusion. But what are these men's families going to do while they are incarcerated in the county jail living the lazy, idle existence that their natures crave for? Some of these men, yes, a large majority of them, are only too glad to secure free lodging at the expense of the county and applaud the judge's decision that sends them to jail.

Therein rests a problem. These culprits, for whom nothing is too severe, are given a legal license to eat three free meals a day and obtain comfortable lodging at the expense of the county for an indefinite period. They are protected behind brick walls from relatives who would horsewhip them if they could only lay hands on the guilty parties.

Their term of confinement depends entirely on the attitude the jail committee of the Board of Freeholders takes toward the case. When a man is sent to Elizabeth for not supporting a family he stays there until the Freeholders get ready to release him.

The man who beats his wife, casts aside his family, or refuses to contribute funds to obtain sustainence for his wife and children should be dealt with by a corp of husky whip-wielders at the whipping post. While antiquated, this calibre of punishment would undoubtedly prove far more effective than any of our laws approved by twentieth century master minds.

Why not take advantage of the law that allows the county sheriff to put these men to work on our county roads or in county institutions? Only Thursday the Freeholders approved the proposition and it is up to the county authorities to see to it that the innovation is put in practise. I firmly believe that satisfaction would be the ultimate outcome and that a fifty-cent a day wage should be returned to the prisoners. This amount would automatically be turned over to the municipalities from which they came and spent in providing support for indigent families dependent upon them. By making laborers out of prisoners, instead of boarders, a punishment only surpassed by the whipping post would be inflicted; the municipality would not be compelled to support the deserted families; and it is a foregone conclusion that crime would be minimized.

Even in Plainfield we have men who periodically come before the court for abusing their families. But what can we do with them? They are accorded chance after chance to "make good" simply because it would be folly to sentence them to a period of desired leisure and turn those dependant upon them on the community. As a last recourse I have sent men to jail who have been apprehended after disowning their families and after they are freed by the Freeholders they become immune from further punishment. It is only too true that many have come before me with a determination to take their medicine and rid themselves of the responsibilities of their families.

Chemist Says Milk Is Good.

The following communication, recently received, is of interest by reason of its high authority:

"Wood Brook Farms,
"Plainfield.

"Gentlemen:

"It may interest you to know of a conversation I had with a college classmate who is a chemist in the N. Y. State Agricultural Dept.

"I showed him the Board of Health statement of the analysis of Plainfield milks, and asked which was the best. He immediately pointed to yours, and asked the price, and being informed that you had been selling it for 10c, he said it could not be produced with a profit for that.

"You may use this statement in any way you care to.

"Yours truly,
"(Rev.) F. L. GREENE."

STRONG FACTOR SEEN IN PLANS NOW OUT

Future in Local Building World Brightens as Estimates Are Asked.

Plans for prospective buildings being given out for estimates and bids from contractors still continue to feature the local construction world. Several dwellings are the most prominent among the plans, aside from the additional shops to be erected in the near future by the International Motor Company.

Aside from the plans for the improvements to the property at 461-465 West Front street, as reported in another column, the Standard Investment Company, of Dunellen, plans for the erection of two dwellings at West Fourth street and Monroe avenue, on the property recently purchased by that concern from Julia E. Ford, of New York city.

George Greenleaf, of West Front street, also plans for the erection of a dwelling of colonial architecture on West Eighth street, the cost to be in the vicinity of $6,000. Mr. Greenleaf, who is head of the draughting department at the shops of the Pond Machine Tool Company, has sold his present residence to the Merchant and Traders' Realty Company, of which Samuel Schwartz, of Arlington avenue, is the head.

North Plainfield is also within the bounds of the "boom section," Charles Stephens, of Front street, Dunellen, planning at this time for the erection of a dwelling on Duer street. When completed, Mr. Stephens and family will occupy the house.

LEGISLATION CONCERNING ARCHITECTS IN FORCE

Architects and builders of Plainfield and vicinity are much interested in a piece of legislation enacted at the last session of the General Assembly, which is designed to suppress "quack" architects in this State.

A change has been made in the act regulating the practice of architecture by making the violator of the act liable to the penalty of being fined by a police court justice, instead of being guilty of a misdemeanor and requiring indictment by the Grand Jury, as heretofore. The change in the law had the strong backing of the New Jersey State Board of Architects, of which Charles P. Baldwin, of Newark, is president.

Under the law's provision, if any person shall pursue the practice of architecture in this State or shall engage in this State in the business of preparing plans, specifications and preliminary data for the erection or alteration of buildings, or shall advertise or put out any sign, card or drawing designating himself as an architect, without a certificate thereof, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $50 nor more than $500 for each offense. Such penalty may be recovered in an action of debt, in the name of the State Board of Architects, and when recovered shall be paid into the treasury of this State.

LOCAL BUILDING TO RETAIN TOP SPEED

Two Dwellings Features the Construction Movement of the Week.

The past week has maintained the normal pace in the building world, five construction permits having been issued by Inspector T. O. Doane, covering the erection of two dwellings, the installation of one tank for the storage of volatile liquids, and two alteration jobs. The total expenditures as called for by these permits amounts to $9,560, as against $8,395 for the preceding week, a gain of one permit and of $1,165 in expenditures.

The giving out of plans for estimates and bids on prospective buildings continues to be a feature of local building circles, and practically all of the local architects report themselves as being fairly busy. The real estate agents also report an upward movement in local circles, and the season of 1915 promises to outdo its predecessor. From present indications, the present season should see a return to normal conditions before it has entirely passed into history, and all connected with the building trades in the city are optimistic. The permits as issued during the course of the past week are as noted below:

First Ward.

Louis Spirro is to alter the frame dwelling at 719 East Second street, building a 5x20 foot extension to the rear of the building. The estimated cost of the improvements has been placed at $125. L. R. Robinson is the architect, Frank Shiriff the mason contractor, while Squicciarini & Otranti, of Scotch Plains, will care for the carpentry work.

Second Ward.

A one story frame addition is to be placed to the rear of the residence of William F. Arnold, of 817 Third place. The addition will measure 26x9 feet, and will be of frame construction. The cost will be $800. Frank McInerney will care for the masonry work while Michael Rimmer has the contract for the carpenter work.

Estelle L. Titsworth is to install a tank for the storage of volatile liquids at 1030 Hillside avenue at a cost of $35. William C. Krausse will do the work.

Third Ward.

As told exclusively through the columns of this paper last Saturday, Clifford D. Manning will erect a nine-room frame dwelling on Sherman avenue east of Grant avenue, a permit having been issued this week. The structure will be of colonial architecture, and will have a frontage of thirty-eight feet and a depth of 26 feet, the house being two and a half stories high. The foundation walls and course will be of concrete and brick, with hemlock framing and a shingle roof. The cost of the building will be $6,000. William H. Clum is the architect; Townley Brothers, of the borough, the mason contractors; John C. Manning, the carpenter contractor, while the plumbing work will be cared for by the A. M. Griffen Company.

The second dwelling for which a permit was granted this week is to be erected on New street, north of West Seventh street, by Frank L. Clark, at a cost of $2,600. The structure, which is to measure 30x35 feet, is to be one and a half story high and of frame construction. F. H. Gise, of Dunellen, has the mason contract, while the Apgar Construction Company, also of Dunellen, is the carpenter contractor.

JUST NOTES

Judging from the variety of buildings now being reared in this city, one might judge that the city is enjoying a building boom of the more substantial sort, and forms a firm foundation for what may follow. Business buildings and dwellings are included in the list of buildings now in the course of construction.

After all, what difference does it make as to whether the Federal postoffice is of Tennessee marble or limestone? What Plainfield wants is the building, which will be a credit to the city, and we care not as to what material it is of, or the cost. On with the building.

When we note that nearly as many permits for garages are being issued by Inspector T. O. Doane as for dwellings, one might feel reasonably sure that prosperity is at least on the way.

Back in the years of 1889-90, the slogan, "Oh, for a Y. M. C. A. Building," appeared daily at the head of the editorial column of this paper. In the year of 1915, Plainfield looks forward to the erection of a more modern, up-to-date structure for that institution, and a campaign for raising funds with that end in view is probable before the year is over.

While this city is far ahead of its record of last year as far as building activities are concerned, we are still in need of increased activities to bring the tide of industry in construction lines. However, reports of plans in the hands of contractors for bids and estimates should, and do, indicate that Plainfield is not far from her place as a building centre.

The "anti-shingle" agitation and the filibuster for a fee with each building permit to cover the expenses of the office of the building inspector have both apparently passed into the oblivion of history, only to be resurrected in some future political campaign.

Of the five months thus far passed in the present year, four show substantial gains in the amount of expenditures for buildings and improvements over the same months of last year. June, judging from the start it has made, is about to follow suit.

IN THE SUBURBS

Dunellen.

The former Robert Lowrie house on Front street, owned by Clawson and Mohan, was sold this week to Julius Klemko, of New York. The new owner purchased for investment.

Proprietor Frederick Harrington, of Columbia Park, is making ready to start energetically on the development of that highly desirable tract of land as soon as he can get the proper grades for sidewalks, etc., from the Mayor and Council, for which he now has a petition pending. The first work will be the laying of concrete sidewalks and bids for this end of the enterprise will soon be solicited. As soon as the streets are put to grade and the sidewalks laid, it is understood that there will be a number of sales of lots to record with result building of houses and adding to the taxable property of the borough. Columbia Park is about the only extensive section of the borough left in an undevoleped condition. It is centrally located and ought to make a good saleable property when it is fixed up a little more.

Middlesex Boro.

The contract for erecting a new house at Conover's Corner for Morris Hegeman has been secured by the Apgar Construction Company, of Dunellen.

New Market.

The work on the factory building of Gabrielle & Schall is proceeding and the walls of the building, which are of hollow tile, are going up in short order.

Scotch Plains.

Anthony Albert, the local contractor, has started work on the building of a modern dwelling for Recorder Charles Sheelen, on North avenue, opposite Forest road.

SPORTING NOTES

When Garry Herrmann announced that the baseball magnates must reduce salaries, he said something. The end of baseball troubles is not in sight.

A bet of 100 to 1 that goes a thousand times is some bet. It is offered on a golf game by a millionaire in Philadelphia, who will play a surgeon. If the latter wins, his medical school will get the bundle.

The aspiring cup defenders Resolute and Vanitie will appear in the New York Yacht Club regatta on June 22, despite the opposition of Tom Lipton that these trials give the defender an advantage.

One of the most peculiar incidents ever seen in a ball game came up in the Tufts-Dartmouth game May 28. With a Tufts man on third, the signal for a squeeze play was given. The Dartmouth pitcher started to wind up, and the man on third dug for home. The Dartmouth catcher jumped out of his position and yelled to the pitcher, who had just time to deflect the ball to the left. As it came, the batter moved out of his box, and stretching around, hit the ball. The base runner came rushing in and the ball hit him. This was a fine mixup for the umpire. He called a balk on Wanamaker, the Dartmouth catcher, for being out of his box, and allowed the runner to score. The batter was ordered back to bat, the ball counting nothing against or for him, being dead on account of the balk. In addition to this decision, which was the logical one, two other plays might have been called. The batter might be out for jumping out of his box and batting the ball, or the base runner might be out for being hit by a batted ball. The balk occurred first, and therefore took precedence. It was a play that could not come up in years. Not all baseball fans realize that a balk can be called on the catcher as well as the pitcher.

ROD AND REEL

Reports from the coast are that the ling fishing has fallen off at the Long Branch pier, but in their place comes fluke, a far better food fish and also one with more grit and fighting ability than the ling. Killies are used for fluke bait and they can be had on the pier. Some wise fisherman discovered early in the week that by casting pretty well out he could reach a rock bottom where blackfish were feeding and, after catching about ten, other fishermen caught on and in a few minutes the blacks were coming in on the end of a hook at a great rate.

Pickerel fishermen find good sport along the Rahway River just now as there is plenty of water and the fish have spread out. Men who have fished the river say that if the black bass will bite half as good when they can be lawfully caught, they will be perfectly satisfied.

Fishing in the surf at Allenhurst yesterday, one man caught four flounders and one croaker. He also had one vicious strike, which, he thinks, was from a striped bass, but he did not have the fish hooked properly, and it got away.

A pickerel weighing six pounds and measuring twenty-nine and one-half inches in length, was landed by a Glen Ridge man Thursday.

LOCAL MAN ENTERED.

S. Wallace Merrihew, of South avenue, this city, is among the entrants in the New Jersey State tennis championship tournament which will be held at the Montclair Athletic Club, starting next Monday. The finals will be played one week from today. Harold Throckmorton, State interscholastic champion, will also play.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

DOCTORS CONNIVE TO DRUM TRADE

Plainfield Pill-dispensers to Jeopardize Lives for Sweet Charity.

SOME SIDE-SPLITTERS

Annual Frolic of the Medical Profession to Be a Continuous Round of Merriment—Pride Will Be the Price Paid to Interest Public.

The Gymkana to be given at the Horse Show Grounds, under the auspices of the medical staff of Muhlenberg Hospital, on the afternoon of Saturday, June 19, will be the "most magnificent, instructive and humorous entertainment" that Plainfield has ever witnessed. First and foremost will be the grand pageant, illustrating, by a series of floats, the progress in medicine from the time of Chiron down through the Aesculapian age to the present wonderful epoch of the art of healing.

There will also be demonstrated the power of the will of man over the lower animals, some of the naturally most ferocious of beasts marching with all docility to the arena, where Chanticleer the Herald of the Morn, will contest with Wawa of Hiawathian fame, and the King of the Jungle for the blue ribbon of victory so coveted by all.

In addition to the animal race there will be other races of varying character, tests of endurance, speed and skill. A feature of the occasion will be a goose race,—the balky and obstinate birds being driven by well known local professional whips; an obstacle race, under the supervision of "Saint Anthony," who, if he is not "flagged," will introduce some of the most noted professionals of the day; a sack race wherein Fanwood will endeavor to annex Scotch Plains to the "City Beautiful."

Amid the "Blair" of trumpets and the plaudits of the little chickens present, an egg and spoon race will be run off. A pleasing entry will be a nail driving contest by seven well known "ladies,"—not the "seven sisters" of Wilson fame,—but others just as worthy, wise and winsome who will get out their little hammers and knock the ten pennies into a pine plank. Supplementing this there will be a pillow fight under the personal supervision of a prominent and popular bachelor. At the end of this encounter the members of the medical staff will join in singing that touching refrain, "Under the Pillow He's Fast Asleep."

Several three legged gentlemen of more or less renown will be "Curried" and otherwise groomed for a hundred yard dash. A bone of contention in the shape of a tug-of-war will be the spectacle offered by old Dr. Hubbard And the whole entertainment will be enlivened by the antics, jokes and jibes of the clowns, several of whom will be on the job.

The "eats" will be in charge of a "stomach specialist," who guarantees that all his wares are entered under the "Pure food and drugs act." Out of respect to the Secretary of State nothing stronger than grape juice will be offered for sale on the grounds.

Though "Buck's Band" may present a few "substi-toots," in the course of the afternoon, the management can assure the public that there will be no submarines lurking near From the foregoing synopsis it will be readily seen that all who may be privileged to witness the Gymkana will not only find entertainment and instruction, but freedom from physical and mental molestation.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY'S FESTIVAL LARGELY ATTENDED

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the First Presbyterian church, held a successful supper and strawberry festival in the church parlors, last night. The affair was largely attended and considerable was realized for the treasury. About one hundred and fifty suppers were served from 6 o'clock on and there was also a large sale of strawberry short-cake, home-made cake and candy and ice cream during the evening.

The rooms were decorated with American flags and red, white and blue streamers and there was also green foliage around the rooms. Music was furnished throughout the evening by a Victrola and the audience was also entertained with a sketch entitled, "Why We Never Married," given by seven boys and seven girls of the Sunday-school.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

BOROUGH GRANTS $100 TO BUREAU

Nursing Association Awarded Appropriation by Council Last Night.

BUSY JUNE MEETING

Improvements Ordered on Howard Street and Rockview Terrace—Sewer Work Reviewed—Bond Interest Paid.

As a representative of the Visiting Nurses' Association, Mrs. Frederick Goddard appeared before the Borough Council at its June meeting, last night, and asked that an appropriation be made for the maintenance of this work in North Plainfield. Inasmuch as the borough cannot legally appropriate money for this purpose the Council ordered an additional $100 added to Overseer-of-the-Poor Fred Becker's request for an advance of $250 and this extra amount he was instructed to turn over to the Nursing Bureau. This made a total appropriation for the poor department last night of $350.

Bills amounting to $2,228.74 were ordered paid, having been accrued during the month of May. The sum of $5,065.87 was paid to the Harrison-Burton Company as an advance on sewer contract No. 1, and $5,968.87 was paid to Frank Puglia as an advance on sewer contract No. 2. Engineer George Fuller was paid $778.92. Detailed reports were received concerning the progress of the sewer work and the recommendations to be acted upon.

Interest amounting to $225 on firehouse bonds was ordered paid. Expenses for the month in the various borough departments were reported as follows: Police, $512.23; fire, $227.86, and street, $3,367.44. The borough's share in the joint sewer construction work expenses for the month were $2,412.16, and this was paid.

A letter presenting the objects of the New Jersey League of Mayors and inviting the borough to take out a membership was read at last night's session, but when the matter of sending Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., to Trenton, as a member of the organization to represent North Plainfield, was put to a vote, it was turned down, Councilmen Mobus, Milne and Tingley voting against it. Councilman Milne, explaining his stand, said that he could not see the benefits the borough would obtain from sending a man to Trenton to attend the league's meetings and that he thought it would entail a needless expenditure. Councilman Cowperthwaite defended the league and declared that the annual membership fee of $14 would be profitably spent. At the last meeting of the Plainfield Common Council, Mayor Calkins was given authority to represent Plainfield and the sum of $46 was paid as a membership fee for a town of Plainfield's size.

A resolution was adopted instructing property-owners along the southwest side of Rockview Terrace to lay sidewalks and a similar resolution for property-owners on the north and south sides of Howard street, the work to be completed by July 15.

A petition was received from residents of Summit avenue asking that a storm sewer be constructed on that thoroughfare and through to Grandview avenue. No action was taken on the latter proposition and it was referred back to the sewer committee for investigation.

INSPECTORS AS BAIT FOR THE "SKEETERS"

Commission Takes a Novel Course to Exterminate New Jersey Insect.

If there are any mosquitoes in this county, the inspectors of the Union County Mosquito Commission will find it out themselves. They will experience the actual sting of the pest and having suffered the momentary pain, they will kill the insect and bring him to the headquarters of the Commission to determine just what kind of a mosquito it is.

Orders recently were issued that the inspectors must ascertain for themselves whether or not the work of destroying the breeding place of the mosquito this year has been successful, and to what extent. There are eight stations in this county, and the inspectors will remain at fixed posts at these stations, directly under the electric lights, to invite the mosquitoes to do their worst.

The idea is this: After the inspectors are stung by the pests, if any exist, they will proceed to put the mosquito out of the way. The insect will be allowed to enjoy himself to the full extent, but while he is holding forth on the nose, arm or face of the subject, the inspector will be uncorking a bottle containing an exterminator. Said exterminator is poured on the mosquito, and he is dead. He then is placed in a receptacle and borne to the headquarters. There he is examined; an autopsy is performed. If he is of a new species, his favorite haunts will be searched for, and steps taken to put him out of the way.

This work has been going on for a month and so far six mosquitoes have been found to have operated in this county. Two of them were of some strange breed, and it is believed that they wandered in from some other bailiwick. Evidence points to their migrating from the Hackensack meadows. A vigilant watch will be kept for more of this kind. The stations of inspection in this county are: Summit, 3; Plainfield, 3; Westfield, 3; Rahway, 3; Elizabeth, 6; Hillside, Garwood, Cranford and Roselle, 1 each.

TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCE IN THE ENGLISH NAVY

The monthly meeting of the Men's Association of Warren chapel was held last night and the regular business of the organization was transacted. After the meeting an interesting talk was given by Burnett Brodziak, of this city, who told of his experiences in the English navy.

Mr. Brodziak was in the navy for twelve years and was connected with several of the large ships He has been to Australia, New Zealand, as well as all the other English possessions and his trips were full of interesting occurrences. When he left the navy Mr. Brodziak was chief gunner's mate. After the talk a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

MISSION GUILD GUESTS OF MRS. ARTHUR B. COLE

The Mission Guild, of Trinity Reformed church, which was known until recently as the Young Woman's Mission Band, met for the final meeting of the season at the home of the president, Mrs. A. B. Cole, of Fairview avenue, yesterday afternoon. A good attendance was noted and a large amount of routine work was disposed of in a business session beginning at 3 o'clock. This was followed by a tea during which Mrs. David E. Morris, of Brooklyn, who is connected with the Women's Board of Domestic Missions, gave an interesting talk on "Indian Missions in the West and Southwest."

The guild has been studying "The Red Man's Land" throughout the winter and the talk by Mrs. Morris was very appropos. The speaker has familiarized herself with the work through frequent visitations to the reservations and presented facts in a thorough and concise manner. During the afternoon two excellently rendered solos were contributed by Miss Avis Laing, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian A. Force.

Mrs. Cole was assisted in receiving and entertaining by the social committee of the guild. Miss Mabel Wilson poured in the dining room and Mrs. John Carhart, Miss Winifred Rapalje, Mrs. Leslie Crane and Miss Ethel VanZandt served. In the business session arrangements were made to hold the annual picnic at Riverside Park, on the banks of the Raritan and July 1 was selected as the date. The meetings of the Guild will be resumed in October.

MANY ATTEND RECEPTION AT STATE SANATORIUM

About 150 charity and social workers, including Dr. F. J. Hughes, attended the reception at Glen Gardner at the New Jersey Sanatorium for Tuberculosis Diseases, Thursday afternoon. The reception was in reality the dedication and formal opening of the arts and crafts shop, with an exhibition of the handicraft of the patients. Of the 150 patients in the sanatorium about one-fifth are given daily occupation in the workshop, with the idea of promoting better social life, keeping the mind of the patient off his affliction and thus sooner effect a cure and to make something in a financial way while he is receiving treatment. This is the first of the State institutions that has gone into the workshop idea along these lines.

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

Homes of Individuality

Selected by Walter J Keith, Architect

STUCCO AND SHINGLE COTTAGE DESIGN NO. D-1327

A most pleasing cottage design and one suitable to an all-stucco or shingle exterior, if desired.

The floor plan is particularly pleasing for a house of this size. The spacious porch on the front and side is a thoroughly enjoyable feature, and the living room, with its windows on three sides, has attractive possibilities for decorative effects. One side is completely furnished with an open fireplace and built-in bookcases on either side.

Three rooms and bath are provided on the second floor. If another room were desired on this floor, one could easily be had by carrying the rear dormer out to the rear house line and making it the same width as the dormer in front.

The estimated cost of this cottage home is $2,200, exclusive of heating, plumbing and electric work and decorations.

All inquiries concerning "Homes of Individuality" will be cheerfully answered by simply addressing "Homes of Individuality Department," Plainfield Daily Press.

SIXTEEN PERMITS GRANTED IN MAY

Thirteen of Which Are for New Buildings of Various Types.

CONTRACTORS HOPEFUL

Total Expenditures For New Work and Alterations Is $25,897, a Gain of $3,485 Over Same Period of Last Year.

The month of May proved to be of the 1915 variety, when sixteen construction permits were issued by Inspector T. O. Doane, three of which were for alterations, and thirteen for new buildings of various types. The total expenditures for new buildings aggregate $23,522, while $2,375 is to be spent for the alterations covered by the permits. This makes a total expenditures of $25,897, a gain of $3,485 over the month of May of last year.

This gain, an altogether good record for the month of May, lends encouragement to the local building conditions, which had a dark outlook for a few weeks. The expenditures for construction work in this city from January 1 to May 1 now totals $223,415, an amount considerably above the record of last year, although these figures do not indicate that conditions are as yet normal. The Third ward has the best record for the past month, securing over fifty per cent. of the expenditures in that time, while the First ward was without a permit for new buildings.

May also holds the record thus far for this year in regard to the number of plans for prospective buildings which have been placed in the hands of the contractors for estimates. A number of dwellings are being planned, while additional plans for several alteration jobs and extensions are now seeking bids. The outlook at the present time are brighter than they have been for some little time.

The tables below indicate the disbursements of the expenditures for the past month of May, together with a comparison with the same month of last year:

MAY, 1915.

	New Bldgs.	Alterations.	Totals
1st Ward		$ 500	$ 500
2nd Ward	$ 4,172	.....	4,172
3d Ward	14,350	350	14,700
4th Ward	5,000	1,525	6,525
Totals	$23,522	$ 2,375	$25,897

MAY, 1914.

	New Bldgs.	Alterations.	Totals
1st Ward	$ 5,125	.....	$ 5,125
2nd Ward	4,362	$ 2,175	6,537
3d Ward	3,000	3,150	6,150
4th Ward	2,000	2,600	4,600
Totals	$14,487	$ 7,925	$22,412

The record up to and including May 31 is very interesting, showing activities in the city from the first of the year. The types of work which have been covered by permits since January 1 are varied and indicates that the development of the city retains well balanced proportions. The table below indicates the record to June 1, showing the types of buildings covered, and their values:

Type of Building	No.	Value
Dwellings	28	$104,250
Business buildings	6	27,600
Apartments	1	45,000
Garages	24	9,380
Barns and stables	2	4,600
Miscellaneous	11	2,585
Alteration jobs	23	30,000
Totals	95	$223,415

FACTORY FOR ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, June 5.—Plans for an addition to the plant of F. H. Kalbfleich & Co., in which nitric acid will be manufactured, have been approved by Building Inspector Brennan. The usual product of the Kalbfleich concern is muriatic acid, but the demand for nitric acid in the manufacture of war munitions has brought about the extension of the business, according to the understanding among city officials and others. The new building will be located at Third avenue and Baltic street and will have a frontage of 138 feet on Baltic street and 73 feet on Third avenue. It will cost $5,000 and will be followed by the erection of another large addition.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The Borough Council, at its June meeting last night, granted the following building permits: Mrs. J. B. Crate, for an auto garage on the rear of her property on Brook avenue; Edward Cooper, wagon shed on Grandview avenue; Caroline Mordici, house on Chatham place; John H. VanWinkle, bay window on his house on Duer street.

BIG ORDERS FOR WAR MUNITIONS

Increased Activity in Market Results in Demand for Building Materials.

PRICES REMAIN FIRM

Majority of the Operations Are For One and Two Story Structures, Mostly of Manufactured Materials, Such As Iron, Cloth and Metal.

New York, June 5.—According to construction statistics compiled for the metropolitan district the great preponderance of demand for material now developing is for hastily constructed mill shops required by firms making war supplies of one sort or another. Notable among the orders taken in the last three weeks have been orders for munitions for the United States Government. In the lists are powder, machinery, metal ceiling, corrugated iron mills, a grain elevator, a search light factory, a cheese factory, a butter manufacturing plant, a packing plant, several additions to meat refrigeratories, one shipbuilding plant, a wire making factory and several cloth and shoe mills.

A majority of the operations are for one and two-story structures, mostly of manufactured material, like corrugated iron, wire cloth and expanded metal, some concrete reinforcement, but not much brick, steel, stone or cement. The lime and plaster markets have not reported marked impetus in orders emanating from this class of building work, so the inference is that the construction work is finished with composition boards or metal. There is a great change for the better in factory flooring in the lumber department, a department that has been stagnant for some time. Studding is said to be in better demand in the wholesale market for this class of construction.

Price of building materials opened in June at about the same level as last month. Portland cement is the notable exception. This has advanced about ten cents a barrel. With the exception of one or two small companies every manufacturer supplying this market from the Hudson or Lehigh Valleys have listed the product of $1.32 a barrel, alongside of dock, New York, in wholesale lots. The smaller companies who have not put their prices up to a profit-taking base are rapidly filling to capacity for building construction and taking contracts some distance ahead. Other manufacturers are now selling cement at prices giving them a small margin of profit while the cutters are taking orders at an actual loss. As soon as they fill up to the limit of their production capacity, they will be forced to bring their prices to the new level and the consumer will have no alternative, but to pay more for this commodity.

The May statistics for shipments of cement, considered a reliable barometer for the rise and fall of the construction movement in the Metropolitan district, will show a gain over the total reported for April which was in excess of 13 per cent. over that of March. The two zones are now reported to be employing about 78 per cent. of capacity.

Edward M. Hager, who is organizing a national cement manufacturing company, was at the Waldorf-Astoria this week. There was a rumor that the Edison plant at New Village, N. J., may be the Lehigh Valley member of the chain. Intimation was given that except for a few minor details the Century Portland Cement Company, the name of the new company, is about ready for incorporation which will be under the laws of Delaware.

The building situation in general is active. Bradstreets, from incomplete records received to date, looks for an actual increase over national building construction for the same month last year. There will be shown a net gain of more than $10,000,000 for large cities. Manhattan and the Bronx show a gain of $6,000,000; Chicago, despite the strike shows a gain of $1,000,000; Cleveland of $3,000,000, and Milwaukee a drop of only $500,000 from last year's figures. The total building figures for the country are expected to show a normal state of building for 130 cities for the first time since the war began.

Copper, brass, spelter and lead have advanced another cent a pound, making the former 24 cents; brass, 25 cents; June spelter, 27 cents, and lead 4.82½c. Further advances are expected.

COUNTY CONTRACTS.

Construction contracts as filed at the office of County Clerk James C. Calvert, at Elizabeth, maintained their average during the week ending last Saturday, during which fourteen contracts were filed, calling for the expenditure of $60,835. The largest and most important of these contracts, calls for the erection of the Scotch Plains public school on Jerusalem road. The contract between the Fanwood Township Board of Education and William H. Dennick calls for the price of erecting the structure at $11,845. The only contract from this end of the county is for the dwelling on Irving place to be erected by Theodore G. Davis, at a cost of $4,353.

The Week's Work In Brief

Cultivate constantly in both vegetable and flower garden.

Iris can be propagated now by cutting off the tip of rhizome and planting out immediately.

Make late sowings of annual flowers for succession bloom.

Make another planting of beans, beets, carrots and kale.

Mulch the strawberries with clean, dry straw.

Prune hedges and evergreens.

SO far as keeping the soil well pulverized and rows and beds free from weeds are concerned, there is no time in the whole season when the work is more important than it is early in the summer. It is now that practically all the plants, both useful and ornamental, are developing the strength and vigor that later are to be utilized in producing fruit or flower. What the crop is to be then depends on how the plants are treated now. Keep them growing steadily and healthfully. After each rain, cultivate thoroughly and, in case of drought, stir the surface soil frequently, keeping it finely pulverized to conserve the moisture. Use fertilizers generously, dig them in well, or, in case liquid manure is used instead of the commercial fertilizers, apply it to the roots at regular intervals—and often—but never in strong solution. In the vegetable garden, nothing is better to encourage rapid, strong growth than nitrate of soda. Use it to give all plants a good start, but use it cautiously. An ounce to the square yard is sufficient when applied every eight or ten days. As the plants gain in age, however, except in the case of vegetables raised for their foliage crops, there will be need of other plant food elements in addition to the nitrogen supplied by the nitrate of soda.

In case it becomes necessary to water either flowers or vegetables, or the lawn, for that matter, remember that light sprinkling or spraying is little better than no watering at all. Soak the ground thoroughly with each application. Make sure that the dampness penetrates a foot or more. Water applied thus thoroughly and less often is valuable and effective; merely sprinkled on lightly although applied daily does little good. As vegetable plants, such as peas and beans, come into bearing, and as flowers bloom and fade, pick off the ripened crop or withered flower to encourage the production of more. Permitting them to remain encourages seed formation and cuts short the period of productivity.

There is no better time than now to increase the plantation of iris. Tips of rhizomes are growing into sturdy plantlets and if cut off cleanly and sharply from the parent root will transplant readily and thrive without a check. The iris, "the poor man's orchid," comes in so many varieties and forms — in varying heights, seasons of bloom and array of colors—that it is almost sufficient in itself to make a wonderful garden. By careful selection, it will afford a season of bloom extending from early April to late June and, when liberally treated, will reward the gardener with great masses of gorgeous flowers of astonishing brilliance and fragrance. It increases so rapidly, is so democratic in its demands, appears to such good advantage before flowering and after that its use everywhere is extending—and justly.

Iris rhizome ready for transplanting. German Iris bloom above.

If, for any reason, there has been delay in starting the flower garden, a beginning can be made now and with every prospect of success. Among the annuals that can be sown now, either for the first time or to supplement those sown earlier and to prolong the blooming succession, are arctotis, asters, calliopsis, clarkia, candytuft, African daisy, centaurea, cosmos, gypsophila, lupine, larkspur, mignonette and nigella. The list may be lengthened by adding nasturtiums, calendula, heliotrope, scabiosa and even poppies. Indeed it is not too late, by any means, to sow almost all the tender annuals. Get the seed into a damp — not a wet—seed bed and, after germination, cultivate to preserve the moisture instead of resorting to artificial watering. As a matter of fact, avoid watering unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

The dotted lines in these three illustrations show the wrong way to trim hedges. So pruned, the base soon becomes bare and ragged.

The dotted lines in these three illustrations outline the proper forms of pruning. So trimmed, the hedges remain dense from top to bottom.

At least two sowings of beans should be made this month. Plant slightly deeper than the first seeds were set. Sow, also, beets, carrots and kale. Make two sowings of the first two this month. The kale is grown to provide greens for winter use. The dwarf, or low-growing varieties, are best able to withstand winter hardships. Plant in drills one inch deep and eighteen inches apart. Thin to twelve inches apart in the rows. The dwarf kale transplants with difficulty and should grow where sown. The tall varieties require more space between rows and between plants and may be first sown in a seed bed and later transplanted when five or six inches high. The leaves are best after they have been touched by frost.

Do not neglect to prune the hedges. By pruning, it must be remembered, they are improved. A reference to the diagram will explain the proper method to pursue. At the same time, evergreens may be clipped. Light pruning of the tips of the latter encourages thicker growth and prevents unevenness in development and the formation of bare spots. Those used in prominent situations where it is important to have them at their best must be protected from the visits of dogs or otherwise the foliage about the base will be completely killed.

RUNYON PROPERTY TO BE REMODELED

To Be Known as Westover Apartments When Improvements Are Made.

The most important development of the past week in building circles of Plainfield is the filing of plans with Building Inspector T. O. Doane for alterations and extensions to the old Runyon property at 461-465 West Front street, now owned by E. M. Laing. It is expected that a permit covering the improvements, which will cost several thousand dollars, will be issued during the fore part of next week.

The frame double dwelling on the property, which is one of the oldest in that section of the city, having been erected by Nelson Runyon, father of Assemblyman William N. Runyon, is to be thoroughly overhauled, the entire floor plans being changed. An extension, measuring approximately 17x40 feet in the front, with a depth of 17 feet, will be added to the front of the house, bringing the structure out to within a foot or two of the sidewalk line. This addition will be stucco and hollow tile construction, and will be three stories high. The old portion will also be made three stories high.

When the improvements are completed, the structure will be known as the Westover apartments. The first floor will have two suites of rooms of five rooms each and bath, while the second and third floors will have two apartments each with five and six rooms each. The various apartments are to be complete and modern in every detail, with sufficient closets and ample provisions for ventilation and light. An up-to-date steam heating system is to be installed.

The improvements finally decided upon are to be made after a thorough investigation of the needs of the West End of the city, and the building will undoubtedly be rented readily. Marsh & Gette, of 46 Cedar street, New York city, are the architects.

MIDDLESEX IS TO HAVE NEW FACTORY

Powder Factory to Be Running by August 15 With Force of 300 Men.

The title has been passed for Middlesex county's new powder plant at Parlin. About 300 acres of land adjoining the tract on which is located the DuPont powder factories were sold to T. A. Gillespie and Company, who have offices at 50 Church street, New York.

Already sixteen buildings for use in making powder have been begun and three are actually completed. There will be thirty-two of the structures built of brick and corrugated iron. The consideration in the purchase of the land amounted to about $40,000.

It is planned by the new owners to begin the manufacture of powder not later than August 15, and employ some 300 men in the work. It is reported the new powder concern has already a contract from the British government to furnish 1,800,000 pounds of powder, with subsequent contracts to be closed later. The making of the powder is to be done with all possible haste, and the war material is to be transferred to England in installments as early as possible.

The tract purchased includes 275 acres of the Edgar property, owned by Charles Edgar, and thirty-five acres of land adjoining same owned by the estates of Frederick Brown and James Cottrell.

The Union Powder Corporation, incorporated in Virginia with an authorized capital stock of $550,000, has obtained from Secretary of State Martin an order permitting it to operate in New Jersey.

Its place of business in this State will be in Sayreville township, Middlesex county, where it is proposed to establish a hugh powder manufacturing plant. The men who compose the corporation are residents of Richmond, Va., and, so far as known, have no connection with any of the powder concerns now operating in New Jersey.

MILLER BUILDING UNDERGOING ALTERATIONS

Work was started during the present week on extensive alterations to the second floor apartment of Dudley S. Miller's building at Park avenue and Fourth street, directly over his drug store, changing it from a family suite to offices. It embraces six rooms in all and of these three are to be taken by Mr. Miller's son, T. Russell Miller, for a dental suite. The other three are to be fitted up for business offices, either singly or together, according to the needs of the tenant, or tenants. Charles L. Smith drew the plans, and George D. Wilson has the contract for the carpentering work. The improvements also include a new entrance way with a lobby and commodious stairways.

The apartments to be prepared for T. Russell Miller will contain every convenience to make them among the most complete dentist's quarters in the city. They will include a waiting room, operating room and laboratory. Mr. Miller was recently graduated from the University of Pennsylvania.

STATE PERMITS.

A let-up in tenement house construction, compared to the preceding week, was noted in the plans approved last week by the Board of Tenement House Supervision. Eighteen permits, aggregating an expenditure of $262,500, were issued during the last seven days. Last week twenty-eight, amounting to $387,000 were granted. Of the expenditures of last week, $5,500 was to be expended on alteration jobs.

NEW PROVIDENCE STARTS CONSTRUCTION BOOMS

New Providence, June 5—Several real estate developments are on throughout the Pasaic Valley, leading from West Summit to Townley's bridge, in New Providence township and borough. This valley includes the residential sections of West Summit, New Providence, Murray Hill, Berkeley Heights and Long Hill.

In all these sections there has been a steady growth, not affected by any real estate booms, the purchasers and buyers generally making their homes in the residential sections near the stations. Handsome residences costing several thousands each have been constructed during the past year and the future is very promising for the continuation of building operations.

Crane Brothers, of Murray Hill, are completing a handsome residence in the West End. New Providence borough; Murray Hill Park Company is having finished several residences in their park; William T. Hickson, of the borough, has opened several tracts in his large holdings in Mountain View Park and Windmere Park in the borough. Mr. Hickson has just had completed a three-family tenement house in Northern Boulevard. All the residences in Lackawanna Park are taken. In Berkeley Heights, William Jeffery has just had finished an up-to-date bungalow and contemplate the erection of several others of the same type.

OTHER BUILDING NEWS ON PAGE FIVE.

Copyright, 1914, by Doubleday, Page & Company

It was a full length glass and the worst immediately happened. It might have been a little less violent, perhaps, if Penrod's expectations had not been so richly and poetically idealized, but as things were the revolt was volcanic.

Victor Hugo's account of the fight with the devilfish, in "Toilers of the Sea," encourages a belief that, had Hugo lived and increased in power, he might have been equal to a proper recital of the half hour which followed Penrod's first sight of himself as the Child Sir Lancelot. But Mr. Wilson himself, dastard but eloquent foe of Harold Ramorez, could not have expressed, with all the vile dashes at his command, the sentiments which animated Penrod's bosom when the instantaneous and unalterable conviction descended upon him that he was intended by his loved ones to make public spectacle of himself in his sister's stockings and part of an old dress of his mother's.

To him these familiar things were not disguised at all. There seemed no possibility that the whole world would not know them at a glance. The stockings were worse than the bodice. He had been assured that these could not be recognized, but, seeing them in the mirror, he was sure that no human eye could fail at first glance to detect the difference between himself and the former purposes of these stockings. Fold, wrinkle, and void shrieked their history with a hundred tongues, invoking earthquake, eclipse and blue ruin. The frantic youth's final submission was obtained only after a painful telephonic conversation between himself and his father, the latter having been called up and upon by the exhausted Mrs. Schofield, to subjugate his offspring by wire.

The two ladies made all possible haste after this to deliver Penrod into the hands of Mrs. Lora Rewbush. Nevertheless, they found opportunity to exchange earnest congratulations upon his not having recognized the humble but serviceable paternal garment now brilliant about the Lancelotish middle. Altogether, they felt that the costume was a success. Penrod looked like nothing ever remotely imagined by Sir Thomas Malory or Alfred Tennyson—for that matter he looked like nothing ever before seen on earth—but as Mrs. Schofield and Margaret took their places in the audience at the Women's Arts and Guild hall, the anxiety they felt concerning Penrod's elocutionary and gesticular powers so soon to be put to public test was pleasantly tempered by their satisfaction that, owing to their efforts, his outward appearance would be a credit to the family.

The Child Sir Lancelot found himself in a large anteroom behind the stage—a room crowded with excited children, all about equally medieval and artistic. Penrod was less conspicuous than he thought himself, but he was so preoccupied with his own shame, steeling his nerves to meet the first inevitable taunting reference to his sister's stockings, that he failed to perceive there were others present in much of his own unmanned condition. Retiring to a corner immediately upon his entrance, he managed to unfasten the mantle at the shoulders and, drawing it round him, pinned it again at his throat so that it concealed the rest of his costume. This permitted a temporary relief, but increased his horror of the moment when, in pursuance of the action of the "pageant," the sheltering garment must be cast aside.

Some of the other child knights were also keeping their mantles close about them. A few of the envied opulent swung brilliant fabrics from their shoulders, airily showing off hired splendors from a professional costumer's stock, while one or two were insulting examples of parental indulgence, particularly little Maurice Levy, the Child Sir Galahad. This shrinking person went clamorously about, making it known everywhere that the best tailor in town had been dazzled by a great sum into constructing his costume. It consisted of blue velvet knickerbockers, a white satin waistcoat and a beautifully cut little swallow tailed coat with pearl buttons. The medieval and artistic triumph was completed by a mantle of yellow velvet and little white boots sporting gold tassels.

All this radiance paused in a brilliant career and addressed the Child Sir Lancelot, gathering an immediately formed semicircular audience of little girls. Woman was ever the trailer of magnificence.

"What you got on?" inquired Mr. Levy after dispensing information: "What you got on under that ole golf cape?"

Penrod looked upon him coldly. At other times his questioner would have approached him with deference, even with apprehension. But today the Child Sir Galahad was somewhat intoxicated with the power of his own beauty.

"What you got on?" he repeated.

"Oh, nothin'," said Penrod, with an indifference assumed at great cost to his nervous system.

The elate Maurice was inspired to set up as a wit. "Then you're nakid!" he shouted exultantly. "Penrod Schofield says he hasn't got nothin' on under that ole golf cape! He's nakid! He's nakid!"

The audience of little girls giggled irritatingly, and a javelin pierced the inwards of Penrod when he saw that the Child Elaine, amber curled and beautiful Marjorie Jones, lifted golden laughter to the horrid jest.

Other boys and girls came flocking to the uproar. "He's nakid, he's nakid!" shrieked the Child Sir Galahad. "Penrod Schofield's nakid! He's na-a-a-kid!"

"Hush, hush!" said Mrs. Lora Rewbush, pushing her way into the group. "Remember, we are all little knights and ladies today. Little knights and ladies of the Table Round would not make so much noise. Now, children we must begin to take our places on the stage. Is everybody here?"

Penrod made his escape under cover of this diversion. He slid behind Mrs Lora Rewbush and, being near a door opened it unnoticed and went out quickly, closing it behind him. He found himself in a narrow and vacant hallway which led to a door marked "Janitor's Room."

Burning with outrage, heartsick at the sweet, cold blooded laughter of Marjorie Jones, Penrod rested his elbows upon a window sill and speculated upon the effects of a leap from the second story. One of the reasons he gave it up was his desire to live on Maurice Levy's account; already he was forming educational plans for the Child Sir Galahad.

A stout man in blue overalls passed through the hallway, muttering to himself petulantly. "I reckon they'll find that hall hot enough now!" he said, conveying to Penrod an impression that some too feminine women had sent him upon an unreasonable errand to the furnace. He went into the janitor's room and, emerging a moment later minus the overalls, passed Penrod again with a bass rumble—"Dern 'em!" it seemed he said—and made a gloomy exit by the door at the upper end of the hallway.

The conglomerate and delicate rustle of a large, mannerly audience was heard as the janitor opened and closed the door, and stage fright seized the boy. The orchestra began an overture, and at that Penrod, trembling violently, tiptoed down the hall into the janitor's room. It was a cul-de-sac; there was no outlet save by the way he had come.

Despairingly he doffed his mantle and looked down upon himself for a last sickening assurance that the stockings were as obviously and disgracefully Margaret's as they had seemed in the mirror at home. For a moment he was encouraged; perhaps he was no worse than some of the other boys. Then he noticed that a safety pin had opened; one of those connecting the stockings with his trunks. He sat down to fasten it, and his eye fell for the first time with particular attention upon the trunks. Until this instant he had been preoccupied with the stockings.

Slowly recognition dawned in his eyes.

The Schofields' house stood on a corner at the intersection of two main traveled streets, the fence was low and the publicity obtained by the washable portion of the family apparel on Mondays had often been painful to Penrod, for boys have a peculiar sensitiveness in these matters. A plain, matter of fact washerwoman, employed by Mrs. Schofield, never left anything to the imagination of the passerby, and of all her calm display the scarlet flaunting of his father's winter wear had most abashed Penrod. One day Marjorie Jones, all gold and starch, had passed when the dreadful things were on the line; Penrod had hidden himself, shuddering. The whole town, he was convinced, knew these garments intimately and derisively.

And now, as he sat in the janitor's chair, the horrible and paralyzing recognition came. He had not an instant's doubt that every fellow actor, as well as every soul in the audience, would recognize what his mother and sister had put upon him. For as the awful truth became plain to himself it seemed blazoned to the world, and far, far louder than the stockings, the trunks did fairly bellow the grisly secret: whose they were and what they were.

Most people have suffered in a dream the experience of finding themselves very inadequately clad in the midst of a crowd of well dressed people, and such dreamers' sensations are comparable to Penrod's, though faintly, because Penrod was awake and in much too full possession of the most active capacities for anguish.

A human male whose dress has been damaged, or reveals some vital lack, suffers from a hideous and shameful loneliness which makes every second absolutely unbearable until he is again as others of his sex and species, and there is no act or sin whatever too desperate for him in his struggle to attain that condition. Also, there is absolutely no embarrassment possible to a woman which is comparable to that of a man under corresponding circumstances, and in this a boy is a man. Gazing upon the ghastly trunks, the stricken Penrod felt that he was a degree worse than nude, and a great horror of himself filled his soul.

"Penrod Schofield!"

The door into the hallway opened, and a voice demanded him. He could not be seen from the hallway, but the hue and cry was up, and he knew he must be taken. It was only a question of seconds. He huddled in his chair.

"Penrod Schofield!" cried Mrs. Lora Rewbush angrily.

The distracted boy rose, and as he did so a long pin sank deep into his back. He extracted it frenziedly, which brought to his ears a protracted and sonorous ripping, too easily located by a final gesture of horror.

"Penrod Schofield!" Mrs. Lora Rewbush had come out into the hallway.

And now in this extremity, when all seemed lost indeed, particularly including honor, the dilating eye of the outlaw fell upon the blue overalls which the janitor had left hanging upon a peg.

Inspiration and action were almost simultaneous.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The New Jersey Association has welcomed Anti-Suffragists from the four campaign States, and many others, during the last month at its annex on the boardwalk in Atlantic City.

At the luncheon given in Trenton on May 3, officers and members from the various associations to the number of 300 heard the encouraging reports of new auxiliaries being formed, hundreds of signatures secured weekly and much enthusiasm in all parts of the State for the anti-suffrage cause.

A definite outline of State-wide action has been outlined, which will be carried on between now and October 19.

Present indications from every county of the State where careful canvasses have been conducted prove the sentiments of the majority of the women of New Jersey are opposed to woman suffrage.

Two and three meetings a day are the order—and calls for speakers come from civic organizations, church clubs and political committees—sometimes for debates, often for a hearing of the anti-suffrage side after a suffrage speaker has been heard.

Our suffrage friends say work has gone out of the home. Anti-Suffragists wonder if there is a mistake, and instead it is women who have gone out of the home. Every anti-suffrage woman who, from patriotic conviction, is giving time to this amendment, knows the work takes her too much from home, and the family in the home know it also. Almost in proportionate ratio to ready-made clothing, canned goods, baker's bread and cooked food coming into the home, the cost of living has "gone up." Refrigerator cars and cold storage require women to have a knowledge of dietetics and cooking unknown before they had to deal with green food ripening on the way. The health of the household depends now upon this knowledge. To Anti-Suffragists, the scientific housewife and mother seem, more and more, the demand of the day. We have no sympathy with the band of women, affiliated with suffrage, who declare servitude and injustice are expressed in the words home, husband and duty. We have no sympathy with the doctrine of trial marriage, public rearing of children and mothers who prefer to be wage-earners; tenets of these same women. We believe the hope of our land lies in the mother-love and the father-love over the home and in the home, permeating the development and requirements of childhood and youth.

Anti-Suffragists are opposed to women in political life; opposed to women in politics. This is often interpreted to mean opposed to women in public life, which is a profound mistake. We believe in women in all the usual phases of life, except political life. Wherever woman's influence, counsel or work is needed by the community, there you will find her, so far with little thought of political beliefs. Is there any humanitarian work where Anti-Suffragists are not found? The pedestals they are said to stand upon move them into all the demands of the community.

(Letter from the New York Sun.)

The communication in your columns today signed by a man appears to me to deal with a fundamental matter in just that superficial and untruthful manner that is dangerous to those who are not well informed or careful thinkers concerning Woman Suffrage. Your correspondent says: "The Declaration of Independence, which is now the bulwark of our liberties, declares in no uncertain terms that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed;" and he asks, "Who are the governed? Do only adult male citizens come within the purview of the word 'governed?' That could hardly seem possible."

The Declaration of Independence says no such thing, and if it did it would be untrue, for no government on earth derives its just powers from consulting the wishes of its entire population, including infants, while the fact that in our free republic in its noblest days only adult male citizens were the voters shows that a practical "consent of the governed" as an effective means of making law and order real for all citizens brought the "just government" to exactly that basis. Only the adult male citizen is the recognized, legal, public servant of government, whenever needed, in peace or in war; consequently he is, under sound conditions, the only one possessed of the vote. And his vote is not his reward of merit, it is his number, as it were, in the army of service. And that service is, first of all, for the sake of securing to women freedom, peace and their full share in that underlying social basis of government which depends upon the power and the willingness of the policing element of government to do its duty.

It is a confusion of thought that makes the danger of our present situation. The States that possess Woman Suffrage have ceased to be true units in a great, free representative republic; they are bits of a socialistic commonwealth; and with the unsupported vote of women came in the undermining theories of a democracy that means the opposite of a true conception of a republic. In our noble country the motto long was "Ladies first." The suffrage movement means "Women harnessed double" in political and public work, but both cannot be. Already in this inhuman kind of team work women have fallen behind. This republic is still the one great hope of the world, and it is not possible that mistaken [illegible] to real conditions will diminish to any appreciable extent the great majority that "adult male voters" will roll up against Woman Suffrage—falsely called "equal suffrage."—Helen Kendrick Johnson.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Reading That Isn't In Books.

And He Learned to Swim.

"THERE'S a kind of reading that isn't in books," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn, beginning the evening story, "and I will tell you about it. It's a kind of reading that will do you just as much good as reading books, though in a different way.

"Once there was a little boy who was a regular bookworm. Do you know what a bookworm is, children? It's a boy or a girl or a man or a woman with the nose always burrowing in a book.

"This little boy I am talking about used to read just all the time. He was a smart little boy in a way, and he learned to read early. He read all his picture books when he was five, and when he was six he could read words that were quite big and fat.

"Well, you couldn't get that little boy out to play with the other little boys, and he didn't like to stop and help his mamma. I am sorry to say, and he had rather not stop to eat his meals sometimes, he was so fond of reading. When he was six he liked to read the big family Bible, principally, I imagine, because there were big pictures in it.

"Well, when you wanted to find that little boy you could usually depend on discovering him flat on his little tummy in some room by his little self reading. And because he didn't get enough exercise he grew scrawny, and his appetite fell away, and the doctor said to his parents that he must stop reading so much and get out of doors more.

"So one day his papa, who was a fine rider on a prancing horse, came into the room where that boy was lying on his tummy reading and picked him right up and carried him out and put him up on the horse's back and told him to stick there. And his papa led the horse around. And by and by the little boy found he liked to be up on the horse's back out in the fresh air.

"That's when he began to learn the kind of reading that you won't find in books. He learned the language of the breeze whispering among the leaves and grasses, and he learned the message of the warm sunshine falling upon the green earth and what the hum of the busy bees meant and many things.

"And later his papa sent him with some big boys he could trust, and he learned to swim. And what fun he had! And in one way and another he learned the lessons from the book of the great outdoors, summer and winter.

"Instead of being a scrawny boy with a poor appetite he became a strong boy, and his mamma could have told you how much he could eat. He was a happier boy after that. He read from printed books, too, but he learned also to read from the great book of nature, the finest book in the world."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

All that night and all the next day till late in the afternoon the baby lay in a stupor, with a burning fever.

"I will be back as soon as I have made my round of calls," the doctor had said when he looked in early in the morning to see how the night had gone, "and I shall stay until the crisis is over."

The evening dragged away; the dull ticking of the clock seemed to fill the house with sound and the strokes of the hour were blows on the heavy silence.

Nell was lying down at the doctor's command, but she could not sleep. A great dread seemed weighing her to the earth; a fear that was like a paralysis crushing all power to move or think.

"Perhaps I'll have no baby in the morning; no child can live long with such a temperature," she thought.

The doctor sat by the crib, intently watching the child, disturbing him occasionally to give him his medicine. From the bed by the side of the crib Nell could reach the hot little hand. Dick wandered restlessly about in bathrobe and slippers, sitting down to stroke Nell's hair or pausing by the [illegible] at the frail little [illegible] his life, and he [illegible] could help neither [illegible] rage at his helpl[illegible] in him.

Dick threw himself on the [illegible] in the living room with the light turned low, and in [illegible] of his anxiety dozed off to sleep.

Suddenly a wild, pleading sound rent the air, crying away on suppressed trembling wails. It seemed right in the room. Ned sat up and gazed around fearfully, and Dick hurried to the bedroom door exclaiming—he knew not what. The doctor still sat looking at the child and holding his little hand.

"Oh, what was it?" breathed Nell in a terrified whisper, looking wildly from the doctor's serious face to Dick's.

"That noise?" The doctor raised his eyes, a smile crossed his face. "That was a screech owl. You must have been half asleep. We don't often hear them so near a house."

"The fever is breaking," he continued. "The little pain is getting moist. If we can keep him from sinking now there is great hope of his recovery."

"Oh, thank God!" Neil dropped on the floor by the crib and kissed the little hand while the tears rained down her face.

Household Hints

STRAWBERRY RECIPES

Perfection Strawberries—Berries canned by this recipe positively will not float to the top of the can, but will remain evenly distributed through the syrup and are always plump and a beautiful deep red. Ordinary canned strawberries are always light in color and tough or spongy because the fruit always rises to the top of the can and packs in a solid mass, forcing all the juice to the bottom. By this new method, all this is done away with. For each quart of fruit (measured after picking over) make a syrup of one and one-half cups sugar and three-fourths cup water; when boiling, add berries and simmer for five minutes after boiling point is reached the second time. If berries are very sour use a little more sugar or less if very sweet. Cook only a few quarts at a time to prevent breaking. As each batch is done pour into a large earthen or granite vessel and keep covered. Never use tin or aluminum cooking utensils for acid fruit. When all are cooked, cover closely and set in a cool place about twelve hours. At the end of that time, sterilize jars and covers thoroughly and fill hot jars to overflowing with cold fruit. Seal tight and invert jars until next day to test. Success depends upon clean, sound fruit and sterile jars and covers.

Strawberry Tarts—To one pint of fresh mashed berries add four ounces finely powdered sugar and the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Line the tart shells with rich pie pastry, fill with the mixture and bake. When done, drop a bit of whipped cream in the center of each. They are fine for lunch.

Strawberry Frosting—Take five berries, mash them, then add one cupful of confectionery sugar, spread on cake.

Strawberry Shortcake—One-third cup melted butter, three-fourths cup sweet milk, one egg well beaten, two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three teaspoons baking powder. Mix butter, milk and egg together and last add the flour and other ingredients. Cut with biscuit cutter, bake; when done, have ready some crushed sweetened strawberries, put between each biscuit, saving a few whole ones for on top heap, a tablespoonful of whipped cream on top and garnish with one strawberry.

Strawberry Blanc Mange—Line a mold with firm large berries and fill with cornstarch blanc mange made as follows: One pint of milk scalded, three level tablespoonfuls cornstarch mixed with as much cold milk stirred evenly into the hot milk and cooked till thick. Add two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a scant teaspoonful vanilla, when removing from the fire. Whipped cream may be served as a sauce or strewed strawberries in their own syrup can also be used.

TO CLEAN CLOCK

Simple Way to Clean a Clock—Take a bit of cotton, size of an egg, dip it into kerosene and place it on the floor of the clock in the corner, shut the door of the clock and wait three or four days. The clock will be like a new one, and if you look inside you will find the cotton batting black with dust. The fumes of the oil loosen the particles of dust and they fall, thus cleaning the clock.

THE TABLE

Cheap Dark Cake—Two cups brown sugar, butter size of egg, one egg, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon soda, two scant cups of flour. For filling: One cup sugar, little water, boil to a taffy, pour into whites of beaten eggs. This cake can be made with or without the egg; can use lard instead of butter.

Italian Stew (very simple and good)—One pound ground round steak, cook ten minutes; one can tomatoes, few potatoes cut in cubes, cook ten minutes more couple of onions cut up; cook about two cupfuls of spaghetti in boiling water for fifteen minutes, then put in stew. Season with salt and pepper. This will serve four or five people. With a nice salad and dessert is all that is really necessary.

USE BORAX

To Cleanse Coffee Pots—Even with careful washing a much used coffee pot will become so stained as to give a muddy color to the coffee made in it. To prevent this and thoroughly cleanse the pot boil in it for half an hour each week a strong solution of borax and water; rinse carefully.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — SCOOP DEMONSTRATES THE "FADE-AWAY" — BY "HOP"

REV. DR. STRONG'S SERMON THEME WILL BE "JUNE"

Tomorrow will be a most interesting day in the First Baptist church, the morning service being the monthly communion service and in the evening the pastor, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, will preach his sermon in the series "Through the Year with Bards and Bible," the subject being "June."

These sermons are illustrated with several poetic recitations and many facts from nature bearing upon the particular month under discussion. After the evening discourse, the ordinance of baptism will be administered. Many are thus coming into the church just now and baptisms are likely to occur weekly for sometime.

BOSTON BAPTISTS CELEBRATE THEIR 250TH ANNIVERSARY

Boston, June 5—Prominent Baptists of New England are attending the 250th anniversary celebration of the founding of the First Baptist church here. Founded in the face of persecutions for heresy, the little church established in 1665 had a troublous career. Henry Dunster, the first president of Harvard, and who had given nearly all his possessions to the college, was forced to resign because of his Baptist doctrine. Fines, imprisonments and whippings were imposed by the Puritans. Thomas Goold, of Charlestown, a friend of Dunster, who formed the first Baptist church here, was disciplined because he refused to have his infant child baptised. Many denominations will be represented in the public celebration of the quarter millenium which will be held on Monday.

In "the Game of Life" generally, as well as in want advertising, persistence wins in nine cases out of ten.

HONOR MEMORY OF DEPARTED DEAD

Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils Hold Services in Plainfield Avenue Cemetery.

IMPRESSIVE ADDRESS

Rev. C. S. Gillespie, of Grace M. E. Church, Emphasizes the Significance of the Occasion—List of Late Members Read.

Memorial exercises were held yesterday afternoon at the Plainfield avenue cemetery, under the auspices of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Councils, of Plainfield, according to the annual custom, the councils represented being Franklin, Somerset, Plainfield and Benevolent. They were led by the uniform rank, and among those present were State Councilor R. P. F. von Minden, who assisted by State Treasurer William B. LaRue, conducted the ritualistic service for the dead at the cemetery.

An impressive part of the service was the reading of the names of departed members. They were read by Forester Hartpence, of Franklin Council; Walter Walker for Somerset Council; W. H. I. Cubberley for Benevolent Council, and Joel Pennington for Plainfield Council.

The memorial address was delivered by Rev. C. S. Gillespie, the new pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, who spoke in part as follows:

"There are two distinct reasons why we are here at this memorial service today. The one is because we are human and have hearts that can love and suffer, rejoice and mourn, forget and remember. From the standpoint of the spirit in man, these are the very things that distinguish him as human. The beasts can manifest some concern and interest in each other for very brief periods of time, but there is no indication that they can mourn the loss of their comrades in any such fashion as does man.

"They shed no tears at open graves and make no annual pilgrimage to the spot where they laid to rest their comrades. But these prerogatives that are ours entail some other things as well as those that make us glad with immortal hope. Amid all the complexities of our lives and the associations we have there arise as well some things that we forget; we come to the graves of those who wronged us in their life-time but when we stand there our antipathies die; we cannot carry them beyond the dark shadow; our hatred disappears; we cannot bring them before the eternal God; our own failures to show the brotherly spirit to those who pass on tend to give us a spirit of aspiration to raise above what we have been toward what we might be.

"Memory furnishes a gracious atmosphere and things look different from the distance than when we are too near. The mountains look rugged and steep when we are climbing them; but when we look at them from their summit, or even from the foot-hills in the distance they look very different. It is prerogative of memory to leave on the dull tedium of the bivouac life and striving, and remembering only the brilliant exploits and victories, to tint its virtures very much with the ideal which is better than the real.

"The second reason that we are here is because there are some things that are immortal and it is the good that never dies. We are here because we believe that there is yet a life for us to live when the wreath is laid over our dust, and the farewell is said for us because we have gone to our long home. But we thing it is our home and that we have the immortal hope. We comfort ourselves today that we had the fellowship with them and that tomorrow we shall see them; we come to see the place where they lay knowing that they are not here and that they never were here; they were gone there before their bodies were brought here; we know, too, that soon we shall go hence and welcome that by all the nobility in their examples we may have our lives made more noble."

GIVE PALMS TO COLLEGE.

During a visit to Plainfield, this morning, former Mayor Charles J. Fisk completed arrangements for the transfer of three beautiful palms from the greenhouse of a local florist to the premises of Mt. St. Mary College. The plants each weigh in the neighborhood of five hundred pounds and formerly decorated the lawn of the Fisk home on West Seventh street.

MISS WOOLSTON GIVEN A SURPRISE

Event in Honor of Birthday Anniversary Held in Town Hall at Watchung.

Miss Marguerite Woolston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, was given a surprise party Saturday night in honor of her twentieth birthday anniversary. The affair took place in the "Town Hall" at Watchung. Miss Woolston was taken for an automobile ride by friends and when in the vicinity of Watchung the driver "faked" a puncture. The little village was asleep at that time and the only visible light was in the hall. Miss Woolston was invited to wait there until the tire could be fixed and upon entering was greeted by many of her friends.

There were guests present from this city, Westfield, New Brunswick, Dunellen and New York city. The evening was spent in dancing, music being furnished by a Victrola. Miss Lillian Atkinson, of New Brunswick, and Harold Woolston, of this city, and Duke Rolphe, of New Brunswick, gave exhibition dances.

Miss Edythe Bechtel, of this city, entertained with vocal solos, accompanied on the piano by John Hoagland. One of the features of the evening was the opening of the gifts by Miss Woolston, which caused much merriment. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brokaw acted as chaperones. The affair was arranged by the Misses Elizabeth and Mabel Stevenson and Grace Woolston. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Those present were Miss Lillian Atkinson and Stanley Wiley, Augustus Leimbesser, Duke Rolphe, Edward Flannigan and John Hoagland, of New Brunswick; Miss Lillian Fisher, of Dunellen; George Young and George Souders, of Westfield; J. C. Valentine, of New York, and the Misses Grace and Marguerite Woolston, Elizabeth and Mabel Stevenson, Henrietta and Ida Englehardt, Margaret Darby, Lena Mobus, Ethel Barnard, Edythe Bechtel, Dorothy Uhrhahn, and William Taylor, Herbert Stine, George Townley, Wilbur and Frank Dunning, Malcolm Krewson, Allen Snyder, Harold Woolston and Jack Fox, of this city.

TRIAL OF MRS. ROUNDEY ON UNION COUNTY COURT SLATE

Mrs. Florence E. Roundey, formerly of Truell Court, will be arraigned in the Union County Court, at Elizabeth, tomorrow, for trial on four Grand Jury indictments, two charging her with endeavoring to secure suborned testimony; one with suborning testimony, and a fourth with perjury direct. Two weeks ago she entered pleas of not guilty to each count and has since been at liberty under bonds of $2,000 pending trial.

The indictments were found at the instance of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the local law firm of Reed and Hetfield, and he will be affiliated with Union County Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein in the prosecution. Mrs. Roundey has figured centrally in a number of litigations and the outcome of tomorrow's case will be watched with considerable interest.

AUTOISTS NOT FAMILIAR WITH NEW TRAFFIC LAWS

In their efforts to enforce the new code of regulations adopted by the State Department of Motor Vehicles, the local patrolmen are having their troubles. Many autoists profess ignorance of the law and up to date the police activity has been confined solely to warnings. In the event of persistent violation, however, Police Chief Kiely says that arrests will follow and the offenders will be made an example of.

One of the sections of the new code that has been frequently violated is the one prohibiting autoists from leaving their machines standing in front of a hydrant. Chief Kiely has suggested that marks be placed on each side of the fire hydrants to let owners of cars know the spot which they should leave unobstructed and the recommendation will probably meet with general favor.

"GET TOGETHER" MEETING.

The meeting this evening will be a live one and Plainfield business will be "worked out" for the benefit of the purchasing public.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7—Mrs. James E. Martine, of New Jersey, Saturday named a baby puma born in Los Angeles a week ago.

The little animal has its home at the Bostock Animal Arena and the naming occurred when members of a party of United States Senators and Congressmen and their wives visited the zoo. HOOD BUYS HOME THAT COURT TOOK Local Man Repurchases "The Roses" Awarded to Former Wife Last December.

PRICE ABOUT $75,000

One of the Most Pretentious Sites in the City is Retransferred to Prominent Man Who Figured in Litigation Brought by His Wife.

What appears to be a final settlement of the Hood litigation was effected last week, when Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood, through her counsel, sold back the handsome residence at 541 Stelle avenue, to her divorced husband, Richard Haden Hood. Although the exact figure was not made public it is estimated that the deal was consummated for about $75,000. Mrs. Hood received the property under the terms of a decision handed down by Vice-Chancellor Stevens, in Jersey City, during December of last year. At that time the Court of Errors affirmed the decision granting Mrs. Hood an absolute decree of divorce from her husband.

Under the terms of the settlement in December, Mrs. Hood received a lump sum of $60,000 in lieu of periodic payments of permanent alimony. During the pendency of the divorce proceedings, Mr. Hood brought suit for the possession of the Stelle avenue property which was called "The Roses," and which he had put in Mrs. Hood's name some time after he bought it in April, 1908.

When the vice-chancellor rendered the verdict awarding Mrs. Hood the property he also ordered Hood to surrender all claim to the ownership of such part of the furnishings as properly appertained to the home, the ownership of such furnishings having been a subject of suit before him and in which Hood won out.

Summarized, Mrs. Hood received $60,000 in a lump sum and relinquished all claim to further support from Mr. Hood; a divorce decree not subject to further contest, and undisputed title to the Plainfield home on which Mr. Hood is said to have spent $100,000; not taking its furnishings into account, and a good part of the furnishings.

The Stelle avenue residence is one of the most pretentious in the city and embraces an immense tract of land at the juncture of Stelle and Plainfield avenues. In the rear of the handsome residence an elaborate Italian garden has been laid out.

May Be Re-submitted to the Cabinet at Its Meeting Tomorrow.

Washington, June 7.—It has developed that the text of the German note has not yet been sent by the President to the State Department. While no explanations for the delay were forthcoming, it was intimated that the President might be withholding the document for resubmission to the Cabinet at its meeting tomorrow. The rumor was that the President was desirous of having his advisors pass on the finished note.

Secretary Bryan had a conference with the President today, discussing the final details of the American reply to Germany.

H. L. FOLSOM WEDS MISS ANNA RICHARDS

Ceremony Performed in First Congregational Church, of Bridgeport, Conn.

Miss Anna Richards, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, for many years pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and Henry Lloyd Folsom, of Llewelyn Park, were married Saturday afternoon at the First Congregational church, Bridgeport, Conn., Rev. Herbert Gallaudet, pastor of the church, officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. Henry P. Nichols, of Holy Trinity Episcopal church, New York city.

The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Mead, of this city, and the Misses Sarah and Marion Richards, sisters of the bride. The best man was Augustus Low, of New York. The ushers included Henry Richards, brother of the bride, the others being classmates of Mr. Low at Yale.

The bride was accompanied up the aisle by her brother, George H. Richards, and was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a beautiful gown of point applique lace, and veil which was an heirloom of the Folsom family.

A small reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mrs. Richards in Bridgeport, which was attended by the immediate relatives. After a trip the couple will reside at Llewelyn Park.

STATE PRISON TERMS FOR NINE "DEPUTIES"

From Two to Ten Years the Decision of Justice Bergen Rendered Today.

New Brunswick, June 7—Sitting in New Brunswick, this morning, Justice Bergen sentenced the nine deputies who were convicted of having a part in the slaying of two strikers at Roosevelt last January, to not less than two years nor more than ten years in State Prison. Sixteen others are still charged with the murder of Alesandro Tessitore, and there are two atrocious assault charges against the whole twenty-five.

The sentence came as a grave shock to the convicted men and their families, a majority of the latter being in court when Justice Bergen rendered his decision. From the time of their arrest until the conviction they had been cheered by the assurances of their friends that "everything would come out all right." Some of them were inclined to treat the wholesale arrest good naturedly, and their friends in the same line of business, who have called upon them in jail, had encouraged them to wait patiently with no fear of the result.

It is no secret that the Supreme Court has been much interested in the case. The notoriety that New Jersey received throughout the land at the time of the shooting made the men responsible for Jersey justice anxious that there should be no miscarriage of the law in this case. The attorney general personally took charge of the prosecution at the direction of Justice Bergen.

SUNDAY "EXTRA" VENDERS ANNOYING CHURCH-GOERS

Mayor Leighton Calkins, yesterday, issued orders through Police Chief Kiely to members of the police department to instruct local newsdealers to take in their outside stands and to "pickup" boys who are making a general nuisance of themselves sellings Sunday "extras." The practice has become so annoying to church-goers who are met Sunday mornings by youngsters crying "extra" as they come from services that action was taken yesterday.

Hereafter the practice will be prohibited and if the dealers insist in sending youthful venders out to dispose of the "extras" prosecution will probably follow. The sidewalk obstructions have involved considerable inconvenience in the business section and the action is a welcome one.

PAVING STARTED.

Work of making the preliminary preparations for the permanent pavement of West Third street, between Plainfield avenue and Liberty street, was started last week, when the curbing through the entire block was taken out, and pipes connecting with the storm sewers laid. The actual work of paving will probably be started before the end of the present week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reuter and daughter, of New York, spent the week-end with Mr. Reuter's sister, Mrs. Frank Neidig, of the borough.

POPULAR LAD LAID AWAY AT HILLSIDE

Large Gathering at Funeral of "Billy" Anderson Held in Hope Chapel.

In the presence of a large gathering of friends and associates, the funeral of William B. Anderson, whose death occurred Friday night after a long illness, was held in Hope chapel this afternoon, following a short prayer service at the home of his uncle, Joseph Brown, of 914 West Third street. The edifice was thronged with people who had become acquainted with the young man in the few years that he had made Plainfield his home and evidences of genuine sorrow and regret were apparent everywhere. A mass of floral tributes banked about the casket was a mute testimonial to the esteem in which he was held. The service at the church was conducted by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, it being the request of the deceased that he officiate. Dr. Zelie had been a close friend of Mr. Anderson during his protracted invalidism and was with him when the end came. The words of the clergyman rang with a personal touch and his remarks struck a responsive cord in the breast of all within his hearing. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of the chapel, who spoke at the house service and who had also been in close touch with the young man, assisted in the church obsequies. Mrs. James Gilbert, an intimate friend, sang in a beautiful voice a solo, "Face to Face," Miss Roxana Love presiding at the organ.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being six former associates, John Le Poidevin, Cecil Priaulx, Arthur Campbell, William Spaulding, Alexander Doig and David Dewar. All are residents of the city with the exception of Mr. Dewar, whose home is in Washington, D. C., and who was a classmate of the deceased in Scotland. The floral tributes included set pieces from Protective Conclave, Order of Heptasophs; Clan Mackenzie, Order of Scottish Clans, and the Young Men's organizations and Sunday-school of Hope chapel, with all of which he was connected.

William Anderson was a native of Kirkcaldy, Fifeshire, Scotland, where he was born twenty-seven years ago. He came to Plainfield in 1907 and had made his home since that time with the exception of a short time when he returned to his native land for a sort while. Despite the fact that he had lived in Plainfield but a short time when his health failed, he made hundreds of friends and werever he made one he never lost the friendship. He bore his long illness with unusual grit and determination and it was only through these that he fought the malignant disease so long. Joseph Brown, of West Third street, was his only local relative, but the heartfelt sympathy of all those who knew "Billy," as he was always called, is extended to the kin who reside over the sea. His memory will remain with scores of Plainfielders for many years to come and he will always be thought of as the delightful Scotch boy with the charming tenor voice, genial disposition and ability to make and keep friends.

Among those present were the Misses Dorothy Simons, Helen Peacock, Jean Guttridge, Ella Armstrong, Mary Simons, Florence Ryder, Jean Peacock, Lloyd and Natalie Getter, and William Peacock, William Wheelan, Daniel McNamee, Edward Ryder, Stockton Burr, Southern Outwater, Roscoe Blanchard, Edward Crane, Allen Getter, Sheldon Coudray, Carleton Dunham, Chester Alpaugh, Frank LeFay and Miss Mildred Bunn, of New York.

BATTLE RAGING NORTH OF ARRAS

Terrific Combat With Big Guns Now in Progress in Western Theatre.

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK

Great Naval Activity is Noted Especially in Movement of Large Warships and Torpedo Boats—German Submarines Sink Many Ships.

Paris, June 7—The great artillery duel which is a part of the nightly battle raging north of Arras, has developed into one of the most terrific combats with big guns yet seen in the western theatre. The French war office in an official communique today describes the artillery engagement as one of the utmost violence. German counter attacks in the vicinity of Suchez were all repulsed by the French. Further progress has been scored by the French in their attacks against the German defenses known as the labyrinth. Fighting is in progress all along the line with the French launching attacks in the Aisne Valley and in the Argonne.

The following was given out by the Admiralty today:

"On the night of June 3 the French mine layer Cassabianca was sunk in the Aegean Sea by Turks. The commanding officer and 64 members of the crew were saved by a British destroyer. It is possible, however, that other members of the crew succeeded in making their way ashore where they were taken prisoners by Turks."

Petrograd, June 7—The following statement on Baltic operations was given out by the Ministry of Marine today:

"Reports from observation posts and from our submarines watching the coast reveal activity by the enemy, especially the movement of large warships preceded by torpedo boats. A squadron approached the entrance to the Gulf of Riga on Thursday, but withdrew upon perceiving our fleet. Later the enemy sent out hydro-aeroplanes which attacked our ships. These aerial attacks were without result, the projectiles missing their mark. The enemy repeated his attacks on Friday, but these were frustrated by our submarines. Reports dated Sunday show that three enemy steamships were sunk by mines placed in the route of the enemy and by attacks by our submarines.

Queenstown, June 7—The British bark, Sunlight, hailing from Liverpool, was sunk by a German submarine off the Irish coast late last night. The crew was saved. The Sunlight was bound from the West Indies with sugar.

Constantinople, June 7—The Turkish war office gave out the following official statement today:

Stubborn fighting near Sed El Bahr has terminated successfully for us. Our counter attacks delivered by our right wing rolled the enemy back into his old positions with heavy losses. The retirement of the allies took place in disorder.

London, June 7—The following official statement was issued by the Admiralty today:

Last night Zeppelins visited the east coast. Incendiary bombs and also explosive bombs were dropped. Two big fires were caused. So far as known five persons were killed and forty other were injured.

The British steamship Star of the West has been sunk by a German submarine off Peter Head, Scotland. All members of the crew were saved. The vessel was a small one hailing from Aberdeen.

Two more British vessels were added during the night to the list of five reported yesterday to have been sunk by German submarines. The last two are the steamer Dunnet Head of Leith, bound from Balta Sound for Arbroath Barracks, which was torpedoed off Lerwick, and the Glasgow schooner Georgenary, which was sunk yesterday on the western coast of Ireland.

Berlin, June 7 (by wireless)—The Russian second-class cruiser Amur was sunk in the Baltic Sea by a German submarine last Friday night, it was officially announced today.

Athens, June 7—An official bulletin issued early this morning stated that King Constantine was sleeping uninterruptedly. His temperature was 103.46, nearly a degree lower than yesterday.

ROWDIES CAUGHT AFTER LONG CHASE

T. W. Sisty to Prosecute Those Who Damaged Wayside Park.

A number of young rowdies from Dunellen who make a Sunday practice of intruding their obnoxious behaviour upon some of the residents of Middlesex Borough, were chased from that borough yesterday afternoon by T. W. Sisty. Some of them were guilty of breaking down a fence at the Wayside Park grounds, of entering the pavilion, breaking a lock on the piano and damaging its keys. They also stole goods from a Mrs. Dwyer and sold them to another party from whom they were recovered.

The attention of Mr. Sisty was called to the damage that the rowdies were doing to his park by Mrs. Dwyer. Mr. Sisty not only chased them from his park and the borough, but caught two of the fellows after a chase of a mile to a point near Greenbrook and Madison avenue. The two, completely tired by the chase, had hidden in some brush in the hope of escaping, but Mr. Sisty detected them. Mr. Sisty gave them a good shaking and scared them into revealing the names of their companions, who numbered five. In addition to the above damage the two confessed that they and their companions were guilty of breaking an ice cream sign at Wayside Park by throwing bottles through it.

It is believed that the same crowd was guilty of smashing a large amount of glass on the public road to the menace of automobilists. This glass was, fortunately, discovered and removed before damage had been done. The police of Dunellen have the names of the five suspects and an example will be made of them so as to warn others who are inclined to go to Middlesex Borough on Sunday with their unlawful and roughhouse ways.

With the purchasing of a portion of the property in the Graceland section of the township, formerly used as part of the links by the Westfield Golf Club, by the local Board of Education as a location for the new school, it has necessitated the shifting of the first tee to a position across the trolley tracks, thus shortening the first hole and requiring a readjustment of play. This move makes the course about one stroke shorter in nine holes. The fixing of the property across the tracks is rapidly being completed and will be open for use in another two weeks.

Now that the Borough Council has turned down the proposal to place a traffic post at the junction of Martine and North avenues, several residents have started an agitation for the installation of an arc light at that corner to lessen the danger of an accident at night. ITALY'S STAKE AND ROUMANIA'S

Both Countries Influenced by Desire of Expansion.

THE hesitation of Italy in entering the war has been a subject of much criticism. She has been looked upon by many as a mere opportunist, as playing the part of the bat and watching to see where victory perched, but Italy has been playing for a stake that is very dear to her heart, and in playing for a very large stake a certain amount of caution is necessary.

It is the dominion of the Adriatic that is at stake—the question that concerns Italy's progress as a nation and as a great power far more than that of the mere recovery of the provinces of Trent and Trieste.

The control of the Adriatic depends upon the possession of Istria and Dalmatia. A glance at the map will reveal that the whole western coast of that sea is without indentations and off lying islands, those of the Venetian lagoons being worthless for proper harborage on account of the shallow water behind them, and the three harbors only which this peculiar formation of the land allows to the Italian kingdom—Venice, Ancona and Brindisi—are at once too shallow, too small and incapable of being properly fortified for defense on account of opening too directly upon the sea.

On the other hand, the whole eastern coast is not only one long succession of deep bays and inlets, guarded by mountainous flanks and promontories, but is further protected, clear down to Albania, by the extraordinary off lying chain of the Dalmatian islands, whose narrow, tortuous channels are easily fortified to impregnability. Whoever, therefore, possesses this coast has at his command a plenty of capacious, unassailable harbor, from which secure refuge he can dominate completely the opposite indefensible shore. The Austrians have made of Pola and Cattaro two such impregnable war ports, while Zebenico and several other places could be likewise fortified at comparatively small cost.

The alliance served well the purpose of the wise Italian statesmen in keeping peace between the two realms in spite of constant irritating questions and in controlling Austria's ambitions in the Balkans, but now that it is broken Italy is determined that the eternal menace of that impregnable shore shall be ended. It is to her a vital point of safety, of life, of progress. And since both Istria and Dalmatia were always Italian, until wrenched away by Austria a century ago, and are still Italian in language, culture and basic ethnological stock, Italy claims them back again, and for that will fight.

Cordial relations have always existed between Italy and Roumania, and the latter country's dream, like Italy's, is born of a desire for territorial aggrandizement.

At the very beginning of the European war Roumania grew restless. The first clash of arms, the first roar of the cannon, awoke in the hearts of the people the long suppressed aspiration for the redemption of the three Roumanian provinces under Austrian, Hungarian and Russian domination.

Transylvania—including Banat, Temishana, Maramuresh and Krishana, all under the general Roumanian denomination of Ardeal—Bukowina and Bessarabia are the goal of the national longings. The first thought was around which of the two great European constellations ought Roumania to revolve, which of the two groups of Roumanian speaking lands, one comprising Ardeal and Bukowina and the other Bessarabia, should be saved from foreign sway.

Consequently Roumania is playing for much the same stake as Italy, so there is a community of interests between them, and both must play their part in settling the great issues which the present war has brought to a head in Europe.

The man or woman who have not the habit of "trying again" very often fail as want advertisers, wholly for that reason.

INVESTING MONEY.

Don't Buy Securities Unless You Are Positive They Are Sound.

A good counselor of Wall street was talking to me about investments in stocks. He said:

"Tell people not to be in a hurry to buy. The average investor, as differentiated from the steady speculator, doesn't put much money into stocks, and what he does invest is apt to be the accumulation of months or years. He can very well afford to wait until he finds out about the stock which interests him.

"The stock market is with us always. Tell your friends to study it carefully for a time before going into it. Tell them to put their money in a savings bank for six months and let it draw interest at 3 or 4 per cent while they study the market actions of the stocks they think of buying. Suppose in that time prices do rise steadily and the stocks prove to be sound—the increased price in that case will be a small tax on their ultimate profits."

It is good advice for all investors of small experience. An investment ought to have a market price—whether it be stocks, bonds, mortgages, commercial notes, farms or city real estate. The market price of a safe and sound investment ought, on the whole, to rise: when it sags the depression ought not to be great, and it ought to be due to perfectly logical and easily understandable causes.

Beware of the seller who tries to hurry you into buying by saying that the market price of what he has to sell is going up. In most instances you'll find that he's wrong, and if it does go up consistently and logically over a period of months you may reasonably expect that after you buy it its rise will continue.

Don't be in a hurry. You can easily lose in an hour what has required years to accumulate. Look, listen, investigate! The financial history of investments open to the average buyer can be learned—usually the bank in which you have your money deposited can put you in the way of learning it. For every cent spent in finding out before buying the investor will get back a dollar in safety and better returns.—John M. Oskison in Chicago News.

FIRST RECORDED ECLIPSE.

Chinese Astronomers Were Punished For Not Predicting It.

Messrs. Hirayama and Ogura have published in the proceedings of the Tokyo Mathematico-physical society the results of their attempts to fix the dates of some early eclipses recorded in Chinese literature.

The earliest is mentioned in one of the books of the Shu Ching, where it is recorded that in the region of Ching K'ang, the fourth emperor of the Hsia dynasty, there occurred an eclipse of the sun which had not been predicted by the astronomers, who were alleged to have been drunk and to have neglected their duties. Hence the customary rites for delivering the sun, which should have been arranged in advance and superintended by the astronomers, were in the emergency performed by other officials without proper preparation. The emperor accordingly ordered the army to punish the astronomers.

A later document makes it possible to fix the date of this event as Oct. 13 2127 B. C. (Julian calendar)—the earliest recorded eclipse in the world. Calculation shows that there actually was a solar eclipse on that date, but probably not in China, though the elements of the motions of the sun and moon are not accurate enough to indicate certainly the path of so remote an eclipse. The authors are inclined to think that the information fixing the date of the eclipse is due to Chinese astronomers of a later age, who calculated that an eclipse occurred on that date and erroneously supposed that it was visible in China.

Rubber and Gutta Percha.

There are important distinctions between india rubber and gutta percha, and in the majority of purposes for which they are employed one cannot replace the other. While the trees yielding india rubber are well distributed over the tropical parts of the world and may be cultivated with more or less facility, the tree which furnishes gutta percha is to be found only in Borneo, Sumatra and the Malay archipelago generally.

A Galley o' Fun!

WHO?

Who is it who always finds fault with the play
And says it's a pity, alas!
That the theatre, yes, sir! has seen its best day?
Why the man who goes in on a pass.

Who is it who always picks flaws in the Church
And scoffs at its present estate?
"And where is the church-member free from a smirch?"
Why, the man who puts least in the plate.

Who is it who's ready to knife his own town
And talk of the much that it lacks?
"We need public spirit; no wonder we're down"?
Why, the fellow who dodges his tax.

Who is it who rails at the Government most,
And calls it "a deuce of a note"
That we have to be ruled by a dishonest host?
Why, the insect that won't even vote.

A FACILITATOR.

Impatient Guest.—Waiter, I must catch a train and I'm in a hurry—what are the chances of my getting served at once?

Impatient Guest.—I get you—one dollar to one waiter. Here you are! Now slide!

THEN AND NOW.

Warren Chambers.—So Cashier Morral has gone wrong? They say he has been stealing for fifteen years.

Barclay Murray.—Why, when they investigated his books a year ago I thought he came out of the ordeal unspotted.

Warren Chambers.—He did, but they've spotted him now.

ANSWERED.

Sunday-School Teacher.—When Jephtha vowed to sacrifice the first thing he met coming out of his house after he returned, what did he expect to find?

Willie.—Some fellow calling on his wife.

SHE LOOKED AT HERSELF.

The husband had waited an hour, he thought,
For his wife to prepare for the show;
The carriage was waiting, the tickets were bought,
But the wife was not ready to go.
He begged and implored that she hurry and dress;
It was getting so late. But, alas!
She quietly turned, with her vain consciousness,
Just to look at herself in the glass.

The husband then patiently buckled her shoes
And hooked up her dress in the back,
And hurried about, with no moment to lose
To bring in her cloak from the rack.
Then he urged her to hurry and put on her clothes
Before all the evening should pass;
But she turned once again, just to powder her nose
And to look at herself in the glass.

She was finally dressed and 'most ready to go;
Her hair was all carefully banged;
Her waist was now hooked and her skirts didn't show,
For all had been properly hanged.
Then she painted the last touch of rouge on her lips:
And he thought that was all. But, alas!
She powdered her nose and then pushed down her hips,
As she looked at herself in the glass.

But now, as he thought, she was ready at last:
She had donned her entire array;
The toilet was made and the mirror was passed,
And no chance for a further delay.
But she turned once again, just to touch up her lips,
And to powder her nose with one pass;
And to straighten her hat, and to push down her hips,
And to look at herself in the glass.

A TERRIFIC CONFLICT.

Caller.—By the way your husband is carrying on in the next room he must be rehearsing one of his heaviest roles?

Actor's Wife.—Dear, no! He is having a frightful mental struggle. He wants to have the baby's pictures taken, and if we do some of his own will have to come down.

The afternoon was spent in a social way about the historic spot and early in the evening all partook of a fine supper which was provided by the different members of the party. During the winter months the club meets regularly spending the time in the reading of Shakespeare's works.

The following made up the party on Saturday's outing: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hibbard, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. F. O. Herring, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. James W. DeGraff, Mr. and Mrs. John Harman, Mr. and Mrs. Deuse VanVliet, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Joy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. GEO. A. VIEHMANN OUTLINES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE POLIC

"The New Jersey Chamber of Commerce will not meddle in any political matter, neither will it become involved in any controversy between employer and employe, not will it at any time make itself representative of anything but independent public opinion; nor will it indorse any measure except such as will promote justice, equality and fairness to all the people of the State."

This in brief is the conception George A. Viehmann, of New Brunswick, the recently elected president, has of the purpose of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce. Furthermore, he believes that if these principles are lived up to by that organization, and if there is a lot of cooperation on the part of the little as well as the big business men of the State, there is a brilliant future of usefulness before the State body, and it will attain the highest ideals of its founders, for which it has been striving ever since its conception.

E. R. Ackerman, of this city, is treasurer of the State Chamber of Commerce, beside being a sustaining member. W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, is also a sustaining member.

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT SHOWING ENORMOUS GROWTH

Trenton, June 7.—The huge proportions to which the work of the department of motor vehicles is growing are shown in a report issued Saturday by Commissioner William L. Dill. The receipts of the department to June 1 amounted to $777,780.58, as against $814,535.30 for the entire year of 1914.

Up to June 1 this year 68,180 drivers' licenses had been issued, indicating an issuance of approximately 100,000 such licenses for the year. From January 1 to June 1, 13,247 examinations of candidates for drivers' licenses have been given, of which 11,762 have been passed by the inspectors and 1,485 applications have been rejected. During the same period last year the number of examinations was 8,543. Commissioner Dill said Saturday if this tremendous increase continues through this year it is estimated that by December 31 approximately 37,000 examinations will have been given.

If there is some work which you can do well, and you will tell about it in a Situation Wanted ad, you'll find your opportunity.

THE WAR COLLEGE BRAINS OF ARMY

Makes Plans In Advance and Secures Secret Information.

The president of the Army War college at Washington, Brigadier General M. M. Macomb, holds a particularly responsible position in case the United States should be involved in war. Indeed, in the period of stress the war college is the main adviser of the president of the United States, of the secretary of war and of the chief of staff.

The war college came into existence when Elihu Root was secretary of war. It is his creation, for he made possible a thing that the brainy men of the army had been demanding for many years.

The building in Washington is a monument to Root. Its cornerstone was laid by him in 1903, and the structure was completed some years later.

The United States maintains an institution whose business it is to know how to pass from a state of peace to a state of war. The most secret, the least known of its institutions, is the vital link in the great war chain, the war college, and the business of the war college is to see to it that the people of this nation are not placed at a disadvantage should a war emergency arise.

Surrounded with mystery, filled with officials who have nothing to say when interviewed, steadily acquiring from all possible sources the fullest and most accurate information up to the very minute of all that the other nations in the world are doing in the way of defense and offense; knowing to a man the strength and disposal of foreign armies, where they are and what they are doing, and learning all this and much more by agencies of which the nation that goes calmly to bed at night never dreams, the war college is an alive and vital agency of the government.

THE PIONEER POLICEWOMAN.

Mrs. Wells Has Shown That Woman Has a Peculiar Field on the Force.

When Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells of Los Angeles, Cal., became the first policewoman in the United States the experiment excited distrust in many quarters. But she has made good, and her critics are silenced. She has shown that there is a particular field for women on the police force.

In other words, Mrs. Wells insists that there are facts of life, particularly in the lives of wayward young women needing only a little attention to save them from moral ruin, which the man best qualified to be a good rough and tumble policeman should not be expected to understand. This is so patently true that Los Angeles, which first made the policewoman experiment in the appointment of Mrs. Wells, would not now abandon it. The work has been so well justified that the experimental stage is passed. Chicago alone now has twenty-five policewomen, and St. Louis can, under the new Missouri law, appoint them whenever the board of police commissioners so decides.

Rent one of your rooms and reduce your own rent materially. It's a simple and sensible plan—and it works.

MONSIGNOR WHELAN A PRIEST FOR THIRTY-NINE YEARS

Next Thursday will mark the thirty-ninth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of Monsignor Isaac P. Whelan, of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, and a brother of William J. Whelan, of this city. He is not disposed to have any special celebration, but it is certain that neither the children nor the grown folk of the parish will allow the event to pass without some recognition. Monsignor Whelan will celebrate mass at 8 o'clock Thursday morning and the children of St. Patrick's Parochial School will attend. It is expected that Monsignor Whelan will make a brief address to them.

Monsignor Whelan was born in Elizabeth on October 18, 1852, the son of Captain and Mary Whelan, pioneer Catholic settlers in Union county. He began his education in a parochial school in Elizabeth, then entered Seton Hall College, and on June 10, 1876, was ordained in St. Patrick's Cathedral by the late Bishop Wigger. On March 19, 1906, he was appointed rector of the Cathedral, succeeding the late Monsignor Doane.

REORGANIZING THE WORKERS.

The address of David Lloyd George to the employers and wage workers of Manchester, England, will be viewed differently by different men, but the full significance of what he said ought not to escape anyone. When the distinguished Britisher said the fate of England hangs upon the willingness of the hands and brains of the working class, he uttered a great truth, but one which unfortunately has been too long ignored.

The greater truth is that the fate of not only England, but of every nation hangs upon the working class, not only now, in time of war and tremendous national stress, but all the time, as the Pittsburg Leader says. That is the point which Lloyd George and the national managers seem to have overlooked until they reached a stage at which it was not possible to ignore it any longer.

Nations which accumulate wealth which centralizes itself in the hands of the few at the expense of the many must expect to find themselves in the position from which England just now is trying so desperately to relieve herself.

The working class of Great Britain, and especially of England, have been taught so long and so well that they amount to nothing, something like the chaff and the dust in the wheat, that it is almost impossible now to change their views. Had the wage workers been better cared for in the distribution of rewards of industry it would not now be necessary for the government to make its special plea to these same working class men.

NOT A SAFE INDICATOR.

The Trenton Times sayes that in September Maine is to vote on a proposed amendment to the State Constitution giving to women the right to vote, and the September election is being looked forward to with more than usual interest because, it is said, it will be the first opportunity in the East for testing public sentiment on the question of equal suffrage.

New Jersey will vote on October 19, and Pennsylvania, New York and Massachusetts in November. Maine is a prohibition state, New York and Pennsylvania are "wet," while Massachusetts is "dry" in spots. If sentiment on the subject of temperance differs so widely in the five states, how can it be argued that they will agree on suffrage?

It will not do to assume that if equal suffrage carries in Maine in September, it will win in New Jersey in October, and in the other three states in November. Neither will it be safe to assume that defeat in Maine will mean that sentiment in the Eastern states is opposed to giving to women the right to vot.

What is likely to happen is that all men who favor woman suffrage will vote for it, while many of those who are mildly opposed to it or have little interest in the election will remain away from the polls—in New Jersey at least, where the referendum will be submitted at a special election.

Suggestion that a series of revival services be held in Plainfield has met with immediate response from a large number of church people, as was shown by the large atendance at a preliminary meeting on Friday night. There is always room for such services as these in any community, and if Billy Sunday could be procured as the attraction, it would be a great thing for Plainfield. The probabilitites are, however, that if he were wanted the local people would have to wait a number of years, as he is in such great demand from the larger places that he is booked over two years ahead.

His great hosts of friends in Union county are glad to hear that William N. Runyon was toasted as the next speaker of the House of Assembly at the dinner given at Atlantic City by the pesent Speaker, Mr. Godfrey. Assemblyman Runyon is certainly entitled to the Speakership next year. As majority leader at the last session he filled the position with ability and credit, not only to himself but to the entire State. His experience last year will add greatly to his value in the Speaker's chair.—Summit Herald.

News of the death of Samuel St. John McCutchen will be received from one end of the state to the other with much regret. Mr. McCutchen had a large number of friends, especially among educators, for during his fifteen years on the State Board of Education he did valuable work. He was painstaking in everything he undertook and his advice piloted the board through many a rocky course. While he has not lived in Plainfield for a few years, he leaves in this city a large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

"Riddle, Laid Low by Seven Cocktails and a Few Beers, Rises for a Sane Sunday," is a headline in the Atlantic City Review, over an article referring to the Mayor of that community. That might truthfully be called intensive journalism, bordering on the libel suit class.

The New Brunswick Home News bemoans the fact that not a circus has put in appearance there this season. If they knew the reputation the city has with the show people they would cease to wonder. Plainfield is one of the banner show towns of its size in the United States.

Eleven ships sunk in two days by German submarines, including three of neutral nations. That evidently is the answer to President Wilson's demand that neutral shipping be left alone!

If President Wilson gets the nation out of the difficulties with Germany without declaring war, there is no power on earth that will defeat him for re-election in 1916.

Any man who will take the job of census enumerator at two cents a name deserves the money. What they go "up against" is enough to try the patience of anyone.

You might know that information would come that shad are becoming scarce just when a man invents a method of taking the bones out before cooking.

There's to be a new modern hotel in Trenton on the site of the present Trenton House. Will wonders never cease?

It's a dangerous thing to form an impression of a man by the pictures of him which appear in the newspapers.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Your report in Saturday's Press of my remarks at the meeting on Friday night is so misleading that as a friend of the High School I must beg you to publish this statement.

I have no knowledge of any one drinking at dances given under the auspices of the students of the High School, and I did not say that I had any such knowledge.

Nothing that I said justified the use of the headlines referring to the Y. M. C. A. directors. That body has no right to investigate the High School and has never done so.

I believe our High School to be one of the cleanest and best in the country and we ought not to let any contrary impression go abroad.

Yours sincerely,
WM. D. MURRAY.

June 6, 1915.

(Editor's Note—The extract to which Mr. Murray takes exception was as follows:

"Mr. Murray said that evidence of the need of such services in this city was found in the fact that recently, after some of the dances in the High School, whiskey bottles had been discovered in the teachers' desks, and that on one or two occasions High School boys had been seen under the influence of liquor at these dances."

If he has been misquoted it is regretted, but the matter was this morning submitted to another person who was present at the meeting in question, and that person took away the same meaning of Mr. Murray's remarks as did the editor of the Press, who personally attended the gathering. The article did not say that the dances which Mr. Murray spoke of were under the auspices of the High School, as will be seen by reading the above paragraph. We regret the fact that it was inferred that the Y. M. C. A. directors had investigated the matter, but Mr. Murray was so understood to state, not only by the editor of the Press, but by others present.)

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

For tomorrow afternoon and night, Proctor's Theatre will offer George Kleine's mammoth six-part production of "Julius Caesar," telling the wonderful story of the great Roman as it has never been told before. Every detail is shown by the truthful camera and spectators are held enthralled from start to finish.

Beginning with the time when Caesar at the age of 20 falls in love with Cornelia, daughter of Lucius Cinna and who he marries, the story goes on to tell of the annulment of the hasty marriage, and Caesar's banishment from Rome. He leaves, vowing that the eternal city shall again hear of him.

Twenty years later he returns at news of Sulla's death and plunges briskly into the campaign for the consulship. He is aided by Calpurnia, daughter of the wealthy Piso Caesar and Calpurnia are married and Caesar is elected to the consulship in the face of strong opposition by Cato, the younger, who fears the growing popularity of the young statesman. To fortify himself agains the attacks of Cato, Caesar forms a political alliance with Pompey, which later grows into the first triumvirate consisting of Caesar, Pompey and Crassus. Caesar then gives his daughter, Julia, in marriage to Pompey and turns his restless ambition to greater fields.

News of his expeditionary force into Western Europe brings a strong protest from the Gauls. His life is attacked several times, but he escapes unharmed. Undaunted he pushes his way into Gaul with vigor, and wins a series of brilliant battles and returns triumphant to Rome.

Pompey, growing jealous of the increasing power of Caesar, stirs up the senate against him. Marc Anthony warns Caesar, at Revenna, of what he may expect in Rome, while Marcus Brutus, nephew of Cato, visits Caesar with the senate's dictum. Caesar places the matter squarely before his soldiers and receiving their answer, "Without Caesar there is no Rome," ordered his troops across the Rubicon. The senate declares him a traitor but the populace hail him with acclaim.

Then the struggle for supremacy begins. Caesar robs the temple of Saturn, pursues Pompey to Pharsalus, and annihilates the latter's army. Caesar comes back to Rome victorious to fight no more and is made Dictator for life. In 44 B. C., Caesar's old enemy, Cato, intent upon the Dictator's destruction, hatches a conspiracy in which he and Brutus are the leaders. One day Brutus touches him upon the shoulder, in the senate, and the next second a knife flashes in the air. Caesar reels, the target of a dozen blows, "And, thou too, Brutus? Then falls Caesar." The city is adame with riot and murder. Marc Anthony concluding his oration in the market places smiles. "Mischief, thou art afoot—take thou what course thou wilt."

PLAINFIELD AIRDOME

Edward Abeles, who was established himself as a great favorite with Plainfield fans as a powerful screen actor, will be presented at the Plainfield Airdome, Front street and Watchung avenue, tonight and tomorrow night, in William C. and Cecil DeMille's comedy, "After Five." The play is in five parts and has been produced by the Jesse L. Lasky Company, the latter concern having established a reputation for first class pictures. The Airdome performances begin at 7:45 and patrons are privileged to remain until 11.

The story of "After Five" is as follows: Ted Ewing, a young New Yorker, is the guardian of Nora Hildreth, with whom he is in love. He invests her fortune of $50,000 and an equal amount of his own money (constituting almost his entire property) in a stock exchange speculation. When this speculation apparently fails he seeks to reimburse the girl by taking out a life insurance policy in her favor and then killing himself. But, as the policy has a clause invalidating it in case of suicide, he has to arrange an "accidental death" for himself, and, to this end, enters into an arrangement with the chief of the S. S. S., a blackmailing society, which has already threatened his life.

The humorous complications really begin when it develops that the money has not been lost but doubled, so that Ted, instead of wishing to die, has every reason imaginable for wishing to live. It is, however, almost impossible to break his sworn pact with the S. S. S., and his own Japanese valet, to whom he gave the money to pay for his death, refuses to divert the money from the one use to which it has been pledged.

The manner in which Ted manages to escape from his own plots against his own life, and the details of his romance with Nora form the concluding episodes of this highly amusing photo drama.

"WITHOUT WARNING"

PYTHIANS PRESENT AT DIVINE SERVICE

Rev. Dr. Herring Discusses "Benevolence" Before Local Organizations.

In accordance with their annual custom, members of the Knights of Pythias organizations in this city and vicinity assembled in the First Presbyterian church, last night, to attend divine service. The pastor, Rev. Charles E. Herring, preached the third of a series of special sermons dealing with the cardinal principles of the Pythian order. Chancellor Commander William J. Trembath, of Perseverance Lodge, was in charge of the gathering, and it included the members of Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, marshalled by Captain J. E. Flannery; delegations from Perseverance and Unity Lodges, of this city; Lodge of the Castle, of Somerville, and Somerset Lodge, of Bound Brook.

The services were opened by the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the congregation, and after numbers by the choir and scripture reading, Dr. Herring gave his address. His subject was "Benevolence," one of the primary objects of the Pythian order, the others being "Friendship" and "Charity," both of the latter having been touched upon by the pastor before.

At the outset of his remarks, Dr. Herring said that he had looked up the word "benevolence" and was surprised to find that it had a much broader meaning than the sense in which it is ordinarily accepted. To most people, he said, it was purely a synonym for charity, but as a matter of fact its real meaning is, "The disposition to do good," or "an act of kindness." With benevolence as a slogan and backed up with friendship and charity, Pythians who live up to their cardinal principles are a great help and a benefit to the community. By their constant practice and exemplification the world is bound to be made better and brighter.

"Acts of benevolence," said the pastor, "give a man a chance to live up to the golden rule as no other act can. One does not have to give money with a liberal hand in order to be benevolent; it can be done by bestowing a smile upon someone depressed or in gloom; the extending of a helping hand to a brother who has fallen or a little of that kind of substantial assistance that means so much to a member of the community who has lost his all but who is trying to get back on his feet. Friendship, charity and benevolence are, indeed, noble sentiments and he who lives up to them confers a blessing upon mankind."

The Knights of Pythias observe every third Sunday in June as a memorial day and the local organization is now completing plans for the annual event. Preceding the exercises here, two weeks from yesterday, Crescent Company, Uniformed Rank, will go to Portchester, New York, next Sunday to decorate the grave of Harvey L. Patterson, one of its members who was buried at the cemetery at Rye, thus permitting the full membership to be in Plainfield the week following. Arrangements for the Portchester trip will be concluded at a meeting to be held in Flannery Hall, East Third street, tonight.

SPECIAL PROGRAM AT HOPE CHAPEL

Sunday School Department Combines Children's Day With Church Service.

The Sunday school of Hope chapel held delightful children's exercises in the church at 10:45 yesterday morning, the program being combined with the regular church service. Superintendent G. Herbert Condict was in charge and the attendance was so large as to cause an overflow through the Sunday school rooms. The pulpit and platform were elaborately decorated with palms, plants and cut flowers, the arrangement being made by the members of Miss Grace Hazen's and Mrs. Charles Langdon's classes. Five infants were baptized by Rev. Frederick Greene and the most recent additions to the cradle roll were brought forward and "introduced."

The customary songs and recitations were given by members of the Junior, Primary and Beginners' departments in charge of Mrs. Edgar Williams, Miss Flora Griffin and Miss Eunice Eckert, respectively. Those participating were as follows: Junior department, recitation, "Children's Day," Fredereka Hoffman; recitation, "He Speaks to Me," Edna Powers and Gladys Newman; song by Junior department; exercise, "What the Daisies Say," six little girls, Helen Teis, Ellen Strandberg, Dorothy Runyon, Gladys Martin, Dorothy Joyce, Ruth Stockle; Primary department, recitations, Corrine Helstrom, Alice Graves; exercise, six little girls, May Howe, Dorothy Helstrom, Adele Keen, Edith Schlick, Bertha Thomas and Helen May Joyce; Beginners' department recitations and songs by the following; Jessie Chambell, Everett Kean, Edna Baker, Edward Bryan, Edna Cardover, Richard Carmen and Mildred Anglebauer.

A touching addition to the regular program came just before the final hymn "There is Sunshine in My Soul," when Mr. Condict, announced the death of William Anderson, who had been one of the faithful members of the Sunday school for a number of years. His remarks were followed by a special number in the form of a duet "My Aaine Countrie" by Rev. Mr. Greene and Miss Elizabeth Doig. Mr. Anderson was a native of Scotland and his funeral is to be held in the chapel this afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the Young People's Society, of St. Peter's Lutheran church, will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Ricater will entertain at the rooms in the church at Grove street and Mercer avenue.

HAD A NEAR RIOT AT SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Mad Dog Scare Put Audience "On Edge" for the Afternoon.

Excitement and riot prevailed yesterday afternoon at Washington Park, Dunellen, during the open-air rally of the Sunday school of the borough and New Market, after some one had shouted "mad dog." The affair originated with a fight between a bulldog and fox terrier. The 800 men, women and children scattered in all directions in the midst of the services, and it was some time before order was restored by those in charge of the gathering.

It appears that the bulldog had attained a death-like grip on the terrier with his teeth and the latter canine used this as an excuse for letting out a series of yelps which frightened a number of women in the immediate vicinity. Several women fainted and the crowd scattered throughout the village. After the dog fight had ended the meeting was resumed.

A parade, consisting of 400 members of the Sunday school of Methodist, Episcopal and Presbyterian churches of Dunellen, and the Baptist Sunday school, of New Market, preceded the park meeting. The feature of the gathering was an address delivered by Samuel S. Swackhammer, of this city, who dwelt on the question "Has Christianity Failed?" Mr. Swackhammer referred to the present war in Europe, and the conditions now existing in Mexico, as possible challenges to the religion of Christ, but the speaker made plain the fact that these conditions existed were chiefly because the peoples of Europe and Mexico had failed to put their religious beliefs to a practical test. The speaker also entered a strong protest against the continued practise of the capitalistic class of this country in manufacturing and exportation of munitions of war to the European belligerents.

Fully 800 people attended the gathering. Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, presided; Rev. T. E. Vassar, of the New Market Baptist church, opened the affair with the invocation, while Rev. B. W. C. Ramsey, of the Methodist church, led in the closing prayer. Rev. A. S. Phelps, of the Holy Innocent's Episcopal church, pronounced the benediction.

BROKAW TEAM TAKES FOUR OUT OF FIVE

Defeats Plainfield Specials in Tennis on Country Club Courts.

The Brokaw team, of Princeton, comprising a number of the crack tennis players at the university met a team known as the Plainfield Specials on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon, taking four out of the five sets in the match. The play was fectured by the match between George M. Church and Dean Mathey, which was close and exciting and marked by hard and accurate work.

One may judge of the calibre of the players when it is known that Church and Mathey are two of the four chosen to go to the Pacific coast and take part in the big matches there. The other two players are R. Norris Williams and Watson Washburn. Arthur Sweetser, who was defeated by Leonard Beekman, on Saturday, is the old Harvard captain. The summary of the singles is as follows:

George M. Church defeated Dean Mathey, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4; Leonard Beekman defeated Arthur Sweetser, 6-4, 6-4; Ludlow VanDeventer defeated A. D. Beers, 9-7, 6-4; A. H. Coffey defeated Phillip VanDeventer, 7-5, 3-6, 10-8; L. B. Cooper defeated S. W. Merrihew, 9-7, 6-2.

There was one doubles match in which Dean Mathey and Arthur Sweetser defeated G. M. Church and Leonard Beekman, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7.

MIXED FOURSOMES AT COUNTRY CLUB

CITY LEAGUE PROPOSITION LOOKS LIKE A REAL THING

Owing to the fact that all the managers of the teams that expect to enter the City Baseball League, were not notified of the meeting scheduled for Saturday night, only four representatives answered the call and another meeting will be held tomorrow night in the offices of the Daily Press. There will be six teams represented and the winner will be the acknowledged city champion.

At tomorrow's meeting officers will be elected and a schedule drawn up. The teams that will compose the circuit are Saurer, Hope Chapel, First Baptist, Netherwod, Monroe A. C. and T. A. B.

Cliff allowed eight bingles while his teammates collected eleven.

The Saints scored twice in the fourth and fifth sessions and the Pacers cinched the game with one in the eighth and one in the last round. The score by innings follow:

BLOWUP IN STRETCH STANZA BEAT LOCALS

Saurer Ballists Taste 6 to 4 Reverse Dose at Rahway Saturday.

The Saurer baseball team met defeat at the hands of the Rahway team Saturday afternoon at Rahway, the final count being 6 to 4. Warry McLoughlin pitched a good game for the locals and was opposed by Olde, who appeared in this city against the Sauerites with the Elizabeth team last month. The visiting aggregation was guilty of five misplays which helped the home team to secure some of its runs. Each team secured seven hits.

Saurer started off well, getting three tallies in the initial round while the Rahway batters were retired in quick order. In the second inning Harriman drove a hot one down the third base line and it almost got away from Lammerton. Saurer failed to score in that round in which the home team counted for one run. The locals captured one in the fourth which was their last, but the Rahway batters did not start their attack until the seventh. Three runs in that session and a pair in the eighth were enough to win by. Garretson's great one-handed catch of Harriman's high throw in the fifth inning drew a big hand. The score follows:

ALUMNI DOWNED BY LEAL SCHOOL TEAM

Undergraduates Hang the "Indian Sign" on the Old-Timers.

The Leal School baseball team closed its season Saturday afternoon by walloping the Alumni aggregation on Crescent Oval by a score of 15 to 4. This is the first time in the history of the school that the Alumni game, which is an annual affair, has gone to the credit of the schoolboys. The "grads" were never in the running, Voorhees holding them scoreless until the seventh when they crossed the plate once.

W. T. Glenney, Brown, Lovell and Charles Lyman did the pitching for the "oldtimers" and were hit for six bingles, which, together with as many errors, and wild base running, gave the Leal team fifteen counts. In the ninth inning Voorhees was forced to leave and Captain Stewart went in the box and finished up the season, allowing one hit. Voorhees gave two safeties in eight innings. The Leal iron man fanned fifteen batters, while Stewart retired two in the last inning. Two of the Alumni pitchers gave a total of thirteen free passes.

WALTER J. TRAVIS RETAINS HIS METROPOLITAN HONORS

Walter J. Travis won the Metropolitan golf championship Saturday over the links of the Apawamis Golf Club, at Rye, by a remarkable finish in his 36-hole match with John G. Anderson, the former Boston player.

The margin of victory was only two up, but it was decided in dramatic fashion on the last green, which the immense gallery had completely surrounded to watch the finish.

Travis came to the last hole one up. He put his second shot almost within the shadow of the flag, whereas Anderson, realizing the desperate situation, tried to do the impossible, but in his anxiety sliced a mashie approach into the trap. The gallery was disappointed at not seeing a closer fight, but the old man rewarded their patience by sinking his long twenty-foot putt for a three.

Travis has been fighting for six years to regain this title, which he has won three times.

ALL STARS TOOK MEASURE OF DUNELLEN BOY SCOUTS

The All Stars defeated the Dunellen Boy Scouts, Troop 2, on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday morning, by a score of 4 to 2. The game was well played, neither team being able to score until the seventh inning when V. Mullin, the first batter of the local nine, drove the ball to right field for a double and Butler singled to right scoring Mullin. This was the only run the locals could get this innings, while the Boy Scouts succeeded in sending two across the plate, giving them a one run lead. There were no runs scored in the eighth, but the Stars came back strong in the ninth and drove the ball all around the field for three runs while the Scouts were unable to score. Kline, Dealaman and Snyder made timely singles.

WORK OF P. H. S. BATTERY RESPONSIBLE FOR HUMILIATION OF BOROUGH BALL FORCES

By walloping North Plainfield High School baseball forces on Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, to the tune of 11 to 1, the Plainfield High School clan snatched the Interscholastic League title for 1915 and the silver loving cup that goes with it. By virtue of Saturday's triumph Plainfield cherishes a clean sweep in the league activities this season, having previously annexed the basketball honors. Eight hundred fans saw Saturday's contest.

The Plainfielders knocked the cover off the horsehide with clean-cut slams and left little doubt in the minds of the spectators as to its supremacy over the boroughites. Plainfield required three innings to size up Dilts' delivery, and in the fourth frame the slaughter began and did not stop until the seventh. However, in those three innings ten hits were hammered out and eleven runs scored. After that harvest of tallies, Mullin sent in his "subs," who held their opponents to one hit and no runs, but it was too late.

Pitcher Stahl's loss was felt keenly by the boroughites, that player being laid up with boils. The Plainfield players must have realized that this was the last day to fatten their batting averages, for they certainly did a good deal to increase them. Peacock, the heaviest slugger on the team, got four hits out of five times at bat, one of which was a pretty twin sacker. Denny was the next best batter, with three hits to his credit.

The first big inning came in Plainfield's fourth time at bat, starting with a free pass to Kyle. Peacock sent him to third and then both were helped home on a pretty single by Denny. It may be said here that all of Denny's hits counted for runs. Rosenson also got on base, and both he and Denny came home on Apgar's single.

North Plainfield's first run came in the sixth inning, when McDonough came home on a wild pitch by Denny. The work of Denny throughout the game was of high calibre, which is seldom shown by a High School pitcher. He fanned ten and kept the hits well scattered.

PITCHERS HAVE ONE BIG CINCH

So Says Trainer Harry Tuthill of Detroit Americans.

FAIL TO WORK ENOUGH.

He Believes Twirlers Should Play In Outfield When Not Being Used In Box—Would Help Them to Great Extent In Perfecting Game.

Pitchers don't work hard enough, says Harry Tuthill, trainer of the Detroit baseball club and the Army football team. They are the most luxurious class in the world, he opines.

He says they would do much better work if forced to pitch twice a week and play three other days in the outfield. He declares only one day's work a week makes great pitchers get slow and heavy.

"Then they are not able to perform in their best manner when called on," he continues. "Some of the greatest performances in history are credited to pitchers who toiled at least every other day and sometimes had to pitch every day for long stretches.

"When a manager gets hold of a good hitter it would do no harm to have him work in right field, where there is little to do. Outfielding is not arduous work as a rule. Sometimes an outfielder will go through a whole game without having to touch the ball with his hands.

"Pitchers of today have a bad habit of thinking that there is something the matter with them. It is all imagination. Some of them stall through a whole season by thinking up different aches and pains. Whenever they are called on to pitch there is something the matter with them. I tell you they are too much pampered."

CALLED INDIANS, STILL NAPS.

Cleveland Team Unable to Shake Off Onus of Its Bad Year.

"Give a dog a bad name and the world's ag'in him." In some cases you can even change the name and the reputation will stick. Such seems to be the fate of the Indians, the Cleveland American league club. During their last days under the title of Naps they were blamed for nearly every crime upon the calendar, some former friends going so far as to accuse them of provoking the war in Europe.

They have changed the name to Indians, but nevertheless they don't seem to have a friend around the circuit. St. Louis writers declared they were the worst that ever climbed into big league suits. Pittsburgh experts asserted they were dirty ball players, while Detroit experts refer to the Cleveland club as being the same outfit that was the scandal of the American league last season.

Magee Out to Swipe Fifty Sacks.

Sherwood Magee of the Boston Braves has a bet that he will steal fifty bases this year. He says that the hitters on the Philly team wouldn't let him run last year, but he has a great protective batter behind him in Schmidt this year, and if he doesn't win his bet he ought to retire.

GENERAL ITALIAN ADVANCE REPORTED

Big Battle Said to Be Raging at Gradisca, Near Udine.

Udine, Italy, June 7.—A general Italian advance is taking place today across the Isonzo River from Caporetto to the sea, a distance of about forty miles.

The movement is one of importance, and hard fighting is taking place at Gradisca and in the vicinity of this town.

The Italian authorities are drawing tighter the screen of secrecy as to the Italian operations. Nevertheless, masses of Italians have been concentrated on the roads from Cormons, Palmanova and Cervignano.

The resistance of the Austrians is becoming stronger. This, Italian staff officers declare, has had the effect of making their men more determined.

Tolmino, on the east side of the Isonzo, is one of the Italian objectives.

London, June 7.—The first important battle of the Italian campaign is now raging in the Upper Isonzo Valley, the objective being the town of Tolmino, on the east side of the valley.

The Italian troops recently gained possession of the heights of Monte Nero, a few miles north and east of the town, and are now concentrating their fire on Tolmino from three sides.

The Austrians, however, appear to be holding their ground stubbornly. Tolmino is about fifty miles north of the Gulf of Trieste, and the hills on which it stands command a wide sweep of country on both sides.

Italian warships have been busy destroying cables and lighthouses in the Adriatic, and have again bombarded Monfalcone, on the shore of the Gulf of Trieste and about fifteen miles from the city on the railroad from Nabresina to Trieste.

CLOSING EXERCISES FOR PRIVATE SCHOOL

The closing exercises of Miss Violet J. Ransome's School at Netherwood were held Saturday afternoon, featured by a most pleasing entertainment. The audience, which was composed of the parents, relatives and friends of the pupils, entirely filled the large auditorium. A number of special and unique dances were presented by the children, among them being the Highland Fling, and other fancy steps, which were enthusiastically received and frequently encored by the appreciative audience.

A playlet entitled, "The Sleeping Beauty," was one of the novel features of the afternoon. The cast was as follows: "Queen," Susan Fleming; "Princess," Adrienne Allisson Linbarger; "Queen of Fairies," Sallie McKenzie; "Wicked Fairy," Cecile LeVee; fairies, Virginia Tenney, Mary Elizabeth Stockton, Alice Butler, Barbara Dunn, Frances Tompkinson, Margaret Lawrence, and Watharine Boss, of California; king, James Lawrence; prince, Corbin Scott; cooks, Louis Squiers, Thatcher Dunn, George Scott and Edwin Gibson; knights, Vinton Lawrence and Wilfred Ransome.

Recitations, songs and the grand march, which was participated in by all the pupils, brought to a close the afternoon. The varied colored and effective costumes lent an attractive touch of color to the scene, which blended most harmoniously with the tasteful floral decorations. Miss Ransome has brought the second year of her school to a most successful close, and expects to re open it next term in a new building that she is about to erect on Dixie lane, in Netherwood.

FRENCH ATTACKS ARE REPULSED BY GERMANS

Berlin, June 7.—The following official statement was given out here today:

"Western theatre—French renewed their attacks on the south slope of Lorette Hills on Sunday afternoon and evening, but were repulsed. Unsuccessful attacks were delivered by the French southeast of Hebuterne and east of Doullen. Fighting is still in progress there, however. French attacks on a large front were delivered on the Moulinsoul-Touvent line, northeast of Soissons. At one point the French reached our advanced trenches and fighting for these is progressing."

On the night of June 4-5 German naval dirigibles attacked the fortified mouth of the Humber on the east coast of England, the naval port of Harwich, in Essex, England, and the harbor establishment at Harwich. They were conspicuously successful. Many bombs were dropped and there was a large number of explosions. One particularly violent explosion was that of a gas tank or oil tank which was hit. Bombs dropped on the railroad depot. The airships were not hit and returned safely.

MRS. ROUNDEY WANTS TO COLLECT ALIMONY

Alleges $45 is Due Her for Three Weeks From John K. Roundey, of This City.

Richard Stockton, counsel for Mrs. Florence E. Roundey, formerly of Truell Court, this morning, secured a rule from Vice-Chancellor Howell in the Newark Court of Chancery to make John K. Roundey, president of the Endress Company, show cause why he should not be committed for *contempt of court owing to his al*leged failure to pay alimony. The petition and supplementary affidavits show that no alimony has been paid for the past three weeks, the total figure aggregating $5. When seen by a Daily Press reporter this afternoon, Martin Stutsman, counsel for Mr. Roundey, said that he had not been apprised of an action in the Newark court and was at a loss to understand the vice-chancellor's attitude in granting such a rule without first acquainting Mr. Roundey's attorney with the nature of the charge.

A similar order was obtained by Mrs. Roundey last February but the order was dismissed on the date of return, it being shown to the satisfaction of the court that Roundey had made up the discrepancy.

"ANTIS" TO ANSWER SUFFRAGE ARGUMENTS

Interesting Meeting to Be Held at Battin High School, Elizabeth.

Citizens of the surrounding cities and towns will on Thursday evening, in Battin High School, Elizabeth, be given the opportunity of hearing two of the foremost opponents of Woman Suffrage answer the proponents of this all-absorbing topic. Coming directly after the speech in the same auditorium by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, one of the noted exponents of "Votes for Women," the people will have the chance to hear both sides of this important economic question within the space of about a week. With Dr. Shaw's remarks still fresh in their memory, they will be able to weigh carefully in their minds the arguments of both sides and then determine which side of the fence they desire to be on.

The speakers who have been chosen to repesent the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage at this meeting, which opens at 8:15 p. m., and is free to all are Miss Lucy Price, of Cleveland, Ohio, and John A. Matthews, of Newark.

Miss Price is one of the most convincing speakers now appearing before the American public. She is a graduate of Vassar College, 1905, and since leaving her alma mater she has been intimately connected with the Anti-Suffrage cause in the Eastern States, particularly New York and Ohio. She is now speaking in New Jersey to aid the cause of those women who are opposed to adding governmental affairs to their present responsibilities in the home.

John A. Matthews, the other speaker of the evening, is probably better known in this section as the former Assemblyman from Essex county than as an Anti-Suffrage speaker. However he has a wide reputation covering several States as one of the most brilliant and greatest adherents of the "No Vote" cause.

As is customary at all their meetings, the speakers will answer all questions pertaining to the subject which the audience may desire to ask. A time limit of twenty minutes has been set for this period of interrogation.

DR. PAUL W. HARRISON RETURNING TO AMERICA

Dr. Paul W. Harrison, Trinity Reformed church's missionary to Arabia, is on his way to this country. In a letter to Rev. J. Y. Broek, from Colombo, Ceylon, dated April 16, he writes that he has been delayed in India for some time on account of the war, being compelled to wait for a steamer.

While in India, he visited the Marathai Mission of the Congregational church at Bombay, and Vellore, known as the centre of the Reformed church Mission, and reports that splendid and encouraging progress is being made. Dr. Harrison on April 19 secured passage at Colombo for Manilla, and will return to this country by way of San Francisco. Just when he will be in Plainfield is yet uncertain.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH OF "ED" MARTIN

Edward Martin, for more than twenty-four years the well-known porter and train caller at the North Avenue railroad station, died at his home on East Third street at 9 o'clock last night, following a long illness from cancer of the stomach. During a part of the time that he was ill he was a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, but left the institution there weeks ago.

Mr. Martin was born in the East End of the city, near what is known as the "Gravel Pit," forty-seven years ago. His father was David Martin, one of Plainfield's earliest colored residents. Edward Martin started a bootblack stand at the North Avenue station when he was fifteen years old and a short time later was made porter. He served faithfully in this capacity until his illness took him away and because of his associations at the station, he became one of the best known colored men in Plainfield. He had friends by the hundreds in all parts of the city and by the railroad officials was regarded as one of their most faithful and efficient employes.

Mr. Martin is survived by his wife and three children, Harold and George Martin and Miss Ida Martin, all living here. He also leaves one brother, David Martin, of East Fourth street, and one sister, Mrs. Sarah Dunham, of West Fourth street. In recent years, Mr. Martin had associated himself with his brother David in the baggage express business, which he helped to conduct in addition to his regular station duties. The funeral services have not yet been arranged.

CHAPTER III.

The Pageant of the Table Round.

"PENROD!" Mrs. Lora Rewbush stood in the doorway, indignantly gazing upon a Child Sir Lancelot mantled to the heels. "Do you know that you have kept an audience of 500 people waiting for ten minutes?" She also detained the 500 while she spake further.

"Well," said Penrod contentedly, as he followed her toward the buzzing stage, "I was just sitting there thinking."

Two minutes later the curtain rose on a medieval castle hall richly done in the new stage craft made in Germany and consisting of pink and blue cheesecloth. The Child King Arthur and the Child Queen Guinevere were disclosed upon thrones, with the Child Elaine and many other celebrities in attendance, while about fifteen Child Knights were seated at a dining room Table Round, which was covered with a large oriental rug, and displayed (for the knights' refreshment) a banquet service of silver loving cups and trophies, borrowed from the Country club and some local automobile manufacturers.

In addition to this splendor, potted plants and palms have seldom been more lavishly used in any castle on the stage or off. The footlights were aided by a "spot-light" from the rear of the hall, and the children were revealed in a blaze of glory.

A hushed, multitudinous "O-oh" of admiration came from the decorous

"Do you know that you have kept an audience of 500 people waiting for ten minutes?"

and delighted audience. Then the children sang feebly:

"Chuldrun of the Tabul Round,
Lit-tul knights and ladies we,
Let our way-siz all resound
Faith and hope and charitee!"

The Child King Arthur rose, extended his scepter with the decisive gesture of a semaphore and spake:

"Each littul knight and lady born
Has noble deeds to perform
In thee child-world of shivullree,
No matter how small his share may be.
Let each advance and tell in turn
What claim has each to knighthood earn."

The Child Sir Mordred, the villain of this piece, rose in his place at the Table Round and piped the only lines ever written by Mrs. Lora Rewbush which Penrod Schofield could have pronounced without loathing. Georgie Bassett, a really angelic boy, had been selected for the role of Mordred. His perfect conduct had earned for him the sardonic sobriquet "The Little Gentleman" among his boy acquaintances. (Naturally he had no friends.) Hence the other boys supposed that he had been selected for the wicked Mordred as a reward of virtue. He declaimed serenely:

"I hight Sir Mordred the Child, and I teach
Lessons of selfishest evil, and reach
Out into darkness. Thoughtless, unkind,
And ruthless is Mordred and unrefined."

The Child Mordred was properly rebuked and denied the accolade, though, like the others, he seemed to have assumed the title already. He made a plotter's exit, whereupon Maurice Levy rose, bowed, announced that he highted the Child Sir Galahad and continued with perfect sang froid:

"I am the purest of the pure,
I have but kindest thoughts each day.
I give my riches to the poor
And follow in the Master's way."

This elicited tokens of approval from the Child King Arthur, and he bade Maurice "stand forth" and come near the throne, a command obeyed with the easy grace of conscious merit.

It was Penrod's turn. He stepped back from his chair, the table between him and the audience, and began in a high, breathless monotone:

"I hight Sir Lancelot du Lake, the Child,
Gentul-hearted, meek and mild.
What though I'm but a littul child,
Gentul-hearted, meek and mild,
I do my share, though, but—though but"—

Penrod paused and gulped. The voice of Mrs. Lora Rewbush was heard from the wings, prompting irritably, and the Child Sir Lancelot repeated:

"I do my share, though, but—though but a tot,
I pray you knight Sir Lancelot!"

This also met the royal favor, and Penrod was bidden to join Sir Galahad at the throne. As he crossed the stage Mrs. Schofield whispered to Margaret:

"That boy! He's unpinned his mantle and fixed it to cover his whole costume. After we worked so hard to make it becoming!"

"Never mind. He'll have to take the cape off in a minute," returned Margaret. She leaned forward suddenly narrowing her eyes to see the better. "What is that thing hanging about his left ankle?" she whispered uneasily. "How queer! He must have got tangled in something."

"Where?" asked Mrs. Schofield in alarm.

"His left foot. It makes him stumble. Don't you see? It looks—it looks like an elephant's foot!"

The Child Sir Lancelot and the Child Sir Galahad clasped hands before their child king. Penrod was conscious of a great uplift; in a moment he would have to throw aside his mantle, but even so he was protected and sheltered in the human garment of a man. His stage fright had passed, for the audience was but an indistinguishable blur of darkness beyond the dazzling lights. His most repulsive speech (that in which he proclaimed himself a "tot") was over and done with, and now at last the small, moist hand of the Child Sir Galahad lay within his own. Craftily his brown fingers stole from Maurice's palm to the wrist. The two boys declaimed in concert:

"We are two chuldrun of the Tabul Round
Strewing kindness all around.
With love and good deeds striving ever for the best,
May our littul efforts e'er be blest.
Two littul hearts we offer. See,
United in love, faith, hope and char—Ow!"

The conclusion of the duet was marred. The Child Sir Galahad suddenly stiffened and, uttering an irrepressible shriek of anguish, gave a brief exhibition of the contortionist's art. ("He's twistin' my wrist! Dern you, leggo!")

The voice of Mrs. Lora Rewbush was again heard from the wings. It sounded bloodthirsty. Penrod released his victim, and the Child King Arthur, somewhat disconcerted, extended his scepter and, with the assistance of the enraged prompter, said:

"Sweet child friends of the Tabul Round,
In brotherly love and kindness abound;
Sir Lancelot, you have spoken well,
Sir Galahad, too, as clear as bell.
So now pray doff your mantles gay,
You shall be knighted this very day."

And Penrod doffed his mantle.

Simultaneously a thick and vasty gasp came from the audience, as from 500 bathers in a wholly unexpected surf. This gasp was punctuated irregularly over the auditorium by imperfectly subdued screams both of dismay and incredulous joy and by two dismal shrieks. Altogether it was an extraordinary sound, a sound never to be forgotten by any one who heard it. It was almost as unforgetable as the sight which caused it, the word "sight" being here used in its vernacular sense, for Penrod, standing unmantled and revealed in all the medieval and artistic glory of the janitor's blue overalls, falls within its meaning.

The janitor was a heavy man, and his overalls upon Penrod were merely oceanic. The boy was at once swaddled and lost within their blue gulfs and vast saggings, and the left leg, too hastily rolled up, had descended with a distinctively elephantine effect, as Margaret had observed. Certainly the Child Sir Lancelot was at least a sight.

It is probable that a great many in that hall must have had even then a consciousness that they were looking on at history in the making. A supreme act is recognizable at sight; it bears the birthmark of immortality. But Penrod, that marvelous boy, had begun to declaim, even with the gesture of flinging off his mantle for the accolade:

"I first, the Child Sir Lancelot du Lake,
Will volunteer to knighthood take.
And kneeling here before your throne
I vow to"—

He finished his speech unheard. The audience had recovered breath, but had lost self control, and there ensued something later described by a participant as a sort of cultured riot.

The actors in the "pageant" were not so dumfounded by Penrod's costume as might have been expected. A few precocious geniuses perceived that the overalls were the Child Lancelot's own comment on maternal intentions, and these were profoundly impressed. They regarded him with the grisly admiration of young and ambitious criminals for a jail mate about to be distinguished by hanging. But most of the children simply took it to be the case (a little strange, but startling) that Penrod's mother had dressed him like that—which is pathetic. They tried to go on with the "pageant."

They made a brief, manful effort. But the irrepressible outbursts from the audience bewildered them. Every time Sir Lancelot du Lake the Child opened his mouth the great, shadowy house fell into an uproar and the children into confusion. Strong women and brave girls in the audience went out into the lobby, shrieking and clinging to one another. Others remained, rocking in their seats, helpless and spent. The neighborhood of Mrs. Schofield and Margaret became tactfully a desert. Friends of the author went behind the scenes and encountered a hitherto unknown phase of Mrs. Lora Rewbush. They said afterward that she hardly seemed to know what she was doing. She begged to be left alone somewhere with Penrod Schofield, for just a little while.

They led her away.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

A DRESS YOU CAN MAKE.

No. 8945.

In these days when personal taste is given such free rein, a very nice judgment must be exercised if one seeks to be really well dressed and avoid the oft times enticing swirl of giddy extremes so frequently met with. True, an extreme style often looks well—stunningly well; but on how many people? The average woman does well when she selects the more modest designs; not sacrificing, however, modishness. A dress you can easily make yourself that embodies up-to-the-minute ideas of design—that is smart without making the wearer a synosure—is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8945. It is an overblouse dress opening at the back, cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure, size 36 requiring 4¾ yards 36-incn material with 1 yard 36-inch silk and 1⅞ yards 36-inch goods for guimpe.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

JEWELRY CHANGES.

Since so many of the spring fashions boast of peasant origin the jewelers have bethought themselves to put out copies of peasant antique brooches suitable to accompany the quaint frocks and blouses of the period. Many of these introduce a note of color, and the design is unusual in its metal combinations. Much of this jewelry has come direct from Europe, and others represent domestic copies of the same.

Quite new are the pearl and jet neckties represented in long, single strings of pearl beads not larger than the size of seed pearls and finished with cut jet beads or fringe or double twisted chains of alternate black and white with dainty pendant.

These neckties are designed to be fastened in front with a double twist like a man's cravat; hence the name. These are of unusual interest just now because of the dominant vogue of all manner of white and black things.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Naughty Rompers and The Little Boy.

Was Busy Making Her More Work.

"ONCE there was a pair of little blue rompers," said daddy, "and you just can't imagine all the trouble those blue rompers got a little boy into."

"Oh, daddy," protested Evelyn, "how could the rompers get the little boy into trouble?"

"I will tell you about it," answered daddy, with a smile. "I think it must have been the rompers, for that little boy was always an awfully good little boy till they put him into rompers, don't you see? So I think it really must have been the rompers.

"It was when that little boy was inside the rompers that all the trouble happened. When he was outside of them he was very good indeed. But that was when he was asleep.

"This little fellow had curly hair, all golden, and a pair of the loveliest blue eyes you ever looked into, and they twinkled and sparkled with mischief, those eyes, and the little boy was fat and rolypoly, and he looked as if he could roll one way as well as the other, and he had a splendid time playing all day.

"When he was outside of his blue rompers he was in his pajamas in bed, and then he was the best little boy. He just lay and slept, and when he dreamed dreams they were happy ones—of how he was going on a journey to the moon or something like that or how he had all the goodies he wanted to eat and there wasn't any stomach ache to follow, for that little boy certainly did like goodies as well as anybody you ever saw.

"And when he woke up there were the little blue rompers to be climbed into, and after breakfast there was all the blessed mischief to get into.

"Oh, the things that little boy got into! He could make more work in a minute than a dozen ordinary little boys, or so his mamma declared. But she wouldn't have let him go for 20,000,000 little boys or, for that matter, for all the little boys in the world, for you see that is the way that mammas love their little boys, no matter how much mischief they get into.

"I just know it was those rompers that made all that mischief. There was a suggestion of mischief about the very look of those rompers. They were blue, as I have said, and they had been worn all creased and shiny through the little boy straddling and tumbling about, and altogether those rompers seemed to say: 'Just you get into all the mischief you can today, and we'll stand by you. That's what we're for.'

"And I must say that that curly headed, blue eyed boy listened to the funny voice of those little blue rompers."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Now the baby will be all right when he wakes up, if we can prevent a setback," said the doctor in a relieved tone. "I will leave some medicine, but do not rouse him to give anything. This sleep is his salvation."

After searching in his case he remarked:

"I find I have none of the medicine. I will drive down in my car and bring it back."

"Oh, thank you, doctor. We could go after it if you are busy," replied Dick, but he looked relieved when the doctor insisted on bringing it, for the long vigil of the night before had left him shaky.

"Why not slip on your wraps and go with me for the medicine? A little air will do you good," said the doctor to Olive, as he passed through the living room.

"I have been shut in a long time and a person who takes fresh air instead of medicine. You doctors would be a poorly if every one was as sick as I am," laughed Olive, pinning on her hat.

The air was crisp and fine after the rain. The ride was lengthened by a little spin about town before they reached the drug store.

"You were gone but a few minutes," said Nell as Olive came into the room with the medicine.

"No, but the little breath of air refreshed me wonderfully. Can't you spare for a little walk this afternoon? It would do you worlds of good."

Olive looked so strong, so glowingly healthy as Nell looked at her that she could not repress a little envious sigh. "I really am too tired to stir. Now the strain is over, I find I haven't any strength left."

"Poor girl, you had not much to start with," said Olive, stroking her hair.

"I am going to take care of the little man tonight, and now that you are no longer so anxious you can sleep."

"It's so good of you." Nell closed her eyes wearily.

A few days later Olive insisted that Nell go for the mail.

"You must get some air and I will watch the baby and give him his medicine."

Nell put on her wraps. "I'm looking for a letter from mother. I sent a telegram as soon as the crisis was over and she would write at once."

"Here's a letter for you, mailed here." Nell came into the sick room a little later looking rosy from her walk in the crisp air.

"If only we could get rid of the circles under your eyes I should be pleased with your looks," remarked Olive, taking the letter and glancing casually at the typewritten address. She tore the envelope and sat looking at the sheet so long that Nell asked: "Is anything wrong?"

Without a word Olive passed over the paper. Nell read:

"My Dear Young Lady: You are a stranger here and probably do not know that you are placing yourself in a very bad light in the eyes of the town people by riding around with Dr. Ellson. Believe me, no self-respecting girl would be seen with him. You are possibly not aware that his wife left him because of unfaithfulness. Your friend has reasons for not telling you. Be warned. Save your good name!

"A FRIEND."

Household Hints

THE TABLE

Wonder Pancakes—One cup cornmeal, one cup buckwheat flour, one cup flour, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon olive oil, one teaspoon soda, buttermilk enough to make a batter that will readily drop from the spoon. Bake on soapstone griddle and serve hot with maple syrup.

Round Steak With Bacon—A good way to fix round steak or any tough steak so it will be tender and delicious: Cut steak in small pieces. Cut a little bacon and onion fine and put a little in center of each piece of steak, then roll each piece and fasten with toothpicks. Put in frying pan with drippings and brown, cover with water and stew for one and one-fourth hours, then thicken gravy, remove toothpicks and serve.

Creamed Tomato—One quart tomatoes; while stewing put in two tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt, dash of pepper. Take a tablespoon of flour, with a cup of milk, mix, add to tomato while boiling, and a lump of butter.

Pineapple Salad—Mix one cup shredded pineapple with one cup cubes of grapefruit, one cup chopped nuts, one of celery, one cup canned cherries, half cup brown sugar, dash nutmeg. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves, garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Potato Cake—Mix one cup butter with two cups sugar and yolks of four eggs. When thoroughly creamed add one cup cold mashed potato; beat again lightly and add half cup milk, two cups sifted flour, two teaspoons baking powder, two teaspoons cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons cloves and half cup bitter chocolate. To this add two cups English walnuts broken in rather large bits. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the four eggs. Bake in shallow pan in moderate oven fifty minutes. This is a large cake, but keeps moist for a long time.

Marshmallow Filling — Make a thick boiled frosting. Slice marshmallows in three round slices; save top slices for top of cake. Take out enough frosting for top. With the remainder mix the other slices of marshmallows and use for filling.

Ice Cream—About one cup sugar to one quart cream. Flavor with vanilla or other extract with strawberry juice, or with coffee or caramel (made by browning the sugar and adding water for thick syrup).

Ham Dish—Into pan put several slices of ham. If salty ham, parboil it. Over this slice potatoes thin, then add milk enough to cover; put in pepper to taste and bake in moderate oven one hour.

PIE CRUST MADE WITH BOILING WATER

Take one cup lard; into this add slowly one-half cup boiling water. Work this together with a spoon into a soft, creamy mass entirely free from lumps. Add gradually three cups flour and work until smooth. Although this is contrary to many recipes which call for ingredients to be ice cold, this crust, when baked, will fairly melt in your mouth. Before adding the flour, a pinch of baking powder may be stirred with it if desired. This amount makes a two-crust pie and the shell for another. Do not pass this recipe by, but try it and see if you are not pleased with it.

HINT FOR HOSTESS

The hostess who has experienced the confusion of seating a large number of guests at small tables will appreciate the device used by a woman who accomplished it gracefully. Her guests were to be seated in several rooms at tables holding six and four. The hostess made an alphabet list of all her guests and hung it in the hall. Opposite the name of each guest was the number of the table and the room in which it was set. On the tables each of which had its separate floral piece, was a number cut from gilt paper and placed in the center of the flowers where it could be quickly seen. Place cards were also used, as at an ordinary luncheon.

WALNUT CAKE

One cup sugar, one-half cup of butter, two cups of flour, one egg, one teaspoon of cream tartar, one-half teaspoon of soda, or if preferred use two teaspoonfuls of baking powder instead of the cream tartar and soda. Add one cup of milk and one cup of walnut meats rolled in a little flour. Hickory or any other nuts may be used instead of the walnuts.

CHRISTIAN FIELD

A meeting of the Sunday-school Superintendents' Association will be held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight, to discuss summer work for Sunday-school people and all Christians. The speakers will be Rev. F. K. Mathiews, Mrs. Robert Love and William D. Murray.

The service Wednesday night at the Crescent Avenue church will be for the benefit of Atlanta University, of which Dr. Edward T. Ware is the well-known president. There will be a quartet of colored singers from the institution, and an address on its work among the colored people will be delivered by a representative of the faculty.

The Young People's Society, of the German Reformed church, will hold a meeting tomorrow night in the chapel. All members are urged to be present.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, baptized five persons at the service last evening following his monthly sermon on the subject, "Through the Year with Bards and Bible."

Preparatory services will be held at Hope chapel Wednesday night, and there will be the celebration of Holy Communion next Sunday night.

The Women's Missionary Society of Hope chapel will meet in the chapel Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. E. S. Ralston, president of the Federation of Missionary Societies, will address the society.

Under the auspices of the women of the First Presbyterian church a thimble party will be held in the chapel of the church tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. All women of the church are invited and to bring their friends.

Miss Sara Curry, of the Little Missionary Day Nursery, New York, will speak at the mid-week meeting in the First Presbyterian church Wednesday night. Some of the children from the nursery will be present and sing.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church will be held Friday night, when officers will be elected.

Children's Day will be observed at the First M. E. church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, when there will be infant baptism and other interesting exercises.

"Church Day" will be observed tomorrow at the First M. E. church by the women's societies of the church. Luncheon will be served at noon. In the afternoon, Mrs. D. F. Diefendorf, of Newark, and a deaconness, will be present to tell something of the work at the Deaconess' Home.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold its final meeting for the season this afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church will be held Wednesday night at 9 o'clock in the church parlor.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Beginning June 21, Frank G. Hall, proprietor of the U. S. Astor Theatre, will start his new policy of representing first run feature films produced by the Paramount Picture Corporation, a combination of several of the foremost film manufacturing concerns. The greatest photo-plays of the period will be shown first at the U. S. Astor Theatre. This will probably mark a new epoch in the moving picture business of the town; for in addition, Mr. Hall's patrons have a picturesque theatre, completely appointed, magnificently furnished and perfectly ventilated—a theatre second to none in Union county.

U. S. stands for perfection in the motion picture field of New Jersey. Mr. Hall is recognized by the biggest picture producing concerns in the country as the foremost exhibitor in New Jersey. Therefore, he has been granted exclusive rights by the Paramount Corporation and the V. L. S. E., the recently organized combination of the four oldest picture producing firms, to show first in Plainfield all their big releases. It has been the custom of the Paramount and V. L. S. E. combinations, which compose the "big time" of the motion picture world, to grant exclusive privilege to show first run pictures to exhibitors operating the best theatres. In every city of importance in the country is one theatre which presents the first run pictures of these concerns. In Plainfield the honor has fallen to the Astor Theatre.

Mr. Hall announces that the following screen stars will appear at the Astor Theatre at an early date in the latest Paramount releases: Mary Pickford, whose films are controlled exclusively by Paramount; Marguerite Clark, Hazel Dawn, Fritzi Scheff, Lois Meredith, Ina Claire, Mabel Van Buren, Myrtle Steadman and Pauline Frederick and John Barrymore, Victor Moore, Carlyle Blackwell, Harold Lockwood, Dustin Farnum and many others.

MEMORABLE SERVICES.

As expected, large congregations gathered at the First Baptist church, yesterday, both morning and evening, and the services throughout the day were memorable, the evening service being especially impressive. Five were baptized into the membership at the latter service and many more await the ordinance. A deep interest pervades all departments of the church. The pastor is present every Wednesday night at least a quarter of an hour before the service to converse with those who would like to see him relative to uniting with the church.

MISS HERMAN A GRADUATE.

Miss E. Adele Herrmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Herrmann, of Duer street, the borough, is in the graduating class of the State Normal School of Trenton. This year's class is the third largest in the history of the college and numbers 227 students. The commencement exercises will be held on June 23.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz. the construction, adjoining said property of a sidewalk to be laid as directed by said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specification for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11, 1910.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the office of the City Collector being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Playground Commission Arranging for Band Concerts and Fireworks on July 4.

A PUBLIC CELEBRATION

Affair Will Be Held at Parker Field Afternoon and Evening and Admission to Field Will Be Free—Contributions Needed.

What promises to be one of the biggest and best Independence Day band concerts and fire works displays ever given in this city is being arranged by the Plainfield Playground Commission, of which George P. Mellick is president. The Commission at its special meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last evening placed in charge of the fireworks arrangements Commissioners Allen E. Beals, chairman, and J. M. Zerega. Commissioners J. F. Zerega and J. Hervey Doane were placed in charge of the arrangements for music.

The Commission needs $300 to defray the cost of this patriotic demonstration. The saving in life and limb that safe and sane Independence celebrations throughout the country have effected prompted the Playground Commission at its meeting last evening to unanimously decide to concentrate all efforts this year upon the public fireworks display and at the same time to provide suitable recreative features whereby the whole city may enjoy a single spectacle of merit.

Accordingly it was decided to have admission to the field absolutely free to the public. A small fee of 25 cents will be levied for seats in the grand stands so as to insure accommodation so far as the seating capacity of the city's main playground will permit for the aged, infirm or mothers with children.

In making its appeal to the public for contributions to the extent of at least $300 for a free public band concert and fireworks display in the evening of Independence Day the Playground Commission seeks especially to give to the people of Plainfield who are unable to leave the city by train or automobile for a day's excursion, a patriotic demonstration which at this time will have a special significance. The music from 6:30 to 8 p. m. will be of a very high order and the fireworks display will be given by experts. Special emphasis will be laid this year upon the spectacular rather than the bombastic. In order to provide such a celebration it has been decided to ask for public contributions in any amount which may be sent to G. W. Wriston, secretary of the Commission, at 515 East Seventh street.

Contributions received up to Tuesday, June 15, will determine the kind of a celebration the public spirited citizens of this city want Plainfield to have. Contributions will be credited each night in the Daily Press. Receipts up to this afternoon were:

CRESCENT COMPANY MEETING.

Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, held an important business meeting in Flannery's Hall, on East Third street, last night, at which time announcement was made of the winner of the company's diamond ring contest. It was stated that Charles A. Nichols, of East Fourth street, had been awarded the handsome trinket. The meeting was well attended and final arrangements were made for the company's trip to Portchester, New York, next Sunday to hold memorial services over the grave of Harvey L. Patterson. Eighteen members have signified their intention of going and the journey will be made to and from Portchester by automobile.

EXEMPTS TO MEET.

Official notices have gone out announcing the gathering of the New Jersey Exempt Firemen's Association's annual convention to be held at Asbury Park, Wednesday, June 16. The sessions of that body will be held at the Casino on the boardwalk, while the headquarters of the executive committee will be located at the Coleman House. Horace G. Adams, of this city, is secretary of the organization.

TO GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS.

D. F. Carpenter, of 149 East Fourth street, the local distributor of Maxwell motor cars, will give several demonstrations this week showing the qualities of Maxwell cars. Each afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Carpenter will give a hill climbing contest on Johnston's drive, carring fifteen passengers. He will also tow a motor truck weighing 10,000 pounds to prove the strength of the car.

WEALTHY IMPORTER WILL WED TYPIST

Wm. Hall Campbell, of North Plainfield, to Marry His Former Employe.

William Hall Campbell, a wealthy drug importer, of 80 Maiden lane, New York, who resides in North Plainfield, and Miss Mabel Raper, daughter of Mrs. Augusta C. Raper, of Warburton avenue, Bayside, Long Island, will be married tomorrow at the rectory of All Saints' Episcopal church, Bayside, Long Island.

Their marriage will mark the culmination of a romance which began shortly after Miss Raper took a position as stenographer in the office of the drug importing company, of which Mr. Campbell is president.

The first intimation that Miss Raper's friends had of her approaching marriage was when she gave up her position and began to prepare for the wedding.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Charles A. Brown, rector of All Saints' church, and only the immediate relatives will attend. After the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will live in North Plainfield. Mr. Campbell was the best man at the wedding of Miss Emily Harrigan and Soren S. Adams two weeks ago.

NEW FIREMAN FOR LOCAL DEPARTMENT

John Guinee Appointed for Duty and Four Probationers Made Regulars.

As the result of the resolution pregented at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, by Chairman John Cose, of the fire and buildings committee, John Guinee will become a member of the local fire department for a probationary period of one year, that time to start at once. The new appointee recently qualified in the physical and mental tests and has familiarized himself with the department routine. He is a native Plainfield boy, educated in St. Mary's Parochial School, and is a carpenter by trade.

The Council ratified the appointment of the four men admitted into the department last January, as regulars. This quartet, including Thomas R. Randolph, Roy E. McDonough, Marcus Hefti and Floyd Carroll, has served the probationary period of six months and their work has satisfactorily qualified them as regulars. The recommendation was made by Chief Doane and introduced to the Council by Councilman Cose.

Bids will be opened at the July session of the Council for a new motor-propelled hose and chemical wagon. The specifications in the bid authorized to be published in the local newspapers and in the firemen's official publication, requires that the old horse-drawn vehicle now in use be taken as consideration for part payment and that the new apparatus carry 1,000 feet of hose and two thirty-five gallon chemical tanks.

Councilman Cose's resolution authorizing the fire committee to purchase 500 feet of two and one-half inch hose at a cost not to exceed $475 was ratified.

BORO SENIORS TO BE GUESTS OF GRADUATES

Arrangements for the annual alumni dance, given by the Alumni Association to the senior class of the North Plainfield High School, are being completed by members of the class of 1914. The affair will be held in the Park Club, Washington avenue, on the evening of June 24, the dance following the commencement exercises in the Plainfield Theatre. The members of the classes for two years back are supposed to help the committee.

This dance is the last social event of the school year and dancing will be enjoyed until 2 o'clock. Because of the many requests that have come to the committee it has been decided to make the dance an informal one, doing away with dance orders. Informal dress will also be in order. Tickets may be secured from any member of the 1913 and 1914 classes after Saturday.

COAL CAR CRUSHED HIS FOOT.

John Lynch, an employe of the Coal Sales Company at South Plainfield, was received at Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, suffering from a badly crushed foot. While he was working at the company's plant an empty coal car was backed down upon him and before he could get out of the way had passed over the limb near the ankle. The physicians have hopes of saving the foot, as it was fairly well protected by a heavy boot.

Ordinance to License Newspaper Venders Opposed in Present Form.

PROVOKES DISCUSSION

Councilmen Blatz, Cose and Graves Take An Opposing Stand—Graves Finally Switches to Affirmative—Passed on First Reading.

Discussion involving the exact interpretation and the probable results of the word "apparently" caused a hitch in the passage of the ordinance proposed at the June session of the Common Council last night relative to the regulation of the sale of newspapers in Plainfield. During the interval between the presentation and disposition of Councilman Hylan's document, Councilmen Cose, Graves and Blatz agreed on one version, while Councilmen Cox, Babcox, Hylan, Claybrook and Hamilton were willing to accept the ordinance as read.

The proposition was originally brought to the attention of the Council at the instance of the Mayor, and the ordinance presented last night called for the licensing of all boys under the age of sixteen years who sell papers on the city streets. Summarized, its terms prohibit boys under ten or girls under, "or apparently un-

TEMPLE BAPTISTS WIN SCHOLARSHIP

One of its Members to Be Sent to the School of Methods, Asbury Park.

An interesting and instructive meeting of the Plainfield Sunday School Superintendents' Association was held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last night. The program was prepared with the thought of the nearness of the vacation season, and was vital and full of interest to every teacher. After the devotional service, which was in charge of Rev. Evarts C. Conover, of the Temple Baptist church, there was a roll-call, each school responding with the number of teachers and officers present.

Interest was increased by the offer of a free scholarship at the Schoor of Methods, Asbury Park, for the school having the largest percentage of teachers and officers present. The Temple Baptist School received the honor, having 96 per cent. Evona chapel was second with 90 per cent. A member to be chosen from the winning school will be sent to the School of Methods.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, formerly of Scotch Plains, now Boy Scout librarian, spoke of the need of reading good books while on the vacation to fit one for the position of teaching. He suggested several books. Mrs. Robert Love, the second speaker, emphasized the value of the summer assemblies at Asbury Park, Silver Bay and Northfield. W. D. Murray, from his own experience, told how one might carry on Sunday school work while on vacations. He told how every summer he did this work where he was, finding some place where he could gather a few together and for a few weeks have a Sunday school. This, he said, might be held in a hotel or schoolhouse, in a barn or even out under a tree—on every occasion, he said, the result had paid for itself. The meeting was in charge of George E. Hall, president, but later in the evening it was turned over to Mr. Murray, who introduced the speakers.

EXEMPTS GOING TO ASBURY.

The Exempt Firemen's Association met in regular session in Exempt Firemen's Hall, on Park avenue, last night, and completed arrangements for attending the State convention at Asbury Park on Thursday, June 16. A delegation of fifteen or more local members will make the trip, leaving the North Avenue station on the 8:12 train and returning at night. The convention will take up practically all day but the old "vets" will have a short time for sightseeing. Each Plainfield members attending will be the guest of the local association for the day.

CHOSEN VICE PRESIDENT.

Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, of Grant avenue, was yesterday elected vice president of the New York Produce Exchange. James W. Warner was elected president. Mr. Claybrook is one of the most active members in the Exchange and his friends are much pleased with the high honor accorded to the Plainfielder.

PRAISE MANAGEMENT OF LOCAL HOSPITAL

Drs. Gray and Marble, of State Medical Society, Inspect Muhlenberg.

The question of hospital management was discussed in various papers at a recent meeting of the New Jersey State Medical Society, the general purpose of which was to raise the standard and efficiency of such management in the State. In order to continue the effect of this discussion and to produce the best practical results, Dr. Thomas Gray, of Orange, and Dr. Emory Marble, of Atlantic City, were named as a committee, with instructions to report back at a later meeting the result of their investigations.

These investigations cover the general efficiency and economy of management, the character of the plant, whether modern or otherwise, method of support and raising funds, system of accounting, in fact, the general efficiency of the plant from financial and scientific standpoints. This committee visited Muhlenberg Hospital last Saturday, visiting every department and examining records and accounts most thoroughly.

The committee spoke in the highest terms of praise concerning the hospital management and general efficiency as a most modern and up-to-date institution, regarding it one of the best in the State. The people of Plainfield, as well as the board of governors, have always felt a justifiable pride in Muhlenberg Hospital, and it is a source of gratification to have the general character and standard of the institution commended so highly by such eminent physicians representing the State Medical Society.

ORDINANCE CREATING NEW RANKING PASSED

Document Affecting Police Department Goes Through Without Protest.

Fear that the police ordinance framed months ago by the City Council's police committee would fail was allayed last night when it was presented for final reading, and was carried unanimously without discussion. The new ordinance creates a revised ranking in the department, the principal change being the classification of officers as follows: Chief captain, lieutenant, sergeants, patrolmen and patrol driver. Sergeant Maurice Higgins automatically becomes lieutenant of the department, and the two roundsmen will become sergeants.

It provides for the appointment of a new sergeant, but nothing was done toward deciding upon a choice last night, although the police committee held a lengthy conference. The sergeants will do night desk duty on shifts, Charles Flynn and Andrew Saffron, the present roundsmen, being relieved on alternate shifts by a third man.

Captain Flynn and Lieutenant Higgins will do day detective duty in plainclothes, and will be on call at any time during the night. The new ordinance entails no increase in pay except the $100 per year extra that the new sergeant will have when he is raised from the rank of patrolman.

COULD FURNISH MATERIAL FOR 3 SUBMARINES A WEEK

Philadelphia, June 8.—A despatch from Bethlehem to the Ledger says: "If Charles M. Schwab has secured control of Cramp's Shipyard nobody in Bethlehem would be surprised. It has been an open secret here that he has been trying for the last three years to buy Cramps and today he wants it more than ever."

A high official of the Bethlehem company would not confirm reports of the purchase. This official was asked if it was true that Bethlehem could roll material for three submarines, and said Bethlehem does not expect or hope to see the United States plunged into the present war, but it can make the material for more than three submarines a week; submarines that could cross the ocean.

WHIST FOR BUILDING FUND.

The Sisterhood of Temple Sholem will hold a whist party at Scheuer Hall, 119 West Front street, tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds of the occasion will be placed in the building fund of the Temple, that organization now planning a new and much larger and better building for its worship. This is the first of such gatherings planned by the Sisterhood.

BOSTWICK HEADS HONOLULU SCHOOL

Popular Local Manual Training Teacher Accepts Responsible Position.

FINISHES HERE JUNE 24

Is a Yale Graduate and Was Actively Identified With Many Local Bodies—Has Been Here Nine Years.

Following a nine years' connection with the Manual Training Department of the Plainfield High School, Charles Bostwick, one of the best known and most popular members of the faculty, has tendered his resignation to take effect at the completion of the present school term. He will leave Plainfield, August 1, to assume a position as principal of the Boys' Manual Training Institute in the Kamchameha Schools at Honolulu, Hawaii islands. This school was founded by Mrs. Bishop, the woman who was in line for the honor of being the next Titilua Queen of the island. Her death occurred recently and she bequeathed an immense estate and large sum of money for the establishment of such an institution of learning. Many American boys are included in the big roster of the school, but the majority of Mr. Bostwick's pupils will be of the Hawaiian

PROGRESS SLOW IN THE ROUNDEY TRIAL

Trifles Hold up Case Against Woman Accused of Perjury by the State.

Technicalities entered largely into the testimony offered at the trial of Mrs. Florence E. Roundey, formerly of this city, in the Supreme Court at Elizabeth, this morning, the defendant being arraigned on four Union county indictments, two charging her with endeavoring to secure suborned testimony, one with suborning testimony, and a third accusing her of perjury direct. Union County Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein conducted the prosecution on behalf of the State and he will be assisted during the course of the proceedings by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the local law firm of Reed & Hetfield, and John P. Owens, also of this city. Conover English, of the law firm of McCarter & English, represents Mrs. Roundey, and Richard Stockton, of Newark, who was formerly identified with the Roundey series of litigations, was also in court, supposedly as a subpoenaed witness. Since entering pleas of not guilty to the allegations Mrs. Roundey has been at liberty under bonds of $2,000.

Witnesses examined this morning were Charles Schisski, clerk of the Supreme Court, and Hal L. Hunt, clerk of the Court of Chancery. Both testified to having personally witnessed the filing of certain documents having a material bearing on the case. Frank Burns told of having taken the depositions before John P. Owens. Prosecutor Stein endeavored to place before the court certain transcripts of testimony, but his efforts met with vigorous objection on the part of Mr. English. After a verbal battle between the two counsellors the court ruled that the evidence was liable for admittance.

It is expected that the case will occupy the court's time during the entire afternoon and during the major portion of tomorrow's session.

NEW NOTE BEFORE THE CABINET; READY TO GO

President Intimates It Will Be Forwarded to Berlin in a Few Hours.

Washington, June 8.—The final text of the note to Germany was laid before the Cabinet today and President Wilson, in response to a direct question, said it would be forwarded to Berlin within a very short time indeed. This was taken as confirmation of reports that it would be put in code immediately after the Cabinet adjourned and would be dispatched late today or tonight.

The President, in talking with the newspaper correspondents, was plainly irritated by the speculation aroused by the note and the apparent delay in transmitting it to Germany. He declared there had been delay and said the Administration merely was unable to write State papers as rapidly as the newspapers apparently were capable of doing. The President emphasized the statement that there was no change in the policy of the Administration so far as the new note was concerned, therefore the United States is prepared to stand by its former demands. That the note will not include references to the Gulflight, Cushing, Nebraskan or Falaba incidents was made clear.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR CHOSEN FOR Y. W. C. A.

Miss Ruth Sanderson, of Waltham, Mass, to Succeed Miss Wetherell.

The Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association has announced Miss Ruth Sanderson, of Waltham, Massachusetts, as the new physical director to succeed Miss Elizabeth Wetherell, the present supervisor, who will leave Plainfield, July 1, to take up a similar position with Syracuse University in the fall.

The local association is considered most fortunate in being able to secure Miss Sanderson for this position, the young woman having considerable experience in various athletic and physical departments. Miss Sanderson is a college graduate, being a members of the Alumnae of Mt. Holyoke, Massachusetts. She is also a graduate of the Sargeant School, of Boston, the latter being a physical culture institution. Miss Sanderson is engaged in Y. W. C. A. work in Fort Smith, Arkansas, at the present time and will begin her duties in this city about September 1.

In speaking to a Daily Press reporter, Miss Wetherell expressed regret in leaving Plainfield and extended the best of wishes and all possible success to the new director in her work here, and hoped that the members of the physical department would continue their good work in co-operating with Miss Sanderson.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR SIX TAKEN IN EVENING RAID

Information furnished the police by a neighbor last night resulted in the raiding of a disorderly house at 537 West Third street by Sergeant Maurice Higgins and Patrolmen Roy E. Martin, John Henderschott and Martin Flatley, the following colored folk being taken in the police dragnet: William Marsh, 551 South Second street; Thomas Jackson, alias "Van," of Somerville; Martha Cuff, of 537 West Third street; Lillian Jackson, of Somerville; Charles Jackson, of 537 West Third street, and Mary Hurling, of 537 West Third street.

Arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, Jackson, who was adjudged guilty of being the keeper of the house, was fined $10, with the option of spending forty days in the county jail, and the others, with the exception of Mary Hurling, were given sentences of $8, or forty days. The Hurling woman is tubercular, and her sickly condition led the judge to suspend sentence. All admitted being in the place, three of them being boarders. None of them could pay the fines, and were consequently committed to the county jail this afternoon.

SINK SUBMARINE AT DARDANELLES

Anglo-French Fleet Put Austrian Vessel At Bottom of the Sea.

PROGRESS AT ARRAS

French War Office Declares That Advance Has Also Been Made at Souchez Sugar Factory and Labyrinth Attacks Repelled.

Paris, June 8.—A submarine, believed to be an Austrian vessel, has been sunk by the Anglo-French fleet at the western entrance to the Dardanelles, says a despatch from Mitylene today. The presence of an Austrian submarine in the Dardanelles sphere would indicate that Austria as well as Germany is placing her war supplies at the disposal of the Turks.

Hostilities between the French and Germans raging both north and south of Arras, and progress for the French in both these sectors is reported in an official communique issued by the War Office today. North of Arras the French scored another advance in vicinity of the Souchez sugar factory. German counter attacks at the German labyrinth, southeast of Neuville St. Vaast, were made and the French successfully defended all the works they had taken there.

South of Arras on the Hebuterne Serre road the French captured 150 Germans.

Constantinople, June 8.—The Turkish War Office gave out the following official statement today

"Reports from the Dardanelles' front state that the enemy has not dared to undertake any fresh action since the defeat suffered by him on Saturday and reported in yesterday's official statement. Quiet reigned all along the whole front on Sunday. Our artillery destroyed a position of the enemy near Avi Burnu, from which bombs had been thrown, and also neighboring trenches north of Sed El Bahr. Our batteries on the Asiatic coast shelled the enemy's wing and artillery positions, also their ammunition transports. A hostile battery at Sed El Bahr was silenced."

London, June 8.—The Belgian steamship Menapier has been sent to the bottom by a German torpedo near the North Foreland. Out of 23 persons on board 6 only were saved.

Aberdeen, Scotland, June 8.—The Russian schooner Adolph was sunk by a German submarine off Rattary Head today with a loss of two members of her crew.

London, June 8.—Reginald Warneford, a young Canadian aviator, is today the hero of the empire. He is in line for the Victoria Cross, having been the first airman of the allies to bring down, single-handed, a Zeppelin in flight. The crew of twenty-eight men were burned to death in midair.

Young Warneford, who was only recently sent to the front with a commission as flight sub-lieutenant in the royal navy, went aloft from the British lines in Flanders yesterday to pursue the Zeppelin, believed to have been on its way home after participating in the raid on the English coast, in which five persons were killed and forty injured.

About half an hour later, after a long and difficult chase, the young aviator succeeded in driving his Morane monoplane to a point in the sky directly above the huge dirigible although the latter, in desperate efforts to evade him had arisen to a height of 6,000 feet.

"He dropped six bombs," says the brief official announcement of his feat, "and the airship exploded, fell to the ground and burned for a considerable time."

The Canadian flyer narrowly escaped paying with his life for his daring, as in approaching close enough to his victim to make every shot tell, he almost became involved in her fate.

"The force of the explosion," the official statement continues, "caused the monoplane to turn upside down. The pilot succeeded in righting the machine, but had to make a forced landing in the enemy's country. However, he was able to restart his machine and return safely to the aerodrome."

Above her, barely out of the flaming vortex of her destruction, Warneford, the destroyer, came reeling downward, expecting every moment to pitch headlong into the lifeless, blazing remnants of his foe and perish with her.

Somehow he brought his frail machine right side up once more, but so near the ground he was compelled to alight.

LEVGAR STRUCTURAL CO. TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY

"Flag Day," which falls on Monday, will be fittingly observed at the plant of the Levgar Structural Company by the raising of a large flag, which is twenty-five feet long and fifteen feet wide.

Credit for the coming event is due J. T. Brady, a clerk in the employ of the shipping department of the concern. Mr. Brady approached the management several weeks ago and, after interesting them in his subject, asked them to furnish a flag-pole. He told them that if they would do this that he would raise money for the purchasing of the flag by a canvass among the various employes of the company. The management readily assented to this and a ninety-foot flag-pole has already been rigged and will be erected on either Thursday or Friday. The pole will be placed in front of the factory.

An elaborate program has been arranged for the ceremonies, which will take place Monday afternoon. The shop will be closed down a half-day for the occasion. There will be speaking and other exercises. One of the principal speakers will be Councilman Robert S. Craig, the local orator. Mr. Craig has announced the subject of his oration as "The Flag of Our Country."

The trip to the lake was uneventful, but on the return trip the party was not so fortunate. HITCH IN NEWSBOYS' BILL

ler" sixteen years of age, from selling; application must be made to the Board of Education for the proper credentials, including a badge, which is supplied upon the payment of a license fee of fifty cents; the parent or guardian of the child must sign the application, and the child himself must endorse in order to avoid the transfer of the license. The ordinance prohibits the licensed newsboys from disposing of papers between the hours of 9 in the morning and 1 in the afternon, this being the interval supposed to be consumed in study; and all newsboys must be off the street by 7 in the evening, and must not be out before 6 in the morning. Those licensed are prohibited from entering saloons or places where spirituous liquor is disposed of to the public.

Councilman Blatz entered objection to the ordinance on the grounds that the councilmen had not had time enough to familiarize themselves with the wording, and asked that the clerk be instructed to send copies to each one prior to the next meeting. This statement, however, was defendfended by Councilman Hylan, who qualified his stand by stating that Mr. Blatz had not attended a committee meeting where the bill was dwelt upon at length, and that the Board of Education was anxious to have the proposition go through so that some good could be accomplished by it prior to the close of the present school term. Councilmen Cose and Graves sided with Mr. Blatz at this juncture, however, on another technical objection, when he pointed out that the word "apparently" in the clause relative to a girl being under "or apparently under," sixteen years of age. Councilman Graves declared that this would lead to possible allegations of unfairness, and contended that the Board of Education would be open to unjust accusations.

A deadlock ensued, during which a conference was held. By persuasion the "father" of the ordinance managed to pull Councilman Graves over to the affirmative side, and when a vote was taken to pass it on the first reading, Councilmen Cose and Blatz were the only two to dissent. In view of the fact that the proposition was not accepted unanimously, and out of respect to Messrs. Blatz and Cose, Mr. Hylan explained that he would withhold further presentation until the next meeting, and advised the clerk to submit copies of the ordinance to each councilman in the meantime.

Last night's hitch will result in action being taken on the ordinance at a time that will render it useless for introduction into the schools this year. A similar regulation has proven effective in Elizabeth, Newark and other places, and it is the belief of Mayor Calkins and the School Board members that the innovation will be a success here.

extraction. The faculty includes forty instructors, many of whom have been drafted from the States.

The object of the institution is to promote industrial professions among the younger generation and the departments are divided into junior and senior boys' gradings. A school for girls is an auxiliary to the male institution with a similar object.

Mr. Bostwick graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University in 1903. His first position was obtained in the Brockport State Normal School, where he was instructor in manual arts and physical training. While teaching he pursued a course of study designed by the New York Crafts' Club, of which he was elected vice president. Since affiliating his services with the Plainfield Public School system, Mr. Bostwick has become known as a hard-worker and efficient and well qualified organizer. He has gained considerable prestige as head of the manual training departments and one of the most recent honors accorded him was his election to the presidency of the Union County Manual Training Teachers' Association. He was the organizer of this important county body and has been a main factor in its progress. He is also a member of the Eastern Arts Association and the Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. For several years he took full charge of the athletic teams in the local High School and was actively identified with the grammar school physical work. The increasing popularity of his manual training work among the local school pupils, however, so fully occupied his time that he was finally forced to abandon athletics and devote his entire time and energy to major interest.

He is a non-commissioned officer in the National Guard Field Hospital. When Parker Field was originally opened to the local public he was appointed supervisor and while in this capacity he had the duties of Scout Commissioner for Plainfield thrust upon him. His school interests, however, have become so magnified recently that his playground work has become a minor consideration.

While in Yale University, Mr. Bostwick was prominent as a track athlete and for several years held the intercollegiate club-swinging championship. After coming to Plainfield he gave a number of notable exhibitions of this latter art. He was also a member of the Park Golf Club.

Mr. Bostwick's leaving is the source of keen regret on the part of his many friends in the High School and the best wishes of all attend him in his higher position.

Gulf Refining Company Purchases Tract of Land at Dunellen.

TO BUILD BIG FACTORY

Petition Received at June Session of Council Last Night—Sewer Discussion Involved—Bills Paid for Month.

The Gulf Refining Company, said to be the largest independent company of its kind in the United States, petitioned the Dunellen Council, at the June meeting last night, for permission to erect a plant on property purchased from the Central Railroad located on North avenue, between Jackson and Jefferson avenues. The petition for the permit was presented by Chairman Robert S. Craig, of the fire and water committee, and was unanimously granted. The company will start the erection of its plant at an early date. The property on which the plant will be erected will have a frontage on North avenue of 150 feet and at the railroad of 155 feet. Its largest side will be 120 feet and its shortest 83 feet. The plant will be of concrete and arrogatin iron. It will include a warehouse, office, garage, stable and wagon-shed. From this plant the company will furnish wholesale trade lying between Cranford and New Brunswick. The nearest plant of the company is located in Newark.

A number of petitions were presented at the meeting. A petition asking the Council to have curbing laid along the south side of North avenue, between Prospect and Washington avenues, was referred to the law and ordinance committee. The petition had 20 signers. A petition signed by W. B. LaRue, C. H. Haight, Mrs. Frances D. Backus, George L. Harris, and other residents of New Market residing along that portion of the boundary line between this borough and New Market, which extends along Centre street and down New Market road, was received in connection with having their dwellings connected with the borough's collecting sewerage system. From the discussion which arose following the presentation of this petition it seems that the borough can contract with outside parties in the matter of house connections if same are agreeable to the other two parties of the Joint Sewerage Commission, Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the petition was therefore referred to Chairman Robert S. Craig, of the borough's joint sewerage committee. In the event of entering into such contracts with outside parties the borough will be compensated by annual rentals.

A petition received from the Equator Building and Development Company asking that sidewalks be laid on both sides of Sandford avenue of the Equator tract from Bound Brook road to Front street, was referred to the sidewalk committee.

The following made application for the position of borough sewer inspectors: E. M. Ayers, Lloyd B. Smith and Jacob Fisher. These men were appointed.

As per a previous petition, Borough Engineer Churchill was instructed to give 500 feet of sidewalk grade along Columbia street for the developers of Columbia Park. The development begins 900 feet east of the intersection of Washington avenue and Columbia street. Houses are to be built on this tract in the near future.

A petition from the developers of the tract for an extension of the sewer system to improve their property was referred to the collecting sewerage committee.

Among the bills ordered paid for the month were $12,613.77 for collecting sewerage work and $675.40 for the joint system.

SCOUT COUNCIL WILL RECEIVE ESSAYS MONDAY

The Boy Scout Council at its meeting in the Y. M. C. A. parlors on Monday night, will receive the essays which will be submitted by members of the various troops in competition for the camp cooking kit and second prize offered by Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen for the best composition written by a Plainfield boy scout on the Scout Law, "Be Kind." The subject will give the scout's idea of what kindness to human beings and animals is and cite some original instance wherein he has done his good turn in this direction.

The composition will not be more than 700 words long and must be handed to the commissioner or a member of the council before 8 o'clock Monday evening. The judges will consist of officers of the council and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen.

PLANS TO REPAIR PUBLIC FOUNTAIN

Watering Depot on Muhlenberg Place Object of Council's Investigation.

MAY REPORTS ARE FILED

Ordinance to Widen East Ninth Street Introduced Last Night—Petition Presented for Improvement of South Avenue.

Action taken on the petition from the Commercial Mills Company asking that the city take proper care of the fountain located on Muhlenberg place, resulted in the Common Council, at its June session last night, instructing Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett to see to it that the fountain is placed in working order at an expenditure not to exceed $50. For some time past the fountain has been "waterless," entailing considerable inconvenience and annoyance to the Commercial Mills people, who have been compelled to make a public drinking station out of their private pump for horse owners who stop at that point expecting to find water for their animals. Since the presentation of the petition at the May meeting members of the Council visited the place and personally inspected the matter, and it was the unanimous opinion that something should be done immediately.

In the absence of President Clay the session was presided over by Councilman Richard A. Claybrook. Councilman Blatz, of the street committee, offered a resolution relative to the widening of East Ninth street, from Watchung avenue to Third place, in response to a petition offered at the May meeting by William H. Clark and others. It provides for the establishment of a seventy-foot curb line on East Ninth street, between the two streets mentioned in the petition and a public hearing regarding the same will be held in the Council chambers, July 6. At that time an opportunity will be afforded all interested to ascertain the terms and possibilities of the ordinance.

Bryant E. Kempling made application at the meeting for an auctioneer's license, and the matter was referred to the public affairs committee. Martha E. Colbin and others petitioned the council to repair parts of South avenue that have been washed out by recent rains. This was also referred to a committee for investigation.

Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett reported that four sewer permits, representing an outlay of $4, had been granted during May, and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that fifteen building permits were granted last month.

Clerk Horace Adams, of the Plainfield District Court, reported that the May returns had amounted to $274.93. A report was read from the local Board of School Estimate, comprising Councilmen and representatives of the Board of Education, indicating trat the figures arrived upon as the amount needed for the maintenance of the public school system here during 1915-16 was $114,350. This amount is exclusive of the amount received from the county.

The sum of $2,500 was ordered transferred from the general fund to the fire fund, and the annual report of the Public Library's board of trustees and the certified accountant representing the Universal Auditing Company, were read. The Council will meet in special session, Tuesday night, June 22.

NETHERWOOD RESIDENTS SEEK FIRE PROTECTION

Acting as a committee of one for the property owners and residents of Woodland avenue in the vicinity of Parker Field, Henry B. Newhall, of 127 Woodland avenue, submitted a petition to the Common Council at its June session last night requesting that body to instruct the fire committee to take proper precaution against possible loss of life and property damage during the Fourth of July celebration held annually on Parker Field. It was pointed out in the communication that in the past sparks and other burnable substances coming from the set-pieces and other features of the city's out-of-door demonstration on the Randolph road playgrounds, have been carried by the wind to surrounding property, thereby endangering it.

This danger is more liable to occur when there is a strong wind and Mr. Newhall suggested that the fire department have men stationed in that section ready for immediate action in case of an outbreak. Although there are no houses located within three hundred feet of the spot where the fireworks are set off the burning embers have been known to carry even this far and it is the consensus of opinion among residents of that section "that a stitch in time saves nine."

The matter was referred to the fire committee and it will be taken up with Chief Doane.

AN UNUSUAL TRIAL.

One of the most remarkable criminal trials that has ever been held in New Jersey will be that of Matthew Jefferson, prosecutor of the pleas in Cape May county, who is under indictment for grafting. Probably never before in the history of the State has a grand jury returned indictments against the man who is primarily responsible for the presentation of evidence before their body. There are twenty-five indictments against Jefferson, ten for obtaining money under false pretences, nine for larceny, five for embezzlement and one for malfeasance in office.

The indictments set forth that Jefferson visited hotels and saloons, having a personal knowledge of the violations of the law, and permitted violations to continue, and that he collected fines and costs which were not turned into the county funds until after the investigation was started.

Judge Peter F. Daly, of Middlesex county, has been designated to go to Cape May county to try the case, and a special prosecutor will have to be named to present the evidence which has been procured, as the man under indictment is the only person now authorized to do that work. The outcome will be watched with much interest in all parts of the state.

Mayor Calkins will earn the everlasting gratitude and thanks of hundreds of Plainfielders who like a quiet Sunday, by his orders to the police to drive the newspaper hawkers off the streets on that day. There is absolutely no excuse for the lusty lunged men who go about selling "extras," most of which contain nothing that was not in the regular edition delivered quietly to the homes in the early morning.

Plainfielders do not need to go away from home for talent to address the High School pupils at commencement time. That is proven by the engagement of Dr. Charles A. Eaton by the local Board of Education. No better man for the job could be procured anywhere in the country.

Two to ten years in state's prison was given each of the nine deputies convicted of shooting strikers at Roosevelt. It is to be hoped that they have to serve their time, so that in the future thugs and blacklegs will not seek jobs as special deputies and "private detectives" in New Jersey.

The Germans have not made any friends among the newspaper copy and proof readers by recapturing Przemysl. If they had left it alone after the Russians took it away from the Austrians, they would have spared many a newspaper office headache.

If the street car company really wants to put one over on the jitney bus lines, we suggest that the plan of six rides for a quarter be used as an inducement to keep the people out of the nickel autos.

The mosquito extermination commission has it's men on the job all right, but there are sections of the city where the winged pests have appeared in droves within the last couple of days.

The fact that even the Mayor and three councilmen could not get by a local policeman the other night when they were riding in a car with bright lights shows that the local cops are on the job.

Fishing is a mighty fine diversion, but there are few who feel that with the usual luck they would never get enough fish to make good the $1.10 required for a license.

"News are scarce" as the summer approaches. If it wasn't for the war the editors of many a Metropolitan daily would be tearing their hair for "features."

The dispatches tells us that Mrs Martine named a puma, but fail to say what name she picked. It was a good chance to do a little advertising for Plainfield.

Without any intention of stirring up anything, may we inquire when that new Nott fire engine is going to be put into service for the city?

The effect of Billy Sunday on Paterson has been so great that even Sunday baseball games have been stopped there.

The Lusitania controversy is at least welcomed by the cable companies—at so much per word.

"Stokes does not want to be vice-president" says a headline. Well, nobody asked him to.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Complaints are heard often in Plainfield that frequently in parts of the city but one mail-delivery a day is made, and that letters mailed in New York in the morning are not delivered here until the following day.

On inquiry at the Plainfield post-office, Mr. Hoagland told me that, being somewhat handicapped by the eight-hour-ten-hour law, which makes the carriers' day begin at 6:45 and end at 4:45, it was impossible to deliver such letters unless they came from New York on the noon train.

The postmaster in New York tells me that letters mailed, for instance, at Lexington avenue and East Thirty-fourth street, at 9 o'clock or at Wall street and Broadway at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, should in regular course be forwarded on the Central Railroad of New Jersey train that leaves Jersey City at 12:13 noon; and he requests that some of the envelopes of such letters delayed be submitted to the postmaster in New York.

I think it is fair to make this statement, so that those who have complaints to make may know where to look for a remedy.

GEORGE H. GODDARD.

BUSINESS MEN TO HAVE MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

With an idea of getting every merchant in the city to join the Business Men's Association, it was determined at the meeting of that body held last night, in the Coward building, to employ Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, to come here for two weeks to do the work. It was determined, after a lengthy discussion; that an active campaign to educate the non-members as to the advantages of joining the association was necessary.

In the absence of President Schwed, who is in Baltimore, John J. Varley, the vice president, was in the chair. Treasurer M. C. VanArsdale reported the finances of the association to be in better condition than any time before. There was informal discussion of matters affecting the organization, and some of the members proposed an amendment to the constitution making it impossible to hold contests of various kinds in the city, in so far as the membership of the organization was concerned.

"Want ad publicity" is the solution—when work-finding becomes a serious matter with you.

STIFF SENTENCES FOR TWO ARRESTED FOR SOLICITING

Some detective work on the part of Patrolman John Henderschott at 2 o'clock this morning resulted in the apprehension of Emma Brown, alias "Josephine Stenson," of 119th street, New York city, and Hazel Parker, of 533 West Third street, on charges of soliciting. Both are colored, and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court they were sentenced to pay fines of $15 each or be committed to the county jail for a period of sixty days. Both took the days.

The arrest followed a complaint made by a prominent local business man to Henderschott, his claim being that the Brown woman approached him at West Front street and Madison avenue earlier in the evening. Together with Patrolman Martin Flatley and Roundsman Saffron, Henderschott went to a house on West Third street, conducted by a Mrs. Thornton, an aunt of Grace Britton, another colored woman, who accompanied the two arrested.

The three coppers entered the place, and Flatley arrested the Brown woman, while Henderschott took Hazel Parker into custody. In the scuffle that ensued Grace Britton leaped from a second-story window twenty feet to the ground below. In the jump she broke two clotheslines, but was too speedy for Saffron, and managed to make good her escape. The police are still looking for her.

The Brown and Parker women were "mugged" by the police this morning, and the former is said to be the biggest colored woman ever taken into custody in this city. She is six feet three inches in height and weighs 204 pounds. They both pleaded for mercy after admitting the charge of soliciting.

CONTRACTORS DISCOVER AN UNDERGROUND LAKE

The sewer contractors engaged in installing a pumping station on West End avenue, near the bridge in the borough, has encountered an unusual amount of water and have been delayed somewhat in the work. A gasoline engine was employed for several days to pump the water out, but this failing to give the desired result, arrangements were made today to use the steamer from the borough fire department.

The engine was put to work this morning and was still pumping this afternoon. The contractors believe that they have struck an underground lake and it may be necessary to change the location of the pumping station unless the excavation can be emptied of the water soon.

SIMPLE RITES FOR S. ST. J. M'CUTCHEN

Funeral Service at Brother's Home Attended by Many Friends.

The home of Charles W. McCutchen at 21 Rockview avenue, the borough, was filled with relatives and friends yesterday afternoon, who gathered to pay their last respects to his brother, Samuel St. John McCutchen, whose death occurred Friday night at his summer home in Belmar. The simple funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, in which the McCutchen family has been active for two-score years. Included in the gathering were former business associates from New York and other places, friends and neighbors and colleagues in religious work.

The obsequies in themselves were as unostentatious as the life of Mr. McCutchen. Simplicity was one of the dominant factors in his daily routine, and Dr. Strong took no departure from it. He confined himself to the reading of Scripture verses, offering prayer and pronouncing benediction. A quartet, composed of Mrs. William A. Coddington, Miss Jessie Haynes, George W. Smith and William Holmes, sang three beautiful selections. These were "Father, In Thy Mysterious Presence Kneeling," Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," and the translation of the old Latin hymn, "Safe Home in Port."

The wealth of floral tributes, which came from organizations and friends, included a magnificent piece from the Plainfield Yale Club, of which Mr. McCutchen was an active member, and another from the staff and the office of Fletcher, McCutchen & Brown, of 128 Broadway, New York, the law firm in which he was a partner. Burial was made in the Marsh family plot in Evergreen cemetery, Mrs. McCutchen having been Miss Helen Marsh, a member of an old Plainfield family.

The death of Samuel St. John McCutchen has removed from Plainfield and North Plainfield a substantial citizen whose place is hard to fill. He was always ready to lend himself for the cause of municipal advancement or religious betterment. His services to the State as a member of the New Jersey Board of Education will have a lasting effect, and in the city and borough proper the good he has done will live after him. In the early days of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. McCutchen's help was one of the factors which resulted in the splendid institutions of today. Beside organizations, there are many Plainfield people who have reason to remember the aid extended by Mr. McCutchen, but no one else knows about it, as his left hand was kept in ignorance of the doings of the right.

Mr. McCutchen was graduated from the class of 1870 at Yale, and besides being captain of the University baseball team, was elected to the Senior Society, "Skull and Bones," was a member of the Wooden Spoon, although this latter fact is known to but few Plainfielders, and the personnel of the Wooden Spoon committee, or "cochlaureate," as in its day it was known, was made up from the nine most popular men in the junior class each year, and the statement that he was numbered among the nine is conclusive evidence of what the man was at the time of his selection.

ANIMALS WILL SURPASS ROOSEVELT COLLECTION

WHAT HAPPENED TO ANNA.

A lovely young lady named Anna
Sat pounding an upright piano;
When asked by her beau
Where she wanted to go,
Got right up and shouted
"GYMKANA!"

By noting the columns of the Daily Press for the next few days, readers who do not know what kind of a function a "Gymkana" is, will receive some enlightenment on the subject, and incidentally learn how Anna's desire is to be gratified.

After considerable expenditure of time, money and gray matter, to say nothing of "patients," Dr. Albert Pittis has succeeded in accumulating a group of animals,—fur-bearing and feathered,—exceeding in wonder, beauty and grace the famous Roosevelt collection. These the doctor will enter in a free for all race, and it is felt sure that their performance will not only be a source of gratification to Anna, but will impel each and every beholder to exclaim, "Delighted!"

LLOYD BROKAW WEDS MISS EDNA M'DONALD

A quiet wedding was celebrated yesterday afternoon, when Miss Edna MacDonald, daughter of Richard MacDonald, of Richmond street, became the bride of Lloyd Brokaw, of New York city. They were married in the parsonage of the First Methodist church, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Frank MacDonald, brother and sister-in-law, respectively, attended the couple, and only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony. Miss MacDonald was attractively attired in a traveling suit and hat to match.

Following a sojourn at the seashore, which will extend through the summer, Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw will reside in New York city, where Mr. Brokaw is engaged in business with the Brokaw Auto Training School.

Temperance NEWS AND VIEWS

Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Flossie Slown Hyde, secretary of the Women's National Prohibition Federation, has received the following letter of endorsement for the movement from Hon. Ben B. Lindsey, founder and for many years judge of the Juvenile Court in Denver, Colorado:

Mrs. Flossie Slown Hyde,
106 N. LaSalle st., Chicago, Ills.

My Dear Mrs. Hyde:

I am heartily in favor of your movement to put an end to the liquor traffic. It is worse than useless to deal with the effects of certain evils in this country unless we fight the causes and conditions which make for those evils. One of the chief causes of misery, poverty and crime in this nation is the rum curse. Every man, woman and child in the nation, directly or indirectly, would positively be better off if it was absolutely obliterated. I believe in every reasonable movement to force it to the front and compel the political parties to recognize the right of the people to be freed from this millstone about their necks. I believe, therefore, that the women of this country owe it to themselves and their children to sign just such a pledge as that you propose. The women already vote in sufficient numbers to wield a power if they will only unite to compel the political parties to declare for the annihilation of the rum curse in this nation.

Therefore, as one who has presided perhaps longer than any other person in this country in a children's court, where we constantly see the havoc wrought by the evil we are fighting, I could not do more for the children of this nation than to urge the women of this country to sign the pledge proposed by the secretary of the World's Christian Endeavor Union.

With all good wishes, I am,
Sincerely yours,
BEN B. LINDSEY.

Since 1896 the women of Utah have had full suffrage, and since that time there has not been a good law placed upon the statutes of that State that has not been largely if not fully influenced by the women.

It has meant better laws for the children and women, for today we have excellent child labor laws, juvenile courts, anti-cigarette, minimum wage, nine-hour working day, mothers' pension, equal guardianship, gambling a felony, splendid protective laws for dry territory, age of consent at eighteen years, and many other minor laws.

A great effort was made by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Utah to have prohibition in 1915. With this end in view, the women led in a campaign to have only men and women elected to the Legislature who were pledged to support State-wide prohibition. We succeeded in electing such a Legislature, and our bill passed with only two votes against us in the Senate and five in the House.

It was a tremendous victory and our hearts were greatly rejoiced, and yet through the despicable act of one man—the Governor of Utah—who saw fit to veto the measure after the Legislature adjourned (for he had found that we could pass it over his veto), we have suffered a partial defeat. We are saying that Utah is dry, but that the Governor is wet. We are not discouraged; victory is just deferred, and at the next election the women of Utah will be heard from at the polls, and there will be a new Governor in this State, and he will be the right kind of a man.

For years the women of Utah have stood together regardless of party. You will find women standing for principle rather than for party; and because of this unity of our women, Utah today has some of the best laws that can be found in any State of the Union.

LULA LOVELAND SHEPARD.
President Utah State W. C. T. U.

Strong resolutions against the liquor traffic were passed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of America, which met last week in Rochester, N. Y.. These resolutions will be given at length next week. In addition, action was taken on an overture presented by the Ohio Synod, which gave power to excommunicate pastors or elders who by any secret or overt act give aid to the liquor interests. The assembly approved this overture.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in national convention at Cleveland, O., last week, endorsed State and national prohibition, by the unanimous vote of its over 800 delegates, representing over 70,000 locomotive engineers in all parts of the United States and Canada.

At the sixty-second annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar, of Pennsylvania, a resolution was passed by a large majority which makes it impossible in the future for any one, directly or indirectly connected with the liquor business, to join any commandery in the State.

PLAINFIELD AIRDOME

The warmth of the past few days has made local people realize at last that summer weather has arrived and with it the knowledge that the Plainfield Airdome is the best place in the city to witness their favorite players in moving pictures. Being in the open air, the big auditorium is bound to be cool and comfortable and the spectators do not have to swelter while watching the screen. The Airdome has caught the popular fancy and has already risen to be Plainfield's leading amusement institution relative to pictures.

The offering at the Airdome today is Jesse L. Lasky's picturization of the modern comedy hit, "After Five," featuring Edward Abeles, America's popular farce comedy actor. For tomorrow and Thursday, the headline attraction will be "Buckshot John," dramatized from the story by Charles E. Van Loan. Mr. Van Loan has risen to the front rank of American authors during the last few years through the medium of the Saturday Evening Post, and those who have read his laughable baseball, theatrical and circus stories know they have a treat in store in seeing "Buckshot John." The production is in four parts and features Hobart Bosworth, who has been seen as a screen actor many times during the past winter when the Paramount pictures were displayed at the Plainfield Theatre.

For the last two days of the week, Friday and Saturday, the Airdome will present Mary Pickford, the highest salaried screen artist in the country, in her latest success, "Mistress Nell." This offering is certain to be one of the best of the season and fans who revel in the historical and romantic drama will appreciate the business acumen displayed by Manager Shannon in procuring it for his patrons.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's Theatre will undoubtedly hold capacity crowds both this afternoon and night, owing to the presentation of George Kleine's masterpiece, "Julius Caesar." Announcements that the massive six-part photo-play production was to be shown has created widespread interest, not only among students of the classics but moving picture fans in general. Almost everyone is familiar with the story of the great Roman emperor, and as it is displayed on the screen it takes on a new realism and vividness never before seen in modern times. Anthony Novelli, the famous Italian tragedian, enacts the role of "Julius Caesar," and the supporting company as selected by Mr. Kleine includes a score of favorite stage celebrities. Every scene, every detail has been reproduced with startling exactness, taking the spectators back to the "eternal city" in the days before Christ so that for the time being they almost forget that they are living in the twentieth century.

Two big feature pictures will form the headline attraction at Proctor's tomorrow, one of them being David Belasco's masterpiece, "The Rose of the Rancho," as produced by the Jesse L. Lasky company, and the other, "The Plunderer," featuring William Farnum and presented by William Fox. The majority of theatregoers are familiar with the story of "The Rose of the Rancho" as when it was presented on the legitimate stage a few years ago it was a reigning success for several seasons. It has lost none of its charm in its transfer to the screen, Miss Bessie Barriscale imparting all her youth and beauty to the title role as originally portrayed by Miss Frances Starr. "The Plunderer" tells a story of romance, love, hate, trials and success, so cleverly interwoven as to hold the watchers with breathless interest, from start to finish. It will be repeated at all performances Thursday.

Proctor's Theatre has something new every day and the playhouse's symphony orchestra has caught the popular fancy with a fast and sure grip. Nowhere else in the city is there such an enjoyable and diversified program. The $10,000 prize serial, "The Diamond from the Sky," is shown every Tuesday, and the "Exploits of Elaine" are continued every Friday, and the newest fascinating serial, "The Goddess," is displayed every Saturday. Other features are presented every day and by watching these columns photo-play devotees are certain to find something to their liking.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

A novel method of determining the laugh-producing powers of motion picture comedians is being tried in the U. S. Astor Theatre. An instrument called the acongraph, a delicately tuned apparatus which translates sound waves into lines on a sensitized plate, has been installed in the theatre. Laughter sets a needle traveling over the plate. The distance traveled horizontally measures t duration of the laughter, while t distance perpendicularly measu the volume. These instruments ha been placed in a number of theat where Charles Chaplin and oth comedies were shown. It is claim by the management of the U. S. As Theatre that in the Chaplin plays t needle's progress was practically t broken, showing that the laugh was almost continuous from the ginning of the picture till the e in its perpendicular course the nee reached nearly to the top of the pla which measures by one-thousan parts.

PEACOCK LEADS THE INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE "CHAMPS" IN FIELDING AND BATTING RECORDS

The season's resume of the Plainfield High School baseball team indicates that the aggregation has won thirteen games and lost six. The team put a fitting finale on its 1915 baseball record by winning the silver trophy which carried with it the city interscholastic title. The team was not defeated once in the race for the championship honors. The team this year will lose but two of the regular players by graduation. These two are Captain "Benny" Rosenson and William Peacock. They have been the mainstays of the team this year and their loss will be keenly felt.

In summing up the fielding and batting averages for the season, it is found that the team's veteran, William Peacock, leads the rest of his teammates in both divisions. He has captured high honors in the work with the stick, having an average of .414, a mark seldom attained by any baseball player. Out of his twenty-nine hits four have gone for two sacks and two for a tripiet of bases. He has worked in excellent style behind the bat, making only seven errors out of a possible one hundred and twenty-seven chances. His percentage in this line is .945.

Benjamin Rosenson has established an average of .811 in fielding. He has attempted to accept some almost impossible chances in covering more ground than a shortstop should. His work with the stick in the pinches has been of high calibre.

The player who has attracted special attention during the latter part of the season is Carlton Dunham, the right fielder. His work in the field and with the willow has been remarkable. Several of the games have been saved by his base running or sacrifice hits. Next year, with Rosenson and Peacock out, Dunham ought to be the Plainfield High School's star player.

On the whole, the team has played well together throughout the season. No interest has been lost, or has any lack of "pep" been noticed. Under the able coaching of Ralph S. Patch, the team has developed wonderfully since the first of the season, when all thoughts of championship seemed out of the question. The team has a batting average of .253 and a fielding average of .932.

The record of the team:
Camp Bowser 3, Plainfield 2.

MISS PEACOCK LANDS P. H. S. TENNIS TITLE

Athletic Miss Following in the Footsteps of Her Well Known Brother.

By defeating Miss Dorothy Crane, last year's tennis champion, and Miss Marian Blanchard, Miss Jean Peacock has captured the Plainfield High School girl's tennis championship for singles. She had little difficulty in winning straight sets from Miss Blanchard by the scores of 6-2, 6-3.

The big surprise was sprung when she so easily won her match from Miss Dorothy Crane, who was picked to be the winner. However, Miss Peacock also won straight sets in this match by the scores, 6-2, 6-3, thereby laying an undisputed claim to the championship title and a silver trophy.

LOCAL MAN ELIMINATED.

S. Wallace Merrihew, of this city was eliminated in the first round of the New Jersey singles championship tourney at Montclair yesterday by Harold Throckmorton, State interscholastic champion. The match was won in straight sets, both being 6-2. George C. Shafer, the present holder of the State title, will not be able to compete because of injuries.

CITY LEAGUE TO MEET FOR ORGANIZATION

All Managers Requested to Be Present at Session Tonight.

All managers are requested to be present at the meeting for the organization of the Plainfield baseball league which will be held in the Daily Press offices tonight. There will be a large amount of business to discuss besides arranging a schedule. This list will probably necessitate a change in the schedules of several of the teams as the Saurer, First Baptist, Hope and T. A. B. clubs have already arranged long lists for the season.

A schedule in which each team was matched against every other club three times would take the league through September with three games for local fans every Saturday.

GOOD MATCHES TONIGHT.

The leaders of the Elks' two-man tourney and the holders of third place are due to hook up in a match of three games tonight on the Watchung avenue alleys and the Blatz-Firstbrook combination will probably give the Vail-Nash, Sr., team a stiff fight for the verdict. The leaders have lost only three games to date with fifteen on the victory side. The other matches tonight will be Cose-Crist vs. Kiely-Mann; Blatz-Firstbrook vs. Cose-Crist, and Kiely-Mann vs. Vail-Nash, Sr.

The Vail-Nash, Sr., team of the Elks' bowling tourney cleaned up last night by taking four out of six games. There were only two matches played, and the leaders took part in both of these, winning the odd game in both cases. The Swalm-Townley team was the first victim, and they annexed only the final game by 11 pins. In the second match the Hill-Waldorf combination copped the first roll from the Vail-Nash, Sr., duo, then dropped the last two by large margins.

Last night's play did not affect the standings of any of the teams. The Vail-Nash team tightened its hold on first place, and now has a record of nineteen victories and five defeats. The Townley-Swalm team has lost twice as many as it has won, having an average of .333, while the Hill-Waldorf rollers dropped 14 points, but retained eighth place. The scores follow:

The North Plainfield High School tennis team will play the Rutgers College team at New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon. This will be the first college team the boroughites have ever tackled, and it looks like a tough proposition. The Rutgers "Prep" squad defeated the College players, so the North Plainfield wielders decided to take a chance at spoiling another record. Captain Hoyt Tomkinson, Manager Elmer French, Sherman Chandler, Sidney Dunning and Tom Ball will probably take the trip.

WELL KNOWN ATHLETE DIES SUDDENLY WHILE ON VISIT

Robert Burnside, of Belleville, who is well known in this city, especially among Y. M. C. A. members, whom he has opposed as a basketball player and camped with at the State Boys' Camp, died suddenly at Duryea, Pa., yesterday, while on a visit to relatives. He had been a sufferer for some time with an ailment that physicians diagnosed as an "athletic heart," but his death was entirely unexpected to relatives.

Burnside, who was better known as "Ding," was recognized as a peer among the athletically inclined of the younger generation and proved a formidable opponent for local teams on several different occasions. His personality earned him a popuuarity and acquaintance with Plainfield players such as few out-of-town performers enjoy, and many will be shocked to learn of his demise. The funeral services will be held in Belleville tonight at 8 o'clock.

HOW A KNOCKOUT FEELS.

Sam Robideau Says It Makes One Sick All Over.

How does it feel to have a knockout blow landed on your chin?

Sam Robideau, who felt a K. O. from Charley White's fist recently in Philadelphia describes the sensation this way:

"I was going very good and was full of confidence when he came into a clinch. I distinctly remember White grabbing me around the neck and pulling me toward him. I tried to pull away, and the next thing I knew I fell.

"My head hit the floor with a bang, and whether or not this was the cause of my defeat I do not know. What I do know is that upon arising I was not myself. My arms and legs appeared dead and were not the least responsive to any movement I tried to make.

"They tell me that I fell with my head low. If I did it was the act of a person doing something he did not know he was doing. I heard the shouts of the crowd, but could not understand what was going on, try as I might.

"Therefore I am confident this fall was in full measure to blame for my defeat. I think that Charley White is one grand fighter, but I think I am entitled to a return date with him in view of the fact that I have engaged in nearly ninety battles and never been previously knocked out."

COFFEY SHOULD TAKE IT EASY

Irish Champion Ought to Wait Year Before Tackling Willard.

NEEDS MORE EXPERIENCE.

A Year Hence and James Will Be a Fine Match For the Heavyweight Title Holder—Is Improving Right Along.

Jim Coffey seems to be in a great hurry to make that match with Champion Jess Willard. The big Irishman already has fired the opening gun of a campaign that has for its object a match with the champion, to be decided as early as July 4. A guarantee of $25,000 for Willard's end goes with Coffey's challenge, and no doubt he is sincere, but it is not altogether sure that his judgment is of the best in hastening matters.

Beyond all question Coffey is the most promising challenger in sight at present. During the past few months his improvement has been startling, and his popularity has grown to altogether unexpected proportions. It is just for that reason that it is going to be very easy to make a mistake that might ruin his whole career. Beyond a doubt Coffey and Willard would draw a record crowd if they met this summer, and Coffey's share would be no inconsiderable sum. But if he really expects to become champion he can afford to wait until the time is ripe before making the attempt.

Coffey has everything to gain and nothing to lose by taking his time. Both he and Willard are comparatively inexperienced men, but Coffey has the better strategical position. Willard as champion will be tied up with theatrical contracts. His appearances in the ring will necessarily be few and far between. Under such conditions it will be impossible for him to get the amount of practice he requires. On the other hand, there is nothing to prevent Coffey from fighting every few weeks.

It is very obvious that if Coffey is to beat Willard he must have the preponderance of skill on his side. Willard has a tremendous advantage in size, weight and strength, and this can only be overcome by superior generalship on the part of the smaller man.

As matters stand Coffey is far too inexperienced to have a reasonable chance of beating down the powerful Kansan. But in a year from now it may be altogether different. Time will work for Coffey, and the odds against him are bound to shorten the longer he delays.

There is nothing to prevent Coffey from becoming a wonderfully clever boxer. He is improving more rapidly than any man in the ring. On the other hand, Willard is slow to improve, and on account of his great length of limb he can never attain the same amount of speed that is possible for Coffey to acquire. Coffey is built for speed as well as strength, but as yet he has not learned to make the most of his one big advantage. Speed is just as valuable as strength, but it takes art to make it count.

If Coffey is wise he will wait until he reaches the stage where improvement ceases. Then it will be time for him to strike. Apparently that time is some distance away, but Coffey can afford to wait. He is still a mere youth, while Willard, according to report, is on the wrong side of thirty. Willard denies this, declaring he is only twenty-eight. Even so, the advantage is with the Irishman.

Apparently Coffey need not be alarmed regarding the possibility of any one else beating him to the title. None of the other contenders is likely to prove at all dangerous so far as Willard is concerned. Of course if Coffey delays, meanwhile meeting all comers, he may experience a setback. There are at least two men who might be able to outpoint him right now, but in the long run that would not matter a great deal. If Coffey is really of championship material he is bound to triumph in the end, despite any slight check at the present time. That is why he would do well to take on all contenders as fast as they come. There is only one road to the championship, and that is by hard fighting.

It may appear good business policy to pick and choose opponents while waiting for Willard, but in the long run that course won't pay. It is bound to shake Coffey's confidence in himself if he is told that So-and-so is too dangerous to tackle and that he would gain no prestige by taking a chance with some one else. Coffey must be led to believe that he is invincible if he is to beat Willard. Certainly if he is allowed to think that any one of the contenders is his match he will not face Willard with the amount of confidence that he will require on that all important occasion.

DOOIN PROVES BIG AID TO REDS

Brainy Backstop of Great Assistance to Cincinnati.

GREAT COACH OF PITCHERS

Ex-Manager of Phillies Considered One of Best Handlers of Twirlers In the Game Today—Although Thirty-four, He Is as Capable as Ever.

Charles Dooin should be of immense assistance to the Cincinnati team this season. The world is full of backstops, but the crop of catchers is lamentably small. Dooin is a catcher.

Look over the list of receivers in the National league and name the number that come under the label of "heady;" not many—Archer, Bresnahan, Killefer, Gibson and Dooin and maybe one or two others.

For the most part National league catchers are young and hold their posts because of hitting ability and the fact that their manager can't land any better balanced men.

More than one hard hitting catcher in baseball in the major leagues still has much to learn about generalship and tactics. They have the mechanical ability, but nothing else.

But a stolid receiver will break up the best team on earth. If there is any place where brains are needed it is behind the bat. That's the reason men like Jim McGuire, Duke Farrell, Connie Mack, Billy Sullivan, Ira Thomas, Pat Moran, Charley Ganzel, Wilbert Robinson and others caught as long as they could stand on two legs.

Now, Dooin is essentially of the type of the sterling array of catchers that has been named. It is not generally known that he received his first coaching from Buck Ewing, regarded by many as the greatest catcher that ever squatted behind the plate.

Both Dooin and Ewing are natives of Cincinnati. They lived in the east end, where there are acres of vacant lots which in summer time are filled with youthful tossers. When Buck bossed the Reds he had to pass one of these lots on his way to the trolley car for the park.

Seeing the youthful Dooin in action, he was at once impressed with him and stopped long enough to give him a few hints. He drilled him how to hold his hands, judge fouls and other points. Ewing made it a practice to stop for a few minutes every day to give Dooin points, and when he developed he obtained for him a place with a fast independent team in that city.

So it is little wonder that Dooin ought to be a great catcher when it is considered that in his boyhood days he was coached by the best of them all.

Dooin will be thirty-four years old this summer, and as he is in perfect condition he ought to catch star ball for the Reds all year. Relieved of managerial worry, he ought to come back strong. There is no reason why he shouldn't, for his arm is as powerful as ever.

With a brainy chap like Dooin handling them, Herzog's pitchers ought to be much improved.

A Galley o' Fun!

FUN WITH THE OLD MAN.

He was a meek-looking gentleman from the country, and as he took his seat at the dining room table the drummers looked at him over their soup spoons. They noted his weather beaten face, his wet hair carefully parted and brushed around over his ears, and his air of diffidence when he nervously fingered his fork; and when the waiter girl stood demurely at his side and winked at the boot-and-shoe man they were all attention.

"Soup?" she asked.

The old man seemed a bit surprised at the brevity of the bill-of-fare and fidgeted about as though waiting for her to say something more.

"Would you like some soup?" said the girl, glancing at the coffee-and-tea man.

"I ain't particular about soup as I know of," answered the old man.

"Boil' mutt'n capersauce roas' beef 's' lamb r's' veal fricasee chick'n cole ham-tongue chick'n-salad fritters boil' n' baked p'tatus," said the girl with lightning-like rapidity.

The old man looked kind of helpless, and the boys felt a little sorry for him as he kept his eyes fastened on the fork, which he shoved from side to side with his fingers.

"I guess I'll take—I guess you'll have to say that again," he said, looking up, and the girl rattled the whole thing off in exactly the same time as before.

The old man looked round the table and caught sight of a drummer winking at the girl; then he jerked his head around, and looking her straight in the face, he said:

"You may gimme s'm cornbeef 'n cabbage roas' beef veal 'n' mutt'n cole chick'n 'n' turkey 'n' tongue 'n' s'm ham 'n' eggs 'n' codfish-cakes 'n' sassage 'n' beefsteak 'n' a piece o' pumkin pie 'n' a cup o' coffee, sis; 'n' now see ef yer kin make yer little legs fly as fast as yer tongue, fer I wanter get home, there's a shower comin' up."

The girl hesitated, turned red, and then made a break for the kitchen while the drummers laughed and the old man gazed out of the window at the gathering clouds.

REMARKABLE.

Miriam.—Now you are out here, at Lonesomehurst, you must fairly revel in fresh vegetables, dear!

Millicent (rapturously).—We do. Would you believe it? (impressively): We can buy them almost as cheap as here as we could in the hot city!

A NEIGHBOR'S GARDEN.

It seems the very air is sweet
With fragrance that would thrill the bees
Until they'd dream, in rapture meet
The dreams of lost Herperides.
The flowers bless the cooling spray
And all their petals then unclose
To catch the shower's richochet,
When Molly wields the garden hose.

The twilight deepens, settles down
The stillness of a summer's eve
Has claimed the busy, bustling town
That soon to blissful dreams 't will leave;
But o'er the grassy, glistening lawn
Each drop of water, jeweled, glow
And all the thirst of day is gone
When Molly wields the garden hose.

Her locks they rippling fall in waves
Beneath her fillet's close confines,
The grass her gown's rich hemming laves
With only rapturous designs;
Each passer-by but seems to see
In this rare sight a balm for woes
The world is brighter, all agree,
When Molly wields the garden hose.

Mrs. Suburban.—Oh, Henry! After passing through the long winter, the ice, the sleet and the snow, and then to see this glorious spring sunlight these green fields, and the leafy trees. Why, one feels that it actually pays!

GOING BY AUTHORITY.

Jim Jackson.—No, sah—yo' don' ketch his coon wukkin' on a rainy day like dis!

PENROD

CHAPTER IV.

Evening.

THE sun was setting behind the back fence (though at a considerable distance) as Penrod Schofield approached that fence and looked thoughtfully up at the top of it, apparently having in mind some purpose to climb up and sit there. Debating this, he passed his fingers gently up and down the backs of his legs, and then something seemed to decide him not to sit anywhere. He leaned against the fence, sighed profoundly and gazed at Duke, his wistful dog.

The sigh was reminiscent. Episodes of simple pathos were passing before his inward eye. About the most painful was the vision of lovely Marjorie Jones, weeping with rage as the Child Sir Lancelot was dragged, insatiate, from the prostrate and howling Child Sir Galahad, after an onslaught delivered the precise instant the curtain began to fall upon the demoralized "pageant." And then—oh, pangs! oh, woman!—she slapped at the ruffian's cheek, as he was led past her by a resentful janitor, and turning, flung her arms round the Child Sir Galahad's neck.

"Penrod Schofield, don't you dare ever speak to me again as long as you live!" Maurice's little white boots and gold tassels had done their work.

At home the late Child Sir Lancelot was consigned to a locked clothes closet pending the arrival of his father. Mr. Schofield came, and shortly after there was put into practice an old patriarchal custom. It is a custom of inconceivable antiquity — probably primordial, certainly prehistoric, but still in vogue in some remaining citadels of the ancient simplicities of the republic.

And now, therefore, in the dusk, Penrod leaned against the fence and sighed.

His case is comparable to that of an adult who could have survived a similar experience. Looking back to the sawdust box, fancy pictures this comparable adult a serious and inventive writer engaged in congenial literary activities in a private retreat. We see this period marked by the creation of some of the most virile passages of a work dealing exclusively in red corpuscles and huge primal impulses. We see this thoughtful man dragged from his calm seclusion to a horrifying publicity; forced to adopt the stage and, himself a writer, compelled to exploit the repulsive sentiments of an author not only personally distasteful to him, but whose whole method and school in belles-lettres he despises.

We see him reduced by desperation and modesty to stealing a pair of overalls. We conceive him to have ruined, then, his own reputation and to have utterly disgraced his family; next, to have engaged in the duello and to have been spurned by his ladylove, thus lost to him (according to her own declaration) forever. Finally, we must behold imprisonment by the authorities, the third degree and flagellation.

We conceive our man deciding that his career had been perhaps too eventful. Yet Penrod had condensed all of it into eight hours.

It appears that he had at least some shadowy perception of a recent fullness of life, for, as he leaned against the fence gazing upon his wistful Duke, he sighed again and murmured aloud:

"Well, hasn't this been a day!"

But in a little while a star came out, freshly lighted, from the highest part of the sky, and Penrod, looking up, noticed it casually and a little drowsily. He yawned. Then he sighed once more, but not reminiscently. Evening had come; the day was over.

It was a sigh of pure ennui.

Next day Penrod acquired a dime by a simple and antique process which was without doubt sometimes practiced by the boys of Babylon. When the teacher of his class in Sunday school requested the weekly contribution Penrod, fumbling honestly (at first) in the wrong pockets, managed to look so embarrassed that the gentle lady told him not to mind and said she was often forgetful herself. She was so sweet about it that, looking into the future, Penrod began to feel confident of a small but regular income.

At the close of the afternoon services he did not go home, but proceeded to squander the funds just withheld from China upon an orgy of the most pungently forbidden description. In a drug emporium near the church he purchased a five cent sack of candy consisting for the most part of the heavily flavored hoofs of horned cattle, but undeniably substantial, and so generously capable of resisting solution that the purchaser must needs be avaricious beyond reason who did not realize his money's worth.

Equipped with this collation Penrod contributed his remaining nickel to a picture show, countenanced upon the seventh day by the legal but not the moral authorities. Here, in cozy darkness, he placidly insulted his liver with jawbreaker upon jawbreaker from the paper sack and in a surfeit of content watched the silent actors on the screen.

One film made a lasting impression upon him. It depicted with relentless pathos the drunkard's progress, beginning with his conversion to beer in the company of loose traveling men, pursuing him through an inexplicable lapse into evening clothes and the society of some remarkably painful ladies. Next, exhibiting the effects of alcohol on the victim's domestic disposition, the unfortunate man was seen in the act of striking his wife and, subsequently, his pleading baby daughter with an abnormally heavy walking stick. Their flight through the snow to seek the protection of a relative was shown and, finally, the drunkard's picturesque behavior at the portals of a madhouse.

So fascinated was Penrod that he postponed his departure until this film came round again, by which time he had finished his unnatural repast and almost, but not quite, decided against following the profession of a drunkard when he grew up.

Emerging, satiated, from the theater, a public timepiece before a jeweler's shop confronted him with an unexpected dial and imminent perplexities. How was he to explain at home these hours of dalliance? There was a steadfast rule that he return direct from Sunday school, and Sunday rules were important because on that day there was his father, always at home and at hand, perilously ready for action. One of the hardest conditions of boyhood is the almost continuous strain put upon the powers of invention by the constant and harassing necessity for explanations of every natural act.

Proceeding homeward through the deepening twilight as rapidly as possible at a gait half skip and half canter, Penrod made up his mind in what manner he would account for his long delay and as he drew nearer rehearsed in words the opening passage of his defense.

"Now, see here," he determined to begin. "I do not wish to be blamed for things I couldn't help nor any other boy. I was going along the street by a cottage and a lady put her head out of the window and said her husband was drunk and whipping her and her little girl, and she asked me wouldn't I come in and help hold him. So I went in and tried to get hold of this drunken lady's husband where he was whipping their baby daughter, but he wouldn't pay any attention, and I told her I ought to be getting home, but she kep' on askin' me to stay"—

At this point he reached the corner of his own yard, where a coincidence not only checked the rehearsal of his eloquence but happily obviated all occasion for it. A cab from the station drew up in front of the gate, and there descended a troubled lady in black and a fragile little girl about three. Mrs. Schofield rushed from the house and enfolded both in hospitable arms.

They were Penrod's Aunt Clara and cousin, also Clara, from Dayton, Ill., and in the flurry of their arrival everybody forgot to put Penrod to the question. It is doubtful, however, if he felt any relief; there may have been even a slight, unconscious disappointment, not altogether dissimilar to that of an actor deprived of a good part.

In the course of some really necessary preparations for dinner he stepped from the bathroom into the pink and white bedchamber of his sister and addressed her rather thickly through a towel.

"When'd mamma find out Aunt Clara and Cousin Clara were coming?"

"Not till she saw them from the window. She just happened to look out as they drove up. Aunt Clara telegraphed this morning, but it wasn't delivered."

"How long they goin' to stay?"

"I don't know."

Penrod ceased to rub his shining face and thoughtfully tossed the towel through the bathroom door. "Uncle John won't try to make 'em come back home, I guess, will he?" (Uncle John was Aunt Clara's husband, a successful manufacturer of stoves, and his lifelong regret was that he had not entered the Baptist ministry.) "He'll let 'em stay here quietly, won't he?"

"What are you talking about?" demanded Margaret, turning from her mirror. "Uncle John sent them here. Why shouldn't he let them stay?"

Penrod looked crestfallen. "Then he hasn't taken to drink?"

"Certainly not!" She emphasized the denial with a pretty peal of soprano laughter.

"Then why," asked her brother gloomily, "why did Aunt Clara look so worried when she got here?"

"Good gracious! Don't people worry about anything except somebody's drinking? Where did you get such an idea?"

"Well," he persisted, "you don't know it ain't that."

She laughed again, whole heartedly. "Poor Uncle John! He won't even allow grape juice or ginger ale in his house. They came because they were afraid little Clara might catch the measles. She's very delicate, and there's such an epidemic of measles among the children over in Dayton the schools had to be closed. Uncle John got so worried that last night he dreamed about it, and this morning he couldn't stand it any longer and packed them off over here, though he thinks it's wicked to travel on Sunday. And Aunt Clara was worried when she got here because they'd forgotten to check her trunk, and it will have to be sent by express. Now, what in the nature of common sense put it into your head that Uncle John had taken to"—

"Oh, nothing!" He turned lifelessly away and went downstairs, a newborn hope dying in his bosom. Life seems so needlessly dull sometimes.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Elf That Rides About With the Wind.

And the Elf Listens to Learn Where It Is.

"THERE is a pretty fairy story about the elf and the wind which I must tell you tonight," said daddy as Jack and Evelyn came to him for the evening story.

"They tell us that whenever you hear a high wind crying and wailing on a dark night that an elf rides about with it. He must be a very old little elf by now, but as elves always stay young, according to the men and women who have written about them, he looks just as young as he used to look. Oh, ever and ever so long ago! I guess always.

"I imagine this little night elf must sleep daytimes, and in the evening I judge that he is always busy, for if a wind is not blowing here, for instance, you may depend upon it that it is blowing somewhere else, so there is always a chance for the little elf to exercise.

"I don't imagine he is such a terrible little elf—that is, in appearance. On the contrary, I think he must be very cunning. I think he must have 'scraggly' hair all over his head and big blue eyes that are brimful of mischief and that he wears a close fitting little dark suit that is tighter than any teeny-teeny union suit you ever saw and a funny little close fitting cap with a tassel on it. And I know, of course, that he must have a funny little pair of wings to fly around with.

"When this little elf is fast asleep in the daytime you wouldn't know that he had a bit of mischief in him, he looks so quiet and cunning. Where does he sleep? you will ask me. Well, I don't know that. Nobody knows. They just know that he is awake in the night time, when the wind is high.

"So when the sun goes down and the twilight falls this little elf awakens from his slumbers that he has been taking for ever and ever so long, ever since time began, in fact. And he lies wherever he is and stretches himself and yawns for a minute—for elves are much like some children I know—and then he gets up, and, though he has done the same thing over and over for so long, he isn't a bit tired of it, for that is the way with elves. They are always in love with their work, don't you see, for their work is mischief.

"Now, of course, there's a high wind blowing somewhere, and the elf listens to learn where it is, and the word is brought to him by a vagrant breeze. A vagrant breeze, you know, is a breeze that has no place in particular to go.

"And when the elf learns where that wind is he hurries with his little wings as fast as he can go to meet it, and he rides with it through the night, and when you hear the wind sort of laughing, as you sometimes will, it isn't the wind that's laughing at all. It's that funny little elf."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

When Nell read the anonymous letter addressed to Olive Dunn, warning her against riding with Dr. Ellson, she was speechless with astonishment.

"What can it mean?" said Olive, utterly dazed. "I never have been seen with the doctor but the ten minutes or so it took to get the baby's medicine. Is there any truth in this?"

Nell saw that Olive would have to know about the divorce and its attendant scandals. After she had finished her recital Olive said:

"But his wife is gone. Who could have written this? Who else is interested in his affairs?"

"It sounds like Mrs. Ellson, but it was mailed here. She left, and in order to get her alimony she must remain away, and not be troublesome in any way, so I can't think she wrote it. As it was typewritten, we can't find out from the handwriting," and Nell dropped her chin on her hand to think. "If it did come from her she has a tool here to assist her. We'll see what Dick says about it."

Dick declared with unusual heat that the doctor's divorced wife was undoubtedly at the bottom of it, for he added fervently: "The Lord forbid that there should be two such women alive."

"But how," queried Nell, "can she mail a letter here when she is in the east?"

"She could send it here directed and stamped and the tool could post it. The doctor must see that at once. Give it to me. I'll stop on my way to the office. Poor man, I hate to be the one to tell him of the trouble," Dick added regretfully.

"Here's some of Miss Dunn's mail that she sent over for you to read, Doctor." Dick dropped into a chair and handed over the typewritten note. "That came yesterday," he explained, when the doctor had finished reading it and sat looking into space, still holding it in his hand.

"What do you make of it?" persisted Dick, as the doctor was still silent.

"Morton, there is only one thing to think; she certainly wrote it. No one else is interested in persecuting me, but who is her tool?"

"Who are her friends here? Whom did she spend Sunday with before she left town?" Dick was bending forward, his hands clasped in front of him.

"She stayed with Mrs. Ash, a widow who did her sewing," replied the doctor.

"Is she poor? Would she do such work for money?" asked Dick.

"She's poor enough; earns her own living, but——"

"Probably that is the solution," hazarded Dick. "It will be hard to prove unless we get the postmaster to turn detective."

"Oh, we can't do that, at least not until things become unbearable. We only rode through town to the drug store and back; I wonder what would happen if we rode in the country."

"Try it," said Dick, rising. "The thing has got to be stopped. You can make her stop it or forfeit her alimony."

"Yes," assented the doctor, "if I can prove that she does it."

"As long as only Olive gets the letters no one will be the wiser, and when my lady sees that it makes no difference perhaps she will stop," said Dick, as he picked up his hat to leave.

"If one could count on a reasonable course of action there would be nothing to worry about; the trouble is, she is so eratic that one can never predict what she will do." The doctor leaned back in his chair and sighed wearily.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

A Handy Water-Filter, if the Water Is Muddy or Murky—Take a piece of absorbent cotton and tie it over mouth of faucet. The water will be quite clear, as cotton catches most of the impurities. Change cotton each day or so.

Use of Old Raincoat—It often has parts good enough to make a raincape for a small girl or make an apron for washday, cleaning floors and porches. All you have to do is wipe it off with a clean, wet cloth and it is ready for the next time you want to use it.

A very handy apron, as well as cheap and easily made, is fashioned from a yard of percale a yard wide with the straps cut, one off the length and one off the width, and one corner cut off for the top (this corner forming the pocket); the straps cross in the back and button on the sides.

TO TAKE OUT GREASE SPOTS

Machine oil may be removed by sponging with turpentine.

Spots of cream or chocolate should be washed first with clear cold water to remove as much of the milk as possible, then wash in hot water with a little borax, ammonia and soap.

Vaseline cannot be removed after it is boiled in clothing, but will come out when fresh if the stain is soaked in kerosene.

Wagon grease requires a loosening of the grimy fat, and therefore lard should be rubbed well into the spot and then washed in the usual way.

Carpets should be treated in this way: The fresh grease should be absorbed at once by applying a solution made as follows: Heat one and one-half ounces white castile soap in one pint soft water until dissolved, then add three quarts cold water, one ounce ether, one ounce alcohol and four ounces ammonia.

Grease may be taken out of matting by spreading over it a paste of an absorbent (such as starch, flour or magnesia) mixed with gasoline, benzine naphtha. This should be covered with a paper and left two or three days before it is brushed up. It may be necessary to repeat the process.

Grease spots on marble should be absorbed with a paste of an absorbent and strong alkali solution, such as sal soda or lye.

A little grease spatered on walls of dining room or kitchen may become a great eyesore. Either wallpaper or kalosmine finishes can be treated with an absorbent paste such as that used on matting.

THE TABLE

Sweetbread Cutlets—Soak sweetbreads and cleanse them. Boil them quickly in stock until done. When cold, trim off all fat and gristle and mince them with some slices of ham. Add to this mince some finely chopped onion, some lemon peel, pepper and salt to taste and well beaten egg. Shape this into cutlets and fry them dipped in egg and chopped nut.

Mayonnaise Dressing — Three-fourths cup vinegar; fill up the rest of cup with water if the vinegar is too strong; four tablespoons sugar, one egg, one teaspoon mustard, a little butter size of a walnut, one tablespoon flour. Put vinegar on stove to come to a boil, then mix rest together and add; take it off when it just begins to boil.

Potato Doughnuts — Two cups mashed potatoes; when cold add one and one-half cups sugar, two eggs, one scant cup milk, three teaspoons cream (or melted butter), one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon lemon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg grated (small), four teaspoons baking powder, flour enough to roll.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11, 1910.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof the supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN FOUR GRADUATES

Young Women Honored at Closing Exercises at the Seminary.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Rev. Henry Mesier Talks on "Woman's Mission in Life"—Miss Arnold Addresses the Class—Music a Feature of the Program.

A large audience of friends, relatives and former pupils gathered at the Plainfield Seminary, yesterday, for the graduation exercises with which the school year came to a close. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers, and the stage, which had been banked with masses of ferns and iris against a trellis of trembling white roses, was delightfully set off by the white dresses of the young girls grouped about it. It also formed a charming setting for the various speakers and for the four graduates.

The exercises opened with the singing of a processional hymn by the school pupils, as they marched in and took their places. The Rev. Henry Mesier, of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, then offered a prayer, and next delivered the address to the graduating class. His subject was "Woman's Mission In Life," and he pointed out powerfully and sympathetically that she, like St. John, had been given the hardest, but most honorable task, that of indefinite, undetermined, never ending service. The responsibility of the future rested on her and she needed for the task all her courage, devotion and idealism.

The older chorus of pupils then sang a lovely rendering of "The Lord is My Shepherd," and Miss Arnold rose to present the diplomas. The graduates were the Misses Dorothy Louise Langford, Dorothy Earl MacClymont, Theresa Brereton Sharretts, all of Plainfield, and Virginia Vail, of New Market. In a few words Miss Arnold pointed out that the importance of school training lay in its forming those tastes, ambitions and ideals which are to accompany us through life. She expressed the aim of the Seminary when she said, "If in addition to beginning your education we have not taught you that righteousness is more than happiness and that loyalty to truth comes before loyalty to any cause or person whatever we shall feel that we have failed in our purpose." The whole school sang a beautiful response.

The awarding of prizes followed, in each case a $10 gold piece. Miss Emily de Forest won the yearly prize in United States hsitory, Miss Harriet Marshall receiving honorable mention. Mrs. H. D. Hibbard awarded two prizes from the Alumnae Association, which were won by Miss Margaret Kimball for sophomore work in science, and by Miss Carol Benton for advanced arithmetic. Miss Augusta Clawson received honorable mention. Then while the older chorus sang Saint-Saen's lovely "Morning Song," eight little girls of the primary marched out and came back laden with the innumerable flowers showered on the graduates.

Especially worthy of notice was the excellent chorus singing. The girls have been trained during the year by Miss Florence Nightingale, who has had remarkable success in developing and harmonizing their voices.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM FOR THE "COMMUNITY SOCIAL"

The outdoor "Community Social" to be given at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, bids fair to be very successful. Invitations have been issued to the members of the Young Men's Christian Association, including the Women's Auxiliary, Young Women's Christian Association and Young People's Societies of the churches of the city.

A program including some of the recent pageant recently given by the Young Women's Christian Association, a skit by the young people of the First Presbyterian church, some Boy Scout maneuvers and athletic features by the Young Men's Association will occupy the first part of the evening, while the remainder will be filled with activities and refreshments will be served.

QUARTET WILL SING.

The service tonight at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be for the benefit of Atlanta University, of which Dr. Edward T. Ware is the well-known president. There will be a quartet of colored singers from the institution, and an address on its work among the colored people will be delivered by a representative from the faculty. Plainfielders will no doubt remember the visit of Atlanta representatives last year.

HOLLIS CUBBERLEY NOW A BENEDICT

Takes Miss Florence Wohlfert, of Westfield, for His Bride.

Miss Florence Wohlfert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Wohlfert, of Lawrence avenue, Westfield, and Hollis Cubberley, son of Rev. and Mrs. James A. Cubberley, of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, of which both the bride and bridegroom are active members. The guests comprised just the immediate members of the two families and a few intimate friends.

Miss Gertrude Moelich, of Englewood, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Claude Cubberley, of Scranton, Pa., a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The bride wore a gown of white satin and tulle, with a veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and peas. The bridesmaid's gown was of pink chiffon and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

As the bridal party entered the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, the wedding march was played by Miss Rebecca Wohlfert, an aunt of the bride. Following the ceremony there was a reception during which congratulations were offered and a wedding repast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Cubberley left during the afternoon on a wedding trip. They will be away about a month and upon their return will reside in Westfield for the summer. The bride received a large collection of valuable gifts from relatives and friends.

Mrs. Cubberley is a talented and accomplished violinist, having been a pupil of several noted teachers, including Franz Kaltenborn. She has been frequently heard in church and concert work. Mr. Cubberley is a member of the choir of the First Baptist church and has been active in the young people's work of the church. He is engaged in the insurance business in New York.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY WILL BE ELABORATE

Boy Scouts Will Police Parker Field at Independence Day Celebration.

Great interest is being aroused in the proposed Independence Day celebration this year, for which public subscriptions are being asked by the Plainfield Playground Commission. The committee in charge of the fireworks and music reported last night that if the $300 asked for can be raised one of the finest public entertainments ever given in this city will be presented. The fireworks display will include some beautiful set pieces and unusual aerial displays.

Another feature may be the policing of the grounds of Parker Field by uniformed boy scouts of the various troops in the city. The matter will be taken up before the Boy Scout Council on Monday night and if this is possible it may be that "The Boys in Kahki" will have an opportunity of service as guards of honor to keep a proper space between the audience and the fireworks.

Public spirited citizens are earnestly requested to respond to this appeal to give the people of Plainfield a suitable Independence Day celebration. Checks should be made payable to Secretary G. W. Wriston, 515 East Seventh street. Contributions so far received follow:

LOCAL MAN HONORED BY N. Y. UNIVERSITY

A. B. Wilson Receives Engineering Degree at Commencement Exercises.

One of the many graduates honored by the New York University faculty at the 83rd annual commencement exercises held in the university auditorium at 10:30 this morning, was A. B. Wilson, local commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, on whom was conferred the degree of mechanical engineer. A total of 672 degrees were conferred, eight men who have distinguished themselves in public service work being honored.

Mr. Wilson, who has been in charge of the company's business in Plainfield since 1913, was graduated from the New York institution as a Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering in 1911. Through a specially designed course of study and a personal investigation of methods involving central office operation he wrote a thesis entitled "The cut-over of the Bound Brook central office from magnet to common battery operation."

NEWSBOYS AND SCOUTS TO ENJOY MOVIE TREAT

All of Plainfield's newsboys together with the local troop of Boy Scouts are to enjoy a treat tomorrow night, as the guests of Manager M. L. Shannon, of the Plainfield Airdome. The genial "Mike" was a regular boy himself once and when he secured "Buckshot John," the feature production of Charles E. Van Loan's great western story, for presentation at his auditorium, he knew the kids would be tickled to death to see it and in consequence he extended a general invitation to the young newspaper merchants and the Scout Troop with the full realization that his offer would be quickly accepted.

The boys have been instructed to meet in front of the Plainfield Theatre at 7:30 tomorrow night, after which they will parade to the Airdome at Front street and Watchung avenue. The Scout Troops' fife and drum corps will head the procession. "Buckshot John" is just the kind of a picture that satisfies the youngster with red blood in his veins and all who attend the performance are sure to have a delightful evening. The film has a love story running through it that will catch the older folks and many of them will follow it when the picture is shown tonight for the first time.

In the event of the weather being unfavorable tomorrow night, Manager Shannon will give the youngsters a verbal rain check that will permit them to be his guests later on when another picture of the kind they like will be the topliner.

SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS LOWER COURT'S DECISION

Trenton, June 9.—The Supreme Cout today affirmed the verdict of $5,000 damages obtained by Mrs. Mary Cone Oldrin, of Hoboken, in the Hudson County Circuit Court against Beatrice Madeline VanDerperrin, of South Somerville, for the alienation of the affections of the plaintiff's husband, John E. Oldrin. Mrs. Oldrin sued for $25,000.

The plaintiff charged that she and her husband lived happily until 1906, when the latter became intimate with the defendant. This intimacy, she alleged, continued until November, 1907, when her husband deserted her and went to South Somerville to live with his affinity.

They were much interested in the city High School, and expressed great satisfaction with the equipment and the general arrangements of the school, particularly with the gymnasium and swimming pool.

TIER PROPERTY TO GO UNDER SHERIFF'S HAMMER

The Tier property situated on Bank place, a tract which has been in the Tier family for over sixty years, will go under the sheriff's hammer on Wednesday, June 30. The portion advertised has a frontage on Bank place of 78 feet and a depth of 74 feet, running back to the Titsworth estate on East Front street.

The property which was acquired by the late John Tier over sixty years ago, comprises about three acres of ground. Last Fall a deal was underway whereby Adolph Bohren, of the borough, was to have been the purchaser, $45,000 being named as the consideration.

There are several buildings on the tract including an ice cream pavilion, ice houses and residences. The pavilion as well as Tier's Lake was for mecca for skaters in winter and a popular place for serving ice cream in summer. Several times the site has been mentioned as a desirable one for a city park, but the proposition was never taken up officially by the city Council.

NEW TESTIMONY IN PERJURY CASE

Principal Issue Seems to Be the Whereabouts of "Amateur Detective."

PROSECUTION RESTS

Mrs. Roundey Hears Damaging Evidence Revealed by "Star" Witnesses—Edward Vanderhoef Tells of Second Bribe.

Damaging testimony was advanced by the State in the Supreme Court, at Elizabeth, this morning, in an effort to prove four different charges, involving perjury, against Mrs. Florence E. Roundey, formerly of this city. When the State's case rested shortly before noon recess hour it was evident to the large gathering in the courtroom that the case thus far was decidedly against the defendant and it is anticipated that drastic measures will be resorted to by her counsel this afternoon in an effort to vindicate her. Witnesses giving testimony this morning, were attacked without mercy by the defendant's counsel, but the efforts to shake the testimony of individuals was apparently futile.

Interest has concentrated itself around the present whereabouts of Harold Vonderhoof, the twenty-two-year-old butcher boy who gained notoriety by appearing in the role of an "amateur detective" for Mrs. Roundey. His dramatic confession describing how he had been induced by Mrs. Roundey to accept a $100 bribe

LONE DWELLER IS FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Hurried to the Hospital, Christopher Stoeckle Succumbs to Paralytic Stroke.

The residents of Steiner place noticed early last evening that Christopher Stoeckle, widower, who lived alone in a house on the street, had failed to take his morning paper and bottle of milk from the front porch. It was also noticed that a light was burning in an upper window, although it was not yet dark, and inquiry was made at McCullough's mill, where he is employed, as to whether or not he had been at work during the day. On being told he had not, Charles Hook and Thomas Gough forced an entrance into the Stoeckle home and found the lone inmate unconscious on the floor of an upper room.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was called and on examination found that Mr. Stoeckle had suffered a paralytic stroke and was in a serious condition. He was ordered removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he died at 10 o'clock this morning without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Stoeckle was seventy-one years old and came to this country from Germany when a young man. He had resided in the borough at various times for the last half century. For many years he conducted a stair building shop on Belmont avenue, but for the past ten or twelve years had been employed as cabinet maker at McCullough's Planing Mill on Steiner place.

Since the death of his wife about five years ago, Mr. Stoeckle had continued to reside in the Steiner place house by himself. He had not been well of late and frequently stayed away from work, consequently his absence from the mill yesterday occasioned no special comment. From the position in which he was found, it was evident that he had been stricken Monday night just as he was about to retire. He had been at work Monday and left at quitting time in the evening in apparently his usual health.

The only known relatives of the deceased are a brother living in Germany, a nephew, Raymond Schmidt, of Somerset street; three nieces, Mrs. William Daly, of Somerset street; Mrs. Thomas Derrick, of East Sixth street, and Miss Florence Schmidt, of East Fifth street. There are also two stepsons, one of whom resides in Bernardsville. Mr. Stoeckle was a member of the Gesang and Turn Verein. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

BOOK AGENT FINED.

Joseph McCloskey, an agent for a magazine, was arrested by Chief Weiss on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon, for using profane and abusive language to a customer. He was fined $5 by Recorder Hand.

CONFERRED DEGREES.

Second degree honors were conferred upon two candidates at the weekly meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., last night.

SPECULATION AS TO BRYAN'S SUCCESSOR AT WASHINGTON; NOTE GOES TO GERMANY TODAY

TEXT OF DOCUMENT WHICH CAUSED SECRETARY OF STATE TO RESIGN WILL BE MADE PUBLIC FRIDAY.

MOORE AND LANSING SUGGESTED FOR PLACE

Bryan Visited White House This Noon to Bid President Good Bye—Places Resignation on Inability to Sign Note Which May Throw Us Into War With Germany—Was Put in Code This Afternoon and Will Be on the Way by Night.

Washington, June 9—Speculation as to W. J. Bryan's successor was the principal topic in official circles today. Innumerable suggestions were made, but those closest to President Wilson declared, as did Mr. Bryan himself last night, that it was extremely unlikely that the President had seriously considered the question of filling the vacancy. By law the position must be filled within 30 days.

John Bassett Moore and Robert Lansing, acting Secretary of State, have been strongly suggested as fulfilling the President's ideal of the right man.

Mr. Bryan resigned late yesterday shortly after the cabinet meeting at which the American note was finally made up in the form in which it will be transmitted to Berlin. His resignation was at once accepted by President Wilson.

Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning Mr. Bryan telephoned to the White House and asked for an appointment with the President to bid the latter goodbye. Secretary Tumulty fixed 12:15 as the hour.

"I feel as all the other members of the cabinet do about Mr. Bryan's resignation," said Secretary of the Navy Daniels this morning. "Personally too, I regret it very much, as I am fond of Mr. Bryan. The President expressed in his letter the sentiment of all the members of the cabinet." Aside from this Mr. Daniels refused to make any comment on the resignation.

In the meantime it is planned to have the note to Germany go forward this afternoon. This announcement was made this morning by Acting Secretary of State Lansing after a conference with President Wilson. Immediately after the conference Mr. Lansing returned to the State Department and the work of putting the note in code for transmission was begun. It was signed by Mr. Lansing as acting Secretary of State last night.

In view of the defection in the cabinet and the impression Mr. Bryan's resignation may have created abroad, precaution will be taken to have the note actually delivered to the Berlin foreign office before it is given to the American people. This precaution will not go to extremes, however, and it was announced that the text would be given in the morning papers of Friday.

NOTE MATER SET EARLIER

The correspondence between the Secretary of State and the President was made public at the White House after the announcement of the Premier's resignation, last night. Mr. Bryan's letter was particularly significant as it hinted at a strong possibility of war with Germany. In resigning Mr. Bryan transmitted the following letter to the President, dated yesterday:

"My dear Mr. President: It is with sincere regret that I have reached the conclusion that I should return to you the commission of Secretary of State with which you honored me at the beginning of your administration. Obedient to your sense of duty and actuated by the highest motives you have prepared for transmission to the German government a note in which I cannot join without violating what I deem to be an obligation to my country, and the issue involved is of such moment that to remain a member of the Cabinet would be as unfair to you as it would be to the cause which is nearest my heart, namely, the prevention of war. I, therefore, respectfully tender my resignation to take effect when the note is sent unless you prefer an earlier hour. Alike desirous of reaching a peaceful solution of the problems arising out of the use of submarines against merchantmen we find ourselves differing irreconcilably as to the methods which should be employed. It falls to your lot to speak officially for the nation. I consider it to be none the less my duty to endeavor as a private citizen to promote the end which you have in view by means which you do not feel at liberty to

"In Galicia an obstinate battle continues. On the left bank of the Wuznia the Germans were repulsed by our counter attacks and lost 2,000 men."

Constantinople, June 9.—The official statement issued by the War Office today says:

"On Tuesday there was no action of any consequence on the Dardanelles front. Earlier, on Monday morning, our artillery destroyed an observation post near Avi Burnu. Our batteries on the Anatolian post during the day of Monday successfully shelled the enemy's camp north of Sed El Bahr, on the western entrance to the Dardanelles, also hostile transports. Fire broke out on board a transport which had been hit and the transport capsized and sank. Other transports left the vicinity."

Berlin, June 9 (by wireless)—Neuville St. Vaast, a town north of Arras, for which the French have been fighting for more than a fortnight, has been evacuated by the Germans, it was admitted in an official statement given out by the German war office today. This announcement stated that the last group of houses in Neuville held by the Germans had been left in possession of the French.

French attacks at the Lorette hills have been repulsed. The statement asserts that the French attacks in forest of LePretre were repulsed. In the eastern theatre the Russians operating on the Dubissa River, Northern Poland, are falling back. The Germans took Kubyli. The Russian forces near Kovno are also in retreat. The Germans captured 300 prisoners and two machine guns there.

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

RALLY SERVICES AT HOLY INNOCENTS

Inspiring Addresses and Music Enjoyed at Episcopal Church, Dunellen.

The Holy Innocents' Episcopal church observed Rally Day, Sunday, the service being an impressive one. The members and the friends responded to the call and the church was filled to its capacity. Rev. C. H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, of Plainfield, and Dr. Henry H. Gifford, of St. James' Episcopal church, Piscataway, assisted the rector, Rev. Arthur S. Phelps, and the addresses of both were inspiring.

Dr. Gifford was eloquent and interesting in outlining the community work he has undertaken in his parish. He tried to impress upon all the fact that the same work could and should be done not only by the Episcopal church, but by all churches for the good and upbuilding of the community. He also said that there should be more co-operation among the churches of all denominations and that expansion should be the slogan of all Christian work.

The music was a feature and Holy Innocents is justly proud of its vestry choir. The church was attractively decorated. The profuse display of daisies which banked the windows, nooks and corners was a befitting interior for the little church standing in its beautiful grove of majestic trees.

The rector announced that the first Sunday in June will in the future be observed annually as Rally Day. He also announced that a special baptism service will be held at the usual 3:30 Sunday service next Sunday. Holy Innocents' church extends a cordial welcome to all to come and dwell within.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Jesse L. Lasky's five-act magnificent dramatic classic, "The Rose of the Rancho," featuring Bessie Barriscale and a special cast, and William Fox's wonderful story of "The Plunderer," with William Farnum in the leading role, are the two feature photo-play productions that will top-line the program at Proctor's Theatre this afternoon and tonight. If the former picture depended upon the fame of the stage success its vogue would be limited, but it so happens that the film version is fully as strong, if not stronger, to stand than the legitimate production, for there is a delightful romantic story of marked appeal both to young and old alike, beside embodying several thrilling episodes which keep the spectators in suspense.

"The Plunderer" affords for William Farnum a real "Farnum Part"—big "Bill Matthews" of the Croix D'Or mine, a doughty, splendid steel knit fellow, with a big warm heart and a punch in each hand. Bill and his partner are harassed by a secret enemy who imprisons them in a mine shaft, causes a strike of the workmen and blows up the reservoir upon which the power of the mine depends. These are only a few of the thrills that keep you breathless—hanging on to the arms of your seat. The final climax where Big Bill and his partner discover their enemy is the most stirring of all. A pulse stirring battle with bare fists, in which Big Bill bests a score of drink-crazed miners in a fight, that for sheer thrills and heart-catching excitement has never been excelled on stage or screen. There is a splendid love story which leaves a happy glow in the spectator's mind. In fact, "The Plunderer" is as perfect a photo-play as has yet been achieved, and deals with clean, manly men, affecting sentiment, the lust for yellow gold and swift dynamic drama. "The Plunderer" will be repeated tomorrow afternoon and night.

Tomorrow's program will also include the Paramount Picture Corporation's photo-play, "The Bargain," a true western story—with western characters, western scenery—laid in the Grand Canyon of Arizona—and typical western situations. William S. Hart, the famous Broadway favorite, plays the leading role, which abounds with situations demanding daring and courageous acting. The re-generation of "Jim Stokes," the "Two-Gun Man," and the terror of the whole country is brought about in a peculiar way, and is replete with thrilling horseback races between sheriff's posses and the gun-man. "The Operator at Big Sandy," a Mutual two-reel photo-play, will also appear in tomorrow's program beside several one-reel pictures.

Friday, William Fox's presentation of Theda Bara, star of "A Fool There Was," in Alexander Dumas' masterpiece, "The Clemenceau Case," will be shown, also the succeeding episode of "The Exploits of Elaine," and one reel of Keystone and Mutual comedies. Saturday's program includes Carlyle Blakwell in "The High Hand," 5 reels; the next episode of "The Goddess;" Paramount Travel series; "The Reprisal" and "When Cameron Passed By."

PLAINFIELD AIRDOME

Charles E. VanLoan's famous story of "Buckshot John" with an all star cast, will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at the Plainfield Airdome with several other one and two-reel pictures. Hobart Bosworth plays the leading role and is supported by a star company of players. After robbing express trains and banks of thousands of dollars, Bad Jake Kennedy's gang comes to an untimely end at Clayton, the sole survivor after a desperate fight being "Buckshot John" Moran. Repeated efforts during the first 15 years of his 30-year sentence in State Prison, to disclose the location of the cache are fruitless, so the new prison chaplain turns his thoughts in another direction and in the truest sense of the word this former desperado "gets religion." From that time on his one thought is "to go clean when my time comes" and he prays for a way to restore the securely hidden money to its rightful owners.

Meantime, in Denver, a "J. Buchanon Gilmore" has risen by devious shady paths from Jake, clairvoyant, to an unimpeached position, as "The Great Gilmore," leader of a fashionable cult, and takes full advantage of the zeal of a high official to render his standing more secure and to win the official's daughter, Ruth. Ruth's sweetheart, Jimmy Dacey, is much disturbed by this and does his best to keep Ruth from Gilmore's influence.

Matters are at this pass when Jimmy is sent to interview Buckshot, and leaves a newspaper with him, youthfully shocked by the latter's statement that the Bible is his only reading. In the paper Buckshot reads of a private seance given by Gilmore, at which messages were (supposedly) received from the dead. It seems like an answer to a prayer and he sends a note to Gilmore begging advice.

From that moment we thence move rapidly to the thrilling conclusion. How Gilmore works on Buckshot's conscience and gets his secret of the cache, how Jimmy opens Buckshot's eyes to the way Gilmore is betraying him, how Buckshot makes his "getaway" and forces Gilmore to return the money, how he seeks to the restitution of the loot, and how Jimmy not only wins Ruth from the Great Gilmore, but is able to do Buckshot John a great service is disclosed in a series of brilliant and gripping scenes.

Lovers of Mary Pickford will have an opportunity to see their favorite Friday and Saturday night in Daniel Frohman's presentation of "Mistress Nell," the famous drama of the darling days of gay King Charles II. Miss Pickford plays the leading role of pretty Nell Gwn, the whimsical, impulsive and piquant little favorite of the public and monarch of England.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Lovers of thrilling photoplay will have abundant opportunity today and tomorrow to view just the kind they like best at the U. S. Astor Theatre. The dramatic feature today will be "The Cowboy and the Lady," a drama of engrossing interest by the late Clyde Fitch, and tomorrow's feature attraction will be "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," based on the gripping poem of the West by Robert Serviss.

In brief, the story of "The Cowboy and the Lady" is:

Ted North, a young Easterner, falls desperately in love with Margaret Primrose, daughter of the man his father had ruined. Primrose held his enmity against young North and refuses to permit his daughter to see him. To spite North, Primrose forces his daughter into marriage with a young millionaire by the name of Weston.

North, heartbroken, leaves for the West. Weston neglects his bride and continues his dissipation that had already made him notorious. Weston's health gives way, and seven years later, upon advice of his physician, he goes West, taking his wife with him.

Upon their arrival at a small cattle station Mrs. Weston renews her acquaintance with North, and Weston carries on his dissipations regardless of his doctor's warnings. Weston is finally killed by a Mexican whose wife he attacked. There are many other thrilling situations, but the final climax sends the audience home happy.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 222 East Second street, Plainfield, says, "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I used seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of my kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Gardner had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

The examination schedule arranged by Mr. Earley will give the seniors an extra week of vacation. They will take their finals next week, and the lower classes the week following.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The seniors completed their "exams" yesterday and met for class room routine for the last time today. They will, however, be required to report daily, and will also have to rehearse for the class day exercises.

The Senior-Faculty game is scheduled to be played next Friday at Parker Field. Both teams are hard at work practicing.

A senior class play picnic will be held next Friday afternoon, at Miss Margaret Eaton's home in the Watchung Mountains. The guests will go directly after the Senior-Faculty game, take supper, and stay to see the Indian Legend play, after which there will be dancing.

Tickets for the class day exercises will be put out next week and may be had from any of the seniors.

TESTIMONY IN PERJURY CASE

for swearing to false affidavits, had a direct bearing on the sensational outcome of the trial of Police Chief Kiely and Sergeant Maurice Higgins on contempt charges last week and it is conceded by those connected with the case that "he should prove a valuable man to the prosecution if brought forward."

Edward Vanderhoof, of this city, an uncle of the youthful sleuth, appeared in the role of principal witness this morning, and his disclosures during the direct and cross-examination provided material for a vigorous fight between counsel to have the testimony stricken out. Judge James C. Connolly, however, over-ruled the objections and admitted the evidence in full.

The witness told of having been approached by Mrs. Roundey prior to the filing of papers in her $25,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Elmer W. Poinier, of this city, and declared that she offered him $100 for a "slick service he could perform for her." He said that he spurned the offer which was proposed to him in the Babcock building.

Mr. Vanderhoot's allegation of Mrs. Roundey's attempt to get him to perjure himself dealt with a matter of falsely swearing to having seen John K. Roundey go to Mrs. Poinier's house. On the ground that the matter at issue involved "Mrs. Poinier's visit to Roundey's apartment," Conover English, of counsel for Mrs. Roundey, fought strenuously but without avail to have the testimony stricken from the records of the trial.

Sergeant Higgins was sworn as a State witness and told of having searched for young Vanderhoof. Frank Vanderhoof, the missing youth's father, testified on direct examination that his son's present whereabouts were a mystery. On cross-examination, however, he went into detail and admitted that Harold had told him that he was going to flee because of his fear of being jailed on three supposed charges against him in Essex county. He further stated that Mrs. Roundey and Richard Stockton, her counsel in a previous case, had acted as informant for the youth in acquainting him with the supposed criminal charges against him. The parent said that his son had once been accused of stealing $30 while employed by the Endress Company.

On further examination the father testified that Mrs. Lillian Vanderhoof, the detective's wife, and his mother-in-law, had gone to California. Mrs. Stephen Joseph, of this city, bore out the testimony of yesterday's witnesses to the effect that Mrs. Poinier was attending a meeting of Lydia Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, auxiliary to the Masons, on the night of October 23, 1914, one of the occasions specifically mentioned by Mrs. Roundey as a time when Mrs. Poinier and Mr. Roundey were together.

Damaging evidence was offered by several witnesses yesterday afternoon, none of which was shattered by efforts of Conover English, counsel for the defendant. Petronella Tumiel, a domestic for Mr. Roundey, Charles Hoff and his wife, Matilda, declared that Mrs. Roundey offered them money if they would testify in her behalf. Mr. Roundey denied that he ever saw or knew Mrs. Poinier until the suit was started, while several witnesses declared that Mrs. Poinier was at a meeting of an Eastern Star Lodge in Plainfield, October 23 last, the night on which Mrs. Roundey alleged that her husband and Mrs. Poinier were at the former's home over his store at 131 West Front street. On cross-examination Roundey denied that he made any efforts last September to put his wife in any asylum.

Charles Hoff, formerly employed by Mrs. Roundey and now residing in Plainfield, told of the alleged bribe offer made to him at his home, 316 West 17th street, New York, and declared that he spurned it. He added that he moved to the East Side in an effort to avoid Mrs. Roundey's importunings.

"She said that if I would make a good witness for her she would pay me well," said Hoff. "Her father was rich and I should help her out of trouble, she said," Hoff testified. This was on the second Saturday in February at his New York home. "She also declared that if I said I saw Mrs. Poinier in Mrs. Roundey's apartments I'd make a good witness," he added.

"I never saw Mrs. Poinier," said the witness. He explained that Harold Vanderhoff, the "amateur detective," was present on one occasion and that Mrs. Roundey had called for him (Hoff) at least a dozen times, but he had dodged her.

On cross-examination he could not be swerved from his statement that it was in the Poinier suit and not the maintenance suit of Mrs. Roundey against her husband, that the money offer was made to him.

Mrs. Hoff corroborated her husband, saying that she heard Mrs. Roundey say: "If Charlie will make a good witness I will give you a whole lot of money. My father is rich." Later she repeated the alleged statement of Mrs. Roundey to the effect that "I wish Charlie would come as a witness. I'll give him $50. My father's got plenty of money." Mrs. Hoff's answer was, she said: "I want nothing from you." Mrs. Roundey then went away angry, she said.

"If you said Mr. Roundey had a woman upstairs in his bedroom I'll pay you $50," was what Petronella Tumiel, the domestic, said Mrs. Roundey said to her at the home of the domestic's relatives.

"I say no, Mrs. Roundey, I won't say that," the witness said she replied. She also refused to say that Mr. Roundey had left his home in Mrs. Poinier's company, she said. Cross-examination did not change her story.

Roundey denied that he ever knew or saw Mrs. Poinier until the alienation suit was brought.

"Isn't it ture that last September you tried to put your wife in some sort of an asylum?" asked Mr. English.

"No," said the witness. He said they had been separated six years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Woodward, William Dunham, his wife, Mary, and Stephen B. Joseph, all testified as to Mrs. Poinier being at the lodge meeting October 23. Mrs. Mary A. Causbrook and her husband, William R. Causbrook, testified that they took her home from the lodge meeting and that her husband was there. Walter Hetfield, Jr., testified as to his connection with the civil suit.

NO CAUSE FOR REGRET.

William J. Bryan's resignation from the cabinet yesterday will not be a serious matter for the nation or President Wilson. While it has been said that Mr. Bryan has been one of the hardest working men who has ever held the position of Secretary of State, the American people have been fully convinced ever since he refused to give up his lecture tours, that he was a misfit in the position. Had he fully appreciated public sentiment he would long ago have given up the place, and permitted the President to name a man who would at least have appeared to have more interest in the government, than in the dollars that he could earn as an attraction in company with bell-ringers and other chautauqua vaudeville acts. There are plenty of able Democrats whom President Wilson can call to his aid at this time when he should have the whole-hearted support of every member of his cabinet.

OBSTRUCTING THE CENSUS.

In commenting on the reports which come from all of the larger cities in New Jersey of refusals to answer the questions put by the census enumerators the Trenton Times notes that in the great majority of cases these refusals are by foreign-born citizens. It has been found that they are fearful that the enumeration is being made for the purpose of getting a line on the men of military age or of taxation, and in Elizabeth some of the canvassers and interpreters were threatened with violence if they persisted in making inquiries.

The law provides a remedy in such cases. Any person who wilfully refuses or fails "to render a true account to the best of his or her knowledge, of every person belonging to such family in the various particulars required, after being requested to do so by the Secretary of State, supervisor, enumerator or interpreter is guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction is liable to a fine not exceeding $100."

Many of the refusals come from women who object to making known their age, and they are liable to the same penalty. These are protected against the gossiping of the enumerator, who is liable to a fine of not exceeding $500 for "communicating to any person not authorized to receive the same any information gained by him in the performance of his duties." It is a more serious matter to divulge the information than it is to refuse to give it.

The enumeration is being made for public purposes, and the easiest and safest course to follow is to answer the questions that are put. No one is particularly interested in the ages, there is no connection between the census and the collection of taxes, and no foreign-born citizen is in danger of being drafted for military service abroad because his name appears on the book of the canvasser.

The recommendation by Police Chief Kiely that marks be placed on the curbing each side of fire hydrants to indicate where autoists may leave their vehicles standing, without infringing the new traffic regulations, is worthy of consideration. Adoption of this feature would facilitate the work of the police department and also eliminate considerable inconvenience to drivers who unknowingly violate the law. Right in line with this matter comes the too frequent plea of ignorance of the law made by autoists who are stopped on public highways for failing to properly dim their headlights. Most men who drive a motor car are credited with sufficient intelligence to know enough to familiarize themselves with the State laws and unless many local drivers comply with the new code in the near future arrests will follow. Judge DeMeza has announced that he will soon make an example of guilty parties so a "word to the wise is sufficient."

In other cities where traffic posts are being used as guides at crowded street junctures it is customary to have the heads painted white, thereby affording the autoist or driver an opportunity to see the obstruction before he is on top of it. Criticism has come from local motorists and others who have occasion to pass the posts located at three different places in the business section, over the fact that they are painted a dull red color that makes them almost indistinguishable at certain times during the day. Drivers not acquainted with the location of the posts often times drive to within a few feet of the obstructions before realizing that they are there. Little expense would be entailed in the repainting the tops of these posts and at the same time a great service would be done for the drivers.

Why do so many people save up their weddings for June, when there are eleven other months in which just as many facilities are available for pulling off a joyous event? June is the traditional month, however, when every other earthly thing is crowded off the boards to make room for the weddings. Undoubtedly it is a delightful month under ordinary conditions, but weddings are known to occur in other months just the same. If all the months were all boomed up as June is everybody would be married before the year is out. Somebody may yet start an all-the-year-round boom and then everybody will be busy all the time; it will help, as an exchange says, to restore prosperity.

The Elizabeth Journal calls attention to an abuse of the auto laws which should be corrected by the Legislature, in the practice by owners of four-passenger cars who crowd six or more people into them. Cars were noticed Sunday in that city (generally not of the latest variety) which were scandalously overloaded. It was with some anxiety, in fact, that the Journal man scanned Monday's newspapers, containing the usual list of auto accidents, in view of the overburdened cars seen on the highways the day before. This affords another opportunity for amending the laws.

L. M. DANIEL HEADS SECURITY LEAGUE

Local Branch Formed With Well Known Men on Board of Dircetors.

Formation of a local branch of the National Security League was completed at an enthusiastic meeting held last night at the Park Club. Leslie M. Daniel was chosen as chairman of the organization, and C. L. Slocum as secretary and treasurer. An executive committee of twenty was selected as follows: H. M. Fisher, Daniel Runkle, E. C. Pierson, Leslie M. Daniel, C. E. Aaron, Chief T. O. Doane, LeRoy J. Ellis, Edward F. Feickert, J. Whitney Baker, Alexander Milne, Phillip Suffern, Evarts Tracy, William L. Smalley, Captain Charles A. Peterson, of Company K; William Newcorn, Frederick Shaw, former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, E. M. Daniel, 2d, Dr. Guy H. Hillman, Samuel Rushmore and Howard Lapsley.

Prior to the formation of the Plainfield Branch of the League, E. Woodward Duke, assistant secretary of the national organization, explained the objects of that body, saying that it was formed because the problem of national defense was the greatest issue before the American people today. He said that the organization favored a world alliance for peace, but that until such a thing is brought about we cannot afford to remain undefended. There are three ways to maintain the nation, by treaties, diplomacy and force of arms. The absolute disregard of treaties in the case of Belgium, according to Mr. Duke, makes that method ineffective. Our diplomatic force is the poorest trained in the world. That leaves the third means to fall back upon.

According to the speaker we should be fully prepared for a defensive war, as it is not the policy of this government to adopt an offensive one. Our navy is a strong one, but when we speak of it in comparison with those of Germany and England, we are weak. He quoted Admiral Fisk's statement that it would take twenty-five years to put our fleet in proper condition. We need more battleships, battle cruisers, submarines and aeroplanes.

The army was said to be anything but a mobile one because of the scattered positions of the posts in fifty-two places throughout the country. We have no trained reserve, such as is to be found in every foreign nation. He quoted Japan as an instance, where they have 1,333,000 men in reserve, Switzerland with 240,000, and even little Belgium with 60,000, which forms more of a mobile army than there is available in this country, after the men now in the regular army have been taken to garrison posts in the Philippines, Panama and other necessary points.

"In busines none of you men would depend upon volunteers. Why should we do it in defending the nation?" said Mr. Duke. "The military profession is the highest developed in the world today, and yet we have a comparatively small number of trained men for such duty. The National Security League does not advocate a large trained army. We need a better general staff for the army and general board for the navy, who could work out the problems which confront us, with the aid of a modest regular army, and a large and adequately trained and equipped National Guard. The increase in the army need not be more than 25,000 men, but the National Guard deserves much better support than it gets now. Every able-bodied man between the ages of twenty and twenty-three should be compelled to serve in the National Guard."

The speaker then explained that the National Security League stands for economic reform in the military policy of the nation, a military policy which will increase the army establishment, and the development of an adequate navy.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY HOLD LAWN FESTIVAL

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church held a successful lawn festival on the church lawn last night, and about fifty-five dollars was realized which will go into the society's treasury. The place was illuminated with lanterns and the tables were decorated with flags. Ice cream, cake, candy and fancy articles were served.

Mrs. J. S. Darby, president of the society, had charge of the affair. The chairmen of the committees follow: Mrs. Andrew Lutkins, fancy articles; Mrs. Charles Lippincott, ice cream; Mrs. W. J. Conroy, punch; Mrs. Charles Force, cake; Mrs. Harvey Apgar, clipping table, and Mrs. Walter Smalley, candy.

BRYAN GIVES REASONS FOR LEAVING CABINET

Washington, June 9—William J. Bryan today gave out a statement setting forth the differences that arose between him and President Wilson leading to his resignation. They were first, refusal of the President to consider the proposal that the controversy with Germany be submitted to an international commission; second, refusal of the President to adopt a policy of warning to American citizens not to sail on the ships of belligerent nations or on vessels carrying on contraband of war.

BALFOUR REPORTS SINKING OF GERMAN SUBMARINE

London, June 9.—Official announcement was made today by the Secretary of the Admiralty, Mr. Balfour, that a German submarine had been sunk and that six of her officers and twenty-one of her crew have been captured. Mr. Balfour also announced that German submarine prisoners hereafter will be accorded treatment identical with that of the German prisoners in England.

SUBROUNDING AN ARMY.

Turning the Enemy's Flanks and Rolling Up the Entire Line.

Those not familiar with military tactics have a very vague idea as to how an army is surrounded. It is generally believed that a commander who schemes to encircle his enemy with an impenetrable ring of guns and men must conceive some method of maneuvering his troops round to the rear of his opponent's army. It is possible, however, for a general well versed in field tactics to cleverly "roll up" a large body of troops by frontal attack alone. This is accomplished by means of flanking movements.

For purposes of example let us imagine two armies facing one another drawn up in two long lines. Behind one of the battle lines a body of reserve troops stealthily make their way over to the right. Their purpose is to make a sudden onslaught on one end of the enemy's line. At exactly the right moment, when the artillery fire is at its fiercest, the reserve troops violently attack the forces situated at the extreme left of the enemy's front. The attacking force, owing to its overwhelming numbers, bends back the end of the assailed army. "It refuses its right," as military men say.

At the opposite end of the line a similar attack is launched, which has the effect of forcing back the enemy's right. An army which "refuses" almost at the same time its "left" and "right" wings is doomed. Unless a very speedy retreat is carried out the whole force is "rolled up," as both its flanks are forced back.

As the right and left flanks of the enemy give ground the attacking troops slowly force their way to the rear of the assailed army, closing in the while. The result is that within a few hours the defeated force is entirely surrounded, although in the first instance it was attacked from its front alone.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Galley o' Fun!

A FRIENDLY FEELING.

Young Bobby Short sat at my righ'
Last evening at the play:
At every point his great delight
He showed in every way.
When, by-and-by, he turned to me
And chatted for a minute:
"I like, this play because," said he,
"I know the actors in it."

"And do you know the star?" I said
"They say his salary's fat,
But could you tell—" He shook his head.
"I didn't mean just that;
But Johnny Chubb, a friend of mine
He knows another fellow
Who used to know that blonde divine
There on the end in yellow."

Walter G. Doty.

HER UNFORTUNATE PLIGHT

Mrs. Cumso.—Poor Mrs. Darley complains that she can't get any new gowns.

Mrs. Fangle.—Why I thought she married a ladies' tailor?

Mrs. Cumso.—So she did and that's just the trouble. Her husband is so busy with orders that he can't make his wife's gowns, and of course it would never do for her to go elsewhere.

MORE ENTHUSIASM.

Reverend Gude.—I think we will have the choir open with "As it was in the beginning."

Deacon Phan.—What? When our team was trailing the bunch! Poor taste, parson. Better have them sing "As it was on August 24th," when we took that glorious double header from Ellicottville, and held second place by an eyelash.

Woman leads the world: She used smokeless powder centuries before men ever thought of adopting it.

A NOBLE REPRESENTATIVE.

See the dusky station attendant. He wears a uniform to show that he is hired by the company. He waits on the platform for the people to alight from the train. They have many bundles, packages, and suit cases. The station attendant knows this. He is paid by the company to assist the passengers in every way that he can. That is just what he is waiting for—the opportunity to assist.

But why do so many people pass him by? Why do they refuse his polite offers of aid? Why do so many tired-faced women, struggling with great, bulging grips, pass on bending with their giant burdens?

Ah, they know! He must be recompensed, this ebony servant of the company. It is not enough that the company should pay him, but the people must as well, and if they do not his expression will resemble that of a Black Hand leader. They know not, even, what form his passion might take.

So only the wealthy can use him, only the wealthy can afford to meet his unspoken demands. Truly to the company that he represents does he stand a great and glorious credit!

ANSWERED.

Teacher.—Willie, give three proofs that the world actually is round.

Willie.—The book says so, you say so, and ma says so.

PARTIES.

Teacher.—What are the two greatest parties we have in this country?

Willie Backrow.—Th' Sunday school picnic and th' Defiance Hose Company clambake.

AN UNDESIRABLE.

Attell.—What became of the old auditor you used to have?

Carlson.—I fired him. He was too pluggedly literal; he even refused to charge up the cost of floor-cleaning to overhead expenses.

THE CITY VIEWPOINT.

Inquisitive Stranger.—What do you do for a living in such a dead place as this?

Old Salt.—Me? I'm a fisherman.

Inquisitive Stranger.—A fisherman? Why, what in thunder do you do when you take a vacation?

WHAT HURTS.

Satan, cast out of Heaven, fell for nine days continuously, so that when at length he struck it was with one of the dullest, most sickening thuds told in the literature of catastrophe.

"However," he exclaimed, jumping at once to his feet, "it doesn't hurt as much as being taken up by the newspapers and then dropped all of a sudden!"

CRIBS.

General.—Did you find anything on the prisoner when you searched him?

Aide.—Almost a wagon load of finely written paper.

General.—Hold him until we find out whether he is a spy or merely a college student going to an examination.

If your property is really "worthwhile," make that clear in your classified advertising—and you'll sell it.

NORTH PLAINFIELD TO HAVE BASEBALL TEAM

Independent Aggregation Will Be Formed Soon to Play Saturday Ball.

A representative baseball team for North Plainfield, which was announced some time ago in these columns, is about to be organized and the team will get into action within the next two weeks. Now that the High School boys have put away their togs for the season borough fans have no team to interest them and would be lost on Saturday afternoons if they did not visit Hyde Oval. The aggregation will be backed by borough men and games will be played with all the best teams of this city and this section of the State.

No name has yet been decided on, but all the members of the team will be boroughites. A good number have already signified a willingness to play through the summer and a fast combination will be put on the field. A meeting will be held sometime this week and plans made and a manager chosen.

The team will probably be picked from the following: Hub Stine, Bill Taylor, Newt Spencer, Carlton Smith, Ashley Burner, George Townley, Warren Townley, Frank Dunning, Ralph Smalley, Ernest Stahl, Oscar Dilts and others.

THIRD N. P. H. S.-P. H. S GAME MAY BE STAGED SATURDAY

Although the outcome of a third baseball game between the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School teams will in no way effect the standings in the city championship series, there is some talk of staging that game as arranged, next Saturday afternoon. The great difference in the calibre of baseball the boroughites put up in the first and second meetings with the red and blue aggregation leave some in doubt as to just how good the "Canucks" really are.

A large amount of the interest in the game between these two teams is gone because the Collier cup has been won, but many supporters would undoubtedly attend another game. The North Plainfield team is willing to play again and if the city management thinks well of the plan it will probably be arranged for this week. Parker Field will be open Saturday and the contest is likely to be staged there.

INVITATIONS ARRIVE.

The commencement invitations for the senior class of North Plainfield High School arrived this morning, and were taken in charge by President Edson Day. They are engraved and have the class emblem embossed in gold at the top. They will be distributed within a few days.

MAXWELL CAR DOES WELL ON BIG HILL

Climbs Johnston's Drive With 2,137 Pounds Aboard Without a Hitch.

What would probably prove a task worthy of mention for any automobile of considerably higher power was accomplished by a twenty-five horsepower 1915 model Maxwell, yesterday afternoon, when it climbed Johnston's Drive, carrying an aggregate weight of 2,137 pounds, made up by fifteen passengers. The machine made the ascent without the semblance of a hitch and immediately upon completing this test started on a 48-hour endurance run with five passengers. The outcome of the demonstration reflects on the power behind the 1915 model and substantiates the contention of the distributor that it is a vehicle of rare merit and of possessing the highest degree of concentrated power.

The incline known as Johnston's Drive was declared by Ralph DePalma, at the completion of the hill-climbing contest held here several years ago, to be the best test for the climbing power of any automobile in the country. DePalma's wide experience qualifies him as a competent judge and his acknowledgement was made only after he had finished the sternuous trial on that occasion. Other noted drivers here on that occasion also commented on the natural facility presented on this slope of the Watchung Mountains for such a test.

The car used yesterday is the same one that took part in the Wilkesbarre (Pa.) to Philadelphia "Mayor to Mayor" message carrying contest and has been run 2,000 miles to date.

The car left on a forty-eight-hour endurance non-stop test yesterday afternoon at 4:50 o'clock and at noon today the engine was still working smoothly. Those who have made trips in the car during the test have commented on the manner in which the auto takes hills and the stability of the engine. A number of guesses concerning the number of gallons of gasoline that will be consumed in the two-day test and the mileage covered have been received in accordance with the terms of a contest being conducted.

Y. M. C. A. OFFERS MANY ATTRACTIONS

Including Shower Baths, Gymnasium Classes and Swimming Pool.

The Young Men's Christian Association in announcing its summer membership, calls particular attention to the fact that the boys and men of Plainfield have no "old swimming hole" with its traditions, mosquitoes, blood suckers, muddy banks and rough stones to swim and cool their bodies in during the hot summer days of June, July and August, but in its place it can offer shower baths, tiled swimming pool, with filtered water, soap and towels and locker to put their clothes in. In addition competent swimming instruction is given to those who cannot swim.

Gymnasium classes will be held out of doors except when weather conditions are bad, all summer, including those for juniors, seniors and business men. A number of interesting events, including 'hikes," have also been arranged and those, who for one reason or another, will spend part or all of the summer in Plainfield, will have had many opportunities through this membership for recreation. For stormy weather there are the game rooms in which will be found pocket billiards, shuffle board, chess, checkers, war games, ping pong, etc. The fees are so low that no boy twelve years or over (or no man for that matter) should fail to avail himself of the privileges offered and which can be obtained for $3.00 in the case of men and $2.00 for boys.

A very practical piece of community service will also be rendered by the association, for during the period from June 28 to July 23, swimming lessons for a limited number of boys from ten to twelve years will be given on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at a cost of only $1.00 for the course. Registration for this course should be made immediately owing to the fact that only a limited number can be accommodated.

FACULTY BALL GAME.

The annual baseball game between the Plainfield High School seniors and the faculty will be played on Parker Field Friday afternoon.

VOORHEES LEAL LEADER.

Roy Voorhees, the Leal School baseball team' pitching star, has been elected captain of the 1916 baseball nine.

ROD AND REEL

Kingfish are to be caught in the surf at Point Pleasant just as soon as the weather settles. The fish are along the shore and that is the first place they are apt to stop. There is considerable fun catching kingfish and the meat is par excellence. Don't use too large a hook, as many a fish is lost through a large hook and bait.

The best fishing grounds this week will be along the Jersey shore. Market fishermen say that the grounds off Seabright that are fished by the handline men will be the place for large humpback sea bass. Some fish were taken there last week before the east winds came in. Blackfish are also quite plentiful along the shore.

Reports sent out from Jamaica Bay last week showed weakfish and fluke biting good.

The black bass season will open a week from yesterday. Black bass are not as plentiful as usual.

One of our most successful trout anglers in this section says that a great many of the boys don't fish right when out for trout. He said that they will either stick to worms or fly and frequently they find themselves up against hard luck, as they call it. He has caught fully two hundred trout this season, and he always uses a six-foot leader, with worms at the end two different flys a foot apart higher up. He has had catches when a brook trout would take the worm and a rainbow a fly, but never had the experience of landing both at once.

Fishing off the Belmar shore yesterday, one angler caught four kingfish, one croaker and about a million skates, more or less.

INCORPORATION OF $20,000,000 CONCERN

Hager Portland Cement Co. Files Papers at Bangor, Me., Today.

The filing of incorporation papers at Bangor, Maine, today by the Hager Portland Cement Company, a $20-000,000 concern, discloses one of the most important, if not the largest business transactions in recent years affecting the cement industry. While the name of the officers have not been made known, it is hinted that Edward M. Hager, of Chicago, will be the president of the company. The headquarters will be in Chicago with a large branch office in New York.

Mr. Hager has resigned a $75,000 a year position as head of the Universal Cement Company, which is allied with the U. S. Steel Corporation, to become identified with the new concern. One company in the Lehigh district has been taken over by the recently-incorporated company, but inquiry today brought forth the information that the Lawrence Cement Company, of which Ernest R. Ackerman is the head, is not interested in the new company.

Those in a position to know said today that the new combination will prevent the charging of prohibitive prices for cement and will have a stablizing influence. There is now a great demand for cement for use in building concrete roads. A most significant fact made known today is that the shipments from the Hudson and Lehigh districts during the past five months has been 14 per cent. over that of last year, aggregating a million barrels of cement approximately 380,000,000 pounds and this in spite of the European war.

BODY OF MRS. TITUS BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

The body of Mrs. George Titus, a native of this city and resident for many years, was brought to Plainfield this morning for interment in the North Plainfield cemetery. She died at her home in Jersey City, Monday, where she had last resided. Her only local relative at this time is former Councilman Herbert Buxton, of Park avenue, who is a grand-nephew. Mrs. Titus' husband and members of her family are all buried in a family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Mrs. Titus was a daughter of the late William Freeman, who, with his brother, Caleb Freeman, conducted a hat-making factory on East Front street for many years. The building was located in the rear of the lot on which the Woodhull & Martin building stands at the present time. The Freemans will be remembered by many of Plainfield's older residents. Mrs. Titus' husband was a brother to William Titus, who died at Newark a short time ago. The latter married a sister of former Judge Nelson Runyon. Some years after her marriage, Mrs. George Titus removed to Brooklyn, and she had been living in that city more or less before the time of her death.

FILE PLANS FOR $12,500 STRUCTURE

Bloom Contracting Co. to Build Stores and Apartments on W. Third St.

Plans for another business building for the Fourth ward have been filed at the offices of Inspector T. O. Doane, and the permit for the structure is to be issued today. The building is to be located at 602-4-6 West Third street, corner of Plainfield avenue, and is to be erected by the Bloom Contracting Company. The cost is estimated at $12,500.

The structure will be of brick and concrete, two stories high, and will have a frontage on Third street of 94 feet, and a depth of 48 feet. The first floor is to be occupied by two stores and two apartments, one of five rooms and the other of four rooms, while the second floor is to have one five-room apartment, and three of four rooms each. The structure will be modern in every detail, containing all of the latest improvements. Frederick L. Lancaster is the architect, while the work of construction will be in direct charge of the owners.

The erection of this building at this point will be the opening wedge for the continuation of the neighborhood business section on Third street west of Liberty street, to beyond Plainfield avenue. Another three-story business building, valued at $12,000, is now in the course of construction at 546 West Third street, Morris Rabinowitz being the owner of the latter building. Third street, from Liberty street west as far as Monroe avenue, is at present more or less of a business thoroughfare, with business buildings of one size or another continually being planned.

REVISIONS MADE IN NEWSBOY ORDINANCE

Councilmen Receive Copies of Bill With Troublesome Word Eliminated.

In accordance with an agreement arrived at during the June meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, members of the Council today received copies of the proposed bill to license newsboys from the city clerk. Despite the fact that the ordinance in its original form, however, was passed on one reading, the copies submitted to the councilmen for consideration include several revisions which will probably make the action taken Monday night null and void and necessitate the introduction of the new ordinance on first reading at the adjourned session Tuesday night, June 22. The fact that Councilmen Cose and Blatz objected to the ordinance in its original form on the first reading led Councilman Hylan, who "fathered" it, to withhold the presentation for second reading consideration.

Objection was originally filed on a technicality involving the word "apparently," it being contended by Councilman Blatz that the word would result in a degree of uncertainty and possible allegations of unfairness on the part of those authorized to give out the licenses.

In the new form the word "apparently" has been stricken out and the clause that originally contained it has been brought up to the introductory paragraph. It reads now as follows: "No boy (or girl actually under sixteen years of age) shall deliver, offer for sale or sell newspapers in public places or upon the streets of the city, unless a permit to do so and a badge shall have been issued to him or her as hereinafter provided; but in no case shall any such permit or badge be issued to any boy actually under ten or any girl actually under sixteen years of age."

The word "actually" has been substituted for "apparently" wherever it was originally used. The ordinance has the endorsement of Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and will probably be offered for first reading at the next meeting.

WILLIAM HETFIELD'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of William Hetfield, whose death occurred at Muhlenberg Hospital, Saturday morning, was held at the home of his niece, Miss Hattie Terry, of Rahway road, yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Madison Hare and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including many neighbors of Mr. Hetfield's at Two Bridges, Fanwood township. The floral tributes were numerous and included several set pieces. Burial was made in the Scotch Plains cemetery, six grand-nephews of Mr. Hetfield acting as pall-bearers.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A number of Plainfield people attended a farewell party given in honor of the Misses Eva Eiseman, Gertrude Berman and Janette Walcoff, all of New York, who returned home yesterday after a stay at New Market. The affair took place at the Eiseman Heights Inn, New Market, and a good time was enjoyed. Guests were also present from New York and Brooklyn.

CHAPTER V.

School.

NEXT morning, when he had once more resumed the dreadful burden of education, it seemed infinitely duller. And yet what pleasanter sight is there than a schoolroom well filled with children of those sprouting years just before the teens? The casual visitor, gazing from the teacher's platform upon these busy little heads, needs only a blunted memory to experience the most agreeable and exhilarating sensations. Still, for the greater part the children are unconscious of the happiness of their condition, for nothing is more pathetically true than that we "never know when we are well off." The boys in a public school are less aware of their happy state than are the girls, and of all the boys in his room probably Penrod himself had the least appreciation of his felicity.

He sat staring at an open page of a textbook, but not studying, not even reading, not even thinking. Nor was he lost in a reverie. His mind's eye was shut, as his physical eye might well have been, for the optic nerve, flaccid with ennui, conveyed nothing whatever of the printed page upon which the orb of vision was partially focused. Penrod was doing something very unusual and rare, something almost never accomplished except by colored people or by a boy in school on a spring day—he was doing really nothing at all. He was merely a state of being.

From the street a sound stole in through the open window, and abhorring nature began to fill the vacuum called Penrod Schofield, for the sound was the spring song of a mouth organ coming down the sidewalk. The windows were intentionally above the level of the eyes of the seated pupils, but the picture of the musician was plain to Penrod, painted for him by a quality in the runs and trills partaking of the oboe, of the calliope and of cats in anguish—an excruciating sweetness obtained only by the wallowing, walloping yellow-pink palm of a hand whose back was Kongo black and shiny. The music came down the street and passed beneath the window, accompanied by the care-free shuffling of a pair of old shoes scuffing syncopations on the cement sidewalk. It passed into the distance; became faint and blurred; was gone. Emotion stirred in Penrod a great and poignant desire, but (perhaps fortunately) no fairy godmother made her appearance. Otherwise Penrod would have gone down the street in a black skin, playing the mouth organ, and an unprepared colored youth would have found himself enjoying educational advantages for which he had no ambition whatever.

Roused from perfect apathy, the boy cast about the schoolroom an eye wearied to nausea by the perpetual vision of the neat teacher upon the platform, the backs of the heads of the pupils in front of him and the monotonous stretches of blackboard threateningly defaced by arithmetical formula and other insignia of torture. Above the blackboard the walls of the high room were of white plaster—white with the qualified whiteness of old snow in a soft coal town. This dismal expanse was broken by four lithographic portraits, votive offerings of a thoughtful publisher. The portraits were of good and great men, kind men, men who loved children. Their faces were noble and benevolent. But the lithographs offered the only rest for the eyes of children fatigued by the everlasting sameness of the schoolroom. Long day after long day, interminable week in and interminable week out, vast month on vast month, the pupils sat with those four portraits beaming kindness down upon them. The faces became permanent in the consciousness of the children; they became an obsession. In and out of school the children were never free of them. The four faces haunted the minds of children falling asleep. They hung upon the minds of children waking at night; they rose forebodingly in the minds of children waking in the morning; they became monstrously alive in the minds of children lying sick of fever. Never while the children of that schoolroom lived would they be able to forget one detail of the four lithographs. The hand of Longfellow was fixed for them forever in his beard. And by a simple and unconscious association of ideas Penrod Schofield was accumulating an antipathy for the gentle Longfellow, and for James Russell Lowell, and for Oliver Wendell Holmes, and for John Greenleaf Whittier which would never permit him to peruse a work of one of those great New Englanders without a feeling of personal resentment.

His eyes fell slowly and inimically from the brow of Whittier to the braid of reddish hair belonging to Victorine Riordan, the little octoroon girl who sat directly in front of him. Victorine's back was as familiar to Penrod as the necktie of Oliver Wendell Holmes. So was her gayly colored plaid waist. He hated the waist as he hated Victorine herself without knowing why. Enforced companionship in large quantities and on an equal basis between the sexes appears to sterilize the affections, and schoolroom romances are few.

Victorine's hair was thick and the brickish glints in it were beautiful, but Penrod was very tired of it. A thin knot of green ribbon finished off the braid and kept it from unraveling, and beneath the ribbon there was a fine wisp of hair which was just long enough to repose upon Penrod's desk when Victorine leaned back in her seat. It was there now. Thoughtfully he took the braid between thumb and forefinger and, without disturbing Victorine, dipped the end of it and the green ribbon into the inkwell of his desk. He brought hair and ribbon forth dripping purple ink and partially dried them on a blotter, though, a moment later, when Victorine leaned forward, they were still able to add a few picturesque touches to the plaid waist.

Rudolph Krauss, across the aisle from Penrod, watched the operation with protuberant eyes, fascinated. Inspired to imitation, he took a piece of chalk from his pocket and wrote "Rats" across the shoulder blades of the boy in front of him, then looked across appealingly to Penrod for tokens of congratulation. Penrod yawned.

Half the members of the class passed out to a recitation room, the ends purpled Victorine among them, and Miss Spence started the remaining half through the ordeal of trial by mathematics. Several boys and girls were sent to the blackboard, and Penrod, spared for the moment, followed their operations a little while with his eyes, but not with his mind; then, sinking deeper in his seat, limply abandoned the effort. His eyes remained open, but saw nothing. The routine of the arithmetic lesson reached his ears in familiar, meaningless sounds, but he heard nothing, and yet, this time, he was profoundly occupied. He had drifted away from the painful land of facts, and floated now in a new sea of fancy which he had just discovered.

Maturity forgets the marvelous richness of a boy's day dreams, how colorful they glow, rosy and living, and how opaque the curtain closing down between the dreamer and the actual world. That curtain is almost sound proof, too, and causes more throat trouble among parents than is suspected.

The nervous monotony of the schoolroom inspires a sometimes unbearable longing for something astonishing to happen, and as every boy's fundamental desire is to do something astonishing himself, so as to be the center of all human interest and awe, it was natural that Penrod should discover in fancy the delightful secret of self levitation. He found, in this curious series of imaginings, during the lesson in arithmetic, that the atmosphere may be navigated as by a swimmer underwater, but with infinitely greater ease and with perfect comfort in breathing. In his mind he extended his arms gracefully, at a level with his shoulders, and delicately paddled the air with his hands, which at once caused him to be drawn up out of his seat and elevated gently to a position about midway between the floor and the ceiling, where he came to an equilibrium and floated; a sensation not the less exquisite because of the screams of his fellow pupils, appalled by the miracle. Miss Spence herself was amazed and frightened, but be only smiled down carelessly upon her when she commanded him to return to earth, and then, when she climbed upon a desk to pull him down, he quietly paddled himself a little higher, leaving his toes just out of her reach. Next he swam through a few slow somersaults to show his mastery of the new art, and, with the shouting of the dumfounded scholars ringing in his ears, turned on his side and floated swiftly out of the window, immediately rising above the housetops, while people in the street below him shrieked, and a trolley car stopped dead in wonder.

With almost no exertion he paddled himself, many yards at a stroke, to the girls' private school where Marjorie Jones was a pupil—Marjorie Jones of the amber curls and the golden voice! Long before the "Pageant of the Table Round" she had offered Penrod a hundred proofs that she considered him wholly undesirable and ineligible. At the Friday afternoon dancing class she consistently incited and led the laughter at him whenever Professor Bartet singled him out for admonition in matters of feet and decorum. And but yesterday she had chided him for his slavish lack of memory in daring to offer her greeting on the way to Sunday school. "Well, I expect you must forgot I told you never to speak to me again! If I was a boy I'd be too proud to come hanging around people that don't speak to me, even if I was the worst boy in town!" So she flouted him. But now as he floated in through the window of her classroom and swam gently along the ceiling like an escaped toy balloon she fell upon her knees beside her little desk and, lifting up her arms toward him, cried with love and admiration:

"Oh, Penrod!"

Of Interest to Women and the Home

"KUXIT" IS THE IDEAL BUTTER FOR COOKING

The ideal cooking butter that has come into prominence is that put out by the Puritan Coconut Butter Company, of New York city, and housewives throughout the country are unanimous in pronouncing it a popular favorite in the kitchen, being economical, wholesome and digestible. Coconut oil in Europe, especially Norway, Sweden, France, Germany and England, has been known and appreciated for edible purposes for many years. Dr. Challam De Belval, a surgeon in the French army, member of various hygienic and medical societies, and an officer of the Legion d'Honneur, says: "Coconut oil, a vegetable fat, is a production of incomparable purity, thoroughly free from contamination of microbes and atmospheric ferments. It has the distinct advantage over all other fats of easy digestibility and high nutrition, because of its great richness in soluble fatty bodies and consequently in carbon. It can be kept for any length of time without deterioration."

"Kuxit" is this same coconut oil, having the same qualities, but refined for uses in cooking, wherever butter, lard or other fats can be used. It does not become rancid, and will keep indefinitely even though exposed, and will do the work of other fats better and cheaper. To cakes, bread, pastry, etc., it permits the natural flavor and gives a longer life of lightness, freshness and delicacy; is unequaled for baking, frying and general cooking purposes, and can be re-used for frying and does not carry taste or odor.

CHARMING GOWN FOR INFORMAL SUMMER DANCES.

No. 8744.

Right in keeping with the daintiness of the old-fashioned full dress are the flowered materials that are so popular this year. The great trouble has been heretofore, to secure a dress design that would be in harmony with this material, and Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8744 does this with very excellent success. This dainty dance frock is easily made and will make a very good addition to a young lady's wardrobe. The gathered raglan waist opens in the back while the four-piece gathered skirt is attached at the normal waistline. The pattern cuts in sizes 16, 17 and 18 years and requires in size 18, 6¼ yards 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How Daddy Swan Guards Mamma Swan

He Swims Up and Down the Lake.

"I HAVE told you about some daddies in the animal kingdom who don't care much about their children," said daddy, "and there are some birds like this too. But there is another kind of bird daddy that is just as different as you can imagine, and I will tell you about him tonight.

"That is the daddy swan. You know I have told you about the swans before, and I told you that I would tell you later how good old Daddy Swan is to Mamma Swan when she is on her nest. He just stands by and protects her just as hard as he can, and everybody has to respect old Daddy Swan, for he is one of the strongest of birds and has a terrible temper also.

"You know what a beautiful bird the swan is. He is big and white, and he has a long neck that bends in the loveliest curves and a pair of strong, powerful wings. But he doesn't use these for flying very much when he is about his favorite pond or lake. Instead of this he uses them as a sort of sail, and he lets the breeze blow him along sometimes while he is paddling. And, my, how fast he can go! He looks so pretty, too, when his wings are ruffled up like white sails and the wind is blowing him through the water. His neck is arched in beautiful fashion and sails along, looking like a picture.

"But I started to tell you how he guards the nest by the shore of the lake. Mamma Swan is somewhat smaller than Daddy Swan—yes, quite a good deal smaller—and so he thinks she needs protection. He sees that she gets it too. Daddy Swan has his work to do, and he does it.

"The two swans build their nest. It is a great big nest, usually under some bush or tree, and it is made of great big twigs, almost as big as branches, and in this nest Mamma Swan lays her eggs, sometimes two and sometimes three, and from these eggs, through Mamma Swan sitting on them, finally come the very cunning little swans.

"Now, when Mamma Swan is sitting on this nest Daddy Swan sees to it that nobody disturbs her. People who are passing down the road are anxious to see Mamma Swan sitting on her nest, of course, but after they know about old Daddy Swan they are careful not to get too close, you may be sure.

"He swims up and down the lake if the coast is clear, but he is careful not to get too far away from the nest. He brings Mamma Swan her food. But when he sees somebody coming to the nest—

"Well, you just ought to see him come swimming to that shore just as fast as he can, and he gets out of the water and stands by the nest, and if the person comes too close to the nest he will start for him with a funny hissing noise, and unless the person goes away Daddy Swan will beat him with his strong wings and hurt him very much."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

(From an Editorial, "The Forces Behind Feminism," N. Y. Evening Post, June 2, 1915.)

It is not the factory system and the small family, improving public health and postponed marriage, that work for the success of feminism, but that much despised thing— a spiritual force. That force is simply the spreading recognition of the comradeship of men and women which is the result of our expanding knowledge and our expanding sympathies, and which operates independently of factory systems and birthrates. We may call it, if we will, one phase of democracy. Wherever the nations are engaged in a struggle for liberty, men now freely accept women as their partners in the struggle and in fruits of victory. That is the explanation of Finland and of Russia; in the unequal contest against despotism the man turns to his immemorial helpmeet—a hateful word now robbed of its degrading connotation. The spirit of comradeship between the sexes flourishes most strongly where the immediate need for it operates most strongly. That is why Chinese women may yet be voting before their sisters in Pennsylvania.

The Abingdon Press has lately published "The Awakening of Woman; Suggestions from the Psychic Side of Feminism," by Florence Guertin Tuttle.

The dedication is: "To my sons, whose companionship and necessities have awakened in me a sense of larger responsibility." It is upon this belief, that the woman movement is the race movement and most important because of its place in the development and evolution of the coming generations, that the book is based. This book combines a sane knowledge of everyday life with an even saner insight into the truth of the spirit, as may be seen in the following passages:

"Viewed in the light of [illegible] lution, with its steady push from the physical to the mental, from the mental to the spiritual, the feminist movement takes its place logically in the sequence of the development of the human family. In cosmic history, it is of all events the most significant and far-reachinf." "Our mothers were good enough for us, we say, and so they were. But they are not good enough for our children, any more than we should be adequate parents for the children of 1930. The qualifications of motherhood are not static. In fact, no other relationship calls for such plasticity, such fluidity to reflect the spirit of the times, and to move with it, as motherhood." "Woman may discharge her racial duty as mother creator, and still fulfil a desire for other forms of creation. She not only may but must, if progress is to be continuous."

"The woman question is not making for sex antagonism, but for deeper sex unity. Its influence is, therefore, not baneful but beneficent. Its object is not race confusion but race completion. With far higher aspirations than women were capable of fulfilling in the past, it is developing a far higher type of motherhood than the world has ever known. It is Nature's own movement. To misunderstand and try to check it is not only to retard the cause of woman, but also to retard the spiritual advancement of mankind." "When woman, the maternal, at last registers the profundities of her peculiar experience, emphasizing the psychic character of motherhood, humanity should be enriched by its noblest renaissance in art. The fact that nature has given to one-half the world fundamental spiritual revelations that are denied to the other half, places a new obligation on the creatively awakened woman. The ear of the world is listening for the message she will have to utter."

New Independence Day in Denmark.

In our old school readers there used to be the familiar story of King Canute seated by the wild seashore vainly commanding the oncoming tide to approach no nearer than the bound that his majesty had set for it.

Last Saturday the modern Canutes, the Conservatives of Denmark, saw the tide of woman suffrage sweep away the barriers they had established. By a happy coincidence Saturday, June 5, was the Danish Constitution Day, hitherto a man's festival only, but from this time on the independence day of the whole nation.

By this bill, Danish women not only gain political rights on exactly the same terms as Danish men, but these terms are the most liberal in Europe. They may elect and be elected just as men may. Since 1906 Danish women have had municipal electoral rights and municipal eligibility; now they will have full electoral rights and full eligibility.

In these troubled times it is a delight to record such a victory as this on European soil—a "holy war" in which justice and liberty triumph without bloodshed.

National Women's Trade Union League of America In Convention —Its Stand on Suffrage.

Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the Women's Trade Union League, now in convention in New York, spoke as follows at the opening session:

"Since 1903, from the beginning of its organization, the National Women's Trade Union League of America has stood for full citizenship for women, and early in its history the [illegible] declared in favor of political equality for women. This is natural, for the workers who are trying to better the conditions for the men and women, for the boys and girls, for the little children in the labor world know that the industrial question is going to be fought out in the field of politics. The question of hours of work, of sanitation, of fire protection, the police power used in times of strike against the workers, the hiring of private police, the issuing of injunctions, the decisions of courts, all these represent questions of government.

There are two great exploited groups of labor in America today, the immigrant group and the women's group. Let us go into any industrial city of America and there look for the most exploited group of workers, and where do we go? Into the foreign centers of the city. Only the immigrant can compete in the low wage with American women. Is there any relationship to be found in the fact that both the immigrant and the woman are disenfranchised?

Wherever the industrial struggle has been keenest and wherever there has taken place an assault upon the fundamental principles of our government and the charter liberties of the people, there we find that the workers in overwhelming numbers represent foreigners who are not citizens. It is dangerous to any government, and especially is this true of a democracy, to have any group of people living within its borders outside of the responsibilities and duties of citizenship."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Miss Dunn," said the doctor, holding the anonymous letter that had been sent to her in his hand, "it seems that I have come to be such a plague in the social world that I have but to speak to a woman to make her the target for all sorts of disagreeable missiles."

"Don't worry about me," said Olive, light-heartedly. "I never received an anonymous letter before, and it really is giving me an unusual thrill. I am unlike most girls, in that unusual experiences are very interesting. If I can call down the wrath of some half-insane woman by riding to the drug store for medicine for a sick baby, that is a safe and easy way to take to the land of the unusual. So put my sufferings out of mind for I haven't any."

"If what you say is true I am going to presume upon it, and ask you to take a real ride with me sometime soon. I want to see if the thing is going to be followed up, or if that one warning is to be the end. Then it will pay to watch the length of time it requires to get the letter here, if there is to be one. All that will help solve the mystery."

"I have an investigating turn of mind and am willing to find out what the vials of wrath would contain for me if I took the ride," replied Olive.

Nell's baptism of fire was so recent that she urged Olive not to go anywhere with the doctor.

"Really, Olive, that woman is dangerous. There is nothing she would hesitate to do to carry her point. She is so nearly insane that she would commit murder. Experience can be bought too dear."

"You dear, timid little thing," laughed Olive, "you can't understand that the element of uncertainty, of danger you would call it, has a lure for me. A conventional life is so tame; here's a harmless path leading to adventure; if the doctor were not a fine character the victim of his former wife's insane jealousy, of course it would be out of the question. But he is jolly and likable. It is something not to be bored; that plus the undercurrent of mystery is——"

Nell shuddered. "You are right, but I prefer safe ways. If you had ever seen Mrs. Ellison's malignant black eyes you would dodge any path that would bring you up against her."

"I own I prefer to have my communications with her by mail, to have her the veiled lady of the plot; it's much more exciting." Olive's eyes sparkled and a fine color was in her face.

"Perhaps it's a matter of having no strength, not a question of timidity," thought Nell, as she watched the free, strong movements of her friend as she went about dusting the living room.

"You go along for a little air, Nell. You need reviving, you poor wilted little rose." Olive stooped and kissed her. "Now that baby is so much better, can't the maid take care of him for an hour or two?"

"Possibly. I'd go if Dick went along, too; there surely could be no objection to that."

"That's worth finding out, too. I am a born investigator."

"Of course we'll go," answered Dick, when told about the ride. "Anything to get the roses back in Nell's face. She must have a ride every day. I am going to make arrangements about it. Air in large doses is the doctor's prescription."

"Are you going to take me in a wheelbarrow?" laughed Nell.

"No, in a livery rig."

"There's no livery stable here, is there?" asked Olive.

"No, but I have found a man with a carriage for rent, and the horse is safe for Nell to drive," announced Dick triumphantly.

Household Hints

THE TABLE

Bread Crumb and Egg Omelet—Put a cupful of finely chopped bread crumbs into a bowl, pour over them two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk; when crumbs are thoroughly moistened stir with spoon until it is smooth and free from lumps. Add the yolks of two eggs, beating into bread one at a time, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites, also a little salt; pour into a well buttered baking dish; bake in moderate oven until well set.

Mock Sweetbread Patties—One pint of small oyster crackers, lump of butter size of walnut; cover with boiling water; let soak a few minutes. Put frying pan on stove; put a little butter in it and brown slightly; to this add cracker and mushrooms, from one small can; stir slightly; when browned a little add juice from mushrooms, and to this add cup of thick white sauce and a little cream; let get very hot and pour into pattie shells; salt and pepper to taste.

Macaroni Loaf — Three-quarters macaroni, one cup cream or milk, four level teaspoons of butter, one tablespoon of red or green peppers chopped, one cup grated cheese, one tablespoon of onion juice, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, three eggs, one tablespoon salt. Cook macaroni in usual way. Scald cream, add to this one cup bread crumbs, butter, salt, peppers, cheese, parsley, onion juice, beaten eggs and macaroni. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper, pour in the mixture, set pan on many folds of paper in pan of water, place in moderate oven, and bake from half to three-quarters of an hour. Turn out on deep platter and serve with tomato sauce. Sauce: Two teaspoons butter, two tablespoons of flour, one-half teaspoon salt (scant), one cup stewed and strained tomatoes, slice of onion, one-half teaspoon capers, three cloves. Brown butter and flour separate, then combine, add salt and pepper, cook tomatoes with slice of onion, then remove onion, add tomatoes slowly to flour and butter, cook thoroughly and add capers and cloves or these may be omitted. Pour over loaf and serve very hot. This seems a lot of trouble but it pays, for it is delicious and just as good next day for luncheon as any meat dish.

Date Mush—One pint corn meal, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoonful flour, one pint cold milk, one-half pound dates chopped. Cook in double boiler one hour, the evening before, while getting dinner or doing up the dinner dishes. If too thick add a little hot water. In the morning reheat in double boiler.

Breakfast Eggs—Should never be boiled. A thin shell of white is made hard and indigestible, while the bulk of the egg is barely warmed through. The following is a better way: Put six into a vessel that will hold two quarts. Fill with boiling water, cover closely and set away from the fire for six or eight minutes, forty minutes for hard boiled. Crumple a napkin in a hot dish and serve eggs in its folds.

Escalloped Fish—Remnants of cold boiled or baked fish, freed from skin and bones. Put alternate layers of mashed potatoes and fish, seasoned with butter, pepper and salt, pour one cup of milk over, cover with bread crumbs and bake half an hour.

Whole Wheat Bread—Three cups whole wheat flour, one-quarter cup sugar, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one small spoonful salt. Mix all the drys together, add two cups sweet milk and one beaten egg. Bake one hour and a quarter in a slow oven.

Lettuce and Onion Sandwiches—Slice whole wheat bread thin; butter before slicing—lay on tender lettuce leaves, then add very thin onion shavings. Spread on thick mayonnaise dressing, then trim the edges. Save waste pieces for croutons.

Tuna Fish Salad—Lay crisp lettuce on individual salad plates. Lay on the fish without breaking up too finely. Garnish with walnut meats, slices of stuffed olives and a section of lemon. Add French dressing.

Pineapple Tapioca—Soak one cup pearl tapioca several hours. Drain, place in double boiler and add three-fourths quart of boiling water. Season with salt and one cup of sugar. When well thickened add one cup of shredded pineapple. Cook a few minutes, let cool, chill in refrigerator, then serve in sherbet cups.

Baked Chipped Beef and Potatoes—One-fourth pound chipped beef, one small onion, one cup cold cooked potatoes, one-half cup milk, scant teaspoonful butter, pepper to taste. Freshen the beef by pouring hot water over it, drain and pass through food chopper. Chop potatoes and onion and add to beef. Place in a small baking dish, add milk and butter, dust with pepper and bake until brown. This amount makes three servings. It is a good and inexpensive luncheon dish, resembling cornbeef hash in taste.

BRYAN'S RESIGNATION

use. In severing the intimate and pleasant relations which have existed between us during the past two years, permit me to acknowledge the profound satisfaction which it has given me to be associated with you in the important work which has come before the State Department and to thank you for the courtesies extended. With the heartiest good wishes for your personal welfare and for the success of your administration I am, my dear Mr. President,

"Very truly yours,
"W. J. BRYAN."

In reply the President wrote.

"My dear Mr. Bryan:

"I accept your resignation only because you insist upon its acceptance and I accept it with much more than deep regret, with a feeling of personal sorrow. Our two years of close association have been very delightful to me. Our judgments have accorded in practically every matter of official duty and of public policy until now. Your support of the work and purposes of the administration has been generous and loyal beyond praise. Your devotion to the duties of your great office and your eagerness to take advantage of every great opportunity for service it offered have been an example to the rest of us. You have earned our affectionate admiration and friendship. Even now we are not separated in the object we seek, but only in the method by which we seek it. It is for these reasons that my feeling about your retirement from the Secretaryship of State goes so much deeper than regret. I sincerely deplore it. Our objects are the same and we ought to pursue them together. I yield to your desire only because I must and wish to bid you God-speed in the parting. We shall continue to work for the same causes even when we do not work in the same way." With affectionate regard,

"Sincerely yours,
"WOODROW WILSON."

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11, 1910.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof the supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

BURGLARIES VS. FIRES.

During the year 1914, there were many more burglaries than fires. It is therefore just as essential to carry Burglary Insurance as it is to carry Fire Insurance.

We received a greater number of burglary claims during 1914 than during any other year in the history of this agency.

MISS WHEELER A CHARMING BRIDE

Becomes the Wife of Ralph O. Martin at Attractive Home Ceremony.

A RECEPTION FOLLOWS

Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Warren Chapel, Officiates—The Bride's Attendants—Claude W. Elphee, of Auburn, N. Y., Is Best Man.

Miss Edith Esther Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler, of Mountain avenue, the borough, and Ralph O. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Leland avenue, this city, were married at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, performed the ceremony in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends from this city, Asbury Park, Manasquan, New York, New Brunswick, Westfield and Roselle.

The ceremony was performed beneath a bower of daisies, palms, ferns and oak leaves. The entire first floor of the home was decorated with daisies, the color scheme being green and white.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ida M. Wheeler, as maid-of-honor, and Claude W. Elphee, of Auburn, N. Y., was the best man. Ruth Wheeler, also a sister of the bride, was the flower girl, and the ushers were Lawrence French and Henry Kinney, of the borough.

The bride was gowned in crepe meteor, en train. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The maid-of-honor wore a gown of pink crepe de chine and carried an armful of pink roses. The flower girl wore white batiste trimmed with lace and ribbons. As the bridal party entered the parlors, the guests took up a long daisy chain, forming an aisle through which it passed. Two rings were used in the ceremony and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding march was played by A. G. Squier, an uncle of the bride, and was accompanied on the violin by B. A. Paroubek.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, during which the bride and bridegroom were showered with congratulations. An elaborate wedding supper was served. The dining-room was attractively decorated, streamers extending from the chandelier to the four corners of the table, in the centre of which was a large wedding cake.

Early in the evening the couple left on a honeymoon trip and upon their return will reside with the bridegroom's parents for the present. The bride received a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends. She is a graduate of the North Plainfield High School, Class '12, and since her graduation has been in the employ of L. W. Randolph, the druggist. Mr. Martin is engaged in business in New York as a bookkeeper. Both the bride and bridegroom are active in the work at Warren chapel, the latter having just joined the chapel as a member.

A CORRECTION.

Through an error, it was stated in the Daily Press last night, that St. Mary's T. A. B. Society had engaged Columbus Hall for a "Ladies' Night" affair tonight. The T. A. B.'s have not engaged Columbus Hall, neither have they plans for any affair this evening, as the members have all planned to attend the scholarship euchre to be held in St. Mary's School hall under the auspices of St. Mary's Holy Name Society. The usual "Ladies' Night" gathering held by the T. A. B. Society generally takes place on Wednesday evenings, but are always held in T. A. B. Hall.

TALES OUT OF SCHOOL.

Mrs. Emma Firnal, of Cottage place, asked Judge DeMeza to summon Jimmy Moran, of St. Mary's avenue, to court tomorrow, because Jimmy told some one that Emma had two husbands, which she stoutly maintained was not true. Jimmy will be in court tomorrow morning, to explain his end of the case, if the police can find him.

TOLD TO BE GOOD.

Arthur Lowden, of Watchung avenue, was brought before Judge DeMeza in police court this morning, charged with being incorrigible, riding freight trains and refusing to work and help support his mother. Judge DeMeza told him to find a job and behave himself, or he would be put in charge of the probation officer.

TRIAL ON MONDAY.

The case against Walter Smith and Thomas Mullin, charged with disorderly conduct on Front street, yesterday, when brought before Judge DeMeza this morning, was postponed until Monday next, both men pleading not guilty.

ANNUAL PORTRAYAL OF INDIAN LEGEND

Spectacular Outdoor Show to Be Given on Mountainside at Watchung.

The fifth annual portrayal of The Indian Legend of Watchung will be held on the mountainside at Watchung, tomorrow and Saturday nights, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. This portrayal is characterized as a "Real Indian Show," with a realistic battle between white men and Indians and burning captives at the stake; also exciting war and scalp dances, concluding with "The Burying of the Hatchet," and the Indian wedding of the chief and princess.

Arrangements have been made for an auto bus service to and from the grounds and the trolleys also pass the place of entrance. Parking space is also reserved for automobiles. The patronesses for the affair are as follows:

Senator and Mrs. W. W. Smalley, Mr. and Mrs. George LaMonte, of Bound Brook; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan; Assemblyman and Mrs. W. N. Runyon, Mrs. Frank C. Ard, Mrs. W. M. Power, Mrs. Arthur B. Jones, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. F. deLacy Hyde, Mrs. Morris Benton, Mrs. Isaac P. Runyon, Mrs. Henry C. Krebs, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. Frank Rowley, Mrs. D. NEWSBOYS' LICENSE FAVORED BY THE BOYS

So Says Frank Wagner, One of the City's Biggest Newsdealers.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the possibility of providing an annual license for newsboys and several Plainfield newspaper dealers have personally investigated the proposition. The opposition arising from various quarters when Councilman Hylan presented his ordinance Monday night has been somewhat overshadowed during the past two days by the words of commendation from those who would probably be affected by the enactment of such an ordinance.

Frank Wagner, of North avenue, one of the city's biggest dealers in newspapers, has taken an individual interest in the matter and at the conclusion of a careful survey of the possible results has come to the conclusion that it would not only be a good thing, but that the fixing of such municipal legislation is becoming more urgent every day. In speaking of the ordinance to a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mr. Wagner said:

"If we don't put this thing through now we'll have to do it at some time in the near future and I can see no reason for delay. Contrary to the general belief, the ordinance would be a good thing for the newsboys. In fact, the boys themselves are hearty advocates of the plan and this talk about my boys or any other newsdealer's boys refusing to pay the annual fee specifiedd in the ordinance is 'tommy-rot.' The boys have spoken to me themselves and a majority are in favor of fixing a yearly license fee of $2 or $3 instead of the fifty cents, thereby protecting themselves against 'fly-by-day' sellers who invade their territory only when something unusual happens and the Metropolitan papers have 'scare heads.' We have been troubled lately by the practice of men and boys coming to Plainfield on Sunday afternoons and other days when something 'big' occurs."

The "invaders" mentioned by Mr. Wagner have also caused the police considerable trouble and Chief Kiely announced only last Sunday that he intended to take radical action to have the practice stopped on Sundays. Councilman C. C. Graves announced today that as soon as possible a public hearing on the proposed ordinance would be arranged for by the City Council for the purpose of getting a free expression of opinion.

RENEW FIGHT FOR FAIR MILLIONS

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs Lose Appeal.

APPLICATION DENIED

Nephews and Nieces of Mrs. Fair Will Now Try to Get What They Claim is Proportionate Share of Large Estate.

The famous Fair will case, which has involved local people and which has cropped up in a different form at various intervals for nearly twelve years, again came into notice yesterday, when Justice Gavegan, in the Supreme Court of New York, handed down a decision against Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, refusing to dismiss on their pleading the suits brought by Mrs. Mabel E. Towle and Edward, George and Theodore Leffler, niece and nephews of Mrs. Charles L. Fair. The judge's action is a decided setback for Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs, sisters of Mr. Fair, and the legal battel for a share of the $10,000,000 estate will in all probability be prosecuted with renewed vigor on the part of Mrs. Fair's heirs. It is possible, however, that the two sisters will take an appeal from Justice Gavegan's decision, placing the present contention in another channel.

The verdict of yesterday means that the matter of the tragic deaths of Charles L. Fair and his wife, in France, in 1903, still fresh in the minds of a majority of Plainfielders, will be gone into by the Supreme Court of New York, with a view to determine whether or not Mr. or Mrs. Fair were residents of that State or of California at the time they were killed by their automobile colliding with a tree in France and as to

BODY FOUND NOT THAT OF A. G. VANDERBILT

Dispatches From Ireland Told of It Having Drifted Ashore on Coast.

London, June 10.—The representatives here of the Vanderbilt family received word from Queenstown this afternoon that the body recovered on the coast of County Clare, last night, was not that of Alfred G. Vanderbilt. The earlier information that Mr. Vanderbilt's body had been found was contained in a message to a local news agency.

The report that the body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who lost his life when the Cunard liner Lusitania was sunk, was found at Point Doolin, on the coast of County Clare, Ireland, gained wide circulation this morning, both here and in New York. The corpse was alleged to have been identified by a gold watch which bore the initials of Mr. Vanderbilt, and also by papers which, although water soaked, were said to be sufficiently decipherable to reveal the identity of the owner.

A body was found by an old woman who was collecting seaweed on the coast. The authorities were notified at once and took charge of the remains, later discovering it was not that of Mr. Vanderbilt, for which there is a reward of $5,000.

MAYOR GIVES FEES FROM OFFICE TO CHILDREN'S HOME

Mayor Calkins today forwarded to the Children's Home a check for $11 which he received from City Clerk MacMurray in connection with the signing of licenses in the city. This is the only fee which the Mayor receives in addition to his salary of $300 a year. He has held the check for some time trying to decide on the most worthy charity to which he could forward it.

HELD FOR BICYCLE THEFT.

Thomas Moore, of South Second street, partook of the cup that cheers yesterday, and helped himself to a bicycle belonging to Thomas Duffy, that was in the yard back of the Queen City Hotel. Isaac Goldberg, of Liberty street, bought the wheel from Moore, and the police soon traced it. Moore was brought before Judge DeMeza, this morning. As he has a wife and three months' old child the court decided to hold him until next Wednesday morning, to see in the meantime if the case cannot be adjusted. Moore served five months once before.

BOSCH MAGNETO CO. SEEK PROTECTION

Want Rushmore to Furnish Bond to Safeguard Concern Against Suits.

Before Vice Chancellor Backes in the Court of Chancery at Newark, this morning, argument was made in the action brought by the Bosch Magneto Company, of this city, against Samuel W. Rushmore, the former owner of the plant, to compel the latter to furnish a satisfactory bond of $100,000 to protect the plaintiffs from patent infringement suits. Carl L. Schurz, son of the late Carl Schurz, of the firm of McCarter & English, appeared for the plaintiffs, while Mr. Rushmore was represented by John M. Dickinson, of Trenton. At the conclusion of argument, Vice Chancellor Backes reserved his decision and ordered both sides to submit briefs.

The proceedings of this morning are the result of threatened litigation against the Bosch Company by the Bijour Motor Lighting Company, on the basis of infringement. Mr. Rushmore sold the plant on South avenue to the Bosch concern for $750,000, to be paid in three installments of $250,000 each. The first payment was made on May 20 last, the second on July 2 and third on July 10. In the agreement of sale it was stated that at the last payment Mr. Rushmore was to furnish a bond for $100,000, guaranteeing that in the event of any infringement suits he would become the defendant in place of the Bosch people. Mr. Rushmore submitted a bond, but it was not satisfactory and at the present time the Bosch Company claims that it is unprotected.

It was brought out at the hearing this morning that shortly after the sale of the factory had been made, the Bijour Company claimed that certain patents for sparkers, issued to Joseph Bijour, were being infringed by the Bosch Company under the Rushmore rights. But while no suit was started by the Bijours one is threatened and it is to protect itself from this and any others that might arise that the Bosch concern asks that Mr. Rushmore be compelled to furnish a sufficiency bond.

FAMILY SLEEPS WHILE HOUSE ROOF IS ABLAZE

A passerby on East Fourth street shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, discovered flames on the roof of a house on that thoroughfare numbered 311. After rousing the only tenants, a Mrs. Schiff and her five children, who occupy the first floor, he turned in an alarm from box 21. The firemen found it necessary to lay in a hydrant stream but quickly put out the blaze. The damage will amount to about $200, covered by insurance. The premises are owned by Nathan Meyer & Sons.

What caused the fire is a mystery, although the belief exists that it resulted from locomotive sparks, the house being only a short distance from the railroad. The flames had gained considerable headway when discovered, but did not effect Mrs. Schiff and her children, owing to the fact that they were so far above them.

WILLIAM HALL CAMPBELL WEDS MISS MABEL RAPER

Miss Mabel C. Raper, daughter of Mrs. Anne C. Raper, of Bayside, L. I., and William Hall Campbell, of North Plainfield, were married yesterday afternoon in All Saints' Episcopal church, Bayside. Rev. Charles A. Brown, rector of the church, officiated. Miss Raper was gowned in a dress of white taffeta and wore a tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The couple were unattended. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother in Warburton avenue.

The wedding yesterday was the culmination of a romance that began when Miss Raper entered the employ of a chemical importing company of which Mr. Campbell was president. Her engagement to Mr. Campbell was announced privately after she had been employed in the office about a year. Her friends had no intimation of the approaching marriage until she began to prepare her trousseau. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in the borough.

SALE OF PROPERTY APPROVED.

The members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, at a meeting last night, endorsed the action of a special committee recommending the sale of this property on Grove street to Temple Sholem. The transfer will be made shortly. The association elected four new members last night.

MEMORY LAPSES WOMAN'S ALIBI

"I Don't Remember," Frequently Used On Stand in Perjury Trial.

STOCKTON CONFUSED

Case Probably Will Go to Jury Late This Afternoon—Prosecutor Strives to Get Vanderhoof Testimony at Former Trial in Evidence.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Elizabeth, June 10—Admitting under cross-questioning that she was subject to frequent lapses of memory and that her examiner's words played havoc with her mental condition, Mrs. Florence E. Roundey made an unfavorable impression on many in a courtroom full of spectators here this morning, before Judge Jomes C. Connolly, when she took the stand as a witness in her own behalf on a charge involving perjury. Repeated use of the alibi, "I don't remember," aroused the ire of Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein. Only in a few instances did the witness commit herself and the major portion of her testimony dealt with generalties and was given in a trembling, quaking voice. Her attitude resembled that which has characterized the woman during previous litigation and despite her nervousness when confronted with technicalities she appeared to be possessed of a remarkable degree of confidence.

Ashen, quivering and quick of speech, Richard Stockton, formerly employed by Mrs. Roundey as chief legal adviser, succeeded the woman on the witness stand. Knowledge of New Jersey law gained during twenty-fours years' legal practice in this State, apparently suddenly deserted the former United States Commissioner and the usual transformation

FOUGHT FOR PERMISSION TO USE MOTHER'S PIANO

His desire to pound the ivories on his mother's piano resulted in Elmer Probasco, colored, being before Judge DeMeza, this morning. Elmer's mother evidently did not like his style of "ragging" for she gave the key to the piano to Thomas Douglas, who lives in the same house, with instructions that the piano be kept locked. Elmer wanted Thomas to unlock the piano, and the discussion over the matter became so hot that Elmer's sister 'phoned for the police. Officer Welsh went to the house, and told both men to appear in court this morning. Elmer promised not to let his desire to be musical get the best of his temper in the future, and the Judge let both men go. The parties live on South Second street.

WILSON NOTE FIRM BUT FRIENDLY

Sets No Time Limit Within Which Germany Is Expected to Reply.

FRENCH HOLD POSITION

Efforts to Move Them at Neuville and Arras Ineffective—More Trawlers Sunk—Two German Submarines Damaged.

Washington, June 10.—Reports that the note to Germany contained any time limit in which reply would be expected were officially declared today to be without foundation. It was also denied that the note contained threats of any sort or that reprisals were contemplated or hinted at in the document. The note, which will be given out late this afternoon for publication in the papers of tomorrow morning, is said to be firm, but altogether friendly in tone.

Paris, June 10.—Following the French occupation of Neuville St. Vaast, north of Arras, the Germans opened a violent bombardment of the town, according to an official communique issued by the French War Office today. The cannonade was unsuccessful, for the French maintained all their new positions.

South of Arras efforts of the Germans to dislodge the French from their newly acquired ground in the region of Hebuterne all failed. The Germans made a determined effort to recapture the Souchez sugar factory, last night, but failed. The artillery operation at Neuville were not accompanied by any infantry attacks by the Germans. At Hebuterne the French gains extended over a front of 1,800 metres.

We have taken an important position there, which was evacuated by the enemy."

Constantinople, June 10 (via Berlin).—Two thousand French and English soldiers were killed by Turks in a battle near Avi Burnu on the night of June 5-6, according to reports received from the front.

CLAIMS SAURER MOTOR COMPANY UNDERPAID HIM

Michael Catlic, who was employed at the Saurer Motor Truck Works until yesterday morning, went back in the afternoon to demand $80.68 which he claimed was coming to him. When the officials at the works tried to explain that he would have to wait until certain bonuses were figured before it could be determined whether he had any money coming, he became abusive, and the police were called in. Patrolman Welsh went to the factory and put Catlic out of the plant. Later he went back, and when Welsh returned he arrested the man. This morning, Catlic told Judge DeMeza that he would put his claim in the hands of his lawyer and keep away from the Saurer plant.

RACE BETWEEN TWO TEAMS OF GEESE

Real "Honkers" and Not Quacks to Be Seen at the Coming "Gymkana."

Tho Jim thought his girl a Diana
And loved her to thump the piano,
He felt 'twould be rash
To blow in his cash
In this way,—so answered,
"Jim canna!"

Among the varied collection of spectacular sports for the coming "Gymkana" on the 19th of June will be a unique race between two opposing teams of geese. These birds, which we are creditably informed are descendants of the celebrated flock that saved Rome, have been carefully trained for the occasion, and have developed honks that tame an automobile claxon to a mere whisper, while the webs of their feet give that solid footing on the ground for which Jersey men are famous. Preliminary trials show them to be evenly matched, and odds being little one way or the other and the time being excellent.

As the "Goose Girl," who originally tended these geese has, according to the latest movies, married a prince, their care and training, for the time at least, has been in charge of one of Plainfield's well known physicians, who has "Hughesed" his material to the best advantage.

The committee would remind those who intend visiting the "Gymkana" that these geese are real honkers, and bear no relation to the cheap variety of quacks seen elsewhere. Don't miss this anserine display.

SAYS HE WAS ASSAULTED BY TWO MEN AT STATION

Berkeley Heights, June 10.—Michael A. Miano and Charles Monica were given a hearing last night by Justice of the Peace O. C. Henderson on charges of assault preferred against them by Joseph Von Anda, seventeen years old, a student in Carlton Academy, Summit, who resides in the bungalow colony here with his mother.

Von Anda alleges that the two men attacked him Monday at the Berkeley Heights railroad station, and, after beating him into unconsciousness, threw him on the railroad tracks. He was found later and taken to a nearby store, where he revived. He says they assaulted him because of some remarks he made at a ball game here last Saturday.

MAKING CAPITAL.

The New Reporter (going to the telephone and ostentatiously starting the machinery).—Hello, Central! Let me have 2745 C, please. (A pause). You giddy little thing! No. I said twen-ty-seven. Twenty-sev——. Hello! Is that 2745 C? Is Mr. Sawgertees Devoy in the office? Will you tell him that Mr. Jefferson McAddister would like to speak with him? Yes, that's the name, McAddister, journalist.

(The other reporters listen in awe-struck silence.)

The New Reporter.—Is this really Mr. Devoy? My name is——. Ah, you recognize my voice? You perhaps remember that I interviewed you yesterday. What's that? Best report? Oh, thank you! You're very kind. I tried to make it so. Has anything turned up in regard to that case since noon? Well, sorry to trouble you. Eh? Dinner? You're extremely kind. At Sherry's? What? And a bottle? (Surging interest in the entire staff.) It's awfully kind of you. Well, say Tuesday, at eight. But really I——

Genevieve (proudly).—Well, I was the one ahead, anyway!

CONSTITUTIONAL.

"I took a long walk yesterday," said Boreman, as he collapsed into a seat at Busyman's desk.

"Take another, old man," suggested Busyman; "it'll do us both good."

SANCTUM PLEASANTRY.

"So this is your idea of wit, eh?" said the editor, as he read Wagg's jokes.

"Yes, it is," said Wagg.

"Well, the idea is certainly original," said the editor.

THE WINDOW.

There blushes at the window
A creamy crimson rose,
And just outside upon the sill
The storm-king piles his snows.

A slender glass partition,
Flowered and vined with rime,
Divides the blushing summer from
The chilly winter time.

A child with laughing features
Looks out upon the snows,
While on the sill a sparrow
Looks longing at the rose.

AN EXTREME CASE.

"Talking about people with poor memories," said the man of remarkable experiences, "the worst case of the kind I ever knew was a man

Auntie.—And how was mamma dressed at the party, Tottie?

Tottie.—W'y, she had a pitty, w'ite long, short dwess——

Auntie.—But, dear, how could it be both long and short?

Tottie.—W'y, it was long at the bottom and short at the top!

ART AND NATURE.

The sheep upon the sloping green
Goes "Ba-a-a" on nimble feet;
The cow goes "Moo-o-o" up on the scene
With clover bright and sweet.

The dog goes "Bow-wow" all the day
The kitty murmurs "Meow,"
The rooster in the garden way
Goes "Cock-a-doodle-do."

The duck goes "Quack, quack"—happy bird—
While swimming all elate.
Alas! I cannot spell a word
The pig to imitate.

In vain my pretty toys I seek—
Duck, sheep, and dog and cat—
For Nature's voice—they only squeal
And speak alike at that.

I think it quite ridiculous
To hear my rooster chant
Just like the hippopotamus,
The goat, and elephant.

I think these toys I like the best
To play with in the hall,
Should go like Nature when they're pressed
Or never go at all.

BURGLARIES VS. FIRES.

During the year 1914, there were many more burglaries than fires. It is therefore just as essential to carry Burglary Insurance as it is to carry Fire Insurance.

We received a greater number of burglary claims during 1914 than during any other year in the history of this agency.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Edmund Breese, famous dramatic actor, who has a list of Broadway successes to his credit as long as his forefinger, will appear in a stirring photo-drama based on the epic poem, "The Shooting of Dan M'Grew," by Robert Serviss, at the U. S. Astor Theatre this afternoon and tonight. It is a tale of the rugged Jack London type, the action occurring in the Northland where men fight with knives or pistols at the drop of a hat.

"The Shooting of Dan M'Grew" is familiar to all lovers of the compelling variety of poetry Mr. Serviss wrote. It was his masterpiece. He devoted four months to the verses which have been more widely read, probably, than any other poem of the kind ever written.

The photo-play pictures several exquisite views in Alaska and other Northern countries. The pictorial work is beyond question the best the Metro Company has ever done. Of course, Edmund Breese will dominate the action throughout the picture.

In addition to this splendid film, several topnotch comedies and dramas will be shown together with other pictures of high educational merit.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PARADE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 10—The annual parade of the Sunday-schools of the Protestant churches of Brooklyn brought out today fully 50,000 children. Children's Day has been celebrated by similar parades here for over half a century.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Plainfield lovers of motion pictures were impressed with the initial appearance here of William Farnum, the $100,000 screen star, who is appearing in the leading role in the picture, "The Plunderer," picturized from Roy Norton's romantic novel, which began a two-day engagement at Proctor's Theatre, yesterday afternoon and night. Both in the lighter and in the intense situations he displays individual talent and his work stands out prominently throughout the five acts.

In addition to "The Plunderer," which will be seen today, the Paramount Picture Company will present the five-act photo-play feature, "The Bargain," featuring William S. Hart in the leading role, that of "Jim Stokes," the "Two-gun Man." William S. Hart, the famous Broadway favorite on the legitimate stage, excells himself in the silent drama, playing a role that abounds with situations demanding daring and courageous acting.

Tomorrow afternoon and night, the powerful story enthrallingly unfolded in "The Clemenceau Case," the most powerful of Dumas' work, will be flashed on the screen. No more powerful sermon was ever preached; no more vivid, pulsating drama ever written; no more wonderful photo-play, than "The Clemenceau Case," as picturized for William Fox, and starring Theda Bara, "The Vampire Woman," has ever been beheld upon the screen. Like a mighty river the story of the drama rushes strong and swift to its cataclysmic climax. Passions are flare and wills clash throughout the production in a way that grips the spectator, holding him breathless in his chair till the last great scene is reached and the well-nigh overwhelming story of "The Clemenceau Case" is brought to its tremendous end. Theda Bara, the beautiful and brilliantly talented leading woman of the Playhouse of Thrills, and the Theatre Antoine, Paris, has never been seen, not even in her famous role of the "Vampire Woman" in the celebrated William Fox production, "A Fool There Was," to better advantage than in the Fox Film Corporation's picture-play based on Dumas' novel, "The Clemenceau Case." This film drama is peculiarly fitted to the display of Miss Bara's genius at its superb test. The character of Iza, the beautiful woman with the basilisk soul, whose diversion is luring men on to love, to ruin, affords her an opportunity to give a rendition of this most remarkable part ever written that will scorch the memories of her spectators like a living flame.

Beside the above the succeeding episode of "The Exploits of Elaine" will be shown and several one and two reel comedies. Saturday's program includes the five part picturization of Jacques Futrelle's famous novel, "The High Hand," an inspiring romance of love, politics, capital and labor, and features Carlyle Blackwell in the leading role; the next installment of "The Goddess" and the Paramount Travel series, "The Reprisal" and "When Cameron Passed By."

Plainfield, N. J., June 10, 1915.

In a communication to the Daily Press on Tuesday, George H. Goddard urged Plainfielders to keep a record of delayed letters received in this city from New York. Thus is the complaint regarding mail delivery heard again. The Daily Press has called attention at different times to conditions in the postal service that should not be, and every time such complaint has been made Postmaster Hoagland has assured us that nothing needed correction in this city that could not be satisfactorily explained. Still the complaint is universal. Only a few days ago a letter was placed in a box on Watchung avenue at 11 o'clock in the morning, and was postmarked out of Plainfield at 8 o'clock the next morning. Two letters were placed in a street box, both addressed to different members of the same family at the same address. One letter was delivered in the afternoon, and the other on the morning delivery of the second day. A letter was postmarked on a Saturday afternoon addressed to a Plainfielder in the center of the city. It was one of several hundred sent under first class letter postage, and was important as it called attention to a gathering the following Wednesday night. The addressee received it on Thursday morning! It is all well enough to say that mistakes are made in "the best regulated business," but when they become so frequent as to call for repeated comment by the general public, it is time that conditions were corrected.

Never before in the history of the country has there been such a response to mob rule as in the case of Leo M. Frank, who lost his appeal for life, after having been convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, the Atlanta factory girl. From one end of the country to the other, outside of the State of Georgia, the people of the United States have become convinced that his trial was a mere travesty on justice, and that he is not guilty of the murder of which he was accused. He was convicted on the testimony of an irresponsible negro of the worst character, and impartial investigators have found that there was not the slightest testimony to fix the crime on him. Even the judge who tried the case, now dead, said that there was grave doubt in his mind as to the guilt of the man who must now pay with his life for a crime that he stoutly maintains he did not commit. If Frank goes to the chair the vast majority of the people of the nation will brand the state of Georgia as one where mob rule dominates, and where an honest trial cannot be had. It is a terrible situation, showing that human life is held very cheaply in the state most directly concerned.

Charles R. Bostwick, head of the manual training department of the local public schools, in securing the principalship of the Manual Training School at Honolulu, again brings credit upon the public schools of this city. No doubt the best men in the United States were considered for the position which Mr. Bostwick has secured, and the high state of efficiency to which he has brought the work here proves that no mistake has been made by his new employers. Mr. Bostwick will take with him the best wishes of hundreds of friends in this city, who will rejoice in the fact that although we are losing his services he is taking up a work that has even greater possibilities than would be the case in Plainfield.

The Playground Commission has decided to hold a monster Fourth of July celebration at Parker Field, and is soliciting contributions from the public to pay the bill. It is much better to have a splendid joint celebration, than to have a few poor fireworks in scattered sections, and it is to be hoped that our citizens will view it in this light and give to the Playground Commission the money that they would individually spend for the purpose. Subscriptions may be sent to the Daily Press office, and will be promptly forwarded to the proper authorities.

One of the best things ever done by the Board of Freeholders was their refusal to raise the salaries of the members of the County Board of Elections. For the amount of work required $200 would be an ample amount, and they are overpaid at the present figure.

The latest note to Germany will be made public tomorrow morning at the latest. It seems to us that entirely too much of the "good stuff" in connection with this war is being released for the morning papers.

City Collector William R. Townsend's hundreds of friends are delighted to learn that he is at last on the road to recovery, following complications which developed after an operation for appendicitis.

MISS GERTRUDE NELSON BRIDE OF EDW. BREMMER

Miss Gertrude Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson, of Oak Tree road, South Plainfield, and Edward Bremmer, of Plainfield, were married at 8 o'clock last night at the Marconnier Reformed church, Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, the pastor, officiating. There were guests present from New York, Paterson, Passaic, Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield and South Plainfield.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with lilies of the valley and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, and was attended by Miss Ada VanWinkle, of Paterson, as bridesmaid. John Bremmer, of Newark, a nephew of the bridegroom, was the best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where supper was served and congratulations extended to the couple. Mrs. Bremmer received a large collection of gifts. After a trip the couple will reside on Terrill road, this city.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Owing to the unusual opportunity afforded by the presentation of Greek drama in English, preserving all the traditions and spirit of the original and yet presented in a manner to be intensely interesting to a modern American audience, the authorities of Princeton University have made special arrangements whereby school children of New Jersey are to be admitted at a special price.

The Lillah McCarthy-Granville Barker season of plays at the Eastern universities has been successful beyond all expectations and the interest of school children made necessary an extra performance in New York. This will not be possible at Princeton and so every effort is being bent to accommodate at the two regular performances the pupils and teachers who will come from adjoining cities. This is made possible by the enormous seating capacity of the Palmer Memorial Stadium. Special seats have been set aside to the properly accredited pupils. The time of the play is as follows: "Iphigenia In Tauris," tomorrow afternoon at 4:30, "The Trojan Women," Saturday morning at 10:30.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the 'For Sale" ads.

PLAINFIELD AIRDOME

Charles E. Van Loan's famous story of "Buckshot John," featuring Hobart Bosworth and an all star cast received favorable comment on every side at its presentation at the Plainfield Airdome, yesterday afternoon and night. The performance will be repeated this afternoon and evening.

Tomorrow the popular open air auditorium will feature Mary Pickford in Daniel Frohman's presentation of "Mistress Nell," one of the greatest heroines of historic and romantic drama. The screen production is taken from the story of George C. Hazelton, Jr., and is a romance of the gallant days of knighthood, hearts and swords. In "Mistress Nell," the famous drama of the daring days of gay King Charless II, and formerly the starring vehicle of Henrietta Crosman, Mary Pickford plays the title role, that of pretty Nell Gwyn, the little favorite of the monarch of England, whose bravery and wit save her royal lover from treachery at home and abroad and free him at the same time from the toils of a designing woman, who tries to steal his heart from Nell as well as to wrest his kingdom from him to give to France. It is Louise, Duchess of Portsmouth, who undertakes this double plot, but little Nell Gwyn, the actress, cleverly sees through the plans of the siren-duchess and sets to work to protect her loved king. After angering and baffling Louise in a score of counterplots, "Mistress Nell," from a hiding place, sees the signing of certain papers, which are to place England in the hands of France if they reach their destination. This Nell determines shall never be, and in the guise of a young blade of fashion she wins the confidence of Louise, and is herself given the documents to deliver. Needless to say, the papers are never delivered, except to the King of England, together with a missive from Louise, which, intended for France's monarch, plainly reveals her duplicity. How Nell further outwits the revengeful woman and other envious enemies of her love and happiness, and wins back her royal lover's heart and trust, is dramatically developed in this dashing romance of the swashbuckling period of hearts and swords, and Miss Pickford lends a new and vivid beauty to "Mistress Nell," of whom it is said, "England would be more than a Puritan funeral without her." An excellent cast, including Owen Moore, who plays Charles II, contributes to make the play one of unusual interest and merit.

"Mistress Nell" will be repeated Saturday afternoon and night.

"Want ad publicity" means opportunity to you if you have a house to rent.

Don't forget that classified advertisements must be in by noon on Saturdays.

WHEN the people of this community, which necessarily includes the neighboring towns, come to realize that the money spent in Plainfield stays right here and keeps working day and night for the benefit of every one of us, there will be an increase in business which will make Plainfield a far more happy and prosperous place in which to live.

Many, many dollars earned right here are sent thousands of miles away to pay for goods which can be purchased more economically and satisfactorily right at home in our local stores which employ hundreds of people who live here, and spend most of their wages here.

Don't send your money out of Plainfield for things that can be bought here, and which are always just as good and in many cases better than the kind that come from a distance.

We can all be more prosperous if we will buy goods wherever possible from home merchants.

DETERMINED classified advertisers always win; and, sometimes, even the timid, try-it-once people win, too.

Hundreds are thinking as much about the inevitable home hunt as about the great war. Let your "To Let" advertising help them.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE OF KING'S DAUGHTERS MEETS

The final meeting of the year of the Brightside Circle, of King's Daughters, was held at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French, Washington avenue, yesterday afternoon. The business of the year was finished and the meeting was adjourned until September.

Mrs. R. W. Barnes led the devotional exercises and Mrs. Frank Jones, president, had charge of the usual discussion on the Book of Acts. The meeting was held on the spacious porch of the home and a social time followed the business session.

STATE COUNCIL REPORTS PROGRESS IN BOYS' WORK

Harold Tomlinson, local representative on the Y. M. C. A. State Boys Council, reports progress in all line of Y. M. C. A. work all over New Jersey. The meeting took place at Asbury Park on June fifth in the association. Twenty-six were present, including Walter Baer, of Paterson, chairman, and Hunter B. Grant, of Orange, who led the discussion. The topic of the meeting was, "Plans for Summer Activities," and a great many helpful suggestions were given as to the latest methods of conducting summer campaigns. The work of the different associations for the last three months was also discussed.

Plainfield was reported to be holding her own with all of the other associations, not only in the physical line, but also in the spiritual side of Y. M. C. A. work.

One of the most notable phases of the work has been the progress in swimming. Orange, especially, has been doing finely along this line. She has had a swimming class for boys in the last three months with 360 enrolled and 190 of them have learned to swim. All of the associations are realizing the importance of swimming. Lakewood, Madison, Passaic and Ridgewood speak of progress in swimming classes.

Passaic commented very highly upon the manner in which Herbert E. Parker, formerly of the Plainfield association, is conducting things there. Taken all in all, the work of the boys' departments all over New Jersey seems to be progressing and big hopes are being maintained that the work may prove very efficient.

RENEW FIGHT FOR MILLIONS

whether or not Mr. Fair or Mrs. Fair died first.

The courts of California sometime ago decided in favor of Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs, holding that Mrs. Fair died first, and the estate was accordingly divided between them. Henry M. T. Beckman, of New York, of counsel for Mrs. Fair's heirs, said last night, after hearing of the decision that he would move today to have the trial called at once. In the event of Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs taking an appeal it will mean a protracted delay. The defendants sought to have the case dismissed on the pleadings, calling it "frivolous" on its face. Justice Gavegan, in disposing of this plea, said the plaintiffs could not be supposed to have knowledge of the California judgment under which Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs shared the estate.

Charles L. Fair's estate was inherited from his father, Senator Charles G. Fair, of California, who divided $30,000,000 among three children. Young Fair married Caroline D. Smith, daughter of the late Mrs. Hannah Nelson, of New Market, in 1896. Some time after the marriage both Fair and his wife made wills in which each bequeathed to the other his or her property. When they were killed the question arose as to whether Mr. or Mrs. Fair died first. If the man, his estate would go to his widow's legal heirs, and if the woman, to his sisters. The coroner who examined the bodies declared that Mrs. Fair survived her husband by some minutes—that she was alive when help reached her after her husband's death. This view was not taken by the California courts where it is legally presumed Mrs. Fair died first.

Within a few months after the accident in France, the heirs of Mrs. Fair sought to recover their share of the big fortune and the numerous suits and counter suits have involved the litigants in so many ways that it has been difficult for disinterested persons to follow the proceedings. It was always supposed that a fair sized settlement was made on Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of Mrs. Fair, just previous to her death, and also on Mrs. Fair's brothers and sisters. Mrs. Towle and the Leffler boys are children of a sister of Mrs. Fair now deceased and although it is understood they secured a proportioned share of their mother's inheritance, they have clung to the contention that a larger amount was coming to them. Mrs. Towle was formerly Miss Mabel Leffler and was married in 1904 to George Whitley, a former resident of Essex street, this city. Mr. Whitley a few years ago secured a divorce and since her second marriage Mrs. Towle has been living at Manchester, New Hampshire. The brothers live at various places in this State.

Happy Days Soon

Oh, the summer days are coming,
And the bees will soon be humming;
Where the clover tops are nodding in the sun:
And the breezes will be straying
'Mongst the shadows lightly playing,
While they hover where the murmuring waters run.
The rainbow will be bending,
All its colors gladly lending
To the blossoms that are smiling at the sky:
As their perfume they are flinging
Through the sunshine and the singing,
And perhaps we'll all be happy by and by.

When the calendar discloses
June amid the dewy roses
As the robin whistles jauntily and clear:
When the moon is brightly glowing
And the silver river flowing
Sings a melody the starlight stops to hear:
Then the earth that seems so fretful
Will grow gentle and forgetful
Of the faults and follies that have made us sigh.
Summer days are drawing near us,
Once again to charm and cheer us,
And perhaps we'll all be happy by and by.

FINDS IN STRANGER HER UNKNOWN SISTER.

Live In Same Town, but Not Aware They Are Related.

Separated when babies and living over thirty years without the knowledge that the other existed, two sisters, Mrs. B. L. Ogilvie of Weston, Mass., and Mrs. Robert T. Woodruff of Squantum, Mass., have just made each other's acquaintance.

The women are the daughters of the late Frank Arrington of Salem, Mass., who died a year ago. In 1884, when Mrs. Ogilvie, then Delcie Arrington, was three years of age and her sister, Constance, thirteen months, their mother died. The father allowed the younger one to be adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Benamin Sanborn of Wellesley.

Legally adopted the baby became Alice Sanborn, and five years ago she married Robert T. Woodruff, a Lynn lawyer. Delcie lived with her father in Salem and left him to become the wife of B. L. Ogilvie, a Weston grain merchant. They have five children and the Woodruffs one.

The knowledge that Mrs. Ogilvie had a sister came to her in a peculiar manner. While on his deathbed her father was visited by his sister, who came east for the first time in twenty-three years. During her stay in Salem she casually asked Mrs. Ogilvie if she had heard anything of her sister Constance.

As her father was too sick to be asked Mrs. Ogilvie learned from her aunt the brief facts of the early separation. Then she began a long search which ended in finding the adoption papers.

One of the curious features of the case is that for a while both sisters lived in Wellesley. Before her marriage Mrs. Ogilvie worked in the same town where her sister was going to school and, though the two looked so much alike, they never met there.

GRAY CLOTH BRITISH PUZZLE.

Enormous Exports From England of Material Used Only by Germans.

England is greatly puzzled by the fact that in the three months ending March 31 British mills exported 1,277,835 yards of unbleached gray cotton cloth as compared with only 170,684 yards for the same period in 1914. Nor does the board of trade report indicate where this great quantity of gray cloth went. None of the allies uses gray cloth for uniforms, but the Germans do.

Nor is there less mystery in the circumstance that in the same three months British merchants have sold to Holland and Sweden 13,693,008 pounds of coffee as against only 3,728,704 pounds in the first quarter of last year, 11,824,825 pounds of cocoa as against 4,705,095 pounds, 6,068,535 pounds of tea against 2,037,221 pounds, 3,566,194 gallons of gasoline against only 631,803 gallons and 19,604 tons of oilseed against only 473 tons.

GETS CHECK FOR $16,150,000

With It Steel Company Receives British Order For 8,000 Cannon.

The Bethlehem Steel company has received an order for 8,000 cannon from Lord Kitchener, head of the British war office. The order was accompanied by a check for $16,150,000, partly for work already done for the British government and partly in advance for the new field pieces.

The cannon ordered are fieldpieces that can be turned out in about a month.

Shrapnel is now being turned out at Bethlehem at the rate of 12,000 shells a day, and of one pounder and smaller shells the product is 50,000 and upward every twenty-four hours.

WRIST WATCH BATTLE PERIL

Armies May Forbid Them Because Many Arms Are Lost.

The wrist watch is found in all the armies in the war, and they are very frequently hit.

When high velocity bullets strike it fairly the effect is to shatter the watch into unrecognizable fragments. These are often driven into the bones of the wrist, hand or forearm, and the resulting damage is so radical that no treatment can restore the use of the arm.

Many of these injuries have been reported in the German army, and prohibition of the wrist watch altogether is likely to be adopted.

LEAL "IRON MAN" PITCHED ALL GAMES THIS YEAR; WINNING FOUR OF ELEVEN GAMES

The Leal School baseball team has just finished a season in which eleven games were played, four of which were placed on the victory side of the list. The team was handicapped from the start with only one pitcher and Roy Voorhees, the Leal "iron man," took part in every game. The private school aggregation also lost several hard luck games, dropping four verdicts by one run margins. Two of these were interscholastic contests, both of which went for ten innings. A forfeit was claimed from the Columbia Grammar School nine, which left the field after the seventh inning with the score 5 to 4 in its favor, claiming that previous arrangements had been made to play a short game.

Besides doing all of the pitching, Voorhees proved himself to be the best slugger on the team, having a final average of .439 for the eleven games. He was at bat 41 times and was credited with 18 hits. Captain Chauncey Stewart was second with an average of .431.

Fred Dickerson leads the team in the fielding department, having a mark of .917 for 6 games played. Lawrence Schneider, who did the backstop work, took part in every game and finished with an average of .913. He had 132 chances and accepted 120 of them.

One of the peculiar facts about the season was that the outfielders had a total of only 24 chances during the entire season, which means that an average of two balls were hit to the outfield a game. Parmly, who played left field, made but one putout all season.

The results of the games follow:

ROD AND REEL

The "channel" bass reported caught along the Asbury Park section the fore part of the week turned out to be striped bass. One, the largest of the season in that section, was taken off the Deal Beach on Saturday afternoon. It weighed sixteen and a quarter pounds. Two others were taken recently at Point Pleasant, but they ran smaller in size. There was a crowd of anglers out along the beach at Allenhurst and Deal yesterday, but there was nothing doing up to dark.

Trout running is slacking up considerable. From all parts of the State north of Monmouth county comes word that very few catches are being made and the opinion seems to be that the streams have been fished out. Farmers who see the men fishing say that they never saw so many anglers on a stream as they have this year. One old chap said that if 10,000 trout had been placed in the Saddle River, as was reported, he himself had seen 10,000 anglers since the season opened. It was great sport while it lasted and next year we hove for even better sport.

Pending the arrival of the fluke, there is very little doing on the Long Branch pier at present. Last week's storms drove out the schools of whiting and ling, and they haven't come back as yet, although a few are being picked up from time to time. There were thirty anglers on the pier yesterday afternoon and evening, including several women.

Quite a number of pickerel have been taken from the Passaic River, just west of River Edge, this week.

N. P. H. S. AND ALUMNI TO PLAY SECOND GAME

The North Plainfield High School baseball team will take another crack at the Alumni aggregation, Manager VanCamp having arranged a game for Saturday afternoon at Hyde Oval. This will be the final contest of the season for the borough school team. The team has finished its regular schedule and the result of this game will not be counted on the schedule.

The Alumni team will be composed of practically the same players that took part in the game two weeks ago, when the maroon and black nine took the short end of an 8 to 7 verdict. That game was a close one and the one Saturday will probably be interesting. Oscar Dilts will do the pitching for the school team.

MAXWELL NON-STOP CAR STANDS SEVERE TEST

The Maxwell forty-eight-hour non-stop car at noon today was working better than ever if possible. The run will close this afternoon at 4:50 o'clock and from the number of guesses being received some person will save $50 on the purchase price of their Maxwell car. The car is being driven in and around the mountainous rough roads as well as the better roads, so that you can have an idea of the sturdiness of this Maxwell car.

After the forty-eight hours' run D. F. Carpenter, local distributor of Maxwells, is going to have this same car tow a truck weighing 10,000 pounds. His idea for using the same car is to show the people of this vicinity that each Maxwell car is capable of any task which its owner may desire to put it to. Every person interested in motor cars should take the time to go to Johnston's Drive hill some afternoon this week and see with just how much ease the Maxwell climbs this hill when loaded with 15 passengers.

YOUNGSTER'S DESIRE RECEIVED NO REPLY.

"When I first arrived on the Pacific coast," says Joe Levy, the fight promoter, "the old Chicago Cubs, then managed by Frank Selee, were training, and with them was a skinny youngster who was trying in a feeble way to play the infield. He was worried and discouraged; said he didn't think he was quite ripe for the big league and asked Selee to leave him on the coast so he could get a year's added experience. Selee consented and offered him to the Los Angeles club. Los Angeles refused him, asserting that the kid was about class Z-23 quality. Selee took him back east—and his name was Evers."

PLANK DADDY OF HEAVERS.

St. Louis Feds' Veteran Is Oldest Twirler In Game Today.

Edward S. Plank, "daddy" of all present day baseball twirlers, has had a remarkable career. A portside flinger, he has lasted longer than any other southpaw in the history of the game.

The baseball life of a left handed pitcher is as a rule brief compared to that of a right hander. The constant hard throwing with the left arm has a bad effect on the heart and drives the southpaws out of the game.

The reason attributed to Plank's long stay in the big show is that he started later in life than most players, being fully developed at the time.

Until Ed was sixteen he had never seen a baseball score. At twenty he went to college at Gettysburg and in his first year received a trial with the college baseball team. He had a good record as a "rah-rah" twirler, and the coach of the team, Frank Foreman, the famous pitcher of the old Baltimore Orioles, tipped off his friend, Connie Mack, that he had captured the greatest southpaw extant, and Connie immediately telegraphed an offer to Plank, which was accepted. That was back in 1901, when Ed was twenty-six years old.

Plank made good with the Athletics from the start. Last fall he was let out by Connie Mack, and he signed up with the St. Louis Feds. So far this season he has shown that he has lost none of his cunning.

JACK COOMBS IS PUZZLED.

Can't Figure Out Yet Reason Why Mack Gave Him His Release.

"Why Connie Mack gave me my unconditional release last winter is still a mystery to me," says Jack Coombs. "He treated me so finely during my illness that I can't quite figure why he let me go.

"I wasn't a high salaried player, and it seems to me that he might have taken me south with the Athletics this spring just to find out whether or not I would have been of any use to him this season.

"Of course I am not kicking, for Brooklyn has given me a chance to come back, and I feel that I still have a few more years of baseball left in me. I would like to have repaid Connie Mack for his kindness to me when I was bedridden in the hospital."

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN WINS AT GLEN RIDGE

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, formerly of this city, but now of Baltusrol, equalled the record of the Glen Ridge golf course yesterday in the special invitation handicap tournament held on the Glen Ridge Country Club links. Her gross score was 91 and the record was held by Mrs. R. L. Johnstone. Mrs. Rogers only had two points handicap and did not figure for the net prize.

There were three other Plainfield women in the tourney. Mrs. A. M. Collens turned in a 111, 20-91; Mrs. Albert McDonald made 106, 15-91, while Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton's card read 95, 1-94. Mrs. Stockton had the lowest handicap of all those who took part.

BORO ATHLETIC TEAMS THE GUESTS OF SENIORS

The senior class of North Plainfield High School entertained the High School athletic teams at a picnic last night, on Johnston's Drive. Each member of the senior class supplied some part of the "feed" which was served on the mountain top.

After supper the girls played the boys left-handed baseball. Mr. Aungst captained one side in a tug-of-war, and all manner of games were played until darkness prevented. Then a fire was lighted and marshmallows were toasted. The following enjoyed the feast: Miss Ethel Barnard, Miss Mary Robly, Mrs. Albert Earley, D. Fred Aungst, Albert Earley, and the Misses Lucy Douglas, Lillian Spencer, Bertha Keller, Adelaide Ricketts, Ann Hull, Emma Ryno, Lizzie Hummer, Elsie Debele, Helen Schmidt, Madeline Blair, Jubilee Rowley, Katherine Giddings, and Harold Mead, Duclos VanMater, Ralph Smalley, John Dawe, Hyman Abrams, Aaron Hirsch, Oscar Dilts, Robert Hebert, Warren Townley, Harry Kirch, Ronald Conroy, Frank Fetherston, Sherman Chandler, Hoyt Tomkinson, Augustus VanDeventer, Sydney Dunning, Roy Force, Edson Day, Richard Schroeder, Russell Lee and Lester Chandler.

brought with it incoherent mutterings and interruption of questions that caused confusion for the time being and led Judge Connolly to rap for order. Before stepping down from the stand, Stockton apologized to Prosecutor Stein and the latter accepted the plea in a gracious manner, adding, "We all get a little warm under the collars once in a while."

The defense rested its case at noon and it will probably go to the jury late this afternoon. The whereabouts of Harold Vanderhoof, Mrrs. Roundey's twenty-two-year-old "amateur detective," are still a matter of conjecture. Testimony offered by Sergeant Maurice Higgins, of the Plainfield police force, indicated that he had left with his mother for San Francisco and that Mrs. Roundey had been the last one to bid him farewell in New York city. That he would prove a valuable witness to the State is conceded among those following the case. Prosecutor Stein made frequent and strenuous attempts to get portions of the Vanderhoof evidence offered in the contempt proceedings against Chief Kiely and Sergeant Higgins of the Plainfield police force, before the court, but Conover English, of counsel for Mrs. Roundey, combated each attempt. As a result a long argument on this topic ensued after the defense rested its case and it is not unlikely that Prosecutor Stein will again attempt to offer the testimony in its entirety during rebuttal this afternoon. The material involved includes Vanderhoof's declaration to the effect that he had been paid $100 by Mrs. Roundey for swearing to false affidavits. This confession was made during his examination in the Kiely-Higgins hearing.

When court opened this morning, Conover English took up the direct examination of his client where he had left off yesterday afternoon. It was brief and several times Prosecutor Stein and Mr. English were at odds. It included in part:

"How long have you known Mrs. Poinier?" asked Mr. English.

"Since I have been connected with the Order of Eastern Star, about two years," was Mrs. Roundey's reply.

"Has her hair always been the same color?"

"No, it has changed from dark to a copper color."

"Did your husband ever attempt to have you committed to an institution "

This followed vigorous objection by Stein on the grounds that the issues at stake did not involve the woman's insanity, but the court finally allowed it.

She replied: "He took affidavits that I was insane for the purpose of having me put away."

Stein took up the cross-examination at 10:35 and during the one hour and twenty-five minutes Mrs. Roundey was cross-questioned little transpired. She frequently asked the court stenographer to repeat Mr. Stein's question three and four times although they were asked in a clear and well-defined manner.

"When did you become suspicious of Mrs. Poinier?" asked Mr. Stein.

"After I inquired at the postoffice and found who lived at the East Second street house," was the witness' answer.

"When did you actually find that your suspicions were warranted?"

"On October 23, at night."

The woman then became badly confused and in a broken voice told a long story concerning her visit to the Roundey apartments over the Endress store at 131 West Front street, on the night of October 23, 1914, together with two men, and described what she saw through two holes in the door. She claimed that Mrs. Poinier and Mr. Roundey were alone in the room, the individuals being discerned by her through a knot-hole, with the aid of the illumination from an electric light seventy feet from the Endress store on West Front street. Mrs. Roundey alleged that the two were in a comprising position and said that the revelations substantiated her allegations of the couple's indiscretion as charged in her affidavits.

"Why did you not break down the door with the aid of your two stalwart detectives and order the woman from your apartments when you saw all this?" queried the prosecutor

"I was nervous and went to the bottom of the stairs where I had a bad chill and had to go home."

"How else did it effect you?"

"I was heartbroken."

"Can you find a tear anywhere in your head?"

"Yes."

"Well, show it."

No tears were forthcoming, however.

Much time was consumed in asking Mrs. Roundey about testimony she is said to have offered at yesterday's direct examination, but she denied having committed herself in a majority of instances.

Stockton, after being sworn as a witness, admitted that he had been a practising lawyer in New Jersey for twenty-four years and that he had charge of "much of Mrs. Roundey's litigation" since February, 1915.

"How long have you known Mrs. Poinier?" Mr. Stein asked.

"Since February," he replied. "I called at her home in Plainfield."

"What was the color of her hair?"

"One of the prettiest tints of red that I ever saw. I read nine different affidavits to her and she told me to go to see Martin Stutsman, a Plainfield lawyer, who was counsel Roundey's. She said she was not guilty of the charges and asked me to come again the next day. She afterwards offered to telephone to Mr. Stutsman and tell him that I was coming, but I declined the offer."

At this point Stockton began talking in a wild manner and accompanied his words with motions. The court interceded and after a lengthy wrangle between Stein, English and Judge Connolly, the witness was finally dismissed.

Mrs. Roundey testified at length yesterday afternoon, denying by means of the interrogations of her counsel, Conover English, that she swore to a false affidavit involving her husband and Mrs. Poinier in alleging wrong-doing at the Roundey apartments October 23 last. She never asked any other persons to tell what was not true, she declared, nor did she make promises of monetary reward to Edward Vanderhoof, Charlef Hoff or Petronella Tumiel, who had previously testified for the State that she had done so. It was Vanderhoof who had offered to testify for her, she declared. As to Hoff she feared him and went to New York to see him only because she wanted to learn where her husband had hidden a tomato can containing $2,000.

Mrs. Roundey told in detail of engaging Detective James Pelande, of New York; Detective Gregory, of Newark, and Harold Vanderhoof, of Plainfield, to watch her husband's movements and those of Mrs. Poinier. The spying culminated on the evening of October 23 when she and Harold Vanderhoof, the latter with his shoes removed and she wearing rubbers, crept stealthily up the stairs to Roundey's apartments and saw Roundey and Mrs. Poinier in a compromising position in Roundey's room. Partial corroboration was offered by Pelande, who said that a woman left the apartments later and that when he described her appearance to the defendant she said it was Mrs. Poinier.

Charles Annanson said he saw a woman in the Roundey house October 23. Mrs. Poinier was pointed out to him in court, but he was not sure that she was the person. George Faturos saw a woman visit Roundey in May, but not later.

She discovered Mrs. Poinier and her husband by gazing through a gimlet hole, she said. The hole was about the circumference of a meat skewer and she filled it up later so as not to arouse suspicion.

She said she was married 17 years ago. Charles Hoff, Tuesday's witness, was discharged from her employ because he went at her with a carving knife, she said. As to the attempts to subordinate perjury she declared she had no money to offer. she was deeply affected while on the witness stand.

The courtroom was thronged with many members of Lydia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, one of whose members, Alice Burton, offered an alibi for Mrs. Poinier yesterday.

DECISION RESERVED IN CASE OF BOY CHAUFFEUR

Testimony in the State's case against Arthur Moore, the eighteen-year-old local taxicab chauffeur, who is accused of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was taken before Judge Rene P. von Minden in the Dunellen court, this morning, decision being reserved until Saturday morning. Grace Philmore, the girl who was with Moore when his car crashed into a wagon on West Seventh street two weeks ago, was one of the witnesses, corroborating the youth's testimony that he had but eight drinks before the accident in a New Market road-house.

Swackhamer & Bird, of this city, represent the boy, and Motor Vehicle Inspector Burke prosecuted the case for the State. The youth was a witness for himself and Patrolman Roy E. Martin, and Roundsman Andrew Saffron, of the Plainfield force, testified for the State.

QUESTIONS OF MUNICIPAL FINANCE ARE DISCUSSED

Mayor Leighton Calkins was among the officials who attended the meeting of Assemblyman Pierson's committee at Elizabeth, last night, to inquire into municipal financial questions. This was one of several similar meetings held and to be held with a view to drafting recommendations for changes in the State laws governing these matters.

The idea seems to be that there are too many laws affecting the various municipalities which interfere with home rule plans, it being recognized that municipalities should be permitted to a large extent to handle its own financial problems without interference for what would be a benefit to one would be detrimental to another. The meeting was largely attended and the discussion was a lively one.

BAPTIST MEETING SEES LIVELY TILT

Rev. J. Madison Hare Calls for an Apology at East New Jersey Anniversary.

The proceeding of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, which convened for its seventy-fourth anniversary meeting in the Central Baptist church at Elizabeth this morning were enlivened by a wordy war over a resolution introduced by Rev. George McNeely, of Newark. Rev. J. Madison Hare, of Scotch Plains, questioned Mr. McNeely's right to submit the resolution, whereat the latter announced with some feeling that politics were being injected into the deliberations. Mr. Hare demanded that an apology be made by Mr. McNeely and one of those discussions arose which involve anybody and everybody but finally end up in nothing in particular.

The resolution which caused the trouble asked that the association commend John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for the stand he has taken in the Colorado mine troubles. Mr. Hare's contention was that it should have first been submitted to the resolution committee letting its members decide whether or not it was worthy of presentation to the meeting. It was this statement that caused Mr. McNeely to make the remark about politics. Opinions seemed to be against him and a vote was taken and carried, referring his resolution to the committee. It is possible it will be brought up for consideration this afternoon.

At this morning's session most of the time was devoted to routine business. Rev. Riley A. Vose, of Newark, was elected moderator for the coming term to succeed Rev. Dr. Foster, who is presiding today. In the election of officers Rev. Dr. Phillip B. Strong and Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, of this city were made members of the executive committee. The session adjourned at 12:30 to meet again at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

LADIES' AUXILIARY FESTIVAL ATTRACTS MANY PATRONS

Sociability was a feature of the annual strawberry festival and dance given in T. A. B. Hll, last night, by the Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No. 1, A. O. H. The hall was attractively decorated for the event, red and green being the prevailing colors. Members of the division served ice cream, strawberries, cake and other refreshments. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour this morning, Manchester's orchestra furnishing music for the occasion.

The committee in charge was comprised of Miss Mary E. Powers, chairman; the Mises Julia Regan, Nora Regan, Anna Quinn, Nell McCauley, Catherine Barry, May Kennedy and Mrs. Clarence Walden.

FUNERAL OF EDWARD MARTIN.

The funeral of Edward A. Martin, for thirty years porter at the North Avenue station of the New Jersey Central, was held in Mt. Olive Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. Vaughn, the services was conducted by Rev. D. Y. Campbell, of Calvary Baptist church. There were many handsome floral tributes, among them set pieces from the railroad employes at the North Avenue station and the local freight house, also from the cabmen and expressmen at the North Avenue station stand, with all of whom Mr. Martin had been very popular. It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

INVESTIGATE HURT OF NEBRASKAN

Naval Attaches to Fix Blame on Mine or Torpedo.

WILL EXAMINE SHIP'S HULL

American Vessel on Way Home In Ballast Meets Mishap Off Irish Coast, but Whether She Hit Mine or Was Torpedoed by Submarine Has Yet to Be Decided by Experts.

Whether the American freighter hit a mine or was deliberately torpedoed by a German submarine will probably not be decided until an expert examination of her hull after her arrival back at Liverpool. Even then the point may remain in doubt.

The question is one of gravest import and therefore will not be settled hurriedly. All the facts obtainable will have to be considered. The decision, if one is possible, is awaited by the entire country with patience, but anxiety.

The Nebraskan carried a crew of forty-one hands all told. She had no passengers. Besides Captain Greene her officers are: H. Gillespie, first; W. M. Fralle, second, and W. H. Senior, third officer. R. J. Dean is the wireless operator, and the engineers are F. C. Yandell, E. Williams, H. L. Margay and L. Parker.

Carried American Crew.

The Nebraskan, which belongs to the American-Hawaiian line, left New York May 7 with a general cargo for Liverpool, arrived there May 19, discharged and started back in ballast to Delaware breakwater May 24. Disaster overtook her the evening of the next day. The cable message from her master, Captain J. S. Greene of San Francisco, said:

"Struck either by mine or torpedo forty-eight miles west of Fastnet. Am steaming under convoy to Liverpool. Water in lower hold. No one injured. Greene."

Four dispatches concerning the Nebraskan were received at the state department in Washington—one from Walter H. Page, the American ambassador in London, and two from Robert P. Skinner, the United States consul general in London. The dispatch from the ambassador said:

"Urgent. Report at midnight last night to British admiralty from Lands End states that American steamer Nebraskan torpedoed forty-five miles south by west of Southcliffe, crew taking to boats. British trawler standing by now reports Nebraskan still afloat and making for Liverpool with four holds full of water. No lives reported lost."

British Say Torpedoed.

The first dispatch from Consul General Skinner was as follows:

"Admiralty reports American steamer Nebraskan, Liverpool for Delaware Breakwater, torpedoed forty miles south by west of Fastnet. Crew in boats. Standing by. Weather fine."

Later the following cablegram came from the consul general:

"Nebraskan proceeding to Liverpool under own steam about eight and a half knots, crew having returned on board. Apparently no lives lost. Extent of damage unknown."

The fact that the Nebraskan was damaged while she was forty miles at sea in water of a depth of about 500 feet, as shown by the British admiralty chart, at a place supposed to be remote from any of the British mine fields and with the water too deep to plant mines, created the distinct impression that she must have been struck by a torpedo.

Dispatches from Ireland say that a submarine was sighted near Barley cove, about ten miles from Fastnet, between 9 and 10 o'clock at night. The Nebraskan was struck between 8 and 9 o'clock.

Irish People Saw Submarine.

Several residents of Crookhaven turned out and went along the shore, keeping a sharp lookout. They sighted a submarine off the cove near the mouth of a little creek. One of the men on shore fired two shots with a rifle at the men in the conning tower of the submarine. The submarine dived immediately, but soon rose again farther out. Three more shots were fired at her, and she again disappeared.

The American embassy in London will send one or more of its naval attaches to examine the Nebraskan, as was done in the case of the ship Gulflight, reported torpedoed by the Germans. They will make every effort to establish how the injury was inflicted. Such examinations are not always conclusive, although it is believed that the charge made by President Wilson in his note to the German government that the Gulflight was attacked by a German submarine was based on the report of the naval experts after examining the nature of the damage.

The Nebraskan was returning to the United States in ballast to carry 3,500 tons of coal for the United States navy from Philadelphia to San Diego, Cal.

Officials of the navy department admitted that they could not understand upon what possible basis a German submarine would attack an American merchant ship bound for the United States and not even carrying a cargo.

PENROD

Copyright, 1914, by Doubleday, Page & Company

He negligently kicked a globe from the high chandelier and, smiling coldly, floated out through the hall to the front steps of the school, while Marjorie followed, imploring him to grant her one kind look.

In the street an enormous crowd had gathered, headed by Miss Spence and a brass band, and a cheer from a hundred thousand throats shook the very ground as Penrod swam overhead. Marjorie knelt upon the steps and watched adoringly while Penrod took the drum major's baton and, performing sinuous evolutions above the crowd, led the band. Then he threw the baton so high that it disappeared from sight. But he went swiftly after it, a double delight, for he had not only the delicious sensation of rocketing safely up and up into the blue sky, but also that of standing in the crowd below, watching and admiring himself as he dwindled to a speck, disappeared and then, emerging from a cloud, came speeding down, with the baton in his hand, to the level of the treetops, where he beat time for the band and the vast throng and Marjorie Jones, who all united in the "Star Spangled Banner" in honor of his aerial achievements. It was a great moment.

It was a great moment, but something seemed to threaten it. The face of Miss Spence looking up from the crowd grew too vivid—unpleasantly vivid. She was beckoning him and shouting: "Come down, Penrod Schofield! Penrod Schofield, come down here!" He could hear her above the band and the singing of the multitude. She seemed intent on spoiling everything. Marjorie Jones was weeping to show how sorry she was that she had formerly slighted him and throwing kisses to prove that she loved him, but Miss Spence kept jumping between him and Marjorie, incessantly calling his name.

He grew more and more irritated with her. He was the most important person in the world and was engaged in proving it to Marjorie Jones and the whole city, and yet Miss Spence seemed to feel she still had the right to order him about as she did in the old days when he was an ordinary schoolboy. He was furious. He was sure she wanted him to do something disagreeable. It seemed to him that she had screamed "Penrod Schofield!" thousands of times.

"Penrod Schofield! Penrod Schofield, come down here!"

From the beginning of his aerial experiments in his own schoolroom he had not opened his lips, knowing somehow that one of the requirements for air floating is perfect silence on the part of the floater; but, finally, irritated beyond measure by Miss Spence's clamorous insistence, he was unable to restrain an indignant rebuke and immediately came to earth with a frightful bump.

Miss Spence—in the flesh—had directed toward the physical body of the absent Penrod an inquiry as to the fractional consequences of dividing seventeen apples fairly among three boys, and she was surprised and displeased to receive no answer, although to the best of her knowledge and belief he was looking fixedly at her. She repeated her question crisply without visible effect; then summoned him by name with increasing asperity. At last she called him, while all his fellow pupils turned to stare at the gazing boy. She advanced a step from the platform.

"Penrod Schofield!"

"Oh, my goodness!" he shouted suddenly. "Can't you keep still a minute?"

CHAPTER VI.

Uncle John.

MISS SPENCE gasped. So did the pupils. The whole room filled with a swelling, conglomerate "O-o-o-o-h!"

As for Penrod himself, the walls reeled with the shock. He sat with his mouth open, a mere lump of stupefaction. For the appalling words that he had hurled at the teacher were as inexplicable to him as to any other who heard them.

Nothing is more treacherous than the human mind; nothing else so loves to play the Iscariot. Even when patiently bullied into a semblance of order and training it may prove but a base and shifty servant. And Penrod's mind was not his servant. It was a master, with the April wind's whims, and it had just played him a diabolical trick. The very jolt with which he came back to the schoolroom in the midst of his fancied flight jarred his day dream utterly out of him and he sat open mouthed in horror at what he had said.

The unanimous gasp of awe was protracted. Miss Spence, however, finally recovered her breath, and, returning deliberately to the platform, faced the school. "And then, for a little while," as pathetic stories sometimes recount "everything was very still." It was so still, in fact, that Penrod's newborn notoriety could almost be heard growing. This grisly silence was at last broken by the teacher.

"Penrod Schofield, stand up!"

The miserable child obeyed.

"What did you mean by speaking to me in that way?"

He hung his head, raked the floor with the side of his shoe, swayed, swallowed, looked suddenly at his hands with the air of never having seen them before, then clasped them behind him. The school shivered in ecstatic horror, every fascinated eye upon him, yet there was not a soul in the room but was profoundly grateful to him for the sensation—including the offended teacher herself. Unhappily, all this gratitude was unconscious and altogether different from the kind which results in testimonials and loving cups. On the contrary!

"Penrod Schofield!"

He gulped.

"Answer me at once! Why did you speak to me like that?"

"I was"— He choked, unable to continue.

"Speak out!"

"I was just—thinking," he managed to stammer.

"That will not do," she returned sharply. "I wish to know immediately why you spoke as you did."

The stricken Penrod answered helplessly:

"Because I was just thinking."

Upon the very rack he could have offered no ampler truthful explanation. It was all he knew about it.

"Thinking what?"

"Just thinking."

Miss Spence's expression gave evidence that her power of self restraint was undergoing a remarkable test. However, after taking counsel with herself, she commanded:

"Come here!"

He shuffled forward, and she placed a chair upon the platform near her own.

"Sit there!"

Then (but not at all as if nothing had happened) she continued the lesson in arithmetic. Spiritually the children may have learned a lesson in very small fractions, indeed, as they gazed at the fragment of sin before them on the stool of penitence. They all stared at him attentively, with hard and passionately interested eyes in which there was never one trace of pity. It cannot be said with precision that he writhed. His movement was more a slow, continuous squirm, effected with a ghastly assumption of languid indifference, while his gaze, in the effort to escape the marble hearted glare of his schoolmates, affixed itself with apparent permanence to the waistcoat button of James Russell Lowell just above the "u" in "Russell."

Classes came and classes went, grilling him with eyes. Newcomers received the story of the crime in darkling whispers, and the outcast sat and squirmed and squirmed and squirmed. (He did one or two things with his spine which a professional contortionist would have observed with real interest.) And all this while of freezing suspense was but the criminal's detention awaiting trial. A known punishment may be anticipated with some measure of equanimity—at least, the prisoner may prepare himself to undergo it—but the unknown looms more monstrous for every attempt to guess it. Penrod's crime was unique. There were no rules to aid him in estimating the vengeance to fall upon him for it. What seemed most probable was that he would be expelled from the school in the presence of his family, the mayor and council and whipped afterward by his father upon the state house steps, with the entire city as audience by invitation of the authorities.

Noon came. The rows of children filed out, every head turning for a last unpleasingly speculative look at the outlaw. Then Miss Spence closed the door into the cloakroom and that into the big hall and came and sat at her desk, near Penrod. The tramping of feet outside, the shrill calls and shouting and the changing voices of the older boys ceased to be heard—and there was silence. Penrod, still affecting to be occupied with Lowell, was conscious that Miss Spence looked at him intently.

"Penrod," she said gravely, "what excuse have you to offer before I report your case to the principal?"

The word "principal" struck him to the vitals. Grand inquisitor, grand khan, sultan, emperor, czar, Caesar Augustus—these are comparable. He stopped squirming instantly and sat rigid.

"I want an answer. Why did you shout those words at me?"

"Well," he murmured, "I was just—thinking."

"Thinking what?" she asked sharply.

"I don't know."

"That won't do!"

He took his left ankle in his right hand and regarded it helplessly.

"That won't do, Penrod Schofield," she repeated severely. "If that is all the excuse you have to offer I shall report your case this instant!"

And she rose with fatal intent.

But Penrod was one of those whom the precipice inspires. "Well, I have got an excuse."

"Well"—she paused impatiently—"what is it?"

He had not an idea, but he felt one coming and replied automatically in a plaintive tone:

"I guess anybody that had been through what I had to go through last night would think they had an excuse."

Miss Spence resumed her seat, though with the air of being ready to leap from it instantly.

"What has last night to do with your insolence to me this morning?"

"Well, I guess you'd see," he returned, emphasizing the plaintive note, "if you knew what I know."

"Now, Penrod," she said, in a kinder voice, "I have a high regard for your mother and father, and it would hurt me to distress them, but you must either tell me what was the matter with you or I'll have to take you to Mrs. Houston."

"Well, ain't I going to?" he cried, spurred by the dread name. "It's because I didn't sleep last night."

"Were you ill?" The question was put with some dryness.

He felt the dryness. "No'm; I wasn't."

"Then if some one in your family was so ill that even you were kept up all night, how does it happen they let you come to school this morning?"

"It wasn't illness," he returned, shaking his head mournfully. "It was lots worse'n anybody's being sick. It was—it was—well, it was jest awful."

"What was?" He marked with anxiety the incredulity in her tone.

"It was about Aunt Clara," he said.

"Your Aunt Clara!" she repeated. "Do you mean your mother's sister, who married Mr. Farry of Dayton, Ill.?"

"Yes—Uncle John," returned Penrod sorrowfully. "The trouble was about him."

Miss Spence frowned a frown which he rightly interpreted as one of continued suspicion. "She and I were in school together," she said. "I used to know her very well, and I've always heard her married life was entirely happy. I don't"—

"Yes, it was," he interrupted, "until last year when Uncle John took to running with traveling men"—

"What?"

"Yes'm." He nodded solemnly. "That was what started it. At first he was a good, kind husband, but these traveling men would coax him into a saloon on his way from work, and they got him to drinking beer and then ales, wines, liquors, and cigars"—

"Penrod!"

"Ma'am?"

"I'm not inquiring into your Aunt Clara's private affairs. I'm asking you if you have anything to say which would palliate"—

"That's what I'm tryin' to tell you about, Miss Spence," he pleaded, "if you'd jest only let me. When Aunt Clara and her little baby daughter got to our house last night"—

"You say Mrs. Farry is visiting your mother?"

"Yes'm—not just visiting—you see, she had to come. Well, of course, little baby Clara, she was so bruised up and mauled, where he'd been hittin' her with his cane"—

"You mean that your uncle had done such a thing as that?" exclaimed Miss Spence, suddenly disarmed by this scandal.

"Yes'm. And mamma and Margaret had to sit up all night nursin' little Clara. And Aunt Clara was in such a state somebody had to keep talkin' to her, and there wasn't anybody but me to do it. So I"—

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Speckles, Who Lived In the Stream.

Just Enjoyed Himself.

"TONIGHT," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn, "I must tell you about 'Speckles' that lived in the stream.

"I might as well begin by telling you that Speckles is the name I have chosen for a speckled trout, one of the most beautiful members of the fish family, and one which fishermen are very anxious to catch if they can. But some of the speckled family are wary and refuse to be caught.

"In the first place, this Speckles was a little bit of an egg, together with a lot of other little eggs. He was hatched out, and then he was what is known as a 'fingerling' trout. They call them by this name because they are ever so little, ever so much tinier than your little finger.

"Speckles had a lovely home. You children would not have liked it, especially Jack. He doesn't like water any too well except to drink. Besides, little people can't live in water except water babies, which I must tell you about some time. But little speckled trout are created just for that, don't you see? So this little Speckles just enjoyed himself in his lovely home.

"It was such a gushy, gurgly home, all bubbles and white froth where the water would break over the crests of the rocks in the brook's bed. The brook was bordered by many trees that were lovely and green and by long grasses and mosses that hung over the brink and trembled in the soft breezes which blew from the forest. There was cool shade cast by the trees, and some lovely lances of golden sunlight filtered down through it!

"As for the water, it flowed along just as briskly as it could, which was very brisk indeed, for that water belonged to a shallow brook, and it wanted to get away just as soon as it could, as it wanted to flow into a creek that was deeper and more to its liking. So it hustled along just as fast as it could.

"So this is the kind of home the little speckled trout had, and you may be sure that he enjoyed it very much. He used to swim around and around and have a splendid time in the water, and he used to eat flies, and sometimes a fisherman would eat his lunch by the side of the brook, and crumbs would fall into the water, and little Speckles liked them very much too.

"And in time Speckles grew to be a great big trout, and he grew wise to the lore of trout, and he was very cunning, and he got so big and fat that he couldn't get through the shallower water very well, so he lived in a deep, dark pool all by himself and got big flies and grubs and fared very well.

"And anglers learned of his size and fatness, and they tried their best to catch him with hook and bait. But he just wouldn't be caught, this wary old Speckles. So he lived to a ripe old age, and he would not bite at the bait which the anglers threw to him. And perhaps he is still living."

JUNE.

Show us dear June, that not in vain
Our lives need be,
Show us that we must also wait through frost and rain
To bloom like thee.

SYMPATHY.

Gain the sympathy of your child by interesting yourself in his childish plans and wishes. Draw him out to express them and help him realize them. Overcome secretiveness by sympathy and love which casteth out fear. To laugh at a child, to make fun of him, often causes stubbornness and secretiveness.

NINE LINES OF ACTIVITY FOR CHILDREN.

MR. FRANK THOMPSON,
Of the University of Colorado.

There are nine lines of activity for the child, which the school should imitate and the home practice: (1) Adjustment with others; (2) the acquisition of language; (3) how to make a living; (4) how to form tangible relations and spiritual relations (how to make friends); (5) teach religion, not theology; (6) the ability to construct; (7) the educative values in play; (8) the power to understand; (9) the right attitude towards the incapable.

Under, "How to Make a Living," he believed that a child should be taught early to manage his or her own budget. One way to learn to make a living is to learn how to plan the spending of money, and we jeopardize a child's immortal soul in giving a child money unless he has earned it in some way.

Dr. Thompson [illegible] the great danger of letting people accept without a return. Children should be given the right attitude to the less prosperous and to animals, and the helpless.

These points are not to be taught in sequence but children should learn all of these things at the same time, and it is necessary for teachers and parents to check upon these lines frequently to be sure they are all working.—(Child Welfare Magazine.)

FOR PARENTS AND EDUCATORS.

A splendid defense of what is known as "liberal education" appears in the Harper's Magazine for May under the somewhat misleading title of "Culture and Prejudice," by H. S. Canby, of Yale faculty. Every educator and parent should read the article in order to get the right viewpoint on the "vocational education" and to broaden the outlook on all education. Any quotation would be a mistake as each part is so vital to the whole.

The magazine may now be taken from the Public Library as a non-fiction book.

DANCING.

One of the metropolitan papers under the headline of "Are Mothers Off Their Jobs?" states that the fox trot and the one step has in reality become a dissipation with some of the older women as well as the young girls and that they actually pay men to dance with them who have no better recommendation than that they can dance. The excuse usually given is that it is dull at home, that it is for exercise or to reduce weight.

Not long since a girlish voice in greeting the hostess at a reception announced that she had brought her dancing partner with her in whom the son of the house recognized a professional dancer from a second class cabaret down town.

The article closes with this: "The Committee of Fourteen, which is making an extensive investigation into these conditions will doubtless do for all the girls what each girl's mother should or could have done for her. Society is no better than the moral status of each individual: without personal responsibility, there can be no effective group action."

Such conditions could not perhaps exist in a small town, but it might be well to know just how the girls do

Glimpses of Married Life.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Why Dick Morton, I'm surprised at you! I never would have believed it of you after all you said about economizing and your anxiety about getting out of debt."

"Well, Nell, a man has a 'first boy' but once in his life. I expect to wheel him around a lot, and naturally I want a good-looking buggy. When you come to examine the workmanship, the price is reasonable."

"Price reasonable, indeed," mocked Nell. "I have gone without a thing to wear, and used my last year's hat. Olive scolded me, I was so shabby. And then you go and buy a buggy that makes my poor little economies look like last year's birds' nests! The buggy Jo Parsons loaned us is all right and they were glad to have us use it. That $40 would have gone far toward paying Dr. Ellson's bill for baby."

"Oh, the doctor is not suffering," replied Dick easily. "The other day when I handed him some money he said, 'Now, you are sure you can spare this——'"

"As if that had a thing to do with it," interrupted Nell. "The debt has to be paid. Suppose that I should see something very reasonable that I really wanted, but something that we could get along without very comfortably——"

"Why, Nell, I got this as a surprise for you. I thought you would be so pleased, and now——"

"Dick, we can't afford expensive surprises," burst in Nell, "while we are in debt. You know it just as well as I do and there is no use your pretending anything else. If I should rush off and buy something without saying a thing to you I imagine I'd hear from it."

"Well, as to that," said Dick, frostily, "I'm hearing from it good and plenty. Can't a man buy his son a buggy, as a surprise for his wife, without having the pillars of his home pulled down about his ears? The thing is bough. now and if you talk about it till the end of the week it won't change matters any. Perhaps I made a mistake; you've done your best to make me think so. For heaven's sake drop the subject. Women never know when to quit."

"Men do, and it's so fortunate," replied Nell with scorn. The baby began to cry and Nell left the room, glad of an excuse to get away. As Dick sat moodily nursing his wrongs a quick step was heard on the porch and Olive entered.

"My, what a fine new buggy," she commented, pausing before the cause of the quarrel.

"Yes, I got it as a surprise for Nell, but she surprised me by being the reverse of pleased."

"It's a beauty," championed the girl.

"She thinks it's too expensive," he explained.

"You should be glad of an economical wife."

"A thing like that one gets only once in a lifetime, and it pays to have it good," said Dick belligerently.

"Ah, Mr. Morton, I see my words would fall on stony ground; I will go and shower them on Nell. It needs a shower of words or something to clear the air," said Olive gaily.

Nell was dismally rocking the baby when Olive came in like a refreshing breeze.

"The heavens are overcast; a storm is brewing," said Olive tragically, closing the door.

"Has brewed and devastated the country," corrected Nell gloomily. "Dick spent $40 on a baby buggy when we are so hard up," she grumbled.

Olive shook her slight shoulders. "Put a period to that, Nell. Harping is a symptom of nervousness. Lop it off, lemon juice has it always."

NOTE "HINTS"

Hard [illegible]—Make dressing [illegible] tablespoon [illegible] of salad oil, a [illegible] pinch of salt and [illegible] Rub butter to a [illegible] gredients and mix [illegible] stir in as much [illegible] as will make it consistent [illegible] spread between thin slices of [illegible]

Chicken Sandwiches—Mince fine any cold boiled or roasted chicken; put it into a sauce pan with gravy, water or cream enough to soften it; add a good piece of butter, a pinch of pepper; work very smooth like a paste. Then spread it on a plate to cool. Spread it between slices of buttered bread.

Cheese Sandwiches — Take one hard-boiled egg, one-fourth pound common cheese grated, half teaspoon salt, half teaspoon pepper, half teaspoon mustard, one tablespoon melted butter, one tablespoon vinegar or cold water. Put yolk of the egg into a small bowl and crumble it down; add the butter and mix it smooth with a spoon, then add salt, pepper, mustard and cheese, mixing each well. Then put in the tablespoon of vinegar, which will make it the proper thickness. Spread this between biscuits or slices of bread, and you could not require a better sandwich.

Egg Sandwiches—Hard boil some very fresh eggs; when cold, cut them into moderately thin slices, lay them between some bread and butter cut as thin as possible; season with pepper, salt and nutmeg. For picnics or when one is traveling, these sandwiches are far preferable to hard-boiled eggs.

Peanut Salad—Ground salted peanuts mixed with cream; spread between slices of bread.

Tomato Sandwich—Thinly sliced tomato with mayonnaise.

Sweet Sandwich—Use any tasty jelly, nut meats, dates or figs chopped.

THE TABLE

A Danish Dinner — Hamburger steak, one pound; potatoes, medium size, three; cabbage, one; celery, two stalks; carrot, one; butter, one-fourth pound; onion, one. Turn cabbage stem end down and cut off upper end for cover. Scoop out inside of cabbage until one-half inch in thickness. Salt inside well. Make hamburger steak into small patties and pack closely in bottom of cabbage. Pare and wash potatoes and cut in small squares. Cut up celery, onion and carrot in the same way. Put vegetables [illegible] quent spri[illegible] cabbage [illegible] cabbage firmly cover with [illegible] hours. Put [illegible] and serve with [illegible] large-sized cabbage [illegible] persons.

Tempting Salad—One [illegible] pineapple, one can [illegible] toes, five cents' worth [illegible] monds, five cents' worth [illegible] large head lettuce. Place [illegible] lettuce leaves on salad plate, [illegible] a slice of pineapple. Cut pimentos in lengthwise strips and arrange [illegible] cross on top. In the small squares thus formed put almonds and peanuts, while the ring in the center of the pineapple should be piled with mayonnaise. This will serve eight people.

Snow Custard—Half package gelatin, three eggs, two cups sugar, juice one lemon. Soak gelatin one hour in teacup of cold water, add one pint boiling water, stir until thoroughly dissolved, add two-thirds sugar and the lemon juice. Beat whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and when gelatin is quite cold whip it into the whites a spoonful at a time from half an hour to an hour. Whip steadily and evenly and when all is stiff pour in a mold or in a dozen egg glasses previously wet with cold water and set in a cold place. In four or five hours turn into a glass dish. Make a custard of one and one-half pints milk, the yolks of eggs and remainder of sugar. Flavor with vanilla and when the meringue or snowballs are turned out of mold, pour this around the base.

Eggs Baked in Milk—Grease shallow baking dish with butter and pour into it enough milk to well cover the surface of dish. Into this break carefully as many eggs as will be needed, taking pains not to crowd them too closely together. Dust over with a little pepper and salt. Pour over them gently a little more milk, enough to cover them well; set in oven and bake until eggs are firm—the whites and the yolks formed, but not too hard.

Fruit Frappe for Parties—One-half lemon to each person; add water and sugar to taste, as for lemonade; add six bananas cut in small pieces, one pint canned cherries, one pineapple chopped, six oranges cut fine; add juice of cherries before adding water. Half of this will serve sixteen persons.

Strawberry Pie—Bake a rich crust, put a layer of canned or crushed strawberries in crust, fill with whipped cream.

secure partners, for there is no denying the fact that partners are at a premium.

BROTHERS MUST DIE.

Abingdon, Va., June 10—James Canton and Luther Canton, brothers, will be electrocuted tomorrow for the murder of Mrs. James R. Wilson. The younger brother, James, was found guilty of murder in the first degree, despite the confession of the elder brother that he attacked and murdered Mrs. Wilson. He stoutly denied that the younger brother took part in the crime or had any knowledge of it, and, though facing death himself, fought heroically to save his brother James from the same fate. The conviction and sentencing of the younger brother concluded the most sensational trial of its kind in the history of Virginia. The murder took place on April 23, and the trials were concluded May 8.

BEAT YOUNG GIRL WITH WHIP.

Mrs. Samuel Hunt, colored, of South Second street, was in court this morning on complaint of Miss Phillips, of the Charity Organization Society, who accused her of beating a young colored girl who had been boarding with her. The Hunt woman admitted that she used a whip on the girl, and the judge told her that he had seen visible evidence on the arms of the victim. As the C. O. S. has provided another home, the court let the woman go, after telling her that if she was brought in again she would be severely dealt with.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11, 1910.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

WED IN FLOWER ADORNED LIBRARY

Miss Helen L. Smith Becomes the Bride of Clarence L. Bond.

REV. BOND OFFICIATES

Great-Uncle of Bridegroom is Assisted in Ceremony by Rev. J. Y. Brock—Many Guests Attend Wedding and Reception.

In the flower-adorned library of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Eugene Smith's home, at 607 Central avenue, last night, their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Smith, and Clarence Leslie Bond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eugene Bond, of East Front street, were married at 8 o'clock by the bridegroom's great uncle, the Rev. Lewis Bond, and the Rev. John Yonker Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who offered prayer.

The bride was attended by six ribbon bearers, Mrs. Allen E. Beals, Miss K. Winifred Rapalje, Miss Ethel Van Zandt, Miss Miriam Helen Van Horn, of this city; Miss Amy Louise Abel, of Jersey City, and Miss Cecile Luth, of Orange; Miss Celestine Colis Waldron, as bridesmaid, and Miss Emeline Townsend Manning, as maid of honor. The bridegroom was attended by his best man, Allen E. Beals and ushers, Frederick Martin Smith, the bride's brother, and Frederick Redcliffe Allen.

Each room in the lower part of the house was decorated with a distinctive color scheme of ribbons and flowers, the roses being gathered from the rosery of the bride's mother. The library, where the ceremony was performed, was in green and white, the hall and reception room in pink and white flowers and ribbons, and the dining room in green and white foliage and flowers.

As the two hundred guests assembled, the bridal party gathered in the upstairs rooms, and at 8 o'clock Miss Mabel Maxson, at the piano, and Arthur Mosher, violin, played the march from "Lohengrin," and the procession made its way down the winding stairway, and through an aisle of white ribbon to the library, where the bridegroom and ministers awaited the bride and her father.

The bride, bearing a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, was attired in duchess satin gown, en court train, trimmed with rose point lace and embroidered with pearls, over which was draped her veil, caught with orange blossoms. Her only jeweled ornament was a brooch, the bridegroom's gift. Her maid of honor, Miss Manning, immediately preceded her in a gown of blue crepe meteor, en court train, trimmed with Chantilly lace, and carrying an arm bouquet of pink roses. She followed the bridesmaid, Miss Waldron, in a pink satin gown, en court train, trimmed with point lace, also bearing an arm bouquet of pink roses. The ribbon bearers were attired in white lingerie gowns, with alternate pink and blue girdles.

As the procession gathered before the flower-adorned mentel, the ribbon-bearers formed a circle of white satin about the entire party, and the double ring ceremony was performed. A reception followed, during which Mr. and Mrs. Bond slipped away from the house on the wedding trip, after which they will reside in this city.

Guests were present from Philadelphia, New York, Bound Brook, Rahway, Jersey City, Orange, East Orange, Montclair, Somerville and Newark.

The bride is well known in this city for her work in Trinity Reformed church, where her father has been the superintendent of the Sunday school for thirteen years. She is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and has made a study of kindergarten work, having been assistant in this department of the Jefferson School for two years. She has also been superintendent of the beginners' department of Trinity church.

The bridegroom is the vice-president and secretary of the Bond Varnish Company, of Fanwood, and is the great grandson of the late Rev. Lewis Bond, the first pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He is a descendant of the Price family, who were among the first settlers of Newark.

TRANSFER APPLICATION.

William H. Freck, at present the manager of the Maples, at Fanwood, plans to apply to Judge James C Connelly, of the Court of the Common Pleas, to transfer the license of that place to him, the license now being held by James B. Guttridge. The application will be made Friday, June 18. The present license was issued to Mr. Guttridge at the January term of court.

C. J. STEWART GETS YALE CUP

Honors Awarded at Leal's School Commencement Exercises Today.

WINS GLENNEY TROPHY

Class of Ten Young Men Are Graduated in Presence of Relatives and Friends—John Leal Addresses School and Announces Prize List.

Ten young men of Leal School were graduated today at the annual commencement exercises held in the school on West Front street. There were a large number of people present including relatives anad friends of the graduates. John Leal presided and made a stirring address to the members of the graduating class. He urged the young men to begin their life work in the right way in order to assure success. The room was attractively decorated with spring flowers, and school and class banners and the American flag also added to the attractiveness.

Chauncey J. Stewart was doubly honored in being awarded the Yale cup, given by the Plainfield Yale Club to the student having the best average in scholarship and athletics. Character is also taken into consideration. The presentation was made by Donald McGee in behalf of the Yale Club, and the winner, who is one of the most popular boys of the school, was immediately showered with congratulations. Stewart was also awarded the Glenney trophy, given yearly by Will T. Glenney, a graduate of Leal School in 1906, to the member of the baseball team who is the most help to the team during the season. Stewart was captain this year, and was half the life of the team. Mr. Glenney made a fine speech on behalf of the Alumni, and was followed by the chief speaker, Rev. George F. Green, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Cranford.

The members of the graduating class and the colleges where they intend furthering their educations are: Orton G. Dale, Jr., Princeton; Fred T. Dickerson, J.., Fred Harrington, Cornell; W. Seward Lyon, Yale; Richard Moldenke, Columbia; Philip H. S. Phillips; Gano Larsson, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Chauncey J. Stewart, Cornell; Bradford Willard, Lenigh University, and Edward Le Roy Voorhees. Dickerson and Phillips will enter business, while Voorhees expects to return to Leal for another year.

Mr Leal read the honorable mention list as follows:

German, 3, S. Lyon; German, 2, Clarence Garrigues; French, 3, Orton Dale; French, 2, Bradford Willard; Virgil, Seward Lyon; physics, Bradford Willard; arithmetic, 1, Edmund Waldorf; arithmetic, 2, Reginald Buckley; geometry, Robert M. Miller; algebra, Robert M. Miller; Cicero, entire class; senior English composition, Willard Lyon; Latin lesson, Slade Dale; English, 4, Messrs. Garrigues, Greenleaf, Miller and Moldenke; English 2, Feginald Buckley; English composition, Messrs. Dale and Hawthorne; beginning Latin, Messrs. Hawthorn and Eaton. Mr. Leal stated that in the Cicero class he was unable to select one particular student for this honor, so he gave every member honorable mention, which is quite unusual. In several other subjects he also found it necessary to make two or three selections.

Seven Young Women Receive Acadaemic Diplomas at Mt. St. Mary's.

DEGREES ARE AWARDED

Able Addresses Delivered by Thomas W. Churchill and Dr. Calvin N. Kendall at Annual Graduation Exercises.

Parents, friends and men and women prominent in public life gathered at Mt. Promptly at 4:45 the speakers, members of the State Board of Education, commissioners, faculty, alumnae and students in full academic robes marched from the main building to the gymnasium, where the exercises were held. The large physical training room was attractively decorated for the event with American flags, flowers and pennants, while the stage was prettily banked with leaves, palms and cut flowers. TO SEND WORTHY BOY TO COLLEGE

Euchre and Dance Given at St. Mary's Hall for Scholarship Fund.

As a result of the euchre and dance given last night, in St. Mary's School Hall by the Holy Name Society, of the church, some worthy boy of the parish will be able to go through St. Peter's College, Jersey City, free of charge. The hall was crowded to its capacity, euchre and "500" being played the former part of the evening, after which the tables were cleared away and dancing was enjoyed by those efficient in the terpsichorean art. Music was furnished by Prof. Allen Squier's orchestra.

Father B. N. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, opened the affair with a short address of welcome and thanked the people for their co-operation with the men of the parish whose noble ends will enable some boy who otherwise would not be able to do so, to go through college.

The hall was attractively decorated with American flags, palms, and cut flowers. The committee in charge of the refreshments was composed of the following: Mrs. M. B. Caffrey, Mrs. M. D. O'Keefe, Mrs. T. J. Meaney, Miss Nellie Meaney, Mrs. Wilbur Shaeffer and Mrs. Edward Feiring.

The prizes for the players were unusually handsome and numerous, twenty players capturing honors. Among the prize winners were the following: Mrs. Philip Maguire, William V. Sullivan, Helen Keeley, Mrs. C. McCarthy, Miss Nora McCarthy, Mrs. McAfee, Frank Zeller, Mr. Lennon, Miss Laura Criss, Mrs. P. McDonough, Miss Lorretta McCarthy and Father McDonald.

The committee feels unusually grateful to all who have helped to make the event as much of a success as it was and similar affairs no doubt will be repeated at various intervals. The complete committee was composed of the following: Timothy J. Meaney, chairman; James J. McCann, D. J. Courain, John Keeley, Michael Caffrey, Peter McDonough, Rev. RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Guest of Honor is to Withdraw From City's Educational Service After Forty-one Years' of Faithful Work—Lauded by School Officials.

As a fitting testimonial to the close of her career as a member of the Plainfield public school faculty, Miss Millicent E. Humpston, who is to retire as principal of the Washington building, after forty-one years of service, was accorded a reception by the Parent-Teacher Association of the school last night. The affair took place in the Washington Auditorium, and beside being attended by all Miss Humpston's associate instructors and principals of other schools, numbered many women who have taught with her in the past, members of the Board of Education, school officials and not a few men and women who at one time had been in her classes. The gathering was universal in its feeling of regret at her retirement, but at the same time each and every one felt that it was more than deserved after such a long period of activity for the betterment of the community.

Mrs. J. Everett Kimball, president of the Washington Parent-Teacher Association; Mrs. Henry M. Maxson and Miss Humpston acted as a receiving committe. The children of the school had become imbued with the spirit of the occasion, and during the afternoon had beautified the auditorium with a mass of roses and other flowers. The formal program was brief, consisting of addresses by Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield schools, and Archibald Cox, a member of the Board of Education, and solos by Charles L. Lewis, musical director in the city schools; Miss Ruth Sadler and Bertram F. Tallamy. Refreshments were served in conclusion by a committee composed of Mrs. Harry Keen, chairman; Mrs. Theodore Larew, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. James Chamberlain and Mrs. A. W. Corbin, assisted by the Washington school teachers.

Exceeding to the wishes of Miss Humpston, the committee kept no part for her on the program, as the modest disposition which has characterized her long principalship is still in evidence. However, earlier in the evening the members of the association went to Miss Humpston's home on West Front street, where she was presented with a magnificent opal and diamond ring. It was a complete surprise to her, but she graciously thanked the donors in a short address that fully conveyed her sincere appreciation. A week ago Miss Humpston received another gift, that of a pearl brooch, given her by her associate teachers. She wore

WELL KNOWN PLAINFIELDER WEDS CINCINNATI GIRL

Relatives and friends in this city have received announcements of the marriage of Miss Josephine Reis, of Cincinnati, O., to Jacob Gaub, son of Mrs. Frederick Gaub, of Duer street, the borough. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride on June 3 and was witnessed by a small gathering of guests. Following a trip to Niagara Falls, the couple went to the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Harry Dunham, of Wellsville, New York, formerly of North Plainfield, where they are spending a short time.

Mr. Gaub is well known throughout the city and borough. He learned the machinist trade at the Potter Press Works, and for the past eight years has been an erector and demonstrator for the Monotype Machine Company, of Philadelphia. He is a brother to William Gaub, the fireman at No. 1 house, who fractured his ankle several weeks ago and is now in Muhlenberg Hospital, and also to John Gaub, assistant to P. J. Melvin, the North avenue restaurant man. Owing to the fact that Mr. Gaub's position keeps him on the road most of the time they have no permanent resident place in view at present, but will probably llocate in Philadelphia later.

ROUNDEY VERDICT IN JURY'S HANDS

Deliberation on Evidence at 10:45 This Morning Following Charge.

A MASTERLY SUMMARY

English Makes Remarkable Address to Jury—Stein Follows With a Thorough Review—Big Courtroom Witnesses Windup of Case.

Keen interest and considerable speculation as to the probable outcome of the State's charges involving perjury against Mrs. Florence F. Roundey, formerly of this city, was aroused this morning in the Elizabeth Court by Judge James C. Connolly's seventy-minute charge to the jury. He reviewed carefully each point brought to the attention of the court during the two days the trial consumed, and his words to the jury carried with them a clear and well-defined idea of the jury's obligations. They filed out of the courtroom at 10:45 and at 1 o'clock sent out for dinner. At this time there was no indication that a ballot had been taken, and it is doubtful if the men had even started to deliberate.

Conover English, of counsel for Mrs. Roundey, made a masterly plea to the jury in the summing up yesterday afternoon, assailing the character of the witnesses called; belittling the main points introduced by the prosecution, and pleading for a thorough vindication for his client. He referred to Edward Vanderhoef, an uncle of the "boy-detective," as a "grafter" and alleged that instead of Mrs. Roundey trying to "buy" his testimony, as he charged on the witness stand, that Vanderhoef attempted to

FRIENDLY WORDING OF NOTE CAUSES WONDER IN CAPITAL AS TO WHY BRYAN RESIGNED

FEELING THAT SECRETARY OF STATE OVERSTEPPED MARK IN RESIGNING BECAUSE OF ITS PHRASEOLOGY.

LOOK FOR ANSWER IN TEN DAYS OR TWO WEEKS

Expect Favorable Response as Document Opens Door for Solution Compatable to Interests of Both Sides to Controversy.

The full text of the American note to Germany will be found on page nine of today's Daily Press.

Washington, June 11.—Messages from Berlin say that the first sections of the United States note to Germany arrived there late yesterday afternoon, and the other sections began coming in early in the evening. The despatches say the note will be deciphered and presented to Herr Von Jagow, the German foreign secretary, today. On Thursday afternoon, the despatches say, United States Ambassador Gerard called on Herr Von Jagow and was closeted with him for more than half an hour.

The cabinet meeting today was a solemn gathering, although there was little before it for discussion. All the members were present, including Counsellor Lansing, who attended for the first time in his official capacity as acting Secretary of State. It became known that the note to Great Britain calling that government's attention to violation of treaty rights in the holding of non-contraband cargoes will not be dispatched for some time.

Flat denial was made at the State Department that the note to Germany was changed in any respect from the draft that Mr. Bryan refused to sign, and which led to his surrender of the portfolio of State.

With the publication of the latest American note to Germany concerning the sinking of the Lusitania, officials of the United States government and diplomatists generally discussed among themselves the probable character of the German government's answer. While there was no definite information, the feeling in German quarters was that a favorable response was likely, as the note seemed to open the door to a solution compatible alike with the interests of both Germany and the United States.

The note, it was said, was purposely phrased so that it would give Germany an opportunity to meet the wishes of the United States with dignity and in conformity with German public opinion. Many officials wondered why Secretary Bryan declined to sign the note, which they regarded as friendly in tone and carrying many expressions of good will. They claimed its friendliness was the very means that he had suggested—"persuasion"—to accomplish the American purpose. Nearly everybody in official circles disagreed with Mr. Bryan that the note might lead to war.

Officials today settled down to await Germany's answer, which was not looked for under ten days or two weeks. Unofficial advices received here said that the note, which had been considerably delayed in transmission, had been received by Ambassador Gerard in Berlin. It was to be presented today to Herr Von Jagow, the German foreign secretary. It is expected here, however, that Germany will await the arrival of Meyer Gerhard, personal representative of Count von Bernstorff, who now is en route to Berlin to outline the attitude of the American government, before making response.

The note which brought on the crisis in President Wilson's cabinet and culminated in the resignation of William J. Bryan as Secretary of State, although friendly in character, firmly renews previous demands that the German government give assurances that American lives and vessels shall hereafter be safeguarded. What action the United States will take in the event that Germany refuses to give such assurances is not indicated.
